PHILADELPHIA, DECEMBER 4, 1884

JOHN BROWN'S QUARTO-CENTENNIAL.

Twenty-five years ago Tuesday, December 2nd, the greatest of the friends of the races of negro freedom, excepting Toussaint L'Ouverture, paid the price of his philanthrophic courage at Charlestown. A quarter century has wrought wonderful changes in this land. The sentiment, enlarged more by John Brown's death than by anything else, rose to the nobility of highest philanthropy and joined in so strong a demand for freedom that the slave power were soon forced to yield.

How still we keep with reference to this, one of the greatest spirits of our century. We know of but one instance of the colored Americans celebrating the quarto-centennial, that is the people of the A. M. E. Church at Germantown, under the leadership of Rev. L. C. Chambers.

BIBLE FIGURES OF SPEECH.

Many of the most beautiful and helpful Scripture though s are put in figures of speech. A Jewish lady, native of Jerusalem, now in this country, gives the most satisfactory exposition of difficult passages. Instances: In the prophecy, "the government shall be upon his shoulders," we are accustomed to find satisfaction on the ground of Christ's royalty, but this idea is heightened and increased in interest by the Jewess' explanation that when the Jewish bride is given to the bridegroom, a part of the ceremony consists in lifting the cover well from the head and laying it upon the right shoulder of the groom as an acknowledgement of his right to govern her. The needle's eye difficulty is settled. The gates of the Jerusalem had a smaller gate cut in them, through which a camel, divested of his load, could kneel down and be pushed, might enter, but "how hardly." All things are possible with God.

THE OUTLOOK.

Mr. Blaine's Augusta speech has the right ring, but it is too late to be as effective as several similar speeches might have been two months ago in Connecticut, New York and New Jersey. The speech, however, is one of the most showy, logical and comprehensive "it is said it may be called the key-note of the Republican campaign." This is very likely applicable to this instance The tactics of the outs must be very different those of the ins. There is nothing in the change more probable than that the Democratic party so long out will find self-destruction in power, as the new condition, and that the Republican party so long in will be put to its wits' end to sustain itself and advance from the outside.

This fact is going to work wonderful changes in the entire status of the country relative to the very important matters. The incoming administration hanging upon the slender thread of slightly more than one thousand votes, upon by Barchard, Independent Democrats and the Solid South, will realize its position as being by no means certain of long perpetuity under new edits that Reed, the defeated party seeing its methods inadequate will adopt new Doubtless the old cry of rebel will be laid aside, and those who can not in conscience not be loyal, and any appeal to the suffrage of the people to be successful must satisfy at least a solid fact. There will still be two great parties, but they will be the old democratic and the old republican only in name. They will not divide where the lines now are When once the entire field of federal offices, as well as those of many States and municipalities, in the hands of the Democrats, there will arise fight lines within, and the colored vote will be so sought as rival democrats as nationality as it was by the republicans. Ultimately those factions will crystalize and at the same time a new division, a new organization, will go on in northern States and a coalescion of correspondents will stand opposed to a coalescion of counter correspondents; the parties will be fully entered upon a new struggle for the mastery.

IS IT TRUE?

Among the graver charges against the colored Americans, both from some members of our own race and members of the white race, is that the colored ministry and the colored school teachers are the worst misleaders of our people. It is boldly asserted by representatives of both races that the re among colored preachers is to teach superstition for religion, and to practice the most lewd, unchaste and unholy acts, and that chaste and godly ministers are the exceptions, not the rule. If this be true, it is very, very sad, if the ministry are mere ignorant, superstitious, hypocritical leaders, then it were better for the colored people that they bed no preachers But is it not wise to examine this subject more closely? Is it not worth our while to set on the principles of criticism laid down by our Lord Jesus? By their fruits ye shall know them. Would it not be worth our while to look at this class in comparison and in relations as well as in their individual, absolute standing?

As to the trial of the negro ministry by the Christian guage we find that, among us, as among other people, the educational influences of the colored ministry have been favorable. The history of education among our people will show that colored ministers, though not educated, have shown themselves favorable to education. We do not forget that colored ministers do often appear in boast, (and sometimes really boast) of their ignorance, but the majority of them do not absolutely mean to degrade education, but to exhalt religion. In their lack of ability to set the matter straight before the people, they sometimes may seem to glory in ignorance. As we say above, there are some ministers who really oppose education; but is there not a corresponding ratio of laymen guilty of the same folly?

As to morals, it is as sad a comment upon the laity as upon the ministry. If the fraternity are feul in the extreme, who do the pews tolerate them? If they are thus defiled, how do they succeed in elevating, as well as religioneting, the people?

We have been very intimately associated with hundreds of colored ministers, and, while we have found some unworthy members, we have found more who were faithful, diligent and worthy of esteem. We have found the most of them noble, pure-hearted and progressive. We no not believe that the colored ministry is in its sympathy with the pitiful whines of colored men, or confidence in the grave charges of white men on this subject. The sooner we satisfy the white and colored man in all politics is buman, and that the white man is quite as be as the negro, the sooner we shall be in a line of right development. Character has no color tine. We really believe that the white ministers of our times are doing as much evil to prejudice the black ministers, and that the black ministers are doing as much good in proportion as the white ministers.

THE HAMPTON SCHOOL has done a great work in educating the negro and the Indian. These boys, girls, men and women of these two race-varieties are taught how to use the body as well as the mind; they are educated in the trades. General Armstrong, with a troups of four colored gentlemen and two Indian gentlemen, all scholars of Hampton, has recently closed a series of twenty meetings in fifteen cities with an entertainment in Association Hall, Philadelphia. His object has not been to gather money immediately, but to awaken sympathy for the general work of elevating the two peoples, saving the one from the evil from of and helping it upon the right shoulder of the groom as an acknowledgement of his right to govern her. The needle's eye difficulty is settled. The gates of the Jerusalem had a smaller gate cut in them, through which a camel, divested of his load, kneeled down and be pushed, might enter, but "how hardly."

THE OUTLOOK.

Mr. Blaine's Augusta speech has the right ring, but it is too late to be as effective as several similar speeches might have been two months ago in Connecticut, New York and New Jersey. The speech, however, is one of the most showy, logical and comprehensive "it is said it may be called the key-note of the Republican This is very likely applicable to this instance The tactics of the outs must be very different those of the ins. There is nothing in the change more probable than that the Democratic party so long out will find self-destruction in power, as the new condition, and that the Republican party so long in will be put to its wits' end to sustain itself and advance from the outside.

This fact is going to work wonderful changes in the entire status of the country relative to the very important matters. The incoming administration hanging upon the slender thread of slightly more than one thousand votes, upon by Barchard, Independent Democrats and the Solid South, will realize its position as being by no means certain of long perpetuity under new edits that Reed, the defeated party seeing its methods inadequate will adopt new Doubtless the old cry of rebel will be laid aside, and those who can not in conscience not be loyal, and any appeal to the suffrage of the people to be successful must satisfy at least a solid fact. There will still be two great parties, but they will be the old democratic and the old republican only in name. They will not divide where the lines now are When once the entire field of federal offices, as well as those of many States and municipalities, in the hands of the Democrats, there will arise fight lines within, and the colored vote will be so sought as rival democrats as nationality as it was by the republicans. Ultimately those factions will crystalize and at the same time a new division, a new organization, will go on in northern States and a coalescion of correspondents will stand opposed to a coalescion of counter correspondents; the parties will be fully entered upon a new struggle for the mastery.

IS IT TRUE?

Among the graver charges against the colored Americans, both from some members of our own race and members of the white race, is, that the colored ministry and the colored school teachers are the worst misleaders of our people. It is boldly asserted by representatives of both races that the re among colored preachers is to teach superstition for religion, and to practice the most lewd, unchaste and unholy acts, and that chaste and godly ministers are the exceptions, not the rule. If this be true, it is very, very sad, if the ministry are mere ignorant, superstitious, hypocritical leaders, then it were better for the colored people that they bed no preachers But is it not wise to examine this subject more closely? Is it not worth our while to set on the principles of criticism laid down

Notes on Education.

Ohio has more colleges than any other State in the union. Yon will observe Wilberforce is the first of these institutions —Xenia Gazette.

Preliminary steps were taken at a meeting of leading white and colored citizens of New Orleans, held on the 17th ult., at the Straight University, to establish at some convenient point in the South, a University of Applied Science and Art, for the graduation of colored schools a thorough training, both theoretical and practical, in the leading trades.

The other $300,000 please find inclosed my check for. The latter sum is to form a building fund for the erection thereon from time to time of suitable buildings for the college."

THE BEST METROPOLITAN PAPER. The Tribune bore the brunt of the fight in New York for Republican success in 1884, and performed its part so well that it begins the new subscription year with a business that breaks all previous records. It sold 1,202,000 copies on election week, and goes into the winter with 121,000 circulation of the daily and 143,000 paid subscriptions to the weekly, not counting the short term campaign orders. Wherever The Tribune circulated largely in 1884, the Republican majorities were heavy. In the New York City, where almost the entire press of the city was against it, the result shows how nearly it came to being a match for them all. The Tribune may well be said to stand as the best exponent of Republican opinion in America. The time has come for people to provide themselves with reading for the coming year, and to do it promptly and heartily commend The Tribune to their attention. Every one wants a metropolitan paper, as well as a local journal, and The Tribune is the best. It is the greatest educator of the people, a first-class agricultural department; all the news, foreign and home, and has a literary matter of the daily; and several special features for household instruction and enjoyment. Now, that the holiday season is coming on, the premiums offered by The Tribune for gifts will attract attention. Among these are Wheaton's new Dictionary, "Unabridged Dictionaries;" Wood's illustrated "Household Practice of Medicine;" the successful "Library of Useful Knowledge," 15 vols; the Waterbury Watch, and Bidpath's illustrated "History of the United States." Send for a descriptive circular, explaining the terms in full.

THE DUAL BIOGRAPHY.

For reasons that are controlling and that make the work to me a sacred duty, I have undertaken the preparation of the volume commemorative of Dr. Lovell Pierce and of his son, Bishop George F. Pierce. I do this because I have so wished it, and their families desire it. The material for the work is in my hand, but is widely scattered. To be useful to any, it must be brought together. Many thousands of letters preserved in desks and hundreds of interesting incidents in the life of these friends, that would be invaluable to me. I ask assistance from the friends and incidents. I will be thankful for any letters from either the "Pierce" or the "Bishop," whether both had a trick of saving the best things in the most unexpected way. I prefer the brightest and wisest sentence occur in a short private letter.

A LONG PNEUMATIC TUBE.

A company is getting ready to build a pheumatic tube for carrying letters and packages between Brooklyn and New York. The idea of a first seems immediately to be associated with a time cost to be feasible. Two tubes are to be made of boiler iron, each about 8 feet wide, although it is said one tube will be tried at first. A powerful engine with an exhaust and force pump will work the one sod. It is said that if the tube is properly closed the air cannot find an escape. The right of way it is believed can be obtained without much trouble or legal expense, and the main cost will be the tube and the engines and station. Arrangements for receiving and sending packages will be made at each end of the line. The only objection to the scheme at present is the rolling object, and the leather of the valves which will close across corrent of air is passing through the tube constantly. With one pipe only it is thought that a package can go per—the first hour forcing air into it, and the next hour exhausting it. Trains of packages will be made up for the different points to New York, the next hour exhausting it. PHILADELPHIA, DECEMBER 11, 1884.

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

President Arthur's last message shows the common sense that has characterized his whole administration. He will probably go down in history as a prudent and faithful national executor.

He recommends calling in the trade dollar, suspension of the coinage of the standard silver dollar and the withdrawal of the one dollar and the two dollar notes.

The total revenue is stated as $348,519,810; expenditures for ordinary purposes, $260,916,474. Net decrease of expenditures, $21,000,000. Falling off in revenue, $34,000,000; estimated revenue for current year, $330,000,000.

The President recommends one cent postage on drop letters and one ounce instead of half an ounce as the standard mailing unit. He also recommends the pensioning of General Grant, the improvement of election laws, the strict ugbeing of our military forces, the adoption of the international maxatime regulations, the prevention of manufacturing in this country death shells for foreign malcontents to blow their government up, &c.

The first half years of a nation are her growing years; her warlike years are her destructive years. The four years' internal struggle, through which the United States passed twenty years ago, were years that preyed upon her vitality more than fifty years of peace have been done. War hardly seems to be a normal act of mankind. Its expenses are much greater than its benefits. There is, as a rule, very little necessity for it. The nation that has peace throughout its borders is the blessed nation; provided the peace be the result of healthy growth. Our Friends, or Quakers, are known to be hostile to war; there is no nobler race of men than they. One of the proprietaries concerning the reign of Christ is, "The work of righteousness shall be peace."

THE BENEVOLENT institutions of our times seem to ward off the severity of the criticisms that must be passed upon our age by the remote future, as an age of vice and dissoluteness. It is remarkable in this century of institutions we have: There are homes for inebriates, homes for friendless, homes for imbeciles, homes for insane and for children whose parents neglect and maltreat them. One of this latter is situated on St. Mary street, between Seventh and Eighth streets, Philadelphia. We visited it Thanksgiving Day and were surprised at the neatness, happiness and economy of the inmates. There is no color-line there. Children are kept and cared for at the rate of $1.00 per week, or 6 cents per day. May women absent from their homes, working by the day or week, leave their babies there. The day rates do not include nights. Mrs. Miller, the matron, seems to have the affection of all the children. On the same day we called at the Old Folks' Home, Lombard street, between Sixth and Seventh. There are hundreds of such establishments in our land.

BISHOP TURNER, on his return from New York, called last week. He believes his district on the road to success. The Bishop's views on education are generally well known. He regrets the defeat of Mr. Blaine because he admires him, and of the Republican party because he has done so much to build it up and support it, but feels that it is only a just castigation for sounding the civil rights law. Since these laws were annulled, Bishop Turner has declared himself out of sympathy with the United States government. He now in the present outlook a good opportunity for the democratic party to make good its boasted assertions of being quite as friendly to the colored race as the Republican party, and for the Republican party an opportunity to redeem its record of the past and present with reference to the colored race. He says everything is peaceful in Atlanta.

YEARS AGO the "accursed cup," "the bottle" and "the bowl," were the expression of moral indignity towards strong drink. Now, stronger would be the accursed pitcher or the bucket. The streets of our great city are spotted with pitchers going to and from saloons, borne by men of nearly all grades, women of nearly all classes and children as young as four years. The fact that we men send children under these places, become familiar visitors, is the fact to be deprecated most seriously. The mother becoming degraded to the drink curse will treasonit, not only the appetite, but the brazen indifference that asks no longer the protection of the bottle, but only the open pitcher. The children sent to the saloons will grow up famishes to them in most cases. These two facts voice in insuring the next generation a lull harvest of drunkards.

THE HONORABLE Secretary of the Interior places us under obligations for a copy of his report. The report states that the year has been characterized by peace with and among the Indians. There are 81 boarding schools, 76 day schools and 6 industrial schools. Mr. Teller thinks the greatest agency in the civilization of the Indian is the manual labor school. Last year, under instructions of Secretary Teller, a tribunal was established for the punishment of crime among Indians, entitled a court of "Indian offences." This has been salutary to the condition of the Indian and advised to government. He reiterates his advice to repeal the pre-emption law. The report enters complaint against illegal fencing practiced by the unscrupulous men who select the Indian reservations.

THE UNION BETHEL folks, Philadelphia, are always progressing. On Thanksgiving eve they gave a reception in honor to Bishop Cain. The Bishop regarded it as one of the greatest honors of his life. Addresses were made by Dr. Tanner, presiding elder Felix, local deacon Jones, of Union Church, Father Turner, one of the oldest Philadelphia African Methodists. Address of welcome by editor of the RECORDER, also an address by editor Tanner, of the Review, and each received hearty response by the Bishop. The address by the pastor was highly appreciated.

THE FORMER A. M. E. Church in New Haven has passed over to the M. E. Church. Elder R. J. M. Long is still there with an A. M. E. Society, worshiping in a hall. There is nothing in the state of Connecticut necessary to our government, yet we have the miserable satisfaction of knowing that such failures take place under other church governments. It is stated that the Unitarian Church has lost six churches in the State of New York in a year.

WE TRUST hundreds of our members will get the Centenarian. In this way many learn more of Methodism from it in a week than in a life-time otherwise. Send on as soon as you read this, and you may forget it. Remember, it will contain news respecting the Methodism of a hundred years. African Methodism is a part and therefore interested in the centenary. Send 50 cents to Rev. W. K. Boyle, Box 592, Baltimore, Md.

THE FIFTH EPISCOPAL DISTRICT, we understand, are about to issue a paper as their especial organ. The Fourth Episcopal District already has the Sentinel as their organ, Rev. J. F. Dyer, editor. We wish all these enterprises success. There is room for all. The more papers, if there is support for them and those already existing.

REV. Johnson having left his charge, Little Wesley, Philadelphia, nearly two months ago, and having not been heard from by flock, presiding elder and Conference, he is displaced by the appointment of Rev. Walter S. Thompson, of Columbia, Pa., to the charge of Little Wesley.

THE CENTENNIAL of Methodism will be especially celebrated by the A. M. E. Church in Philadelphia Sunday, December 28th. See programme in another column.

Literature.

We have received the beautiful eichings of J. E. Mock, entitled "Crossing the Pastore," given by Cassell & Co. to every subscriber to the Magazine of Art. The impression is clear, well-designed and clear in expression. The Magazine of Artis one of the very highest order of publications of its kind and its premium equal to the most attractive offered for 1885.

A pamphlet of 14 pages, bearing to us the annual discourse of Hev. Otis H. Tiffany, A. M., before the American Colonization Society, has for it subject, "Africa for Christ." The address refers to the prosperity of Liberia, the international interest re-centered in Africa and finally to the inability of the white man, and the special adaptation of the black man, to secure the climate of Africa

The American Missionary for December is very interesting. It shows the magnitude of the work of the American Missionary Association in the question from the report of the committee on finance. The committee has a deficit of $40,000, that not less than a thousand dollars a day are imperatively demanded to protect the admirably organized plans of the Association, even for the present, to say nothing of the pressing needs of the early future.

The December North American, strong, able, solid, purely personal, with "Labor and Capital before the Law," Justice T. M. Cooley "The Palace of the Czars," Dr. E. J. Schliemann; "Notes on Railway Management," C. Acherson; "The British Houses of Lords," G. T. Curtis; "Responsibility of Journalism," J. F. Rhodes; "Friendship in English Poetry," J. C. Shairp. All of these people are writers of foreign authority. Volume 139 of the North American is the beginning of a new series.

The November and December Missionary Review is, as usual, filled with much information relative to missions and missionaries as we find in no other repositories on those subjects. $3.50 will surely purchase so vast a number of facts of interest to those studying the home and foreign missionary field as is found in the six numbers of this Magazine. Send a volume of five cents. Every one of our ministers would do well to subscribe for the Missionary Review. Funk & Wagnalls, N. Y.

Harper's Magazine, on excellent paper, presents as usual an array of talent, both pictorial and art seldom surpassed in any single number of a magazine. The frontispiece, "Ben Hur" Jesus in the Temple," from a painting by Heinrich Hofmann, of Dresden, is a superb engraving. E. C. Stedman comprises witchcraft of 1692 with witchcraft of 1884. Poems by Andrew Lang, E. F. Roe's "Nature's Serial Story," and Charles Dudley Warner's "Their Pilgrimage," together with many other equally pleasing features, conspire to render the Harper's one of the first and best literary magazines.

The Christmas Wide Awake opens resplendently with a beautiful frontispiece in three-color reproduction by S. Frang & Co., in eighteen colors, of a water color by H. F. Lungren. It is a festival Christmas-tide Jewish Christmas scene. A second brilliant pictorial attraction is a series of Antarctic drawings, also by Lungren, illustrative Mr. Butterworth's "Wonderful Christmastide Child." There are two humorous Christmas stories, "Benny in Court," by Sophie Swett, and the "Poet and Peasant's Doll" by Mrs Bradley. The serials, poems, tales and the Christmas carols readings, give to this Christmas number all the attractiveness that its little readers expect for $1.00 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Mass.

The December Century is a glorious number, bas as it frontispiece an excellent engraving of Gen. U. S. Grant, by F. Johnson, also illustrations by Joseph Pennell, Miss M. J. Underhill, Mr. Zoebaum and others. The architectural department unusually attractive and instructive. The literary department in this magazine is grandly maintained. It is at a proper or reasonable time for any other series.

The common sense view of this matter has not been presented, is here. It conflicts with the letter and spirit of the laws of our Discipline, with the interests of the connection, by making it probable that the bishop who presides may speak should arise between sessions; he so was unanswerable. In the interest and judicious conduct of ANY DEPARTMENT of our church, and the PASTORATE in connection with it, is a panacea specific, for EVERY DEPARTMENT of the church.

I am as earnest and as zealous for the children and Sabbath school work of Smith's possibly can be. And wherever I have been I challenge any one to prove a suggestion is so far as my humble ability extends. I have never held a charge where the Sabbath service was not exclusively devoted to the Sabbath school, and on quarterly meeting, a quarterly sermon as it is handed some. See this fee frontispiece printed in the Recorder. It was prepared with the book what a pretty picture it would be to frame. The little girl with her hair flying, the dear old father sitting guard over the luggage, and the faithful dog with his teeth and prepared for war if any one with evil intent venture to disturb them. The colors used in the printing are exceptionally well put on. Not too bright, not too dull, just down to please the taste of the class of people who read the Recorder. The woodcuts are up to their usual high standard, and the reading matter continues interesting in connection in a most attractive manner. Cassell & Company, New York.

"A REPETITION OF HERESY."

BY REV. A. M. GREEN.

MR. EDITOR:—I should not feel in any word relative to the question of heresy as in controversy between Doctors Smith and Steward, were it not that there is more involved in this matter of "Sunday School Heresies" than some of our people may imagine. Dr. Smith did not with "emphasis" repeat the "heresy." I should still hope that his attitude was one that might be regarded as exceptional. He may have been a little hasty and without due consideration of the tendency of such heresy. When, however, we see his object in writing that sentiment of Sabbath school heresy, we can discover that it was in give tone to the opinions of those who stood in some way antagonistic to the judgment of pastors of our churches; when he attempts to sustain the heresy by false quotations of God's word, and false inferences drawn from his false quotations and interpretation of Scripture, than I think it is the duty of all who love our Church and the prosperity of her Sabbath and holy calling to look into the matter and see what are the true and what the false issues really in controversy on this subject.

Dr. Smith by a kind of specious pleading takes exception to he gravity of the charges of Dr. Steward against "Sabbath school Heresy." What is heresy? Simply error. The essence of Sabbath school heresy is simply an error in Sabbath school doctrine; and that is what we are writing against. We are ready to repeat to the true name for both the words and the attitude of Dr. Smith. All this talk about the right of children to their privileges and about their equal rights with older people in the Church, and about barring children from privileges and communion and the Lord's Church, is specious pleading and has no relation to the subject. It is but to throw in to pervert judgment, or whether so intended or not, that is the direct tendency. Some of us think the oft repeated statement by Dr. Smith is but little better than nonsense and his reply to Dr. Steward, that "it is not safe to preach," is to declare Dr. Smith's "it is heresy also. When and where was this done? But Dr. Steward proves either his own insincerity his desire to pervert judgment, as we have said, or his misconception of the subject at issue. His statements and reasonings are not consistent even with themselves.

He says, "No one has any right to demand that the Bible or any part shall be postponed or dismissed to make room for any other subject." Why not? Why "Now, what is the meaning that common sense would dictate in regard to this matter of expediency? Simply this: Where it is necessary to hold an extra service at the hour of preaching, and a Sunday school to meet, that the Sunday school should hold its session to advance of the extra service, and thus both be accommodated without friction. If Dr. Smith refers to the matter of controversy is ended, and a little forethought would have saved the necessity of word his instructions in the Annual Record that this could clear up the matter to his meaning. But it does not quite look like the highest order of common sense to say that "no one has the right to postpone or dismiss the Bible or any other service," and then in the next breath to say, "Where it is necessary the Sunday school should hold its session in advance of the extra service, and thus both to be accommodated without friction."

The common sense of this is, simply that some one has the right to postpone or dismiss the school when certain circumstances in order that both may be accommodated. On any other principle, common sense the school has met an hour before the extra service, it might be necessary to dismiss it at a proper or reasonable time for any other service.

The common sense view of this whole matter is, that Dr. Smith's idea, in his pleading, is not in accordance with the letter and spirit of the laws of our Discipline, with the interests of the connection, by making it appoint times and places for having a general mass-meeting, and any such other business as may be necessary to carry out the design of the General Conference.

7. That Sunday, December 28, 1884, be set apart as Centenary Sunday.

POLITICS AND POWDER.

WHAT IT COSTS TO RUN A CAMPAIGN—OPINION OF A FIREWORKS MAKER.

Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat.

"Five million dollars!"

"Yes, sir, five million dollars, of which ten millions were spent for fireworks and three millions for uniforms, etc., every Presidential campaign."

"Thus said Mr. James Pelmar, the Rochester fire works maker, to our reporters last night.

"The average in off years for fireworks is only one million dollars."

"Do we import the bulk of our fireworks?"

"No sir, we import nothing but firecrackers. We make the rest in this country. These are only toy fireworks established in America."

Upon invitation of Superintendent Frederick Fris Pichener, the reporter inspected the Palmer establishment not open to the public generally on that day. When the superintendent said he had been blown up twice, the reporter furtively asked:

"Is not this business a little risky?"

"Yes," he answered, "but it is considered by outsiders, but I have accustomed myself to danger, and am not by experience on record of it."

Jones, a layman Endowment money so as to be reported in full, visiting the sick, even at times when he was unable by reason of affliction. He was beloved by all. His last moments were moments of intense suffering, but he bore all with christian fortitude and resignation. His last words were to his dear wife, son and loving associates, who stood beside his bed weeping. He begged them all to meet him in heaven. He was conscious to the last two weeks, with malarial fever. Truly, death to him is gain, and for us to live is to mourn his loss. Sister Moll's Walls died Nov. 2nd. Just a few nights before her death she came out to church. She said she wanted to pray to her God. She was loved by everybody.

PHILADELPHIA, DECEMBER 6.

Seal was never better. Seal was going to be high; but November wasn't weather for furs. The winter is half-gone; and the wearing of furs has hardly begun. The winter's slowness has cut our expectations down; our profits rather.

We shall make our skins into garments—no doubt about that. Our work-room is busy all day and half the night. We never did more of better work. We must keep your good-will, you know. As for money—we can make that another year.

All sorts of fur-garments, as plenty as it is thought to us a fortune. May be, they will before winter is over. Driving furs are ready. Not everybody waits for snow.

A black silk of ye olden tyme. We do not remember it: but are told it is old as well as new.

An exquisitely fine almost lengthwise twill, like that of drap d'été but finer. Soft and dreamy. Not a sheen; a sparkle. Not a blade light; a thousand points. Star-dust.

Thick and stately. $1.50 to $3; 22-inch.

Another dress-flannel. We have sold tens of thousands of yards of a certain flannel at 37½ c. We are selling now Another has come: better; same width; 35 cents. The 37½ is so good for the money that we can't get the favorite colors fast enough to keep a supply. The 35 is better still. Enough to begin with; navy-blue, garnet, brown, green. Just short of a yard wide.

A man can't understand the mother's lulness of heart over the baby's dainty clothes; but a man can get a partial comprehension of the meaning of Chrismas to mother and child from the little baby-garments that a heartless factory makes. A bit of a cloak, for example, of snowy wool. You see no fabric. It looks itself so like the tender lambkin, holds her in its soft embrace, and hangs in flowing roundness. The thought of cold is impossible in the depth of wool; of hardness too. What a shield between the baby and the world! What another world for the baby within! What does baby think of the world? Nothing but softness: nothing but mother's dalliance.

Warm winter skirts at a third off: 75 cents up.

Example of outfit for a boy: blouse, trousers and overcoat of brown-mixed cheviot, rough with heavy twilled stuff and fine iron; plain for the larger boys, ornamented for the smaller. $3.50 for the blouse, all sizes; $1.50 for the trousers, all sizes; $6.50 for the overcoat up to ten-year-old size, $7 up to seventeen.

A tailor wouldn't cut and sew them for the money; couldn't.

They are cut by fifties, fifty garments with a stroke of the knife; taken home to put together and sew. Every part was thought out long ago. One out of hundreds, higher and lower: the method the same in all. The clothing as various as the needs and tastes of boys and their mothers.

BOILS AND CARBUNCLES.

These are the volcanoes of the human system. They proceed from impure blood and from a vitiated demoralization of the digestive organs. They are annoying, painful, and sometimes dangerous. They can be driven out by tooling up the system, and this can best be done by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters. Messrs. Handy & Hallman, druggists, Annapolis, Md., say, "We sell lots of Brown s Iron Bitters. All who use it seem pleased. We hear not one complaint."

PHILADELPHIA, DECEMBER 18, 1884

PREACHING

Like priest like people. The one deliberation of to-day is enlightenment in all parts of society; the commune people bear gladly. Do the common preachers (we say all preachers) teach correctly? A few weeks ago the newspapers published a statement to the effect that Mr. Beecher had declared he had no need of revelation. He could go and then some similar expression is made by rash though strong ministers. A rash merchant, farmer, lawyer, mechant, in fact a rash man in any of the ordinary walks, is a dangerous man; how much more so in the pulpit. Rashness often appears in the form of expressing a conjecture, an imagination or a speculation as truth. A gospel of extravagance is very popular; the messenger is well mentioned, but the end is not glorious.

Such expressions as, "I would not have such a God," "If such persons go to heaven I don't want to go there," "If heaven is that kind of place, I don't want a place in it," with other class of expressions is really blasphemous: "Good God Almighty, I did not know what was coming!" "My Lord! I did not know this and so." "Great Head of the Church!" If ministers really believe what they preach with reference to the sanctity of the name of the "Great I Am," they are certainly reprehensible for blaspheming that name. If belief corresponds to the true notion of this Being then he must hold them responsible for their rashness. The worst of it is that there is a sort of smack about it that makes it attractive to young ministers; so it becomes contagious.

WORSHIP.

"Let all things be done decently and in order." This is instruction given by a great apostle. It is reasonable as well as scriptural. It relates to worship especially. The most seducing, the most essential, the most exteeded and the most ineradicable impression upon the mind are those made by worshiping; the book as to worship and the observer. The worshiper's sentiments are becoming intensified and the observer's sentiments are becoming intensified. Worship is the most important service that can be rendered to any one in our position. We have more than twenty reports of conferences and district meetings on hand. Some of them may never appear. We have also articles of notice with reference to meetings with date; having passed this date unavoidably, they will now never appear.

Now, no one regrets these facts more than the editor. We had hoped to insert a thousand items, but the room is small and so do. Could we have done this, we should have cleared our brows. The reasoning is plain: some of the hundred papers will fall. We cannot agree to return noncontributors, even though stamps come for prepayment. We mean to do the best we can; we shall not grumble at your grumbling, brethren; now say you will not fail because of our failure. You will allow us to say that we are hopeful that those who write on general and popular topics will continue, and not feel that we have no room for them, and that such "Church news," etc., will continue to come, but greatly shortened. We solicit contributions of this character. We have received letters that cannot and will be withheld, but will be condensed, and that reports of conferences will be condensed. We are striving our very best to make the RECORDER a welcome visitor, but shall, of course, be unable to please always.

"IT IS MORE BLESSED to give than to receive." But there must be limits to giving, and exceptions to the rule. In other season is it more necessary to remember this than the holiday season. How many thousands will be invested in useless presents that ought to go to the comfort, health and happiness of the giver, when the recipient is already comfortable, healthy and happy, and is expected to make no practical use of the token of respect or love. Or the money should have been used to pay some debt, when that some suffering creditor might be happy, and in turn make his creditors happy. The silly argument that Christmas is very popular; the messenger is well mentioned, but the end is not glorious.

Such expressions as, "I would not have such a God." "If such persons go to heaven I don't want to go there," "If heaven is that kind of place, I don't want a place in it," with other class of expressions is really blasphemous: "Good God Almighty, I did not know what was coming!" "My Lord! I did not know this and so." "Great Head of the Church!" ASTHMA MOTHER.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are troubled with the distressing cough which precedes membranous croup, and which, if not relieved, soon produces suffocation. Mothers who have used it for their children during the teething period, will not be induced to try any other article, believing that nothing else can equal it in relieving pain, regulating the stomach, relaxing the bowels, and producing natural, quiet sleep. They have used it in their families for years, and have never known it to fail in the most severe cases of dysentery, whether acting on the advice of their physician or midwife, or following the counsel of friends who had used it themselves. It is the best remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or any other cause. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

CATARRH CURED.

WORDS OF WARNING AND COMFORT.

"If you are suffering from poor health or from any disease, don't fail to read what I have to say. If you are simply ailing, or if you feel 'half sick' and 'miserable,' without clearly knowing what is the matter with you, I will surely cure you."

If you are troubled with a cough, cold, sore throat, bronchitis, asthma, or any affection of the throat, lungs or chest, don't neglect it or trifle with it, but use the right remedy at once, and be cured before the disease has become deep-seated and settled. PHILADELPHIA, DECEMBER 25, 1884

THE RT. REV. WILLIAM 'FISHER DICKERSON, D.D.

On Saturday, December 22nd, this good man was called from labor to rest. In 1880 the General Conference elected him Bishop, the youngest and most vigorous of whom (so far as appearances went) was W. F. Dickerson, being but 36 years of age, probably the youngest man ever elected to that important office by the Episcopal Methodist Church, as in America. In the distribution of episcopal fields he took that extensive and difficult one, eight of the Sixth District, embracing the States of Georgia and South Carolina, with the following conferences: South Carolina, North Georgia, Macon, Georgia and South Carolina, including nearly one-fourth of the entire membership of the colored Church. Bishop Dickerson at once entered upon his arduous labors, fixing his residence at Columbia. His influence during the first four years of his episcopal life was immense. Besides discharging the regular functions of his office, he excited an energy in his conferences that resulted in the establishment of Allen University at Columbia, S. C., and Morris Brown University, at Atlanta, Ga. His work in the South has been great. The "seal of the Lord's house hath eaten him up." Bishop Dickerson attended the great Ecumenical Conference of Methodism, in London, 1881. His late episcopal work since the General Conference of 1884, consisted in Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina.

William Fisher Dickerson was born at Woodbury, N. J., January 15th, 1848, hence would be forty years old January 15th, 1888. He graduated in the classical department of Lincoln University in 1870, a classmate of Dr. W. Alexander and J. C. Waters. Only the general impression of the man and the Bishop upon the world since then can be told in this brief notice. We write under a deep sense of the loss sustained by our Church, the colored Americans and Methodism; also with a deep conviction of the righteousness and mercies of Almighty God.

We had expected thirty or forty more years service from Bishop Dickerson, but God says, "It is enough," now; let us submit. The tender mercies of God have been manifest to us as a struggling denomination; having called home but six of the fifteen Bishops elected in his early seventy years to form and mould an African Methodism for solid work in the coming centuries. While we mourn our recent loss, we must not murmur. It may be considered whether there be a similar case on record.

CHRISTMAS QUESTIONS.

Watchmen, what of the night? How is it with our educational work? Are our schools properly supported? Are our missionaries properly supported? Are we drawing our organizing strength as an organism into such nearness that they can feel each other's pulsations? Are we as thoughtful of one another as we should be? As a church, are we doing as much as is in us in the way of the great responsibilities resting upon us? Are our homes safe? Are our environments for this year's work properly carried out in the great work assigned to us? Is it well with our young people? Is proper literature given them? Is proper example set them?

THE CHILD'S RECORDER.

It will be observed that Manager Embry has taken the Child's Recorder again. We are glad to see the Child and to welcome it back to old home. It returns to us with a new head, full of Western notions; but we shall set it under its own old head for a time, until it becomes again thoroughly at ease in its change, when we shall allow it the new head. The new head is a beauty, but we would prefer the representation of Allen to any ordinary subject that could be substituted. We are not hidebound, but we feel quite sure that the great need of any large class of people, marked and classified as we are, is a centralised record. Our patrimony is limited. We are called aliens and advised to go back to our own dark continent, as if this continent were not dark enough for us, and we light enough for it. We require a strong means of fixing and holding in the minds of our children something that represents God's recognition of us and our work. We know of nothing else on the continent more apropos than the A. M. E. Church with Richard Allen as God's chosen instrument. Therefore we sincerely plead for the noble old face in our child paper. We hope to render the Child's Recorder in good style and with merit to every Sunday school in the connection. It has been an agreeable visitor to many schools for years, and we trust it will increase in worth as it grows older.

THE YEAR.

Before we reach the grosier part of our readers again, 1884 will have been laid upon the shelf. What a history will be rolled up within her folds. There is not a blank page in the book. Where we failed to write, the scribe wrote. They did not write as favorable pages as we. They wrote our failures, we our successes. They took account of our vices, we our virtues. Our doings were recorded by us, our duties by them. What we did for the world is carefully recorded by our own pens, what we have failed to do for them is recorded by the scribes. Our notes of the mercies of God have an opposite page, the unworthiness of our lives. Each record is made. No power can change it.

Many of us lay up gray hairs for the first time. When 1884 beamed upon us, the frost of time had only sprinkled upon our heads a single grain of years' dust. Many who one year ago were possessed of health and strength, with all the organs of sense, stora away with 1884 a limb, an eye, the sense of hearing, or general ability. With the year has departed from thousands the domineating characteristics of our kind, the self-power; reason has been shaken by secrets lust, or destroyed by grand over indulgence, that nobly resolved planned and consecrated manly powers to the new year twelve months ago, has long since lost its power and in this closing chapter is an imbecile, or maniac, but as it is, so the year folds it away. Where the songs of joy were recited in the old year's youth, there now, in many cases, nothing but misery and murmuring. Wealth has given place to poverty, hope to despair, life and exaltation to debasement. But there is another side: thousands have passed from the weak to the strong side, from the cloudy to the bright and from the wrong to the right. Many who did not did within them the moral power to the spiritual to be born into new life, have now, in many cases, nothing but misery and murmuring. Wealth has given place to poverty, hope to despair, life and exaltation to debasement. But there is another side: thousands have passed from the weak to the strong side, from the cloudy to the bright and from the wrong to the right. Many who did not did within them the moral power to the spiritual to be born into new life, have passed from the weak to the strong side, acknowledged to be the finest scholars in the class of one hundred and twenty-six.

—The Rev. Caleb Woodyard has traveled in the easiest conference of our Church, the Baltimore, for 1884, over 2,000 years ago the New York Conference has traveled in the most extended membership, being now about seventy years old. Brother Woodyard were having accumulations a time to live as they felt they would bear well, when a few weeks ago they were stricken down by fire, he bishop severely burnt herself. Father Woodyard was stricken down by the old friends. In the Philadelphia, New York and New Jersey conferences, and by the heavenly ministry give the old father some assistance? Address Rev. C. Woodyard, Bergen Heights, Jersey City, N. J.

Notes on Education.

GENEBOUS GIFTS IN AID OF TECHNICAL EDUCATION.—Mr. Cooper has announced his contribution on instruction, of which Theodore C. Search is Chairman, to which generous gift has been added to the Pennsylvania Museum and School of Industrial Art, at No. 1336 Spring Garden street.

Mrs. Mattie Booth, a colored woman, has opened a school for women in her husband's parish in Selma, Alabama, in the three years of its existence has graduated forty who were unable to go elsewhere. She writes: "One old woman, seventy-five years of age, came tottering with her primer. A younger woman, the wife of General Grant, you are too old to go to school!' 'I know' she said, 'my time is nearly out, but I would like just to spell the word God, then I shall be satisfied."

A school for Christian workers will be opened at Springfield, Mass., on January 5th, 1885. Its main object is to prepare men under the auspices of Young Men's Christian Associations, Young Women's Christian Associations, pastors' helpers in mission work, especially such as have been unable to take the regular collegiate and theological course. The school will supply a systematic knowledge of the Study of Bible history and the fundamental doctrines of the Christian religion, of Christian Associations and Sunday schools and all branches of lay work, together with instruction in vocal music and gymnastics. It is expected that the course will occupy two years, the school year continuing from September to June. The Rev. Dwight L. Moody is the condescension, and the students are expected to return to their respective churches of their respective denominations in the city and to take active part in church work. The school will have a faculty of six experienced clergymen in charge of it.

The new home of the Union Theological Seminary in New York was dedicated on December 9th. It is situated on Park avenue, between Sixty-ninth and Seventieth streets. The building with its site, cost about $800,000. The four edifices of which it consists are of Nichtin design, made of brick, trimmed with brown stone, and finished in the interior with oak and ash. Comfortable lodges have expressed the opinion that few Episcopal seminaries approximate so completely. The 170 rooms in the dormitory are for the most part single, and all will be lighted and well ventilated. The same is true of the 60 rooms in the professors' houses, the gymnasium, the library, and the rooms for the professors. The library, consisting of over 50,000 books, and as many pamphlets, is contained in the Union Building, and the generous donor, Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan gave $250,000, and then set aside an equal amount to insure its permanent maintenance. Besides the gift of Mr. Morgan, and that of Mr. Marquand, Morris K. Jesup gave $50,000 to build the lecture hall and D. Willis James contributed $50,000 to the library. The assessment for the institution on October 31st were $2,044,255.35.

Literature.

Harper's Young People begins its career in England under the most favorable auspices. The prompt demand for the paper in response to the announcement of the English edition compelled Messrs. S. Low & Co. to print 50,000 copies of the initial number.

The January number of the North American Review is an excellent one. It presents no very famous names among its contributors, but it offers a wide variety of unusually readable articles. We are now so safely over the shock of the political election that we can afford to be interested in other matters. Huntington's essay on "Vile Patriotism in Politics," and it is to be hoped that what they learn from it will not be forgotten for years hence. Under the title, "The Reunited South," Henry Watterson presents with great clearness the Southern and Democratic view of the political situation as it now stands. This also is extremely interesting to every citizen, whether he agrees with Mr. Watterson or not. Another question of universal concern, which each citizen should make itself a national issue, is that of labor and its organization; and Mr. Powderly, the "American Labor organizations," shows with what equipment it will take the field. But the article that the literary reader will first turn to is Frederic Harrison's brilliant and incisive discussion of "Froude's Life of Carlyle:" while the religious or philosophical reader will find in Courtney's "Socrates, Buddah and Christ," specific statements and quotations of those parallel doctrines that are so often vaguely alluded to. For the scientific reader, Mr. Proctor discusses learnedly "Herschel's Star Surveys," and Prof. Le Conte presents and explains some curious facts in volcanic action. The Evidence of the Senses," Mr. Mulhall's paper on "The Increase of Wealth" is a successful endeavor to render large masses of figures popularly intelligible.

HOPE.

BY REV. J. H. BEAN.

In its simplest acceptation, hope is the desire of some good, accompanied with the possibility and expectation of obtaining it.

The present is a world of hope. There seems to be a universal hopefulness more universal to man. Never satisfied with the enjoyment of present good, we are constantly looking forward to something in the future. I suppose that this is the case with all the inhabitants of the earth, no matter in what condition they may be found, whether refined or savage, civilized or barbarous, whether enlightened or benighted. Deprive man of this precious boon and you deprive him of the greater part of his happiness. Draw a circle of darkness around the object of his present enjoyment, and prevent him from penetrating the future, and you make him a miserable being. But let him have this bright light within, and understands the great truth that the hope of the Christian—how blessed it is!—the God has a hope, a glorious and inspiring hope, a heart-rejoicing hope, a hope flowing from a principle of love, and good—love to God; a hope which directs him to a world beautiful, unconceivably beautiful, and to a life beyond the plumes for heavenward flight. The hope indulged in by those of this world are vain and deceiving; they promise but never perform; they allure to bower of fragrant beauty, which, staal too often are found to be the habitation of vice and corruption. Oh, 'tis not so with the Christian's hope. It never deceives. The God of God now with gratitude for such a hope. But look at the magnificence of this object. In this respect the hope of the Christian is infinitely superior to every other. Its object is celestial things and soars on high with eagle flight, approaches the throne of the eternal and enters into the very glory of the object. What speaks the language of inspiration is the hope of the glory of God. "We rejoice in hope of the glory of God." Then, that is the object of the Christian hope. The term glory is frequently associated with the idea of God. It is used to apply to the person of the Christian. He looks around Heaven. Exceeding rise on every hand. Fierce, cruel and hellish, they seem determined if possible to drive him from the cross of his Redeemer. The world with its bewitching charms, seduces him, the flesh with its many wiles, wishes to overwhelm and crush him to the earth. But the humble Christian fears not. He looks to Jesus and to the hope set before him. The son of God gives it. The spirit of power comes upon the man and with a Samson-like strength, in the name of God he battles with the foe and conquers over every foe. And is there no glory in such a conquest as this? Why, when the conqueror is resting from the battle, glorious, devilish as they are sometimes found in the conflict, they are sometimes

Many who were men of mere shall be made known. How bright, how satisfactory the day to those who can sing,

"Oh, what a blessed use our journey pursues,
Roll rocod with the year
And never stand still till the Master appear."

A "WIVES CHRISTMAS" is promised. There is a general preference for it. The old superstition formed a maxim: "a green Christmas must be followed by a fat graveyard" and a white Christmas by a lean graveyard." There is being a universal antipathy towards the field of the dead, and the force of the maxim probably lost all authoritativeness of superstition, but partly founded in the nature of things; there are few of us so poor that we are not glad to welcome the snow Christmas. We are not quite an exponent of divine thoughts having their causal forces adapted to given circumstances, but we believe that God's people shall have any other divine manifestations. While the white Christmas will cause some to be borne to the graveyard, who could not attend after receipt of the crouching and penetrating forces, it will plant richer under its white cover that will come up from under the snow in spring and offer the bread of life to those who must otherwise perish. "The Lord, He knows, He knows." In resignation of his beneficent providence let us welcome the day as it comes and let it be to us all a merry Christmas. Where there is lack of money to distribute gifts, scatter smiles, kind words, a helping hand, a warm heart, earnest love and a desire for development of the reigning Christ; the result will be two fold, it will affect us for good and also those associates with us.

THE HOLIDAYS always come just in time for the student. His vigor has become somewhat intemperate for the three months preceding; his ardor has been unreasonably high, but he has accomplished something. It is fitting that he should have an opportunity to scan his work in the middle of the year; he may observe his errors and form better plans. At any rate, he needs rest; so do his instructors. May they enjoy the days of rest and pleasure, and come back with better skill to meet future responsibilities.

ONE OF THE most foolish, inconsistent and unnatural things to do in the holidays is to act contrary to the principles of the Christ whose birth we celebrate, in drinking intoxicating drinks.

Beware of the glittering cup. There is a destructive pit within it; you are much more likely to stumble into it by drinking wines and egg-nog than you are by drink.

HOPE.

BY REV. J. H. DEAN.

In its simplest acceptation, hope is the desire of the heart when connected with the possibility and expectation of obtaining it.

The present is a world of hope. There seems to be no mental exercise more natural to man. Never satisfied with the enjoyment of present good, we are constantly looking forward to something in the future. I suppose that this is the case with all the inhabitants of this earth, no matter in what condition they may be found, whether refined or rude, civilized or barbarous, intelligent or unenlightened. Deprive man of this precious boon and you deprive him of the greatest part of his happiness. Draw a circle of darkness around the objects of his present enjoyment, and prevent him from penetrating the future, and you make him a miserable being. Show him how this bright light within his breast has been the only guide to the steps of the Christian—how blessed the man of God has a hope, a thrilling and inspiring hope. The Rock cut out relieved his patient and saved his life. Hope has been the stay of his kind in all ages, and are all well lighted and well ventilated. The same is true of the Washington, the white physician of Washington, and the white physician of the professors' library, consisting of over 50,000 books, and as many manuscripts, is contained in the fire-proof building, to erect which Governor E. D. Morgan gave $50,000, and then set aside an equal amount to endow a permanent maintenance. Besides the gift of Mr. Morgan, Mr. Carnegie has given $25,000 to build the lecture room, and Mr. Willis James contributed $100,000 for the dormitory. The assets of the institution on October 31st were $2,044,253.37.

Literature.

Harper's Young People begins its career in England under the most promising auspices. The prompt demand for the paper in response to the call for it seem to be in the great Keiser's favor.

Cleveland Carette, he seems rather strange that we should have complained against because some one speaks well of us.

The January number of the North American Review is an excellent one. It presents no very famous names as contributors, but it offers a wide variety of unusually readable articles. We are now safely over the crisis of the presidential election that men of all parties can consider calmly the following essay on "Civil Service Reform in Politics," and it is to be hoped that what they learn from it will not be forgotten four years hence. Under the title, "The Reunited South," Henry W. Grady presents with great clearness the Southern and Democratic view of the political situation as it stands. This also is extremely interesting. Whether it agrees with Mr. Watterson or not. Another question of universal concern is discussed in a manner that will soon make itself a national issue, is that of labor and its organizations; and Col. Hinton, in "American Labor Organizations," shows both what is good and what is bad in the field. But the article that the literary reader will first turn to is Frederic Harrison's brilliant and incisive discussion of "Froude's Life of Carlyle;" while the religious or philosophical reader will find in Courtney's "Socrates, Buddah and Christ," specific statements and quotations of those parallel doctrines that are so often vaguely alluded to. For the scientific reader, Mr. Proctor discusses learnedly "Herschel's Star Surveys," and Prof. Le Conte presents and explains some curious facts in relation to "The Evidence of the Senses." Mr. Mallault's paper on "The Increase of Wealth" is a successful endeavor to render large masses of figures popularly intelligible.

A GREAT BOOK.

BY REV. A. A. SUELLIGH.

MR. EDITOR:—Please allow me to say through your columns that the latest work of Judge A. W. Tourgee, entitled, "An Appeal to Cæsar," is the most satisfactory and complete solution of the question known as the "Negro Question," that has ever been printed.

Having just come from the publishers, it received a brief notice from the various newspapers, but from the nature of the book and the burning truths and startling facts clearly stated therein, every thinking man of the age would render the work unpopular, therefore unadvertised. Yet every intelligent person who appreciates his opportunities for a deeper insight into the question with reference to the status of his people, and understands the most feasible practical relation they sustain to the white people of our country, should not rest satisfied until he has read, and not only read, but peruse this admirable composition of facts and figures.

It is published and sold by Ford, Howard and Hulbert, New York. Only a few days ago the book ran very reading clear type, tersely put matter now of the most important subject.

Every minister, school teacher, mother and father should have the book: Price, $1.00.

NOTICE.

By arrangements just made with the Secretary of "Our Sunday School Union," I am prepared to supply the "Child's Recorder" from this office as in the past. The price will be one cent per copy to all who may order from twelve to one hundred copies. In order to secure the rate, the copy of my books need your orders in at once. We shall close the last week in December for 1884.

2. We are preparing to supply our Sunday schools with the Quarterly Review. We furnish the lessons published by the Sunday School Union. Although it is in two grades for both teachers and scholars. The Teachers' Quarterly is more effective, the scholars' are lessons monthly. They are on tinted paper, and come on big with eagle sight, approaches the throne of the eternal and sings the song opposite to the old friends of the Philadelphia, New York and New Jersey conference for help. Cannot some assistance? Address Rev. O. Woodyard, Freehoms, Bergen Heights, Jersey City, N. J.

ON THINGS IN GENERAL.

BY JACKLIN STRANGE.

MR. EDITOR:—I was sitting thinking over a number of things in general, and of my work in this city, and I thought a few of them reduced to writing would be of interest to the many readers of your valuable journal.

Washington is a place of learning. There are four female institutions here, whose students represent every State in the Union. There are also seven churches in which the whites worship, and four in which the colored worship, also four in which the colored worship with two Baptist and two Methodist.

Howard was created in 1867. It has been as a wrecked vessel when storms have scattered seven years storms of ten or twelve years. Thousands of our members elsewhere have been driven by the fierce blasts of opposition, and have been driven to the rocks of despair, but there has been a ray of hope, a star to guide, a voice to say, "Come, this is the way, walk ye in it." Howard has been the beacon light of hope, the star of the east, the voice of God to many a poor soul. Many a poor soul has

Clams are not a proper model for human beings to copy after for they open their shells to take in their accustomed food, but they shut up very tight when anything new comes along

Of course a woman is NOT expected to try every new thing that is offered her; but when the most reliable papers in the United States emphatically endorse in the strongest manner every plain trade for The Frank Siddalls Soap, there is certainly no excuse for not giving it one square, honest trial strictly as directed. Intelligent women are adopting The Frank Siddalls Way of Washing Clothes, and those who have done so are already beginning to look down with pity on persons who are set in their old ways:—SO DONT BE A CLAM

—FOR THE TOILET IT IS SIMPLY PERFECTION—
All Perfumes are injurious to the Skin: The Frank Siddalls Soap is not perfumed, but has an agreeable odor from its ingredients that is always pleasant, even to an invalid; it never leaves any odor on the skin; the face never has any of the unpleasant glow that other soaps produce; it should always be used for dressing the face sealed when this Soap is used with chapped skin; a child will not dread having the face washed when this Soap is used as all does not cause the eyes to smart with the denuded intense sting that even Imported Castile soap often causes; it always leaves the Skin soft and smooth; wash your baby with it.

No tooth-powder or tooth-wash will compare with it:—
A delight on the tooth-brush, makes the mouth, teeth and gums perfectly clean
A delight on the tooth-brush, makes the mouth teeth and gums perfectly clean
It leaves a pleasant, aromatic taste, a sweet breath, and a clean tooth-brush.

It is especially adapted for toilet use with the hard water of the West and to Lake water.

Persons who despise a sanitary system of Washing will appreciate The Frank Siddalls Soap, for instead of the disagreeable odor of Washing that is usually present, there is a delightful fragrance of Soap in the air, and the clothes smell sweet and clean, for The Frank Siddalls Soap will do it without any occasion to wash-boil in the air or yard.

—Try it for washing your Eye-Glasses and Spectacles—
When used for washing the head it is better than Shampooing; plenty of the rich white lather should be left on the hair (not washed out); it entirely does away with the use of Hair Tonic, Bay Rum, Dandrine, Pomade, or any hair dressing. NEW YEAR'S EVE.

BY REV. AUGUSTUS W. WATSON, LL.B.

We linger on the threshold
Of another dying year,
And we listen to the echoes
Which mean'ry bids us hear;
For o'er us the day is waning
And the shadows lengthen fast;
E're it unbars in the future
We yet muse upon the past.

Our mind flies backward—backward
To the springtime of our life,
When we called the fairest flowers,
Blooming sanghs of worldly strife;
When the buds of hope expanded
As they drank life's morning dew,
And fancy's brush flew swiftly
As it gorgeous pictures drew.

Ah! the bells of joy rang sweetly,
Not a discord in the chime,
Not a thought of coming sorrow
Marr-ed the happiness sublime;
For experience had not taught us
We must sometimes mourn with scarns,
And on our life's long journey
We are burdened oft with cares.

And the echoes still are ringing
At the beck of memory's wand,
But the scene is somewhat changing;
Aye, more solemn, yet still grand!
For the footsteps now which greet us
Od our further march down life,
Are of busy, busy toilers,
Whose minds with thoughts are rife.

For the summer days are passing
With their sunshine, rain and dew,
And we work, our Father, for the labor
Ere the harvest time be through,
For the Autumn soon is on us
With its yellow leaves and sear,
And ere we are low soon it pauses—
Bleak, wintry winds are here.

But hark! the bell is tolling
Of the dead—the Bible tells—
And we know its last sad accents
Will speak the old year's death.
And we rouse from dreamy mem'ries,
And we list with bated breath
To its solemn, sad, sad tolling,
Which tells the old year's death

And we think, alas! how swiftly
The years will onward speed,
When to this old year's dying
No more shall we give heed:
For another bell's sad tolling,
With its solemn, solemn chime,
Will record our spirit wafted
Into some other clime.

A SERMON.

DELIVERED BY BISHOP J. P. CAMPBELL, AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH, WASHINGTON, PA., SABBATH MORNING, OCTOBER 12, 1884, DURING THE SESSION OF THE PITTSBURG ANNUAL CONFERENCE OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

The Bishop selected his text from Matthew xxv. 31, 32, 33. "When the Son of man shall come in his glory and all the holy angels with him, then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory. And before him shall be gathered all nations and he shall separate them one from another as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats; and he shall set the sheep on his right hand and the goats on the left."

We invite your serious and solemn attention to a few thoughts that we have to offer upon the subject last above, or the coming of the kingdom of God. It is true or false that there is an intelligence for the saints commonly called heaven. It is true or false that there is a reward for the wicked in a future state. It is true or false that God hath appointed a day in which he will judge the world in righteousness by the man Ch ist Jesus, and on that day every man shall be rewarded according as his works shall be. It is true or false that the righteous shall be rewarded with everlasting life in an inheritance called the kingdom of God and Christ. It is true or false that the wicked shall be driven away from the presence of God into everlasting punishment. Whatever may be said not about the matter, whatever we may say, these statements are either true or false. These are statements made through the whole Scripture the substance of which are expressed in the text. They are there and the Scriptures that contain them are either true or false. They cannot be both; one believing them to be true will not make them true; our believing them to be false will not make them false. All the argument that we can produce in favor of them, if they are not true will not make them true, and all the argument that we can produce if they are true will not make them true. Never!

What is, and what it is to be will be. The thoughts, feelings, divines, intentions of men in the century, notwithstanding, what God has declared he will do. If he has declared anything; but this book asserts he has declared many decrees, and they have gone forth. If the book is found to be inspired and the sentiments it contains have not been proven false. They have learned the book; they have tried to exterminate it from the world, and yet it lives. Learned men, scientists have tried to blot it out, but instead of doing so, there are more copies of it now than ever before. More have been printed during the past 100 years than in 1700 years before. The book lives and goes on; it has been believed by some and condemned by others, but still it lives. We will do well to look at such statements as these made in the book. It is not flattering speech. The same rules that we observe in reading science, philosophy, we observe in reading and interpreting the Bible. Only in reading the Bible we read what God would have us to do. We receive it in the way of a revelation. We ask of God's word as it is revealed to us. He has given us his word, and he has given it to us to see. It is something to teach us as to whether we shall live hereafter or not. God says on this subject, "Come, let us reason together," a d then he gives us his word, and when on such reason to the utmost extent, as is done by every candid man, and when we can reason no further, we are caused to ask help from God, who gives that help to all who seek it. There is rule governing figurative speech, and there are rules for interpreting the same. There are a rule by which we are to determine literal or figurative sayings. They are the judges in the courts to say, conservman, legislature, ecclesiastical doctors and others. We cannot receive the one rule of interpretation that we are to search for the meaning by the connection in which it stands. If we do not understand an author in some particular, we refer to selections from t e same author with which we are better acquainted, and by so doing we receive light on the dark passage. If we want to understand one of the writers of the New Testament, we are not to run outside and hunt for interpreters; we are to look in the book; God is the author of all the Scriptures, and whatever is in harmony with all parts of the Scriptures, God's word is true.

In the book of Proverbs you read, "Answer a fool according to his folly, lest he be wise in his own conceit." And in the same chapter we read, "Answer not a fool according to his folly, lest thou be like unto him." Which question is, what are we to do? Both. In the first place "Answer not a fool according to his folly." In the second place, "Answer a fool according to his folly." Do that. Can you do that? How? Learn enough of human nature to know there are two kinds of fools in the world. The first verse implies a foolish fool. And if you try to answer him according to his folly he will think you are as big a fool as he. There is another kind of fool who speaks of Moses' time. He thinks the world was not made in six days, neither was it made in six hundred years nor six thousand years, and says Moses did not know what he was talking about. Moses did not say the world was created in six days. Infidelity, skeptical philosophy and Moses are at outs. Skeptical philosophy thinks that Moses' account of creation is an absurdity because it is assumed and learned from history of men that the world existed aons and ages unknown beyond the Mosaic account of creation, and notwithstanding claims that the history of creation is written in the crust of the first formation. Then he traces the world's origin to the fiery sources.

They claim that there was a time the globe was full of fire, and by the cooling process there was first a layer of rock, and they suppose that the granite constituted the first layer, the next to rock, find the vegetable matter, the last layer was animal matter. But there in strata of that matter, and as they come up higher they find more. Passing from that they come to another layer of rock in which they find the last order of animalcules, and then they come up and until they find animals larger than any species in the rock. I saw a skeleton 120 feet long, between whose jaws could be driven a stage-coach.

From this human reason says that the Mosaic account of creation is an absurdity, for he reason it is impossible or possible to account for the history of the rocks or strata as it is now, and having been created given up to the last layer of rock possible for it to have been 6000 years ago. This could not have been done in six days, and that no reasonable man of common sense studying the subject could believe any such thing. Now, then, my claim is that Moses never said he intimated it in his writings of the world as it is at present as we see it that the work was completed in six days of twenty-four hours each. Now, then, I go to say the reason why I make this statement is that the first two verses of the first chapter of Genesis are entirely outside of the six day's work and constituted no part of the six days' development.

Moses set out with the declaration of an absolute existence of an entity which is produced out of a nonentity by an Almighty fiat. The ancient heathen of Tibers who believed in the unity of matter, thought that they had reached a point. They thought they had a sure thing on the eternity of matter when they said, through the language: "Ollo, ex simplo, how can something arise out of nothing?" But Moses and the Christian philosophers answered, "No way." It is no argument against the statement that something may be created by a Being having power to create something where there was nothing. Moses says in the beginning God created the heavens and the earth, and that the earth was without form and void. Moses did not have all those gases that we have, such as oxygen, nitrogen and hydrogen. He says the spirit of God moved upon the face of the water. Afterwards he says, and God said, let there be light, and there was light. This was the first day's development, and the evening and the morning were the first day. Now we come to development. The first day's development was light, and God said it was good.

And the second day he created the firmament, which he called heaven in the heavens—that is, the atmosphere which surrounds us to the height of from 40 to 45 miles. When that is produced God saw that it was good, and the evening and the morning were the second day. On the third day he divided the land and the waters, and the waters separated out of this chaos that had no form nor shape, and saw that it was good. He made a bed for the ocean and set its dry land appear, and the waters and the firmament were the third day. The next thing was the regulating the heavenly bodies—the sun in his place and all the stars and planets. Right then they commenced their regular revolutions around him.

First, we have the mineral kingdom in the separation and arranging of that. Why? Because we must have the mineral kingdom before we can have the vegetable kingdom. For the vegetable kingdom derives its life from the mineral kingdom. Well, then, the fowls and fishes were then produced out of the seas, and were said to be good. He therefore made the mineral kingdom to sustain the vegetable and the vegetable kingdom to sustain the animal; and having produced these, he gave man dominion over all. What for? For man as ungrateful as he is? God made all things and then he made him the master; less of his work, assemble and save all over to him, and behold he saw that it was good. Now we come to development. The first day's development was light, and God said it was good. And the second day he created the firmament, which he called heaven in the heavens—that is, the atmosphere which surrounds us to the height of from 40 to 45 miles. PHILADELPHIA, JANUARY 1, 1885

MRS. JULIA A. KNIGHT.

With grief we announce the death of Mrs. Julia A. Knight, widow of the late Rev. H. A. Knight and daughter of Bishop J. A. Shorter, who departed this life Dec. 22nd. She had had a long and wearisome siege of sickness and sadness. Her husband was buried about three years ago, and her youngest child about a year later, each after a long illness. At the same time her own health began to decline under the care and anxiety, and has steadily declined, each relenting disease, till the Master has called her home. She leaves two dear children, Philadelphia, Dorothy way though life. The hand of affliction has also been laid upon Bishop Shorter's family heavily. Within four years he has laid to final rest a daughter-in-law, two sons-in-law, a grandchild and a daughter.

Mrs. Knight was a graduate of the classical department, Wilberforce University. She graduated in 1873, with Messrs. S. T. Mitchell and A. D. Delsey, and Mrs. Mary Davis Vernon, Mrs. Ashe Lee and Miss. Hallie Q. Brown. She became a Christian while in college. An honest of her father's house at the time, we remember the Indians with joy. Her life has been consistent with that profession.

Personal.

BY SOME mistake dispatch from Columbia, S. C., December 23rd, announced the funeral services of the late and lamented Bishop Dickerson to be conducted by Bishop Campbell in New York, Friday, 26th ult., at 2 P. M. We arrived in New York at 1:20 and learned that the services took place on Thursday evening. It was indeed a sad disappointment. This is, no notice whatever was sent to the Manager or Editor of the Recorder as to the time set for the funeral obsequies. Dr. Tanner was apprised of the death of the one who he knew nothing, except as above stated, from Dr. Arnett, that the funeral sermon would be preached by Bishop Campbell, in New York, Friday, 26th ult.

We can give our readers but a mere hint, as that is all we have received in to the services, although Bishop Dickerson was interred almost in sight of Philadelphia. Bishops Campbell, Ward, Brown and Cain conducted the services, Bishop Campbell preaching at New York, and Bishop Brown at Woodbury, N. J., the birthplace of our lamented Bish p. Besides brothers of the New York and New Jersey Conferences. Rev. Beas. Telfair and R. H. W. Leak, of North Carolina, and J. H. A. Johnson and J. A. Handy, of the Baltimore Conference; B. W. Arnett, Secretary; and J. C. Waters, of the Columbia Conference were present and delivered addresses from a dozen. Hundreds of laymen and members of the Philadelphia Conference would have attended had they not been misled as to the day.

—Rev. B. W. Arnett remained East to see the remains of Bishop Dickerson placed in its tomb.

—The daughter of Rev. L. C. Chambers, of Philadelphia, has lain seriously ill with typhoid fever.

—Books and papers of Aaron Herr have lately been discovered in Albany by Mr. H. T. Anthony.

—Lieutenant Shufeldt was the first white man to take the band of the Queen of the Chosen Land.

—Reverend Mother Mary Frances Clare is the only woman ever granted a presidential pass to Congress.

—Mrs Taylor, wife of Rev. E. W. Taylor, of Charleston, S. C., has been in critical health for several weeks.

—General Sherman drove up to Gen. Grant's house and stayed there a long time. He said the visit was purely social.

—Professor W. S. Scarborough, LL. D., will contribute to the RECORDER a eulogy on the life of our deeply lamented Bishop.

—The municipality of Vienna declared Johann Strauss free from all local taxes for the rest of his life on his fiftieth birthday.

—Mrs Hallie Q. Brown has been obliged to cancel engagements in the West to attend the bedside of her aged and infirm father.

—Major Ben Perley Poore reduced his weight more than sixty pounds last year by strict adherence to a diet of stale bread and skimmed milk.

—Mr. Francis Parkman had last autumn the finest collection of chrysanthems in Massachusetts. He is a passionate lover of roses.

—Mr. J. Dorsett accompanied the brother of Bishop Dickerson on to Columbia, S. C., and delivered kind services to the grief-stricken widow.

—The Queen not long since attended the funeral of Willie Healy, her old fiddler, who died at the age of ninety, and to whom she will erect a monument.

—Dr. J. H. A. Johnson has placed the manuscript of the new Discipline in the hands of Rev. Dr. Lee, who will have it ready for the General Conference.

—Gill Hamilton is writing fiction while Mr. Hislife is writing history. Let the hope that no pages of their manuscript get interchanged on their way to the printer.

—The Dutch naturalist Herrinck has found that the gum exuding from plum trees is caused by parasitic fungi, and once established, one tree can catch it from another.

—Canterbury, where Mr. Emerson wrote his "Good by, Proud World," is a little village in the neighborhood of Hills and Mendall Hope Institute, which has been published for many years. Mr. Emerson has also written a section in that work predominates from Bishop Dickerson's pen. The "Triple Xs" is the name playfully given by her friends to a girl of eighteen, whose three names begin with that letter, and who is left with a younger sister to make her way in the world after the death of her parents. She has promised her mother on her deathbed that she will not be a writer, but also for for an insane uncle, and a little girl waif, who came into their family in the most mysterious manner. Much of the interest of the story depends on the latter character, and the mystery in which her parentage is involved lends it a strong fascination. The two sisters are compelled to enter a large manufactory in order to gain a livelihood, and the means for supporting their charges. The record of their experiences in the new life, their trials, and the victory over adversity they finally achieved, is told in a manner which commands attention from first to last. It is a book which cannot fail to make a strong impression upon the minds of those who read it.

—The great industries of America form the subject of a series of articles which commence in the January number of Harper's Magazine with a paper entitled "A Pair of Shoes," written by Howard Mudge Nicholl, a leading shoe man for the first term's teaching, to spend good church, but also how to appreciate a good minister and wife. On Christmas eve they almost overwhelmed elder and Mrs. Yocum with solid indications of kindly feelings and high esteem. Packages of groceries and a good purse of money are not the meanest things to leave on the table of an earnest and gifted minister of Christ on the natal evening.

Union Church, about the same time showed her appreciation of the work of Dr. T. G. Steward, by presenting an $80 suit of broadcloth. These are instances among the many of thrift and reciprocity, or either common interest. Pay of our circuites are more heavily burdened, but co-operation and love make hard as light.

WILBERFORCE is being connected with Xenia by telephone. Prof. Farrell Every student and ex-student will echo, "Hurrah!" But Wilberforce has been brought in part by fire recently, also, and altogether we say, ala! Thank God, the damage was not great, owing to the good management of the President and Family, and the orderly conduct of students and citizens. There are noble people at Wilberforce and there is a noble work going on there. Oh, how we long to see that work supported properly.

THE UNION A. M. E. Church will celebrate their first anniversary in their new church, 10th street, below Fairmount avenue, on Sunday, January 11th. Bishop Campbell will preach in the morning, Rev. S. N. Chew at 3 P. M., and Rev. C. C. Shaffer at 7:30 P. M. Singing in the afternoon by the choir of Rev. S. N. Chew's church.

THE LUCRETIA A. MOTT Centennial anniversary meeting will take place at Bethel Church, Sixth and Lombard Sts., Philadelphia, Saturday evening, January 3rd. Those acquainted with the history of this remarkable woman will appreciate the interest shown in this meeting by prominent citizens of Philadelphia.

BISHOP DICKERSON MEMORIAL meeting at Bethel A. M. E. Church, Sixth and Lombard streets, Philadelphia, Thursday evening, January 8th. Bishop Campbell and other prominent persons will be present.

THE ZION'S HERALD, and not the New York Observer, should have been accredited with the article on the Methodist Centennial.

He removed from the face of a lady connected with the court of Brussels, a tumor which had defied the skill of the royal physicians. Philadelphia, it seems, is not the only city which is unable to provide for its school population. Brooklyn is in as bad a condition as regards the accommodation of its school children. The annual report of the Board of education shows that the school buildings are far behind the needs of the city, and that the necessities of scholars increase faster than the accommodations. Besides a capacity for 4500 children will soon be ready, but this will be insufficient to relieve the already overcrowded school-rooms and leave room for new schools.

Union University, at Schenectady, N. Y., has substituted a history of the Christian religion for that portion of the liquored Latin triennial published by most of the colleges. It gives the prominent facts in the life of every graduate, his original residence, his residence elder graduation, profession and other interesting matter. And not only is the history more interesting, but it is also presented in a much more intelligent manner. A history of the whole is printed in book form, English, a departure which other colleges might well consider the propriety of following.

Literature.

An early anecdote of Larkin G. Meade, the sculptor, is the subject of a poem in the forthcoming January Harper's Magazine, by Lucy Wallace Bruce. As a boy he built of snow on the village green the figure of "The Snow Queen," and Hiram Powers, of Italy, fulfilled in marble this dream of his youth.

In the January Harper's, by way of contrast with our wintry weather, Mr. Charles Phillips describes the belief in delights of "The Cruise of the Wallaway" along the Florida coast. The Wallaway was a schooner-yarht chartered at Cedar Keys by a party of six Northern gentlemen, and her cruise of three weeks off the west coast of Florida was made at a cost of about $600. Those who wish to know "how to do it" will find it fully detailed in the article presented in the paper, which will have charming illustrations from the pencil of E. Bruce and others.

With the year 1885 two important serials will be commenced in Harper's Magazine, one of them by Constance Fenimore Woolson, whose "Anne" and "For Bad and Worse" placed her in the front rank of American novelists. Her new story will be called "East Angels," and it promises to be as strong a story as "Anne," while superior to it in artistic treatment. The other serial, "The Red Glove"—is a bright, humorous novel founded in Berne, Switzerland, by the writer as to whose identity the public has been curious for a year. It is to be fully illustrated by Mr. C. S. Reinhart, from sketches made amid the scenes of the novel.

PHILADELPHIA, JANUARY 6, 1885.

MR. THOMAS A. BROWN,

Last week we referred to the illness of Mr. Thomas A. Brown. We have received notice that he died Dec., 30th, 1884, aged 67 years, and 5 days of age. A case too, where early piety and faithful living have added length of days. A native of Maryland, he came with quite young to Pittsburg, Pa. Subsequently he rotified in Chotham, Canada, where he remained several years. He has passed to his reward also at Wilberforce University. He settled his family near the college some years ago, since when this has been their home.

Brother Brown leaves a widow and five children—three daughters and two sons. He will be deeply mourned by hundreds who have known him. He was one of the most emphatic Christians we have met. For probably more than sixty years he has stood on the assurance of faith, and contended for this faith as it was once delivered to the saints. We men have more literarily distributed the glows of the inner fire, or have morn profusely scattered the rays of the "sun in the soul" than Thomas A. Brown. His correctness of doctrine and readiness to labor in behalf of the salvation of sinners, have attracted to him so many scores, and no doubt not that we might say hundreds who are now Christians. Many a student at the university has reached the state of peace through Christ, led thereby this disciple. He has been one of the trainers at Wilberforce, who have remanded unstinted and unstinted, like the faithful Brother Griffin, but he has his reward now. "They that turn many to righteousness, shall shine as the stars forever and ever." We have never seen greater faithfulness than that evinced by Brother Brown.

ALLEN UNIVERSITY.

President J. C. Waters, D.D., of Allen University, spent several hours in Philadelphia enroute for Columbia. The Doctor is looking well and feeling well. He does sincerely trust that the training received at Wilberforce will be fruitful in our missionary work in remaining the gospel practically, becoming all things unto all men, in the best sense. If we have failed in this respect, then we have failed in all. Jesus Christ established the ministry to the poor and the sinful. He has been about doing good, and never meant that the ministry should be an aristocratic class, above their fellows, though having their peculiar profession. Wherever we are we must, in the words of Payne Institute up to the magic fleence of Allen University. This grace we must have or we must suffer some; but we cannot doubt that with the staunch Bishop Shorter, the scholarly Waters, Struker, Morris and Cooper, the energetic, thoughtful Nelson, the eloquent Jefferson, the secret of faithful, scholarly ministers and laymen is not lost. There will succeed.

Notes on Education.

In the colleges and universities of England, there is one student for every 2,000 population; in Germany one for each 2,331; in New England one for each 1,623, and in the South one for each 616. From this is made the deduction that an increased disposition for intellectual pursuits accomplishes and begets zeal for education.

The Morris Street School for colored children in Charleston, S. C., is the largest in the State, containing more than 1,400 pupils. It has a principal, vice-principal and twenty-four assistants, each letter being ladies, all white, and natives of Charleston. Altogether the school will compare favorably in progress and scholarship with any similar school of white children. Some excellent specimens of the pupils' proficiency in drawing and painting will be exhibited at the New Orleans Exposition.

Prof. David S. Jordan, of the Chair of Natural Sciences, has been elected to the Presidency of the Indiana State University. Though but thirty-three years of age, he has gained a reputation for himself as an able scholar in the Pacific States. His special researches have been in the department of ichthyology. His investigations have been extended over all the coast of California, and for several seasons in Scandinavia, Switzerland and other European countries, in the study of their fishes. He is also an authority in zoology, botany and geology. He is the author of several works, the most prominent of which is "Fishes of the United States." Though his reputation comes chiefly from his proficiency in the sciences, he is also a student of literature, and is familiar with several modern languages, including Chinese.

Literature.

The holiday, "Our Little Ones" is full of such illustrations and literature as will excite the curiosity, stimulate and better social life. For little ones it is a good monthly visitor. Russell Publishing Co., Boston, $1.50.

St. Nicholas opens the new year with increased attractiveness. The frontispiece, portrait of a child in bas-relief, is followed by a series of contents and illustrations varied to create popular attraction and adapted to all grades of its readers. Century Co., N.-Y., $3.00 per year.

Prof. Morris, of Allen University, is said to be an excellent instructor in mathematics, and Prof. Crosby, of the same college, as good an instructor in Greek. This reminds us of the great blessing conferred upon us by our Heavenly Father, that it is not wonderful how he can bring strong men and women out of the mass of corruption in which the negro race is enveloped. This is a blessing rest especially upon our teachers, our preachers and our parents.

THE A. M. E. CHURCH REVIEW for January surpasses former numbers in interest. We wondered on reading the October number whether the Review could be able to hold the high ground already taken; it has more than done so. In four years, with such growing character, the magazine will be in a position to do more than any other means to place an educated negro before the world of worth within the negro before the world. Heretofore the race has been judged more from its ministerial class, respecting learning and teaching, than any other. Of course A half dozen men, as Douglass, Langston, Brown, Payne, and later Dorsey, Bruce, Tanner and others of their times and kind, had to bear the size of all, as well as the honors for all the race. Our newspapers and a few books, among which are Brown's Self-Taught, have thrown enough, castin could possible, before the reading, despite their prejudice; but here is a means of continuing a representation of the best, exampled by men and women with an almost inexhaustable armory, and mental magazine, which has been stored during centuries under peculiar circumstance and experience. Bishop Taylor, in the very first article of the current number has given us a masterly review of Mr. Fortune's Book, "Black and White," by Rev. T. McCants Stewart, A.M., Professor of Belles Lettres, Liberia College, Africa. It is a question whether the author of the book and already placed to the field, everything succeeding. It has been said that the missionaries in Hayti must not be found wanting in any respect, that they must be gentlemen of soft hands and spotless linen, otherwise they will not be countenanced. We are in no position to discuss this topic, having no acquaintance with the customs there, but we may say as a matter of opinion, if this be true, the sooner our efforts in Hayti cease, the better for us, the better for the cause of Christ; such a notion being anti-Christian. Furthermore, we feel free to express the opinion that a judicious self-helpfulness on the part of the missionary young brethren would soon be for them a place in the hearts of the people, from which an aristocratic priesthood could never expel them. The people may need the ministry of industry, economy, thrift, and the appreciation of the worth of the man, regardless of his mere outside accidents. There might be a greater and more lasting good done in instructing the masses concerning the worth of their lands, and the beauty, its wealth and resources, its products and its resultant intermingual power, than merely sustaining all. This feature of the work should be doubly worth the year's subscription to the Review. Bishop Tanner's article "Daniel" and Mr. B. O. Lewis' "Before the Flood," the latter of Detroit, Mich., M. E. Lambert contributes "Hymn to Mary," Rev. J. E. Rawlins on "The Bible in Shakespeare," Rev. J. C. HEALTH, WEALTH AND HAPPINESS

Are more intimately connected with a sound stomach and good condition of the blood than most people suppose. Take blood means weakness, languor and misery. A dyspeptic stomach, means all the horrors you can think of. Brown's Iron Bitters means enriched blood, good digestion, healthy appetite, sweet sleep and vigorous strength. Mr. Henry Hellam, South 17th street, St. Louis, says, "Brown's Iron Bitters relieved me of dyspepsia, purified my blood, and gave me appetite." Thousands of others testify in the same way.

The most stubborn cass of dyspepsia and sick headache yield to the regulating and toning influence of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

The great wool producing area is deserting from the Western prairies. In 1881 St. Paul for dealers received 100 000 bales while Duluth got 10,000 and this far this year only four.

The pain and misery suffered by those who are afflicted with dyspepsia can be described. The relief which is given by Hood's Sarsaparilla has caused thousands to be thankful for this great medicine. It digests the causes of dyspepsia, and insures the digestion of food.

The paradise of tramps is in Gilroy, Kansas. There is a kind of berry there who eat only feeds the vagrants, but supplies them with wines and sugars. It is needless to add that her gatepost is chalked.

Health is impossible when the blood is impure, thick, and sluggish, or when it is thin and impoverished. Underlying conditions, boils, pimples, headaches, neuralgia, rheumatism, and one disease after another is developed. Take Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and it will make the blood pure, rich, warm, and vitalizing.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is recommended by almost every grocer of prominence on both sides of the Atlantic, as the most reliable remedy for colds and coughs, and all pulmonary disorders. It affords prompt relief in every case. No family should be without it.

The German Minister of War has announced a competition for prizes of $500 and $250 respectively, for the best and improved model of a railway truck for the transportation of troops and stores. The plans are to be sent by the 1st of next August.

A LUCKY MAN.

"A lucky man is rarer than a white now," says Juvenal, and we think he knew. However, we have known of thousands of lucky ones and we propose in 1st their secret out. They were people broken down in health, suffering with liver, blood and skin diseases, scrofula, dropsy, and dangerous kidney troubles, enough to hear of and wise enough to use Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," the sovereign blood purifier, tonic and alterative of the age.

Playing Santa Claus is almost as dangerous as fooling with the deadly scalpel. In Sandusky, for instance, on less than three young men who impersonated the genial old gentleman, got their long, flowing beards ignited before Christmas tree tapers and were frightfully burned.

PHILADELPHIA, JANUARY 15, 1885

MRS. CARRIE TAYLOR.

The following note was received from Rev. E. Winston Taylor, January 8th. "On the cars between Washington and Baltimore. Mrs. Taylor, my dear wife, died Tuesday morning, 6th inst, at 5.20. We are en route for home for interment. Pray for me. In great trouble. Your brother, E. W. Taylor." When Mrs. Taylor, then Miss Carrie Hebert, left Wilberforce five years ago or more, she was the picture of health; but she has succumbed to the unrelenting hand of death. She was the daughter of Rev. J. J. Herbert, one of the oldest members of the Baltimore Conference. She has been a professor of religion for several years. We have frequently heard how good and kind, practical and helpful a sister she was to her father in her short married life. How mysterious are the ways of life.

"A poor blind spinner is the sun, Days;
I know that all the threads will roe

PRINCIPLE.

There is something a little pitiable in the earnestness of some gentlemen long supposed to be Republicans from principle. To hear talk that is really silly, from them, is humiliating to the better stuff in our constitution. One would infer that their best criteria as to the worth of a party were the ability to win an election. Let us, for instance, suppose the constituency of the Democratic party so spongy and rotten; in 1861 it would have died politically, but it has fought for every inch of ground, advancing slowly, surely, adroitly and sublimely, till it won back its "lost cause." Say what you may, that was devotion to principle. Upon such principles, how could the face of the land become suddenly spotted with black Democrats? The colored democrat must possess principle. Democrats within fifteen years been twice in the Republican party, once in the workingmen's party and for a short time in the Democratic party. Perhaps the most strongest colored democrat has voted four or five years with that party, about twice as long as the prominent Ohio colored democrat. There are a few colored men of less notoriety who have voted the democratic ticket for from twelve to fifteen years; among our own acquaintances are Mr. Needham Curl, of Xenia, Ohio, and Rev. A. J. Chambers. These men have shown something like principle; they have shown their faith by their works. A majority of the colored men called democrats have very little principle to place the claim. If black men were republicans simply because republicans were in power, and were not acting from motives of responsibility, then they were unworthy of that protection which it is charged the Republicans withhold from them. Such a man, as such, must ever be, not the balance of power, but the commodity for sale. As a matter of fact we have nothing to say concerning a man's politics, but we cannot help feeling chagrined at the degraded, humiliating attitude assumed by too many of our political leaders.

BOOK NOTICES.

We have received from Cranston & Stowe, Cincinnati, two admirable books for Sunday-school teachers and ministers: "How the Bible was Made," by Rev. S. M. Wood, D.D., and "A Vindication of the Mosaic Authorship of the Pentateuch," by Charles Elliott, D.D., Professor of Hebrew in the Lafayette College, Easton, Pa. The books are printed on good paper, in clear type, containing about 265 pages each, and are very substantially bound in cloth. "How the Bible was Made" is a succinct and logical collaboration of the marvelous and checkered course through which the Scriptures have passed to reach us. The arrangement of the work gives it a claim to originality. Cranston & Stowe, Cincinnati, Ohio. $1.00. "Mosaic Authorship of the Pentateuch" is a learned, though very brief, critical and clear argument in favor of the Mosaic authorship of the five books commonly known as the "Pentateuch." The recent completion of the Old Testament's revision made books of this class of high value. We do not feel to risk anything when we say every preacher should read this book. Cincinnati, O., Cranston & Stowe, $1.00.

The Philadelphia Publishing Association for the Promotion of Holiness published a nice little book entitled, "Why I am become of Methodism," by the octogenarian, Rev. Anthony Atwood. This book is an interesting statement of the elemental character of Methodism, showing the power of the witness of the Spirit, the circulating ministry, holiness, etc. The book contains nearly 200 neatly bound pages. Price, $—.

"The Theology of Christ from his own Words." This admirable contribution to Christology by Rev. J. F. Thompson, D. D., late pastor of Broadway Tabernacle, New York, is a well executed work in all respects. Crown 8vo, 310 pages. The author, in lucid and eloquent style, corrects the common error that Jesus was not a theologian, that what is commonly called doctrine originated with the fathers and controversialists, rather than with Christ. With Dr. Thompson, the soul of theology as generally considered fundamental, is in the "Word" himself. Theological students and preachers, as well as other Bible students, will find the book entrancing in style as well as instructive. $1.50. E. B. Treat, 757 Broadway, N. Y.

The Phrenological Journal for January, 1885, will be a jubilee number, it being fifty years since the Fowlers began their phrenological work. It will contain a sketch of the introduction and growth of phrenology in this country, with portraits of Spurzheim, Dr. Fall, Spurzheim and Combe, together with a history of the publishing business of the Fowler & Wells Co., with portraits of L. N. Fowler, O. S. Fowler, Samuel R. Wells, Lorenzo Fowler Wells, Nelson Sizer and many others, with biographical sketches.

The February number of the Magazine of Art will have to for frontispieces a Salon picture, in two colors, and a portrait of the beautiful Lady Macbeth of Shakespeare. A portrait of greatest contemporary interest in this number will be that of Mr. Elihu Vedder, with his biographical sketch by that distinguished artist by Miss A. Mary F. Robinson. Other illustrations are by Messrs. Zimmern and P. Mabel Robinson, will be among the other contributors to this number.

James Kennedy, M.A., late missionary of the London Missionary Society, has written two volumes of reminiscences of his Indian life, which Cassell & Co. will publish. The work does not pretend to the details of Indian life than most books of the kind, but it tells about it, and that is the strong point of his book. He takes his readers with him to his Indian home where they see him at work and hear him conversing with the natives. He does not confine himself to missions, but gives some account of the character of the people, changes in their habits and laws, modes of traveling and the British government.

The January Century will have in its War Series a paper on "Sherman's Raid," by Rear-Admiral Walke, on the Mississippi gun-boat service, describing the naval engagements at Belmont, Fort Henry, Fort Donelson, Memphis and Island No. 10. The next paper in the series, after General Grant's "Shiloh" in the March number, of the battle between the "Merrimac" and the "Monitor," told by Colonel John Taylor Wood, third officer of the "Merrimac." Admiral Porter will have a military officer. Colonel Wood was afterwards commander of the ironclad "Tallahassee," and at the close of the war went to Nashville, where he was on staff readies. General R. E. Colston, commander of the Confederate forces opposite Newport News, will contribute to the same number an eye-witness's account of the famous battle, describing the spectacle of the destruction of the Federal fleet before the arrival of the "Merrimac."

In his article on "Shiloh," which will appear in the February Century, General Grant says: "The fighting on Sunday after the first day of that battle. He says: "The rain fell in torrents, and the troops were exposed to the storm without shelter. I made my headquarters under a tree a few hundred yards from the river bank. My ankle was so much swollen from the fall of my horse the day before that I could get no rest, and the bruise was so painful that I could get no rest. The drenching rain would have precluded the possibility of sleep, without this additional cause. Some time after midnight, finding the storm no nearer the storm and the continuous rain of the day before gave a promise of the bank. This had been taken as a hospital, and all night wounded men were being brought in. Their wounds dressed, a leg or an arm amputated, as the case might require. The attention being done to save life or alleviate suffering. Operations more necessary, while than encountering the rain in the fire, and I returned to my tree in the rain." The article from which the above statements regarding General Buell were already published, and which are expressed, and how he tried to correct the misunderstanding which grew up between him and Buell after the battle.

YOUR QUESTIONS ANSWERED BY BISHOP CAMPBELL—HIS VIEWS ON THE POLITICAL QUESTION.

MESSRS. J. R. WARREN, E. S. SWEET and R. A. JONES:

GENTLEMEN:—Your favor of December 1st, 1884, is before me. I am very sorry that I was absent when you called at my office, and regret exceedingly a conference together with the deity immediately. I am a friend to the negro and form the sad rite of burial service of the colored people. I buried the well beloved Bishop, Rt. Rev. Wm. P. Dickerson, D.D., have prevented me from attending the annual conferences lately, although on its receipt, ten days ago. I will endeavor to reply immediately; you will therefore be pleased to pardon the delay. You have asked me to answer four questions, viz: "Is it to you think it possible for the negro to overcome the prejudice against him? Is he passing, or as to better his future condition?" "Is there any hope, really as there is a just and righteous God ruling, controlling and governing all things in the universe?" "What is the future of the race in the United States?" "Is the ministry of the Methodist Episcopal Church in our God forever and ever, and he is the only one who can control and direct events, exercising no controlling power over them. All he relies in the kingdom of men, and nothing is done out of his sight, or beyond his control.

I have been a Methodist preacher and crowded seed in Europe is more or less depending upon the Jew for a loan of financial means to run its government, and that without such loan to one of them can carry on a long protracted and expensive war against an opposing nation in arms. Although the Jew is contracted, proscribed, hated and despised in almost every land he has ever been, by, build, plant and grow up with the coming growth of those thinly and unsettled portions of the country. And God that our dear people felt and saw the importance to them and their posterity as we see and feel it. That which I now supplied. He was a man of excellent parts and carried with him an unstained character to the grave. Mrs. Handy (then Mrs. Travis) at that time was one of the most handsome ladies of Baltimore. Highly proportioned in size, such in her colors, softly, lively, graceful and one of the greatest church workers in the city. Indeed, she was foremost in all movements for the relief of the church or suffering humanity, also the leader of a large class of interesting ladies. When a proposal was suggested to her and her support elicited, she was very jocular, forcible, quick to draw the why's and wherefore of everything; but if it met her approval, she threw her whole soul into it, and drove the measure to a triumphant success, counting oppositions as mere follies, except as they intensified her determination and impelled her to greater efforts. She literally electrified others with her will and sentiments, yet there was no masculinity in her manner. She was every whit a lady. Here was the force and power of a woman and not a man, a woman whose intensity of purpose spoke in her look, gesture, motion, eye-flash and mouth-quiver, as well as in her voice. She was as grand in her motherly qualities as in her person. Never shall I forget the day when my conference was approaching and eyes once at hand. I was passing down Gay street, Baltimore, and met her very unexpectedly. She was then a widow. She gave a complimentary and able review of it. The Church News, of Saturday, did its work. The New York Globe pronounced it "able and temperate." Laymen have pronounced it. Bishops, and everybody brought wrote at once on its appearing, to say, "Come to us immediately." Others have been, and they are being carried into effect, despite the opposition of men. It is God who hath moved the Ethiopia shall soon stretch out her hands and God's ways were never so pressed, and how he tried to correct the misunderstanding which grew up between him and Buell after the battle.

Although the Jew is contracted, proscribed, hated and despised in almost every land he has ever been, by, build, plant and grow up with the coming growth of those thinly and unsettled portions of the country. And God that our dear people felt and saw the importance to them and their posterity as we see and feel it. That which I now supplied. He was a man of excellent parts and carried with him an unstained character to the grave. Mrs. Handy (then Mrs. Travis) at that time was one of the most handsome ladies of Baltimore. Highly proportioned in size, such in her colors, softly, lively, graceful and one of the greatest church workers in the city. She literally electrified others with her will and sentiments, yet there was no masculinity in her manner. She through the minister to the people, the divine word in such a way as intelligently to give the sense of the revelation. Repeatedly preaching by marriages or churchings, backwards and forwards between minister and congregation, would be associated with the idea of worship and instruction and edification. Sometimes all things be done decently and in order."

Discriminating reading of the Scriptures, which is the most prominent feature of the ritualistic revolution and decline of spiritual power in churches, does not give the sense of the inspired word. Many ministers, who are educated, even perverted, by the respective rules of minister and congregation, to the detriment of the ministerial influence marks the management of many of our Sabbath-schools these days. Unintelligent readings by Superintendent, teacher and scholars. They are not instructive. They are not devotional. They are not even aesthetic, though sometimes they are long and tedious. In which occasion these are training their children for graduation from their Sabbath schools to irreligious churches."

"Discriminating reading" is the way to have it! That depends on the object we have in view in reading the word of God. If it is simply to get through it, as a task to be performed, or to entertain the congregation, it is the truth in regard to the testament population of the city to-day. Many of the people have never entered any house that the notes and confusion should be kept into account in determining such a question. Our object in reading the word of God is to instruct, that is, to impress the sense on those who hear us, so that they may understand it, that we wish to mould character, and to determine the course of life we are to lead. Hence, we are to read the Scriptures in such a manner as to impress the sense of the truth upon the hearer. It is the intelligent reading of God's word. They make wrong impressions upon the Sabbath school service, responsive throughout, which has no place under any circumstances with the Old Testament benediction, thus:

Minister.—The Lord bless thee and keep thee.

Congregation and scholars.—The Lord shall lift up his countenance upon thee and be gracious unto thee.

"Responsive readings may be more consistent with the structure of the Psalms than with historical and didactic facts of the Bible; but after a careful examination I fail to find evidence to sustain a prejudicial to true views, even of the Psalms."

But one expression can I find in favor of responsive reading, and that one is, I will not say unscriptural, but is believed to work to good advantage in the negro character in America.—D., in the Christian Instructor.

NOTICE.

By arrangements just made with the Secretary of "Our Sunday School Union," we shall hereafter furnish the "Child's Recorder" from this office as in the past. The price will be one cent per copy to all, for any number from one to twelve inclusive, and twelve cents per copy to all, for any number from twelve to one hundred inclusive. Orders that we start right with the new year, will be promptly attended to. We shall issue the last week in December for January.

2. We are preparing to supply our Sunday schools with the lessons for the first half of 1885, as published by arrangement by the American Sunday School Union. They are prepared by the best writers and scholars. The Teachers' papers are quarterlies, the Scholars' and issue monthly. They are well printed, large, highly illustrated, simple and sound. We shall handle no other till we see our own from the press and be gracious unto thee. I will now state plainly to the brethren that there is no profit to us in supplying, but we consider it our duty to take any orders for Cook's or Bevan's after January. Make a note of this.

THE WEST TEXAS CONFERENCE

BY REV. A. GRANT.

MR. EDITOR:—On the third day of December, 1884, the West Texas Conference convened at Rockdale, Texas, Bishop Dickerson, D.D., in the chair and presiding. The Bishop conducted devotional exercises. At call of roll of Elders and Deacons, all were present and responded to their names. Rev. S. C. Fantroy was reported dead; Rev. A. F. Jackson was elected Secretary; Rev. G. S. Taylor, local preacher, was elected Secretary pro tem, reporter to the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. Visitors: Rev. J. H. Armstead, Rev. J. H. Hill, Presiding Elder Philips, and Rev. B. F. Lee, Bishop. Rev. Lee was excused from 9 A. M. to 2 P. M. each day, by unanimous consent. Rev. Lee was also excused from all committees not otherwise appointed by the Bishop.

By 2 o'clock the first day the treasurer had nearly all their financial reports in. Rev. Lee preached a sermon by Saturday all committees had reported. The committee on education appointed by the Bishop presiding was then confirmed, which was as annual course, and Rev. Lee was excused from all business to have all committees not otherwise appointed by the Bishop presiding.

Sabbath morning was clear and beautiful. The business of the conference was suspended, and the people prepared to the various places of worship. Rev. Lee preached to one of the assembled multitudes in praise to Almighty God. The Bishop preached at 11 A. M., from 2 Chron. xv. 7: "Be ye strong therefore, and let not your hands be weak, for your work shall be rewarded." The sermon was instructive and beneficial unto all who heard it. Rev. Dr. O. S. Smith preached at 3 P. M., and Rev. George Davis preached at 7.30 at night. The Conference Missionary Society met as usual, and Rishop Dickerson became its leader by virtue of his initiation fee.

The conference is divided into four presiding elder districts, viz: Memphis District, South Memphis District, Paris District and Charleston District. Rev. G. H. Jackson, Page, Tyler, R. Stowe, and Rev. J. J. Brown, were elected as elders. Rev. R. F. Hurley was transferred to the Louisiana Conference. Rev. A. A. W. Hill, to the Arkansas Conference, and Rev. J. F. Haymer, to the Illinois Conference. Conference adjourned to meet at Clarksville, Texas, in

RESPONSIVE READING.

A short time ago I called attention to remarks made in the Council meeting in Belfast against responsive reading of the Scriptures by churches and Sabbath schools on the ground of their unscriptural character, and now wishing to bring the subject more fully to the notice of the church, I give the following as showing the views held by some members of the Council in regard to the practice. I quote from the printed proceedings of said Council, without giving names:

"Responsive reading, the most formal and dead of all liturgical practices, because this violates the fundamental object of the reading of the Scriptures, which is a make known from God

Obituary.

Rev. M. W. Winstead, presiding elder of the Abbeville District, Hot Springs, Ark., departed this life on the 5th inst., at Arkadelphia. He leaves a wife and 4 children to suffer their troubles in life.

Died at Chesapeake City, Md., December 22nd, Brother Samuel Price, an invaluable member, nearly all of whose life has been spent in Christ's service. Funeral Tuesday, December 25th. Sermon by Rev. A. Long. Rising Star Benedict Association appeared in full regalia, and the Sunday school showed marked respect to the memory of one of their most efficient workers. This circuit loses in Brother Price one of its most devout Christian and earnest workers.

THE LATE REV JOSEPH TURNER.

In the recent death of the Rev. Joseph Turner the North Carolina Conference loses one of its most worthy ministers, with a rich, strong character; a faithful preacher, he never be forgotten by the members of the conference. Rev. Dr. Pierce remarked that he said that he did not fear death; he had no fear of dying in any place. We can only say we have lost a dear father, whose place is hard to fill. He was born in 1808, and died in 1884. His wife and five children to mourn his loss. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them."

Mrs. Maria Gilmore, wife of Rev. Ralph G. Gilmore, of Lancaster City, departed this life on the 21st of December, in the 36th year of her age, after a long illness. Sister Gilmore was much beloved by all who knew and came in contact with her.

"Dearest mother, we
How lay low we deeply feel;
But 'tis God who has done it,
He can all our sorrows heal.

No night of agony or pain,
Nor sin to stain her breast,
Redeemed and saved she sweetly sleeps
On her Redeemer's breast."

Gone, but not forgotten.

MRS. SUSAN JACKSON.

We are notified again of the death of 2d Lieut. Charles Wallace Somers, U. S. A., which occurred at Wilberforce. She has been a Christian many years, having her membership in the Methodist Church, Salem, Ohio. Both she and her husband were highly respected at Salem and Wilberforce. She has been a friend to many students at Wilberforce University. She moved to Memphis, Tenn., last fall, where her only child was born. She died there, and went the husband and daughter have our sincere sympathy.

Church News.

G. W. H. (Atlantic City): "We are having a protracted meeting. Many have been brought to Christ; others are increasing in interest. We are highly encouraged. Our Sunday school is increasing in interest. We are holding a Bible class at our house. Pastor's wife gives us good, sound theological sermons."

Rev. J. T. Diggs, (Morristown, N. J.): "Things are moving on nicely in my charge here. We have had pleasant and entertainments successful. Last night the choir of my church gave us a concert, which proved, among the things, a success. Among the many nice and valuable presents was a handsome gold watch. We are very grateful to God for the peace that prevails between ourselves and people, for the success of their love for me."

U. G. Boyd, (Lithuria, Ga.): "We have just closed our protracted meeting; the Lord blessed us greatly. Increased by 25. Meetings will be held nightly every man, that cometh to him by faith. Also, we organized a new meeting west on without any convenience. Thank God the church was revived. Pastor's wife is a true helper to her gentleman."

Married.

THOMPSON—FOSTER.—On Tuesday evening, November 26th, 1884, Mr. Thompson, of Salem, Ohio, and Miss M. Foster were united in holy wedlock, Rev. James Foster, father of the bride, officiating. The ceremony was performed at the residence of the bride. She was the recipient of many valuable presents, among which was a Bible, Book, Hatchet, New York and Savannah Steamship Company, presenting them in their new sphere of life.

Care for the Children
Children feel the debility of the changing seasons more than grown persons. Their blood is impure, pimply and uncomfortable. The blood must be purified and enriched and toned and built up by the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. Of this it is truly the best. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the best medicine for children. Hood's Sarsaparilla never disappoints. Hood's Sarsaparilla never fails to do good. Hood's Sarsaparilla never injures. Hood's Sarsaparilla never sickens. Hood's Sarsaparilla never stupefies. Hood's Sarsaparilla never produces headache. Hood's Sarsaparilla never causes constipation. Hood's Sarsaparilla never produces any bad effects whatever. Hood's Sarsaparilla never disappoints. Hood's Sarsaparilla never fails

A bad jury in a lawsuit—Perjury.

CASTOR OIL.

One of the chief uses to which castor oil is now put is that of dressing and softening leather for boots. It was formerly used for dosing children whose stomachs were disordered. And an awful dose it was. Now we give suffering children Brown's Iron Bitters, which tones the stomach, regulates digestion, and imparts strength to the whole body. Brown's Iron Bitters is a compound better than castor oil, and more pleasant to take.

"My son, why is it that you are always behindhand with your studies?" "Because, if I was not behindhand with them, I could not pursue them."

A PECK OF PEAS (P'S).

Here are a Peck of Peas, sweet Peas, if you will. Perseverance, Patience, Promptness, Proficiency, Push and Politeness. Add to these Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" and you will get what (besides the world without) is much trouble. The Pellets prevent constipation and surgeon of life which lead to many different complaints. Enclosed in glass, always fresh, entirely vegetable, prompt, and perfectly harmless. Any druggists.

A market reporter says that his sweet heart encourages him, and he thinks of marrying her at once, but that a fresher advance was followed by a decline.

No sufferer from any scrofulous disease, when well built by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, need despair of cure. It will purge the blood of all impurities, thereby destroying the germs from which scrofula is developed, and will infuse new life and vigor throughout the whole physical organization.

When a young couple west of the Rocky Mountains run away and get married the sporting journalist alludes to it in big head-line letters as "into the Pacific slope."

Health is better than wealth but wealth will bring health to all sufferers from diseases of the kidneys, liver and urinary organs, if it is expended in judicious amounts for the only reliable HUNT'S [Kidney and Liver] REMEDY. Rheumatism and Malaria, which these disease are immediately relieved by its use.

At a college examination a professor asked: "Does my question embarrass you?" "Not at all, sir," replied the student. "Not at all. It's quite clear. It is the answer that bothers me."

That feeling of extreme debility is entirely overcome by Hood's Sarsaparilla. "I was liked all over, but Hood's Sarsaparilla drew in the new life and strength," says a twatcket, R. I., lady. Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. $1 a bottle, or six bottles for $5.

He had an auburn-haired girl, and promised to take her out riding. She met him at the door when he drove up, and he exclaimed, "Relief! Ready!" she misunderstood, and they don't speak now.

That wonderful catholicon known as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has given the lady a world-wide reputation for doing good. It is a living spring of health and strength.

"You must come and see me, my dear," said a lady to a friend of her acquaintance. "Do you know my number?" "Oh, yes, ma'am," responded the innocent child. "Papa says you always live at sixes and sevens."

SINCE THE INTRODUCTION Of Parker's Hair Balsam all other hair preparations have taken rank in the second class. Neat, pure. Price 50c.

A widow, intending to succeed her husband in the management of a hotel, advertised that she had "the honor to inform the widow of the former landlord, Mr. Hen-ry, who died last Summer on a new and improved plan."

Catarrh is a constitutional disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a constitutional remedy. It cures catarrh. Give it a trial.

Professor Winters, the French scientist, committed suicide because he could not discover in his autopsies what made the wind blow. Other men have done the same thing, who failed to solve the problem how to raise the wind.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy surpasses all.

The largest stationary engine in the world is at the famous sice mines at Friedenville, Pa. It is known as the "President," and there is no stationary engine in the world that can be compared with the monster. The number of gallons of water raised every minute is 17,000; the steam cylinders are thirty-five feet in diameter and weigh forty tons each. The sweep rod is forty feet long, cylinder 110 inches in diameter, and the piston-rod eighteen inches in diameter with a stroke ten.

CATARRH CURED.

A clergyman, after suffering a number of years from the loathsome disease, Catarrh, after trying in vain every known remedy, at last found a prescription which completely cured him, and saved him from death. Any sufferer from this dreadful disease (sending a self-addressed stamped envelope to Dr. J. A. Lawrence, 39 Dean Street, New York, will receive the prescription free of charge.

ADJUTANT MOTHERAM.—Mr. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer, assists it to produce natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to take; it soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility, is desirous of making known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

TO THE MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE EIGHTH EPISCOPAL DISTRICT.

CHRISTIAN BRETHREN:—"God's favor is worth more than silver and gold."

For the first time in eleven years we as a Church have been called upon to mourn over the death of a Bishop. The youngest Bishop in the Church has reached the goal first. With both sheaves, uplifted banner and unsheathed sword he dropped in the thick of the fight, with his face to the foe. Bidding us to do the best we can, he finished the work of a faithful soldier and servant. Like watch-fires in the sun-bathed South, Morris Brown College and Allen University will be visible for light and slow and black will the sun endures. How can we do less than follow in battle?

Now, therefore, in view of this terrible stroke, I request all ministers to drape their churches in suitable manner, for their dears. Farewell, beloved colleagues. In his unfaltering hand made the wind blow. Other men have done the same thing, who failed to solve the problem how to raise the wind.

Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy surpasses all.

GEN U S GRANT

The clarity of the great railroad magnate—Vanderbilt—shown in his effort to relinquish his claim upon General Grant, is worthy of note. The refusal of the General and Mrs. Grant to accept the services is praiseworthy; as well as his refusal to be pensioned by the government.

The Senate bill to place General Grant on the retired list with the title held when he was made President of the United States, is a movement that meets the approbation of good people, but it is not very likely that the democrats in the House will give President Arthur the honor of getting the credit. We look upon General Grant with pride and with gratitude. This is right. No other six is more conspicuous than ingratitude. It is there may be a few who done others in our effusions of gratitude to one man. General Grant is spoken of as one friend; yet a man with the income accruing on one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, is in a condition that is the same length of a few of those who are glad of their $1.00 per diem. Then there is another standpoint from which to look at the case; General Grant has shown a great ability to control great wealth. Not only has a vast fortune been given him to the common benefit of business, but a second vast fortune has been presented him by the world, in recognition of merit. Both have been buried into the vortex of ruin by boisterous transactions upon other than business principles. There are a thousand little favors that the General has received in the past that will not allow him to ever be forgotten, but he may not be always reimbursed for the losses incurred by indiscreet speculations. As an ingenious soldier, it is perfectly right that General Grant be placed on the retired list.

THE ARTICLE published to this number, and entitled "The Humanity of Christianity," is a rather severe criticism; one that is exceedingly truthful and serious, if correct. That there is a much lower moral standard in all classes than should pertain, there is no doubt. One thing is certain: ere things in their things he just as bad in the life of other race varieties, we shall be utterly unable, in the close race conducted in which we are subjected, to reach a high state of elevation by practicing the many vices that are already degrading the white race.

The Xenia, Ohio, Gazette says, a majority of the men in the Ohio penitentiary, from County, are Democrats. A few months ago an article appeared in a little Ohio monthly, stating that a very large per cent. of our young men, are in the penitentiaries. We commented on the article freely; readers may remember. It. We are not calling the facts in question, but desire to open the people to a consideration of the way to obviate this course. It is certainly of greater importance than the suppression of the dominating parties. As we stated some months ago, in a brief review of Prof. Gilliam's illogical article in the November issue of the American, the graver question before the American people than that growing out of the association of the white and black varieties; it is the question of morals

Mr. Thomas is quite right in calling attention to evils as well as to the necessity of getting at them. But that is the question; for thousands of years it has been the question. The Canaanian has this problem as an intimate connection with others, without considering the existence of the negro and his morals, as with this consideration The man who for one moment supposes that things will continue as they are, aye, and improve, is doomed to bitter disappointment. The ebb and flow of the moral tide cannot much longer maintain its equal unity and periodicity. Before long there must be a general collapse. The force of sentiment, of education and religion is actually losing its hold upon the races. The baser passions are predominating. Rapine, murder, wildside and fraud have mustered forces to execute their passions, which are about to get the upper hand of civilization. Our most ingenious inventions are as thoroughly baffled by dynimite, intoxicating drinks and other monster vices, as are our most skilled treatments of the most subtle diseases that undermine the physical constitution.

There is no use to stop and fight with the weapon that the colored people are no worse than others. Are we as bad? Then our case is fearful in the extreme. By all the glory of the spiritual life, by all the encouragement of those who have won the mastery, by all the tarrors of ignorance and all the ignominy of vice, we should be aroused to thoughtfulness respecting the morals of mankind; being classified by the caste powers, we must be alarmed, as to the colored race, especially.

WHY NOT LET the people decide? Why not have a law empowering "the voters" to annually vote, by the wards and townships, for a decrease of the license? Yes, for "No" the "decrease" to be 20 per cent. (one out of every five). In this way, two-thirds of the taverns would be abolished in five years, the prohibition might follow, if the people desired it. Our cities are the great battle-fields in this contest; citizens would vote for a moderate "decrease" of the saloons, but will not, at present, vote for and sustain total prohibition; we can lead them to this, step by step, but cannot drive them at first, and hence we must work and move with the sentiments of each and every local area.

The Law and its enforcement is the decree and executor, of public sentiment. The voice of the people, through the ballot-box, is the measure of public opinion, and prohibition must build upon this foundation in order to succeed in our large cities. This is the case, as proposed, the "decrease" would simply represent the existing sentiment of each community. The vote, being the standard of the sovereign power of the people, its enforcement would be assured. That each ward will accessily vote away one or more of the saloons, is beyond question. Each election and the "decrease" would tend to awaken the public mind to a realising sense of the great evil, and educate the people up to a higher and still higher standard of moral responsibility upon this subject. Why is it, we ask, that citizens cannot be permitted to cast their votes for protecting themselves from the evil work and influence of the saloons and taverns? Is it because the "saloon" is more powerful in politics than "the people?" The drink question should be entirely eliminated from politics; the "saloon" itself is enough for us to fight against. This question rests wholly with the people, for, no matter what statutes may be enacted, we can finally rely opon "public opinion" to give vitality and life to the law.

The trustees of the College of the City of New York held their last meeting for the year yesterday. A resolution was passed declaring that the system of marking the students might be suspended for the year in the senior class of the college. It was explained that the object was an experiment, and that if successful it would be safer to abolish the marking system altogether. It is a system, he added, that is not followed in the German universities, nor in any of the best American colleges. Teachers say that it is often difficult to give the proper marking without interrupting the solution and stopping the lesson for a moment. "It appears to me of very doubtful value." he continued, "to keep up this system of marking until the students are graduated." The resolution was adopted. —Tribune.

Literature.

The midwinter [February] Century will contain an article by Dr. W. George Theler, of Montreal, C. C., "Canada as a Winter Resort," profusely illustrated by Henry Sandham, with views of toboggoning, curling, racing carnival, shoes, etc. The Montreal carnival will give this paper a especial timeliness.

Two full-page illustrations from Mr. Howells's articles on "A Florentine Monk," in the same number of the Century, are said to be a his remarkable reproductions by the wood engraver of sketches. The article is the first written to the "Missionary." They are distinctive masking grade of enlightenment and moral character in human race.

The New York Independent devotes nearly two pages to the symposium of Mrs. Julia Ward Howe's poems, editorially—the contribution of Mrs. Harper, perhaps, most fully. The Review of Reviews devotes a full page to the poet our literature does. There is no mistake that our brother Cook, as a contributor to the Review, miss a great means of enlightenment and directive sense, besides, what is greater, in impetus that cannot be given by any other literature. The Independent's review of the A. M. E. Review is mainly and encouraging.

The current Wide Awake opens the New Year with beautiful and suggestive illustrations, all in keeping with the verse, correct teachings, pleasant stories and choice miscellaneous matter. The frontispiece, "Midwinter in the Boston Public Garden," is followed by several full and compensative reports. IV "The Effects of Alcohol on the Stomach" are interesting articles. $100 a year. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston, Mass.

The current Quiver comes to us full of good, readable matter, of a character sort mixed with those in lighter vein. The Rev. Dr. Ld. D. Talmage, formerly pastor of the Bri k Presbyterian Church, New York, begins the papers on a "Popular American Preacher," in which he will choose for special mention those who "have done the most good." Is this "Doing" in his estimation? Or is it "Preaching?" In this number the Rev. Joseph Parker, the London Congregationalist, is the subject of the first sketch, and the Rev. Jos. Cook, all of Boston, are chosen. American preaching Dr. Parker pronounced "the greatest preacher of the day." Mr. Talmage is a man of large physique

"I was right pearl till the rheumatic sot in," said a suffering old man who lived near the swamp. Fact is, wherever you live you can't be "right pearl" if you are a victim of this treacherous disease. Captain C. W. CHANCE AND CHASE.

There are many words of frequent use but little of a definite and meaning. Chance is one of these words. Oftimes it means what is likely to take place; but again it seems to mean especially what is not likely to take place. With some its use hangs upon providence; with others upon fatalism, and still others upon an indescribability. Among its proper synonyms are luck and happy, all including, more or less, the idea that while there are antecedences and consequences in the succession of events there is no such thing as a law or laws of causation. This has been claimed, and is on ranking with the best metaphysicians.

The opposite side holds that there are laws of causation as well as laws of succession, that in all successions of nomena from which other phenomena result or proceed there must be laws especially calculated to produce the resultant phenomena. Intelligence itself is consequent not merely upon antecedence, but upon laws in those antecedents, which, when acted on by anybody; they expect something will happen. Thousands of the class know of nothing future, because they lay on ceasing foundations with reference to the future. The future, consequently, is revelling itself, brings them no homes, no friends, no fortunes. Millions of them have no practical place to sleep or eat. In addition to all misfortune, they say: "Occasionally something does turn up, one such person does chance to hit luck." It is true, but not without some one's turning it up.

Besides the chance class accepting no present, hence appreciating no future, there is the chance that does something, but it is another kind of a chance action. They gamble; they take chances, they invest a little money and expect to realize much money. Stock speculation may be cited as example. It is chance, chance, chance—and chance is nothing; it is nothing to live for, nor can it support a decent life. Many succeed, but it is because of nothing in chance, it is by laws outside of their own efforts, by a concurrence of circumstances whose recurrence cannot be anticipated—hence the mere exis ence of such laws cannot be of practical service. The man who attempts to follow chance as a business soon discovers that he has been pursuing an apparition; excepting the very few who have been able to ascertain them to discover the existence of very subtle laws, undiscovered by all the millions around them. It has become patent that two or three of the wealthier men of the world began to grow rich by picking up all the pins and other trifles they found; but who have imitated them in anything save that thing, too, picked up pins?

Life presupposes action, and success depends upon acting in accordance with laws. Success is based upon arrangement of and executing plans, having an object and pursuing it. The chase is much more fruitful than the chance. It is often foog, tedious and sometimes unsuccessful, but it is the only reliable and honorable way to success. It is not possible that all men's success shall show the same results in kind. Many are great in some respect; they are successful in that, but fail to be called to much more successful, though both have been alike active. There is no chance in the matter, however; one has discovered and respected laws more than another the other. Perhaps no one but himself can understand these laws, hence cannot follow his footsteps. The study of biography will not reveal the way that leads others to success. Each man has to proceed from his own standpoint. That standpoint no one else can have.

THE CASE OF BISHOP CAMPBELL.

A little more than two weeks ago, a warrant was issued by Magistrate List, of this city, for the arrest of Bishop J. P. Campbell, on the affidavit of one Edward Young. The said Young is a cousin of the Bishop. It was alleged in the complaint that the Bishop had wilfully committed perjury, by uttering a false affidavit to obtain an order from the Court to the sheriff, by which order a sum or certain sums of money was paid him as executor of the estate of Moses Young, deceased, who was the father of complainant, and of whose estate he claimed to be the sole heir. The report of this arrest was telegraphed, through the associated press, all over the country. Many inquiries have come to us for information as to the truth of the report. We have been unable up to the present time, January 23rd, to give any satisfactory information beyond the mere fact of the arrest, and our belief that the Bishop is innocent.

On Friday last, 16th ult., the first hearing was had. It consumed about two hours and resulted in a request of the prosecutor for a continuance until Monday (23d), in order, as they alleged, to procure the testimony of the Sheriff. To-day's hearing lasted two or two and a half hours. The magistrate withheld his decision until Friday next, 30th, but expressed himself to the effect that he was unwilling to believe the Bishop had intentionally committed the offence alleged. We know of none present who can doubt that the Bishop will be discharged on call of the court next Friday.

For the satisfaction of the Bishop's many friends and the Church generally, we will now try to give an outline of the case as we heard it.

Away back in the '20's a man named DeSaussus (de-saw-ka) made a certificate or instrument of writing to Moses Young, acknowledging in it that he owed the possession and tenure of certain real property, subject to a system here called ground-rent. This, as we understand, was in existence, if not in form, a conveyance. Moses Young's wife—Charlotte Young—was the aunt of Bishop Campbell. She was the real owner, the head of the family as manager of business, and always spoke of the house-property as "ours," and for the purpose to devise it to her daughter Maria and her children. After the death of her husband she remained in sole possession and control of the property as her own, which, so far as is known, was never questioned. Bishop Campbell took charge of the personal effects of Moses Young after his death, and sold them and paid his funeral expenses, and distributed, as administrator de bonis non, the remainder among his heirs. At length Charlotte also died, but, unlike her husband, who made no will, she made a regular will, devising her property, this same property, to her granddaughter, the children of Martha—giving a tribute to this man Edward and others, to clear the law, and made her nephew, Bishop Campbell, executor. He took charge accordingly and held the estate, paid her debts and funeral expenses and paid to each of the adult heirs the amount provided in the will. Among these was this present prosecutor, who accepted his part and receipted the Bishop for the same. In process of time the expenses of the property became burdensome as it was old and quite valueless, the Bishop resolved to sell it and did so. The process for the benefit of the children. But—and now comes the point of difficulty—when he came to settle up the estate of Charlotte Young the records were blank as to her, and the only shadow of title was found to have been in Moses Young. The said instrument conferred of possession and tenure. It was then decided that in establishing title, the creditors of the estate should sue and sell. This was done by one Johnson. On his judgment the Court empowered the Sheriff to sell and make a deed. He sold to Rev. Theo. Gould, (all the heirs being present), for $250, after appraisement. After the creditors had been satisfied there was a trifling balance of $10, according to the testimony of the Sheriff. Now, the question was, to whom should it be paid? By direction of his attorney, J. O. Lovett, he prepared the petition and affidavit on which the Court made its order for the payment of the money by the Sheriff, a bond was executed and endorsed by the Bishop acceptable to the Court. But even when he had given an acceptable bond and the Court had made its order, the Sheriff still refused to pay over, on the ground that he feared there would or might be some hitch as to the original title of Moses Young. Hence, to solved not to be baffled, Lawyer Lewis procured a policy of insurance from the "Title Insurance Co." of Philadelphia, for something the Sheriff in case of any judgment or demand legally made. On this policy and not on the order of Court, he paid the Bishop $107. The petition of the Bishop to the Court for order was made on the claim that he was executor of Moses Young. The accompanying affidavit that the allegations of the petition are true to the best of his knowledge and belief. Remember, this is an exparte affair, wherein nothing is allowed for the defence. Lawyer Lewis being sworn testified that the whole history and solmus of the case from foundation to empire and he been fully known to the Court before the order was made. The same as to the Sheriff, who also could on oath that he was fully aware of all facts pertaining to the case, and also the Title Insurance Co. So after all, it seems that nothing was done "in the dark." Moreover all the heirs, including this complaining one, had been conversant with all that was done, and approved it. The daughter-in-law of Mrs. Young was in the Court in hearty sympathy with the defense, and said to those who asked her, that she felt indignant at the treatment her cousin John was suffering.

We have thus written at length because a mere note would leave suspense and dissatisfaction in the minds of many.

Besides, Bishop Campbell is a representative man. He is a bright mark among the strong men of our race who have triumphed over difficulties peculiar to the generation now passing away. We are all anxious for his vindication from the taint of fraud and knavery which this action of a worn out and negligent form of humanity has sought to cast upon him. It is believed that there is a power behind the throne in this matter which may yet be found and exposed in the postponement which his coadjutor Bishop Campbell is not perfect, but a large and superior man; and although still among us he is not the no—his character and achievements are the possession of his Church and he race. Ten thousand of the best men and women of our race in this land, as good and as pure as this earth has ever produced, heartily sympathize with him and will defend him to the uttermost.

We say to the Church—and we are no invice in observations of the kind—you may regard the Bishop as practically dismissed and vindicated.

Notes on Education.

In the University of Michigan last year the number of students was as follows: In the Department of Literature, Science and Arts, 779; in the Department of Medicine and Surgery, 382; in Department of Law, 305; in School of Pharmacy, 70; in Homeopathic Medical College, 67; in Dental College, 67; total, 1,377. Of these 180 were women; 111 in Literary Department, 43 in Medical Department, 12 in Homeopathic College, 5 in Dental College, 2 in School of Pharmacy.

The late ex-Governor Coburn, of Maine, in addition to large gifts in his lifetime, left by will $100,000 to be given in dollars to various benevolent objects, including bequests to educational institutions of the State. The Maine College of Agriculture, $100,000; to Colby University, $250,000; to Bowdoin College, $100,000; of the Baptist Home Mission Society, $250 000; to Waterville Classical Institute, $100,000; to Hinkton Academy, $5,000; to Maine Industrial School for Girls, $5,000; to Bloomfield Academy, $7,000; for a public library at Skowhegan, $5,000; total, $517,000.

The Seminary of St. Charles Borromeo, the theological school for the archdiocese of Philadelphia, Overbrook, has the largest edifice of any divinity school in the country, and few in Europe equal it. The grounds also are extensive. The whole has cost about $600,000. Of the completion of the property with equipments, and the endowment, the Archbishop on which shall maintain the school, it is said that a million more or a million more is needed. Prospective enlargements will require still so ther millions. The Philadelphia and Reading passengers occupying that car as were provided to a sleeping car, and it was signed to white people. This state of facts was shown on the trial of the case.

Miss Ida Wells, who was a colored teacher, purchased a ticket at Memphis, the only kind sold by the company, for her passage, and took her seat in the rear car, which was assigned to white people, and was the only colored person in that car. The conductor ordered her dismissed by the ticks, saw her there, and directed her to take her seat in the forward car, which was the car for colored people. Miss Wells refused, and was taken a special interest in the election of Mr. Cameron.

President Arthur, who has been facilitated here before in the discharge of social duties, is just now the subject of some sarcastic remarks in social circles. It is alleged that he politely accepted half a dozen invitations for one evening, with the proviso that he will attend if public affairs will permit. Of course, no man can do more than he can do, but it is also alleged that which the President accepts a very form of hospitality, and that he is not guilty of his filling half of them, that occasions comment.

The visit of the noted evangelist, Mr. Moody, to this city, is an event of great interest to a large part of the religious community. The demand for tickets to his meeting in the Academy of Music is greater than the supply, and discontent is expressed that tickets are required at all. The meetings are to be held for a week, and only a convention of Christian workers, their object being to inspire them to greater and more earnest and intelligent work. The intention is to give such persons a chance to attend at which reserved seat tickets are distributed among the various churches.

Contributions fall into the coffers of the Lincoln University at the rate of about three days, in sums ranging from one to one thousand dollars. The local fund has reached over two thousand and is ready, which is an unprecedentedly encouraging state of affairs, considering the total emptiness four years ago. The chance to attend and graduate at this institution is not confined to colored students, but all similar indignities to colored people were treated with the contempt of the very class who profit by them. The local fund is also growing rapidly, and will soon be equal to the needs of the hospital as he might see fit.

—Mr T. Thomas Forlone, suther of "Echoes from the Backwoods," and a former well known writer in the county, will deliver a lecture in Union Church, Bainbridge, on the 2nd evening, March 26th. Subject, "Lights and Shadows."

COLORED RIGHTS VINDICATED.

Judge Pierce, of the Circuit Court of Shelby County in Tennessee, in the recent case of Mrs. Wells against the Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern Railway Company, expounded the law of Tennessee and Statutes, 1873-74, to department of Medicine and Surgery, 382; to Department of Law, 305; in School of Pharmacy, 70; in Homeopathic Medical College, 67; in Dental College, 67; total, 1,377. Of these 180 were women; 111 in Literary Department, 43 in Medical Department, 12 in Homeopathic College, 5 in Dental College, 2 in School of Pharmacy.

The late ex-Governor Coburn, of Maine, in addition to large gifts in his lifetime, left by will $100,000 to be given in dollars to various benevolent objects, including bequests to educational institutions of the State. The Maine College of Agriculture, $100,000; to Colby University, $250,000; to Bowdoin College, $100,000; of the Baptist Home Mission Society, $250 000; to Waterville Classical Institute, $100,000; to Hinkton Academy, $5,000; to Maine Industrial School for Girls, $5,000; to Bloomfield Academy, $7,000; for a public library at Skowhegan, $5,000; total, $517,000.

The Seminary of St. Charles Borromeo, the theological school for the archdiocese of Philadelphia, Overbrook, has the largest edifice of any divinity school in the country, and few in Europe equal it. The grounds also are extensive. The whole has cost about $600,000. Of the completion of the property with equipments, and the endowment, the Archbishop on which shall maintain the school, it is said that a million more or a million more is needed. Prospective enlargements will require still so ther millions. The Philadelphia and Reading passengers occupying that car as were provided to a sleeping car, and it was signed to white people. This state of facts was shown on the trial of the case.

Miss Ida Wells, who was a colored teacher, purchased a ticket at Memphis, the only kind sold by the company, for her passage, and took her seat in the rear car, which was assigned to white people, and was the only colored person in that car. The conductor ordered her dismissed by the ticks, saw her there, and directed her to take her seat in the forward car, which was the car for colored people. Miss Wells refused, and was taken a special interest in the election of Mr. Cameron.

President Arthur, who has been facilitated here before in the discharge of social duties, is just now the subject of some sarcastic remarks in social circles. It is alleged that he politely accepted half a dozen invitations for one evening, with the proviso that he will attend if public affairs will permit. Of course, no man can do more than he can do, but it is also alleged that which the President accepts a very form of hospitality, and that he is not guilty of his filling half of them, that occasions comment.

The visit of the noted evangelist, Mr. Moody, to this city, is an event of great interest to a large part of the religious community. The demand for tickets to his meeting in the Academy of Music is greater than the supply, and discontent is expressed that tickets are required at all. The meetings are to be held for a week, and only a convention of Christian workers, their object being to inspire them to greater and more earnest and intelligent work. The intention is to give such persons a chance to attend at which reserved seat tickets are distributed among the various churches.

Contributions fall into the coffers of the Lincoln University at the rate of about three days, in sums ranging from one to one thousand dollars. The local fund has reached over two thousand and is ready, which is an unprecedentedly encouraging state of affairs, considering the total emptiness four years ago. The chance to attend and graduate at this institution is not confined to colored students, but all similar indignities to colored people were treated with the contempt of the very class who profit by them. The local fund is also growing rapidly, and will soon be equal to the needs of the hospital as he might see fit.

—Mr T. Thomas Forlone, suther of "Echoes from the Backwoods," and a former well known writer in the county, will deliver a lecture in Union Church, Bainbridge, on the 2nd evening, March 26th. Subject, "Lights and Shadows."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 18, 1885.

The week's proceedings to Congress embraced questions that were unimportant, useless, interested and dull. Excepting discussions on old war issues, dry and unprofitable, and some party and private measures received attention, as there are but few interesting things and national possibilities. The event of the week in the Senate was the Davis-Sherman controversy, in which Jefferson Davis was attacked as a traitor, and declared to be a patriot. Parliament was impressed in regard to this matter by a speech delivered in the Senate Chamber, was, that if a quarrel so calculated to create sectional feeling had come up in the House of Representatives, it would have been worth to their party many thousand votes.

The smoothness with which the new bill to retire General Grant on full pay was passed through the House, and sent to Senator Edmunds, the father of the measure, is a matter of surprise to the many of General Grant at Appomattox. The Democratic Senators, Maxey and Voorhees, during the consideration of the bill, were also questioned as to their votes on the measure in the lower House, where it has some opposition. The general sentiment of that body has greatly changed, as the views of the developments that in General Grant's misfortune. Should the measure get through the house, it will be the very first act of the new President on the same technical grounds that the Fitz John Porter relief bill was vetoed, namely, that the name of the appointee is not mentioned in the bill. The bill is aimed by its friends to be passed through the House of God. But if the law allows a separation of the two bills, and then it should see to it that there shall be no discriminatio against other race in the matter of accommodations, because in some of the powers delegated to Congress.

A significant case has arisen recently, in the case betern the court-ing two cases between Memphis and Chattanooga, one of them for white persons and the other for colored persons. The cars were precisely alike in every respect, and yet the car assigned to colored people was inferior to that assigned to white persons, which the whites and the blacks alike pay the same price. The case was carried to the case where a respectable colored woman was refused a seat in the white car, and where there was an accommodation ordered her on that train equal to that furnished to white women. The court condemned the refusal as to the circumstances inconsistent with the law that regulates the duties of public carriers.

The popular prejudice which suggests or makes a negro car necessary or railroads is a shock to a democratic sense of the white people of this country. The colored people are citizens of the United States, and of the state in which they reside, and are entitled to every right that ought to be treated in all respects just as white people are treated. This is due to the rights and principles of common citizenship. If colored persons can sit in cars with white persons and vote with whites at the same ballot box, why may they not travel with the whites in the same car? To discriminate against them because of their color is simply contemptible, and will so be regarded when justice rules the thoughts of men.—The Independent.

THE MACON ANNUAL CONFERENCE.

BY REV. L. R. SMITH.

The third session of this conference took place in St. James Church, Columbus, Ga., Dec. 19th, 1884, Bishop Shorter presiding. Rev. W. G. Banks, D.D., short appropriate address to the conference and opened the session with the usual religious exercises. The Secretary, Rev. W. G. Bangs, D.D., then called the roll. There were a few reported absent. Rev. W. G. Banks was appointed Secretary pro tem. Rev. Peters and A. V. Lowe, assistants. After the transaction of the preliminaries, we were glad to accept the Bishop's invitation to occupy the pulpit. Rev. Chandler Tutt's band was shock as the hand of a friend and a father. The pulpit was filled to the very door. Many were disappointed in not being able to get hold in the purchase of her ticket, and to which she was entitled under the law. The court dare not turn a verdict in favor to the amount of five hundred dollars, as the damages for her unlawful seizure and ejection. Every impartial mind will see the justice of the judgment; and if all similar indignities to colored people were treated with the contempt of the very class who profit by them, the local funds would be raised over two thousand dollars, and will soon be equal to the needs of the hospital as he might see fit.

JOTTINGS FROM CHARLESTON, SOUTH CAROLINA.

BY REV. J. B. HAYNE.

MR. EDITOR:—It has been fully two years since I have had the pleasure of a line to our valuable Journal—not, however, because I have not had a desire to write you, nor because I had ceased to love it; but was the unsatisfied condition and real trouble that paralyzed the willingness and prevented the strokes and the pen. Now I have paid on to the mark that if I had attempted to tell my sad story I should be like the poor widow who kindle wrath in the breasts of my friends and give much pleasure to my enemies, and I will not have so much of Church, and of Christ instruments of pleasure to furnish the latter with such gratuity, hence, "I held my peace, even from good words," "but my sorrow was stirred." I certainly drank of the worm-wood of meanness and tasted of the gall of wickedness. Having been deprived by some of my brethren in my absence of my church, I felt that I have freely forgiven them and will not leave room for revenge in my soul, and, like King David, I am feasting on a table prepared by God, right in the presence of my enemies, and in the midst of my malignant foes. There is no man, under the circumstances that I have been, who feels any happier than I do; my happiness does not arise from the gratification of money or from any one people, but it springs from the ways and means God has used in send me deliverance out of the hands of my 2 brethren, and of those who have been so basely established my goings before their faces, and has granted my request and the desire of my heart, and has also given us many spiritual children, and keeping in a very prosperous condition. To compare the condition of my church to-day with what it was two years ago, soon best those who knew its previous state would believe them to be in any of these cities, and not in the church edifice; the change is so radical, and pleasing in every respect. The work that Bishop Turner accomplished in the Morris Brown case re quires more than a silly short essay for to obtain forth in its full lustre. Let it be sufficient on the pages of the history of African Methodism in ecclesiastical Conference, and let the Bishop's name and work be entered on their conscious of a most happy recollection in the golden letters of love and then hang it among the galaxy of the good and great and worthies of the past, present and future, as a memento of his great power to bring peace out of much confusion, and thereby save the church from an endless and bitter feud and the lasting unhonorful and injudicious brethren had placed it.

All honor to his name! All honor to his good works! Let the church ever be dear to him, for he is the right direction splendidly. 8 ½ far have my people forgotten the injuries that the wrongs they have been made to suffer at the hands of their foes, and have contracted with Hook and Hastings, church organ builders, Boston, Massachusetts, for a church organ costing fifteen hundred dollars, one-half cash and the balance in five equal annual installments. They have also repaired their church edifice, coating it on the inside and outside, and city dollars. They have paid off several old debts of long standing, and yet have on hand their current expenses.

The Sunday school department has never be-n in better condition, and it is still improving. It will graduate some of its pupils in the near future. Our other Sunday school literature in our Sunday school, which is also a leading feature in the juvenile department, which we hope will give a new impetus to the Sunday school cause. Give us your prayers and advice in all that is good, and may conclude with prayer and proper.

I am not sad, Mr. Editor, that after the Bishop has done so much to restore peace and quiet, that there are such persons as Rev. Dr. Derrick and Rev. Dr. Bell at the next annual conference? Can you imagine the absence of these men? No, it cannot. Then why allow it? Dip your thoughtful pen deep into the ink of wisdom, and write something that will stop the further meanness, and the life of the church have peace. The alarm is sir-ounded. Let the best talent be selected and prepare for the approaching clouds hef re they burst up on us. May God in his infinite wisdom and love direct us in the right way, and furnish us with the means that there be no profit to us to support the Bishop, and that we may be enabled to pay off the debt of the church.

Yours truly,

J. B. HAYNE.

A VISIT TO LANCASTER.

BY W. H. BRITTON.

MR. EDITOR:—A visit, during the holidays, to the quiet and interesting Little city of Lancaster, Pa., was the source of much pleasure to the writer. A rapid improvement being made by our people, and most especially in the educational line. There is a Department of Science, Arts and Letters, at Lincoln University, which is a great improvement on the small old frame one. It is nearly ready for occupancy. The earnest efforts of the elder and members, the small balance that is due on the building, we hope, will soon be paid. In the Sabbath School there is also a great improvement. The attendance of both old and young was large. There was a full representation of officers, with the superintendent and teachers in their places. The singing was excellent. Miss Laura Scott, was excellent, remarkable one much of the singing in the Sabbath schools of the Philadelphia. It being review day it was conducted very rapidly in the school answered the questions of the elder-ly teachers with ease. At the close of the review the children were called to the front of the platform and received their reward for the proficiency they had manifested in their studies. The Lancaster A. M. E. Church, under the pastorate of Rev. Talbert, need as a ball for their entertainments.

ALLEN UNIVERSITY.

BISHOP B. W. TURNER, D.D., SUBSTITUTED PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD.

BY REV. C. PIERCE NELSON.

At a meeting of the Board of Trustees of Allen University, held Dec. 31st, H. M. Turner, D.D., LL.D., was elected to succeed the late Reverend Bishop Dickerson as President of the Board of Trustees. Rev. W. M. Thomas was elected Vice President.

The election of Bishop Turner as President of the Board of Trustees of the university does not underestimate the ability and worth of the late Bishop. Bishop Shorter, our presiding Bishop, is he by the conferences controlling the said university, and in this connection consideration the arduous duties of the President of the Board of Trustees and the same which the episcopal office requires. Bishop Turner is the Senior Bishop Episcopal District, and further considering his venerable age, the time he has been a Bishop and the time of commencement exercises being in June, which is distance, the Board felt it an impossition to get such a man to come down. We make this statement by way of explanation, fearing that some might take the wrong view of the so-ciety in this matter.

The school is in a flourishing condition. All departments are prospering nicely and prepare for the approaching commencement. All professors and teachers are kept busy.

The city is full of snow and ice on the ground and buildings. We have not yet, during the present winter, had what troubles us; in the beginning our expectations were high, but as yet the president has somewhat, we fear, weakened our bright prospects for the future. We have not yet given up hope, but Shorter and H. M. Turner as our leaders, we will still move forward, and we may feel like aiding a laudable cause, we do so by remitting to the Secretary, Rev. C. Pierce Nelson, at Allen, S. C., who will be glad to acknowledge the amount through the Recorder. Will not Rev. W. D. Johnson, D.D., help us? Let us hear from you.

PROVIDENCE LETTER.

BY REV. CARTER WRIGHT.

The memorial services of the late Bishop Dickerson were held at Allen Chapel on Sabbath evening, 18th inst. The chapel was draped with appropriate badges of sorrow, and a large audience was in attendance. Mr. Nathan Frost presided at the organ and A. O. Chase led the choir. There is very little doubt that were the exciting laws enforced, the saloons would be closed. The people, but it seems to be a sort of dead letter and lacks a public sentiment to support which laws in the country are power-less. At the close of the meeting a collection was taken up, amounting to $10.60, to be secured by rein on the first 2000 Books? In other words, how many of the people will send in their names at our note for the amount, payable in the month of June? Please send me your desire by postal card and the number you could subscribe for.

THE NEW DISCIPLINE.

We hope to have the new book ready by the 10th February at most. Possibly one week sooner. Our difficulty is only paper has been very scarce. We are glad to say that we have the first half of the edition already printed. It will be electrotyped as fast as proof is completed, so we feel assured that the book will be out by the first of May at the close of the first week in February. Price 50c. Will you not help us to place it in every second class in the school, thus showing their love for the church? Rev. Dr. Derrick, The Lancaster A. M. E. Church

HOBBIES OF THE HYGIENISTS.

There were several deans of the hygienists in council, each with his individual hobby. Each thought all the others were wrong. Each was sure that his own hobby was the only correct one. A gentleman present said he had taken Brown's Iron Bitters for debility and dyspepsia, and, though he didn't want to make a fuss about it, he knew the use of this great tonic to be better than all the notions he had heard advanced in the council. One practical cure is worth thousands of guesses and notions. Thousands of happy convalescents gratefully of Brown's Iron Bitters.

"I DON'T KNOW WHAT AILS ME," says many a sufferer. "I have the 'blues' frightful." I am troubled with headache and dizziness; I have lost my appetite; there is a bad taste in my mouth constantly. What is the matter with me?" We will tell you, you are "bilious." Get a bottle of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," no it thoroughly, and you will soon be a new man again. TO THE MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE EIGHTH EPISCOPAL DISTRICT.

CHARGE BRETHREN:—" God's favor reached him and he slept."

For the first time in eleven years we as a Church have been called upon to mourn over the death of a Bishop. The original Bishop in the O such has reached the goal first. With buckskin harness, spliffed bearer and unsheathed sword he dropped in the thick of the fight, with his face to the foe. Brief as was his race, he kindled two watch-fires in the sun-bathed South, that Wilberforce and Allen University, whose intellectual light shall glow and blaze while the sun endures. "How are the mighty fallen in battle."

Now, therefore, in view of this terrible stroke, I request the ministers to drape their churches in suitable mourning for thirty days. Farewell, beloved Bishop. H. Ev. Bishop William Fisher Dickerson, D.D.

T. M. D. WARD,
Bishop Presiding.

THE CASE OF BISHOP CAMPBELL DISMISSED.

Every right thinker, to say nothing of Christian, will be glad to learn that the court dismissed the case of Bishop Campbell. The charges against the Bishop were frivolous. The complainant, Rev. Mr. Jones, was expelled from the Conference by the Bishop presiding over the session of 1883, and ever since has been trying to get back. He has failed in every effort. He appealed to the General Conference of 1884, but was not reinstated. He then appealed to the courts, and the case was dismissed. Bishop Campbell took the affair with a high spirit, and refused to make any defense. He knew that the charges were false, and that the complainant was not entitled to a hearing. He has been subjected to much annoyance, but he has come out of the fiery ordeal unscathed. The Bishop's friends will rejoice at the result, and the enemies of Methodism will be disappointed. The vile stories circulated very freely, and with but few exceptions were believed by the people. The Bishop's friends, however, stood by him, and the strong republican papers of the state defended him against the foulest charges. Thank God, the Bishop is vindicated, and the cause of Christ will not suffer. The Bishop will preside over one conference session more in the regular order, and then he will be relieved from the burden of presiding over the colored episcopacy. Though perhaps superior in many respects, the Bishop is not indispensable, and the church will move on as before. There is little doubt that the Bishop will be elected to the General Conference, and consequently he will be present at the session of 1888. Bishop Campbell is a man of fine abilities, and has been a very successful pastor and presiding elder. He has been honored with the highest position in the gift of the church, and has filled it with dignity and ability. He has been a member of the General Conference for twelve years, and has been recognized as one of the leaders of the body. He has been a member of the Book Committee for eight years, and has been treasurer of the Parent Missionary Society for four years. THE WM. F. DICKERSON MEMORIAL CHURCH.

To those "who love the Lord Jesus in sincerity," and to all who wish to do honor to the name of the late illustrious Bishop Dickerson.

Dear Brethren and friends:

Winchester is a town with a population of more than five thousand, situated on the Shenandoah Valley branch of the B. & O. R. R. It was made a station at the last session of the Virginia Conference, and the writer appointed pastor. The M. E. Church is very feebly represented here as far as numbers are concerned, having quite a small membership, most of whom are females. The property consists of a church lot, in the rear of which is a very grotesque, half dilapidated building, the appearance of which does more to repel than to invite the passer by, the medium of entrance being through a deep, narrow alley. In front of this building is a strong stone foundation, fully four by thirty, which has been standing for more than seven years. The property is quite valuable owing to its being situated on the main street of the town.

During the early spring of last year, we were favored by having with us Sister Lucy Cooper, of Pennsylvania, who left when met with some spiritual success. Sister Cooper agreed to take the services for this church, but was prevented by the illness of her mother. Before an hour's ride as one can make on the line of the interessment of Bishop Dickerson, we had not been long enough to locate to the district. The following is his letter.

WILLIAMSPORT, OHIO, June 25 1884.

My Dear Brother Nicholson:—You of the Ohio Conference will be pleased to see very busily engaged that I beg leave to reply to a letter of request from Sister Cooper on the matter of her agency for our dear old Church. I have signed the memorial and herewith return it to you, heartily approving the object and the means she has set in motion. May God bless you and your work.

Yours affectionately Yours,

WM F DICKERSON.

In this can be seen the interest which the Bishop felt, and he stood in the reconciling manner of address.

In various letters, of the time the present situation, the direct relation which Bishop Dickerson finally sustained to the great importance of the work, and the opportunity offered both to glorify God and to prosper the Church in a most important field, the writer and members of Warren A. M. E. Church united with me in appealing to the connection in general to aid in the erection of a church edifice, over which he so ably presided, to assist as the erection of a church monument to the Second Episcopal District, his new field of labors, well known as the Wm. F. Dickerson Memorial Church. Nothing would be more in keeping with the spirit and work of the mission of our lamented Bishop. I appeal first to my brethren of the ministry, through their members and friends. Contributions, however small, will be thankfully received and faithfully applied, one dollar by a hundred will make a handsome above specific purpose fund. Notes are a cheap and convenient means of accommodating small sums of money. Any persons wishing to donate from five dollars to one hundred by envelope or onech card, will do us the favor to send their sums to any of the offices address, Box 102 Winchester, Frederick County, Virginia. A proper list of the names will be made of all such contributions and assistance in the columns of the Recorder.

Nothing stranger can happen in dress-goods.

Lupin's "Daisy Cloth" down from 75 to 55 cents; forty-one colors.

Lupin's "Rayon d'Or" down from $1.25 to 75 cents; twenty colors.

"Daisy Cloth" is like a Chudda, the India-shawl fabric; a soft, finely spun and not too closely woven; never heavy, never light, but with an airy softness in its drapery that lends its self gracefully to any of the fashionable styles of trail.

Lupin's Cashmere and Chudda or "Daisy Cloth," which have the same title to permanent favor, are both of the native wool of the loom, and the work of the greatest loom-manager in the land of modern textile workmanship. Lupin's Cashmeres ten cents below value; this "Daisy" twenty!

"Rayon d'Or" is the type, in all its qualities, of the Lupin "Rayon d'Or" is softer. It is about the same as the well-known Empress. Made by another it would have been Empress "Rayon d'Or." It is heavy and strong and fine. You will buy it for double reason: its goodness and the fifty cents you save on every yard.

Very strong, twilled cheviot, black, quite heavy, but not so heavy as it looks, for it has considerable nap, almost enough to call it a shag, at any other time the price would be 75—nobody gets such stuff for less than 75 cents here.

The finest Scotch ginghams and French cateens are here. The ginghams have come in force. The two together will be very popular. Both are choice in styles; there's nothing like them; nor will there be. A few of the same are in our store. The zephyrs are 40 and 50 cents; the cateens, 37½ and 50.

Muslins lower than ever before, are going faster than ever within our time; and we imagine there never was a faster time in dry-goods of Holly Tree muslin there has reached seven-and-one-half-hundred yards a day. The price will go up two cents, when what we have is gone. We are in the habit of saying that when we have a thing to sell; and we always do it. Nobody believes us; and nobody buys. Then we make good our word.

Many kinds of cambric, percale, long-cloth and extra muslin.

We have several hundred different styles and grades makes and widths and grades about all that are held in high esteem here.

Bed-spreads in cotton carpets at 60 cents, best quality at 75. Tapestry at 75. inferior Tapestry at 75. inferior Velvet $1; inferior Velvet not 90 cents, best five-frame Brussels at $1, Smyrna at $1.25—and Velvet at $1.35—such a list as that was sure to bring out the sharpest buyers.

We are selling more carpets than ever before, and we are making more money than ever before. We do not sell carpets at a loss. We do not sell them at a profit. We sell them at a fair profit. We have been selling carpets for 25 years. We have been selling them in Rochester for 20 years. We have been selling them in this store for 10 years. THE WM. P. DICKERSON MEMORIAL CHURCH.

To those "who love the Lord Jesus in sincerity," and to all who wish to do honor to the name of the late Illustrious Bishop Dickerson.

Dear Brethren and friends:

Winchester is a town with a population of more than five thousand, situated on the Shenandoah Valley branch of the B. & O. R. R. It was made a station at the last session of the Virginia Conference, and the writer appointed to the A. M. E. Church. It is very feebly represented here as far as numbers are concerned, having quite a small membership, most of whom are females. The property consists of a church in the rear of which is a very grotesque, half dilapidated building, the appearance of which does more to repel than to invite the passer by; the schism of entrance being through a deep, narrow alley. In front of the building is a strong stone foundation, forty-four by thirty, which has been standing for years, waiting for means. The property is quite valuable owing to its being situated on the main street of the town.

During the early spring of last year, we were favored by having with us Sister Lucy Cooper, servevangelist, whose labors were with us a special blessing. Sister Cooper agreed to take the money for the church and remain with us during the illness of her mother. Before entering on an extended tour as evangelist, she was ordained by Bishop Dickerson, who had been but recently assigned to this district. The following is his letter:

WILBERFORCE, OHIO, June 25, 1884.

My Dear Brother Nicholson:—Yours of the 18th inst. is before me. I have been so very busy since I engaged that I was tested to reply to a letter received from Sister Cooper on the subject of her agency for your church. I have signed the necessary papers herewith inclosed to you, heartily approving the object and the method you have in view. May God bless you and your work.

Fraternally Yours,

WM. F. DICKERSON.

In this can be seen the interest which the Bishop felt, and his genial and encouraging manner of advising.

In view, therefore, of our present situation, the Bishop having passed away, Dickerson officially sustained to us, the importance of the work, and the opportunity offered, both to glorify God and to perpetuate the name of our beloved Bishop, the ladies and members of Wayman Chapel A. M. E. Church unite with me in appealing to the connection in general, and to the 5th and 3rd districts in particular, over which he so ably presided, to assist us in the erection of a church monument in this the Second Episcopal District, to the fame and of labor, to be known as the Wm. F. Dickerson Memorial Church. Nothing in the world be more in keeping with the spirit and work of the illustrious and lamented Bishop. I appeal first to my brother pastors and through them to their members and friends. Small contributions, however small, will be thankfully received and duly acknowledged. Let us collect being to create a building fund for the above specific purpose. Postal notes or a draft are the most convenient means of transmitting small sums of money. Address all letters and make all remittances to me.

Yours in the work,

G. W. NICHOLSON, Pastor.

Secretaries and Assistant Secretaries of all the annual conferences of the A. M. E. Church. The last General Conference has failed and neglected to make me one of the statisticians of our connection. Will you please send me a copy of your last annual conference minutes? Should there be any errors in the number of members, local preachers, exhorters, preachers, leaders, stewards, &c., as well as property value, please correct the same. Should any minister know of any unreported churches or members, write us all about them. Should any pastor find that his predecessor had unaccounted for members, or members of the Dollar Money Law, write me the facts in the case. In letters bearing upon this subject, write upon the envelope somethings relative to the same, or my wife will not forward it to me when from home.

Cyrus Hamlin says, "One of the chiefest blessings of books is that they bring to us the spirit of those with whom we felt the most deeply and acted the most manfully."

How easy is the thought, in certain moods, of the loveliest, most needful devotion. How hard is the doing of a thought in the face of a thousand unlovely difficulties.

The withered leaf is not dead and lost. There are forces in it and around it, though working in inverse order, else how could it rot? Despise not the rag how which paper is made, or the litter from which earth makes corn.

The love of Christ is like the blue sky, into which you may see clearly but the real vastness of which you cannot measure. It is like the sea into whose bosom you can look a little way, but its depths are unfathomable.

FROM A SENSE OF DUTY.

Some people shrink from making public the benefit they have received, while others are free to tell it abroad for the good of fellow mortals. Of the latter class is Mr. H. H. Congdon, of Mount Holly, N. J., who writes, "I am one of many who give their cheerful appreciation of the merits of the efficacy of your valuable Brown's Iron Bitters, from a sense of duty. The Bitters is doing much good in our country, for which I am much thankful."

A New York visitor to Boston was interviewed and puzzled by the constantly recurring "if" on houses in every street of the town. "What are those Ifs for?" the stranger asked. "They were dropped by the Britain when they left Boston," was the solemn reply.

A POOR, WEAK SISTER, who is suffering from ailments peculiar to her sex, needs a friend and a physician, but knowing she needs medical help will fail, in Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," a preparation which will give her strength and new life through the restoration of all her organs to their natural and healthy action. It is the result of many years of study and practice by a thoroughly scientific physician, who has made these troubles a specialty. To be had at all druggists.

"When were the pyramids of Egypt discovered?" asked the teacher. "They were discovered when the last of the middle ages," replied the scholar at the foot of the class. "What do you mean by the middle ages?" further questioned the pedagogue. "Why, the pyramid ages, of course."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a most valuable medicine for all those ills of women who may be afflicted with any form of disease peculiar to their sex. It will at once relieve, and in not only in liquid forms but also in Pills and Lozenges to which forms they are combined with other curative agents.

Irascible Old Party: "Conductor, why didn't you wake me up when I asked you to? I told you I had to get off at this station." Conductor: "I did try, and all I could get out of you was, 'All right, Maria. Get the children their breakfast, and I'll be down in a minute.'"

In hundreds of cases Hood's Sarsaparilla, by purifying and enriching the blood, has proven a most effective blood cleansing agent. Hence, if you suffer the pains and aches of this disease, it is fair to presume that this medicine will cure you. Give it a trial.

"Nito, Ed, 'ow's this for a new-fangled 'orse?" said one Hackleburg to another on Fifth avenue. "I 'ear 'Arry' is a-goin' to purchase one. It 'orse 'as been ridin' a dead." "It's true, George, 'ery true. I 'ear the doctor thinks 'e 'as a hossification of the 'eart."

No other medicine is so reliable as Ayer's Cherry Pectoral for colds, coughs, and all derangements of the throat, bronchial tubes, and lungs, or consumption. In all ordinary cases it is a certain remedy, and it affords relief even for the asthmatic and consumptive, even in advanced stages of disease.

An excitable husband has just telegraphed to his wife, "I send you a kiss." He received the reply: "Spruce young man at the office has already sent a good one."

If a well be poisoned, woe be to those who drink thereat. It is worse to poison the fountain of life for one's self, one's family, one's friends, one's business, or misfortune, or inheritance, this is what the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla does the blood, the vital stream, and restores appetite, strength, and health.

"How do you begin life?" the woman asked the great man. "I didn't begin it," truthfully replied the great man. "I found it when I got here."

A large portion of the ills that flesh is heir to arise from an impure state of the blood. By promoting a healthy action of the liver, bowels and kidneys, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery purifies the blood and eliminates disease.

"Shall I give you a quarter or a half portrait?" asked the artist of Mr. Yardgrass. "Neither," was the reply; "give me the whole picture, or nothing at all. Money is no object with me."

The distressing disease, Salt Rheum, is readily cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier. Sold by all druggists.

A new magazine is called "Is coming?" Yes, it contains a good deal of fiction.

Don't break up colds and fevers, use early Dr. Pierce's Extract of Smartweed.

WHEN BUILDING UP AGAIN, for the debility which follows malarial fevers there is nothing so beneficial as Ayer's Tonic. It imparts vigor to the digestion and strength to the system.

WHAT CAN Cuticura DO FOR ME?

EVERYTHING that is purifying, beautifying and curative in the world. CUTICURA, the great SKIN REMEDY, will do anything in reason, and many things that seem unreasonable. BISHOP CAIN'S OPEN LETTER.

Readers will note that Bishop Cain's open letter speaks of widespread disaffections in the Church both North and South. Why these disaffections? Whence their source? Whence their tendencies? and what their remedies? We might constitute subject matter for the deliberation and discussion of our Bishops for a whole week. If they should find it necessary to call in one elder from each annual conference, it would not make too strong a council. The conference, annual and general, are often turned from the course that would lead to proper adjustment of difficulties, either by good men who wish to avoid spending much time in the sessions, or worse men who are skillful in purposely diverting the conference mind from a proper investigation of dissatisfactions and irregularities. Thus, year by year animosities exist, immoralities are lost sight of, the restless evils are multiplied manifold. There is really no need of such a course, nor is there anything gained.

Sometimes the failure to properly investigate the charges or complaints is anticipated by a prejudice which renders it impossible to be impartial in the hearing. These prejudices often result from carrying a character through the sessions of four or five years, under a cloud. Finally the time comes and brethren are poorly prepared to do justice.

There do creep into the ministry, as into other professions, men who are better adapted to create dissension than argument; men who have intellect ure scarcely found in the Methodist; that his arms are of unequal length and one eye much blacker than the other, and that he answers to the prophecy in other respects. He has been amusing enough to impose himself upon his credulous brethren at any rate, and strong enough to enable them to battle that for the power of the British lion. It would seem that England once again undertakes too much; that her scattered and diversified possessions and responsibilities might prove her ruin.

The Gladstone government must bear the disgrace of the failure to rescue the great Gordon and to hold Khartoum. But what must be the character of the mind or minds that could plan a campaign to such a land and against such a foe and at such disadvantage? It is said that had the British forces for the relief of Gordon been two days in advance of what they really were, they would have saved Gordon; had they taken a different route they would have saved proud England the disgrace of failure; but this is mere talk. Had the English forces been two days earlier the Mahdi's forces might have acted in exactly the same way. It is England in undertaking too much. A long while ago McCauley warned her against the love of too extensive foreign territory and pronounced it a blessing that she possessed but a weak King John who lost her her continental estates, confining her to a less foreign area to develop those resources and strengthen herself, the real England. However, there seem to be the same native tendencies in nations as in individuals to increase and to spread their influence. Thus there is ever an intermixing of all the elements entering into the composite character of one nation with all those in every other nation, by all the means of human contact—wars, religion, commerce, literature and the augustest science contains. The strongest survive longest, distributing their strength, but are finally lost in the grave and extinction. The masses are improved, but the MOTHER nation is absorbed. It seems to have run thus in all the high reachings of ancient civilizations. It seems to be running thus in all the higher forms of modern national civilizations. The tendency may increase in ratio advance to the increase of general civilization, so that finally all the kingdoms of this earth shall become the kingdome of our Lord and his Christ.

Personal.

—Mrs. Margaret Goodil has been the guest of her brother, Rev. T. O. Shepard, of Philadelphia, several days.

—Rev. C. S. Smith attended the conference at Salem, Indiana, where the industrial education subject was discussed.

—Prof. Wiley Lane, the very scholarly professor of Greek Language and Literature of Howard University, died on Monday, 16th inst., of pneumonia. He was sick only one week.

—It is said that Elder J. W. Caraway, one of the ablest ministers of the A. M. E. North Ohio Conference, has been seeking what he thinks about renominating Bishop Dickerson for Governor of Ohio. Elder Caraway knows well what he is doing; yet Ohio could easily nominate a hundred worse men than J. B. Foraker.

—The Rt. Rev. R. B. Dancy, Bishop of the A. M. E. district, quickly put to account on the article in last issue headed "The Episcopal District." He stated that said district held but one conference session since the reunion, Bishop Dancy says they have held none. We stand corrected.

—Mr. Wm. Hall is not dead yet, but we were very much afraid for a moment. Mr. Hall is still another friend of the RECORDER, and has renewed his subscription to it. We hope with the rest of the month. Mr. Hall is a member of the Bethel Church, Philadelphia, and is one of the most active workers connected with that church. After the 15th, he will be found at his shop. All new subscribers are dated to the paper.

—Rev. Dr. Lee, Editor of the Christian Recorder, has been appointed by the Bishops to preach the annual sermon before the Missionary Society of the A. M. E. Church, which is in twelve colors and mounted upon a panel, is a wonderful work of art. The picture, from a painting by Copeland, of Boston, is artistically divided into three sections; the first, a view of early sunrise, with fine atmospheric effects, represents the wheel man's morning ride; the centre scene, appropriately framed by the circle of an advertising bicycle, is a strikingly beautiful view of picturesque country, a lady riding upon a bicycle accompanied by a mounted bicyclist, crossing a rustic bridge in the foreground; the last scene is a wheel by moonlight, the bright rays of the full moon cutting the semi-darkness. Upon the back of the panel is a poem descriptive of the picture.

—The Missionary Review of Princeton, N. J., is now in its seventh year. The U. S. A. is declared by scores of its subscribers to be the best, ablest and cheapest missionary magazine in existence. Perhaps one of previous failures to make such a periodical self-supporting, it began in 1878, and now, after seven years, includes about all the subscribers from its origin; it reports $1000 of its avails sent to its assistant editor, foreign missionaries. We are glad to call attention to the Review because it is to our race readers. Its editor, Rev. R. D. Wilder, a missionary of 30 years experience, deserves encouragement. He is the son of Bishop of Mission Fields—their climate, progress, and missionary agencies, from their origin to the present time—are accurately described. The failure to make workers abroad are fresh and full of interest; his annual Review of all Foreign Missions, and their Boards in Christendom, are just, impartial and stimulating; his notices of Independent Missions are considerate and generous, per less so his annual reviews of Women's Boards and Work. One of the many facts demonstrated is that the poor are the ones to maintain the past year in nine times greater in foreign missions than in domestic ones. The Field Notes bring items of freshest interest and prime importance from all missions and lands of the world; his kindly criticisms on Love Tokens, his careful review of the year's work and coming of all missionaries, with Death Notices, and his Missionary Miscellany books and literature, are correcting wrong views and furnishing important data; while his Bible Studies and Prayer Topics in the Review at the very front of missionary intelligence, are, so far, at least, to confirm the judgment of those who declare it "peerless."

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

The dynamite fiends are still busy in our midst. Yesterday a package was left on a factory here addressed in poor writing to the German Consul. A lady called the attention of a clerk hand to the parcel and he took it in the ferry master, who said he would prefer that it be opened at once on the ferry-house. It was taken away and seated in the ferry house to be safe. The story is explosives properties, if it contained dynamite. On examination it was found that the suspicions were well founded, for it was so ingeniously constructed that the machine, charged with explosives of six times the power of gun powder. Its life, perhaps many, were thus saved by a little caution. The police have in the matter in hand and they suggest that fanatics of this kind are becoming altogether too "fresh" and that they could get them all out of the way by the Fourth of March. Half an hour after ward I heard a Representative declare that the appropriations were in very bad condition and he did not see how they could be passed in time to avoid an extra session. Then there is an impression among the Democrats that the Republicans are working secretly to force an extra session, while the Republicans believe there is a clique of Democrats who are trying to bring about the same result. The question was sprung so unexpectedly that many Congressmen are alarmed at the probable frustration of their well laid plans for the coming summer. Several would be less inconvenienced than members by a call of the Forty-ninth Congress. Many of them live in Washington, and others can any circumstances spend the greater part of their summer here.

The dynamite bill died a quiet death, the dynamite sympathizers were deprived of an opportunity to declare their views on the floor of Congress; and the expected quarrel was avoided; and the House of Representatives got out of the dynamite business without committing itself in any way. It was a fortunate affairs committee voted that it is beneath the dignity of the House to pass a dynamite resolution similar in tone to that passed by the Senate. It behooved the Senate to look to its dignity after this rebuke. The upper chamber has been considered very strong in the intellect; therefore, while the House has had a bad name for easy morals and random manners.

Another house committee has just taken action that will be very displeasing to gentlemen who contested seats in previous Congresses, and who have filed claims to be remunerated for the time and money expended. There are many of these claims, and many of their owners are now in the city, thinking that they will be heard before the adjourn of the closing days of the session. The committee has decided that no claims will be considered where the contest was decided in the present Congress.

Mr. Cleveland's friends and enemies are expecting and hoping that he will appoint Frederick Douglass to the vacant Recorder of Deeds office next week. They think it best that the appointment of colored men to office—and applicants should be over with as soon as possible, so that some one-county government may be established. Then the colored people will be relieved from the necessity of voting for the lesser of two evils. The Field Notes are considerate and generous, per less so as annual reviews of Women's Boards and Work. One of the many facts demonstrated is that the poor are the ones to maintain the past year in nine times greater in foreign missions than in domestic ones. Literature.

An entertaining article on "The Tricks and Manners" of a Cat-bird, by Olive Thorne Miller, with charming illustrations by the artist popularly known as Dan Beard, will be a feature of the forthcoming March Harper's.

The first edition of the February Century (180,000 copies) was sold within a week of the day of issue, a new edition of 20,000 is on the press, making a total of 200,000, with the prospect of still further demand. A fifth edition of the November Century was issued on Monday.

The story of "The Opening of the Lower Mississippi" will be told, in The Century, by Admiral Porter, the officer with whom, as he relates, the experiment of the jetties of New Orleans originated, and who was in command of the mortar fleet during the action. In the same number (April) will appear those in connection with Mr. George W. Cable's paper on "The Fall of New Orleans."

"GOLDEN TEXTS."—The'is a handy little vest pocket book of 28 pages, containing the logical and golden texts of the Sunday School Lessons for 1885, with room for personal notes on the books in which said lessons occur; a catalogue of the books of the Old and New Testament and blank page for memoranda. Price 5 cents. Rev. O. S. Smith, Secretary A. M. E. Sunday School Unice, Bloomington, Ill.

The March Century will contain two biographical papers, one on Chas. O'Connor, by John Bigelow, and "Reminiscences of Daniel Webster," by Stephen M. Allen. A portrait of Daniel Webster, the frontispiece of the number, is engraved from the composite picture made in Philadelphia in 1849, and shows the great statesman wearing a tall silk hat. It was taken as a memento of a speech which Mr. Webster had made in that city.

"The Brain of Man: its Architecture and Requirements," is the title of a paper which Dr. A. L. Hemmey, of New York, contributes to the coming March Popular Science Monthly. Dr. Hemmey's scientific, yet highly popular, presentation of the latest knowledge of the brain, which should interest every one who has a brain. There is nothing more marvelous than the recent progress of sciences in this direction, and a number of illustrations will be presented to the reader how far scientists believe in the localization of function, and to what extent phrenology has a scientific basis.

In Babyhood for February "The Baby's Bath," with all that pertains to it, by Marion Harland, makes one of the most interesting and practical subjects yet touched upon by this magazine. An important article on "Pulse Grippe, its Prevention and Treatment," is by Dr. John H. Ripley George E. Waring, Jr., gives many practical suggestions regarding plumbing in its relation to pure air for nursery inmates. Harlan H. Ballard contributes a charming paper on "Nature in the Nursery." Dr. Cyrus Edson, of the New York Board of Health, writes on "Poisonous Candy." The department of "Nursery Problems"—queries by readers, with answers by the editors—is becoming exceedingly useful, comprising a great variety of topics of interest to all.

One of the handsomest and most unique and original ideas in chromolithography is that Columbia Waterfowl, just issued by the Pope Manufacturing Co., of Boston, Mass. The design, which is in twelve colors and mounted upon a panel, is a wonderful work of art. The picture, from a painting by Copeland, of Boston, is artistically divided into three sections; the first, a view of early sunrise, with fine atmospheric effects, represents the wheel man's morning ride; the centre scene, appropriately framed by the circle of an advertising bicycle, is a strikingly beautiful view of picturesque country, a lady riding upon a bicycle accompanied by a mounted bicyclist, crossing a rustic bridge in the foreground; the last scene is a wheel by moonlight, the bright rays of the full moon cutting the semi-darkness. WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 16, 1885.

The threatened extra session of Congress has been the chief subject of speculation during the week on Capitol Hill. There is a difference of opinion as to whether it will be called or not. Senators are generally of the belief that there need be no extra session, while Representatives think it cannot be averted. A Senator remarked to me yesterday that he never, in all his experience in Congress, saw the appropriations in better shape, and that they could get them all out of the way by the Fourth of March. Half an hour after ward I heard a Representative declare that the appropriations were in very bad condition and he did not see how they could be passed in time to avoid an extra session. DEATH OF AN OLD AFRICAN METHODIST.

BY W. CHAVERS.

JAMESBURY (4th), 1885, at 3 P. M., Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Payne died in this city at the advanced age of over 91 years. She having been born in 1793, in Hartford city in Philadelphia, Pa. She was one of the very few persons now living, a member of the A. M. E. Church in 1816, under Bishop Allen himself. On the same year, in her body was born to St. Paul's A. M. E. Church, of which she was a member, and in which in state till 1130 P. M. Sunday. The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Lee, Secretary, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Handy, of the A. M. E. Zion Church.

Elder Beckley and Mother Payne was a very modest, unostentatious lady. Of so good, and decided religious character and attracted the attention of all who knew her. Her religion was more of the heart than of the head. Her life was full of sincerity, devotion and sobriety. Her faith in God was absolute. She was loyal to the church which she originally helped to found. Its rise were observed by her for conscience sake and loved for their correctness. Her advice was good. She was liberal in the distribution of her earthly means. Though not polished, yet a woman of fine sense, and in shorting proper respect for all men. Considering her age she might be called a model lady. Of this she was a member for 69 years, and was faithful unto death. She died well in the comforts of religion. She has gone home to rest from the use of this world's good, not incomparable. Her religion was her guide. She was more than through the appetite. She was possessed of high principles. Not to be unnoticed in her out defence; yet she was full of forgiveness. She loved God and home. She died in the full assurance of faith. She called for her minister before she died. She desired to live to see the indebtedness of the A. M. E. Church paid off. Before she contributed no little; she bent her means generously to the work. She was the Widow's Relief Society, which was reorganized in 1880, and which was incorporated several years ago, but was first organized in 1816, by Rev. Richardson, from whom we have our information. It was in the Church of Payne joined the society in 1811; she has discharged her duties faithfully and promptly. She died with her dues paid up, leaving a clear book. This noble society disappears from the earth only by her in her sickness and death. It, in its good society, numbered 500 members and having more than $500 in its treasury. May ever these be such institutions. Finally, I remark that the life of this lady is that came to early has entered into eternal life, and is now and ascended to enter upon more glorious relations above.

STANDARD OF PREACHING IN AMERICA.

American preaching is of a high average. In all the sects the wide-spread intelligence of the people shows itself in the attention paid to the education of the ministry. Colleges are numerous, and for the most part the clergy of America receive, first of all, the training which fits them for study, and then proceed to the more specific theological training which is given in the seminary, as institutions for the training of the ministry are called. The result is that in these last fifty years, four in the colleges and three in the seminary, a large and increasing number of less disciplined men find their way into the pulpit. Still the average is not lower, and the American ministry, therefore, as a whole, is a body of educated and able men.

It will seem strange to English notice, that no mention has been made, undoubted, that admittance to the American pulpit is more strict than to the English. And the occasional exigence of the clerical order is more conserved in the United States than the common notion of English people who are not themselves Americans. It is true that there is a liberty, not to say license granted to all sects, and to every man who comes which control social life amongst Americans, which would be highly supposed "radical Yankee"—that it is the duty of every man to say and to do just what you please. The reverse is the actual fact. Democratic institutions have their own conventionalities, and the rule of organized societies. The Presbyterian Church in America is a historic document. Methodist Episcopal Church has a half dozen checks and sentences at the end. It is estimated that 1000 of these books with plates will cost us $1,600; after that they will be sold at a reasonable price to public school. W. E. Gibbs, Esq., one of our members, Rev. J. C. Embry, professor of mental and moral science, Miss Geonny A. Moore, also assistants in our public schools, are preparing tables thereto. The work goes bravely on.

A COLORED REPRESENTATIVE.

GIVES HIS VIEWS ON THE SITUATION—THE RECENT RIOT AND DEMONSTRATIONS OF CLEVELAND FAVORABLE TO THE RIGHTS AND WELFARE OF THE COLORED PEOPLE.

Editor the Journal:

Having spent more than a month in Tennessee, one of the most prominent places in the States, and being much interested in questions upon the part of the colored people, especially in the election of Mr. Cleveland to the Presidency of the United States, having several times been requested to give my views as to what would be the probable effect of this election upon the colored people of this country, I ask that you will grant me space in your columns for the following thoughts, and, first, I don't care to speak of the effect of his election, for that, I trust,—which was a general acceptance, fear of re-excitement, and a desire for peace, will prefer to speak of the probable effects of his administration.

I believe Mr. Cleveland will make, for the whole country, a good President. I do not expect his election will be the triumph of any political party, but an uprising of the people, intended to teach all parties that they intend to rule this country, the election of Mr. Cleveland was the direct result of a union of a solid South and solid North, and the triumph of conservatism over the united people, under one common flag, and I believe that his administration will be so wise and conservative that in four years from now he will be a stronger man than he was when he was elected.

Now, what is the specific cause to the country from his administration will come to? I don't believe his administration will prove a special benefit to the colored people. First, it will have nothing to do with the appointment of officers, and the American ministry, therefore, as a whole, is a body of educated and able men.

It will seem strange to English notice, that no mention has been made, undoubted, that admittance to the American pulpit is more strict than to the English. And the occasional exigence of the clerical order is more conserved in the United States than the common notion of English people who are not themselves Americans. It is true that there is a liberty, not to say license granted to all sects, and to every man who comes which control social life amongst Americans, which would be highly supposed "radical Yankee"—that it is the duty of every man to say and to do just what you please. The reverse is the actual fact. Democratic institutions have their own conventionalities, and the rule of organized societies. The Presbyterian Church in America is a historic document. Methodist Episcopal Church has a half dozen checks and sentences at the end. It is estimated that 1000 of these books with plates will cost us $1,600; after that they will be sold at a reasonable price to public school. W. E. Gibbs, Esq., one of our members, Rev. J. C. Embry, professor of mental and moral science, Miss Geonny A. Moore, also assistants in our public schools, are preparing tables thereto. The work goes bravely on.

EXCITEMENT UNABATED.

THAT REMARKABLE EXPERIENCE OF A ROCHESTER PHYSICIAN AUTHENTICATED.

Cleveland Co., Herald.

Yesterday and the day before we copied into our columns from the Rochester, N. Y., Democrat and Chronicle, a very marvelous statement, made by F. H. Hemion, M. D., a man who is well known in this city. In that article Dr. Hemion gave a brief account of his previous which befell him, and the most day we published from the same paper an account of the excitement which followed in the wake of the publication of his case. In all of two articles were over published, and they occupied more than both among professional people and in the press.

Since the publication of these two articles, having been besieged with letters of inquiry, we send a communication to Dr. Hemion and also one to H. H. Warner Co., asking if any additional proof could be given to set to the validity of the statements published. Yesterday we received the following letters, which add interest to the case, and which verify every statement hitherto made:

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Jan. 21.

GENTLEMEN: Your favor is received. The published statement, over my signature, is correct in all its facts. I was in every respect, and I owe my life and health entirely to Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy and Warner's Safe Cure, which snatched me from the very brink of the grave. I am perfectly willing to answer any question the statement I made, for my testimony was entirely voluntary. I can't sell as to my physicians self friends.

Yours truly, J. B. HEMION, M.D.

TAKE CARE OF THE HELPLESS.

BY J. H. ROHRBAUGH.

MR. EDITOR:—After looking at the situation of your orphan children and old widowers, it makes one's heart ache to see them going to destruction for the want of help. The one I speak of has made a little twice and the sheep cross. We, as a Church, must take care of the old ministers for the good they have done. They have sowed the seed and it is ours to reaping the fruit thereof. There is one minister belonging to the Fourth Episcopal District who ought to be noticed for. He is too old to be at work. There ought to be an Orphan's Home somewhere in the Fourth District, for the orphans and poor women and preachers. Reasons: 1st. The orphans can take care of the old preachers; 2d, let the conferences of the Fourth District choose them a committee to select a site containing about one hundred acres somewhere in the district. Dear brethren, our leader are going astray for want of food. Our children are perishing for care. Come, brethren, let us bend our backs and bring the fruit and blessings. Our future church is in the young; our bondage was in taking care of the old. Dear brethren, commence to think of the young, and you will find the old. Come, let us hear from you. Other churches take care of their old and young; why can't the grand old A. M. E. Church do so also? I will say more as said to Brother D. W. Oaks, at Salem, Ind., "Father, you have got the thoughts within him." He was in the act of buying a church at the time he said it. Let us not wait to the time. The devil is busy building churches for our children. Let us be about him by erecting an orphan home for them. Brethren, I hope the young brethren will look to it. What say you, Bros. J. M. S. and J. M. T.

We have prepared a class-book for our Sabbath Schools, with the Constitution printed in full to supply all of our Sunday Schools with class-books, registers, reward cards, tickets, lesson leaves, tracts, &c., at publishers' prices. Send on your orders with cash.

J. C. EMBRY.

In the University library at Berlin there have been recently found a letter which furnishes additional proof of the fact that Johannes Gutenberg was the inventor of printing. The letter bears date 1670, and tells about the invention of printing in the year 1440, a year by three men who distinctly professed to be apprentices of Gutenberg. The house in Saxberg in which Gutenberg did his first work still stands on the banks of the Canal Rhine.

No better remedy than French Oropa Brandy, with distilled Extract of Sweet Wood of Water Pepper, Jamaica Ginger, Cubeb and Juniper Berries, as used in Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart-Weed, can be found to relieve morbus, cramps in stomach or bowels, colic diarrhœa, dysentery or bloody flux or to break up colds and bilious attacks. Should be kept on hand by every house. 50 cents.

Manamaker's.

PHILADELPHIA, February 18, 1885.

This selling Guinet black silk for three-quarters is a puzzler. It is a puzzler. All Philadelphia is wondering what it means. Rumors and chants are wondering, not what it means, but how it is done. Ask them. Go over to New York—ask merchants there. The black-silk trade in this city is mostly suspended. [Of course it isn't stopped in New York—they don't see Philadelphia advertisements over there.]

We couldn't have picked out a fluff, or any sort of merchandise, that would have been more of a bomb to throw into the market. It was exactly the same to sell Holly Tree muslin below the cost of making it; except that nobody knew anything about Holly Tree muslin.

It was a stirring enough event to sell those cloths of Lupin's below the wholesale price. [By the way, they are gone.] But Lupin makes a great many cloths; and his fame doesn't rest on any one of them—while Guinet makes nothing but one silk, and his fame has come from silk. When we sell two Lupin cloths below the wholesale price, we only touch a trifling part of his product. When we sell Guinet black silk below, we sweep the breadth of the market as far as we reach.

Why sell Holly Tree muslin? To introduce it. To advertise it. To quickly force attention to a stuff you ought to know about. To conquer a market.

Why sell Lupin's dress-stuffs at all? Because we could stir up trade by the means, do nobody harm, and scatter twenty-thousand yards of Lupin's splendid stuffs among people who commonly buy a lower grade. Surely nobody is going to complain of that.

Why sell Guinet silk so? Do you really want to know?

For some reason, a sale in silk is slow to change its channels. We want five times as much as we've got. We don't see any reason why this store shouldn't be the first one to think of, whenever silk comes into the thoughts of everybody within trading distance. So we make you think of it—think of it and silk together—think of it as of silk and of saving $5 or $10 on the silk for a single dress by buying it here.

If we were only selling a ton or two of Guinet black silk at three-quarters to gather trade, and meant to make up our losses now by extra profits by and by—that would be one thing. That isn't our way; or, if it is, we haven't got to it yet.

Guinet $1.65 black silk for $1.25 and $2 for $1.50; guaranteed to wear as well as the average of Guinet's black silk. And you will never see the time when we shall be above the lowest market.

We want the trade; and that's the whole of it.

Southeast from the center.

Dollar ladies'-cloth of about fifty colors and mixtures for seventy-five cents a yard; 56-inch; $4.50 for an average dress. And that is just as big an event as Guinet for three-quarters; just as big. Of Guinet the dollar quality is gone already; the 75-cent quality is only 10 cents off; the 95-cent quality 20 cents off; the $1.25 quality $1.25 off; some of the higher qualities not so much off. Of this dollar ladies'-cloth every style is 75 cents. About fifty ladies may each have a dress of it, in any of a color.

Southeast from the center.

More of those 90-cent black armures and serges for 50 cents—the figures, 90 and 50, are copy; not news. Same 84-90 - twenty-six colors, $10.

Southeast from the center.

Little-check dress-stuffs, half wool (and good wool), for 10 cents a yard. The wholesale price is 21 cents. Three sizes of checks, forty to the inch, twenty and twelve. Twenty-thousand yards of them.

The wool isn't fine, but long and strong.

Southeast from the center.

Best Ingrain, 60 cents; best Tapestry, 75 (inferior Tapestry, 50); best Velvet, $1 (inferior velvet, 90 cents); best five frame Brussels, $1; Smyrna, $1.15; best Moquette, $1.25.

A room full of Brussels, another of Moquette, a parcel-a-room full of Ingrain, and still another room is full of Tapestry and Smyrna.

THE SCIENTIFIC TEST.

Royal Baking Powder Absolutely Pure and Wholesome.

The following reports from the Government chemists and others equally well known who have, from time to time, made tests of the various baking powders of the market to ascertain their true value and character, are evidence impartial, scientific, and positive, of the absolute purity and wholesomeness of the "Royal," and of its superiority over all others as a perfect leavening agent:

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances.

BISHOP TURNER'S CALL.

SECRETARIES AND ASSISTANT SECRETARIES OF THE ANNUAL CONFERENCES OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH, IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD:

The General Conference of 1884, among other things, elected me as one of its secretaries; but the session before me, increased by the lamentable demise of our beloved Bishop Dickerson, will preclude the possibility of me scanning the several minutes of all our annual conferences and making a correct calculation of our statistics. Therefore I will have to ask assistance at the hands of the several secretaries, which you will please answer by the 10th of March, 1885, in the following order, from the last published minutes of your annual conference:

Money raised.—How much Connectional Money, Dollar Money, Missionary, Sabbath school, for Pastor's Support, including traveling expenses; for Bible and Hymn Books, for school and benevolent purposes, sum total.

Property value.—Number of church-es, number of parsonages, number of Sabbath schools, pastor's value.

Ministry.—Number of traveling preachers, deacons, elders, locals, to-tals.

In the above include superannuated and supernumerated among the local ministry.

Members.—Number of members, probationers, sum total.

Schools.—Number of schools, Sunday schools, day schools, teachers.

You will see I have by no means asked all the necessary questions to get a proper knowledge of our Church and its workings, but these will do for the present. Every minister know of some-thing not reported to any annual conference, please write me about him. Should any minister know of reports being false, or not in your published minutes, write your secretary at once.

I want each conference to have full credit for what it is, and for what it is worth. Please start your answers to me on or before the 10th of March, so as to be able to open all letters of the kind on the 15th of March. Write your name and address on the back of the envelopes, so my wife will not send them after me, but will keep them for me at home to look after. Should any of you not write plainly, please print a plain writing statement for the occasion so there will be no mistakes in figures. Should any of the secretaries of the conferences be dead or otherwise unable to answer the above inquiries, will their wives or some presiding elder designate a brother to answer them for the conference?

Yours very truly,

B. W. TURNER.

NOTE FROM BISHOP CAMPBELL.

To the Ministers and Members of the A. M. E. Church:

The committee appointed by the General Conference on the revision of the Discipline, consisting of nine members, chairman, beg leave to say that after mature consideration they have decided that their work is now ready for the press. We will see from the announcement of Business Manager Embury that the book is now almost ready for sale.

He sends out a very urgent request to all our ministers, with which we trust they will comply immediately. Especially do we call the attention of the ministers of the Third Episcopal District to the Manager's earnest plea for money, and to the very liberal discount offered on all cash orders for forty or more.

I hope, dear brethren of the third district, that you will act immediately in this matter, and even excel, as you have done in some other equally important matters. In so doing you will greatly assist the Business Manager, your people and yourselves.

Yours Fraternally,

J. P. CAMPBELL.

Please remember, also, that all matter for publication, or letters pertaining thereto, should be addressed to the editor, and they to him exclusively.

OUR LITERATURE.

Our own newspapers are as good as the reading of our homes generally; why do we not subscribe to them? Our Sunday School Review and Children's Recorder are as bright looking and as interesting as the most of papers of their grade. The CHRISTIAN RECORDER is as good a religious paper as is offered our people for the same money, with a few rare exceptions. Do our readers, do our ministers all count friends about these papers? The Sunday School Review, a monthly, is but $1 (0 per year; the Child's Recorder, a monthly, at 50 cents per year is not less than 75 copies to one order. Our Review, a Quarterly, $1.50; as good we can be obtained. Our Sunday School Lesson Helps, though published by our own house, our means if revenue to our house. They have for several years paid its own way through with others, as good as the best; probably not quite as cheap as the cheapest, but as cheap as the average. Our Lesson Helps are not to other denominations messaging a book house securing their lesson helps from an outside house, is this largely? Is it an indication of loyalty? It is fair to infer that more than half of our larger schools take our Sunday School Recorder our the Sunday school supplies from our house.

The demand for our hymn books from our homes and our churches is almost as common as that of our Sunday school lessons from our schools.

Recently Smith has published a beautiful and convenient little hymn book for prayer meetings, class-meetings and domestic worship, quite as good as any in the market. Its also publishes a catechism. He sells them cheap. We publish our Church hymn book at low figures. Elder Randolph has compiled a book of tunes, which is on sale at our publishing house. Why do you not provide yourselves with the requisites? Why do not our Sunday schools supply with cash try our Sunday school papers and helps? Why do not our churches all with a rush to sell our publications with our hymn books? The new Discipline is now in stock. Supply yourself at once. 10 cents each.

We advertise weekly, several other books which are very useful and cheap. Do you ever think what a useful book the General Conference Minutes would be? There are many facts therein that are not in the Discipline. If we would buy this book extensively a d read it carefully we should be much better prepared for legislating at the next session of our General Conference.

There is nothing whatever to risk in saying that every pastor and local preacher in the connection should by all means have a copy of the General Conference minutes. Every church board and every stewards' board should have a copy purchased by the church they serve. Much of our shortcoming results from our lack of acquaintance with the acts of General Conference.

OUR FINANCIAL DEPARTMENT.

One of the items of business on which Bishop Cain's open letter bease the call of an especial session is the Financial Department of the Church. The details of development of this department has been great. At its establishment much enthusiasm was invested and enormous figures placed at the front of conventions respecting annual collections and disbursements. Though the figures were not realized in the quadrennium then begun, yet the enthusiasm of the time was equal in that of '72 and the system was left, in the main, as at first. In '80 enthusiasm was not wanting. The Ways and Means committee provided that more money should be paid out of the treasury by half than had ever been paid. The money was not paid out, however, for it was never paid in. In '84 the responsibilities of the Treasury were increased by an increase of general officers, an increase of the Episcopal number, an increase of Episcopal salary, and the metropolitan church responsibility was intensified. The Centennial offering was ordered published, &c. General Conference is the easiest place to arrange for the Treasurer's paying out the money to be accumulated in the following four years. But when the conference of '84 legislated with reference to the resources of the General Treasury, it provided that the Treasurer should have his revenues curtailed by more than 14 per cent. This was one of the serious mistakes of our General Conference. Had this 14 per cent. been left at the disposal of the Secretary, it would have enabled him to meet all the responsibilities of the department. At that conference we also allowed the general Treasurer to publish our Report as an expense of from $550 to $700, to be given away. This was another mistake. The fact is, if our Treasurer should actually do all the work allowed him to do, we should very soon be swamped. As it is, we complain, but the complaint comes too late. We have shouldered a heavy burden and given the Treasurer a great work to perform. This he has undertaken to do according to the ability that we have given him, and his own say that he has not done it well? These calm, reflective hours; these hours of considerateness and dispassionate cogitations, are the best time for us to look at ourselves as we really are. If we find we have loaded up too heavily we may graciously unload. The only thing that can be in reason done is to look ourselves full in the face and gaining all the inspiration possible, charitably arrange our finances for the next year so as to allow the Treasurer to pay out our funds as he gets them, pro rata, to the support of the servants of the Church. There can be no other system adopted that will be reasonable. No such thing as the respective annual conferences paying the salary of their Superintendent. Bishops can be considered equitable or legal. Surely there was much good done in an episcopal session by regulating this matter. The Financial Secretary cannot be blamed for the delinquency caused by the complained against if he actually pay out the money as received monthly, to the Bishops depending upon them, pro rata. The annual conference cannot reasonably that arrogate to themselves the power to pay off their presiding Bishops do most certainly right to take the lead and disarrange the whole system of our general finance. This should not be allowed. The Financial Secretary should not be held accountable for money not received. Then there should be such a consideration of the subject now as will prevent the same thing other things the publishing of the Budget may be passed over next year. This might as well suffer a little, as other things of equal importance, which to us and to our friends about these papers? The Sunday School Review, a monthly, is best at 10 per year; the Child's Recorder, a monthly, at 50 cents per year is not less than 75 copies to one order. Our Review, a Quarterly, $1.50; as good we can be obtained. Our Sunday School Lesson Helps, though published by our own house, our means if revenue to our house. "ARE YE ABLE to drink of the cup of which I drink and to be baptized with my baptism," is the sentiment of Jesus' question to the sons of Zebedee: it is the sentiment of his question to you, my brethren. Are ye able? A mighty demand is made upon the Christian hosts. Sometimes we doubt whether we are able. We scan the field overrun by the army of the vicious, made dreadful by their words and disgusting by their acts. We can hardly reply, "We are able." But hear our Lord's words of Scriptures, "Ye have not yet resisted unto blood." Oh, do we not murmur against Moses and against God, before really entering fully upon the vigorous warfare unto which we are called?

REV. ANDREW J. GRAHAMS' article is an instance of the nitre on the opposite side of the negro in politics. He has been supposed an ultra Republican; can he be an ultra Democrat? Such praise as he gives to the Democrats, seem hard to account for. How does he explain? In what does he consider the party of Jefferson and Jackson consist? While we do admire correct principle, we do not admire the intensified lust when the colored man of the country can find a sufficient amount of argument for the basis for praise of the party that has in nearly all the conventions of the country, either failed to assist them, or has actual, by given them e how.

A BENEFIT for the Home for Aged and Infirm Colored Persons will be given in the Fifth Baptist Church, Shiloh, Sabbath and Spring Garden streets, Tuesday evening, March 3rd, in e lecture by the Rev. Sutton E. Griggs. Subject, "Boys of the Period." Also, Solo Concert. Admission 25 cents. Tickets for sale at Rev. Handy's, 1306 Chestnut; 608 Arch and at the door. The lecture should receive a very large patronage for two reasons: First, the object is good; secondly, the lecture will be good.

WE HAVE found it necessary to hesitate awhile to publish extensive manuscripts with reference to the historical life and lamented death of Bishop Dickerson. We publish Dr. Waters' "Last Days" and "Last Hours" of the Bishop, now, because of its variation from the biographical sketches and sets of resolutions which every one must notice here if we correctly been charged on "Theory and Practice" was delivered by Prof. A. M. Caldwell, principal of the Central school. Prof. Mr. Caldwell is fast taking rank among the most able educators of the race. The address in question is published in full in the Ohio Falls Expres of Louisville. We regret very much that the lack of space prevents us from reproducing it.

—Rev. C. O. H. Thomas, A.M., LL. B., has succeeded Rev. Mr. Carolina as pastor in charge of Bethel A. M. E. Church, which bee one of the largest congregations in Louisville. The minister comes from Natchez, where he is highly esteemed and has won a good reputati n for ability and effective religious labor among his colored brethren there. He will find an excellent congregation here and a good field for the advancement of the cause of religion and education. Next Sunday the new minister will preach in the afternoon on the subject, "Rachaldlog" and at night upon "The Dying Thief."—Vicksburg Evening Post.

—The New York Tribune says: "Two applications for office were made by colored men. One of them came from C. S. Smith, of Bloomington, Illinois, who was formerly a slave, it is in art, science and literature, will make said. After the war he obtained an education, and becoming a leader among the colored men of Alabama, was elected a Republican member of the State Senate. A few years ago he went to Illinois and leased a house at Bloomington. He became noted as a speaker on campaign and political questions. He was an alternate delegate to the Republican National Convention of 1884, but after Mr. Cleveland was nominated he began making speeches for the Democratic party. He desires to be appointed Minister to Liberia. The other applicaion comes from Alderman T. Bradley, of Chicago, who applies for the place to be filled by Frederick Douglass. He is the next best thing to the open letter to Mr Cleveland which was printed in the Conservator.

Cassell's Family Magazine for March is as fresh and strong as the March winds. It is full of new and interesting that present their readers with so much choice fiction every month. Two serial stories of Cassell's, and short stories are always admirable. The two serials now running, "A Drowned in the Slough," by Alice Cullelton, and "Harvest Christabel," by Annie Hoy Bacon, are especially timely that we can through the public prints. Mr. Vanderbilt has lost in unfortunate speculations the sum of $20,000,000. His father left him about $60,000,000, which it is said he increased so the st oce time he was actually worth $80,000,000. With an immense responsibility rests upon the shoulders for the right use of such a tremendous amount of money. BROADWAY by running a car track through it. This magnificent thoroughfare is about the only one of any importance in the city of York which is not ruined by unsightly railroad tracks, and other elevated or surface car tracks. The property owners have been very liberal with it; certainly the general public does not begrudge some acre s little money in the opinion, that the Aldermen have been elect excuse for spoiling everything. Car tracks, however, are not yet laid, and I think it will be many a year before they are laid. It seems the fixed purpose of a large number of property owners to defeat the railroad companies in their attempts to get control of the street, they cannot be in the ranks they will be the whole hundred street arabe bowl ing in the front.

It is a matter of pride with me if there had been a half million black democrats at the polls last November. To this complexion it must come at last. But the conduct of some colored men since the defeat of the party to which they belong is more to be lamented than the fate of any political organization. A team of the veil of that happy delusion of negro devotion to a sentiment and place has in the most outrageously contemptible and mention which, ten years ago, seemed not likely to occur during the present century. To-day it is a perfected system, in which even the highest moment ever raised by human hands, and it will be a wonder and delight forever, to all who gaze upon it.

The dedicatory programme was admirably carried out, both at the Monument and at the Capitol. The procession, a splendid pageant and beautiful on the smooth, cleanly swept floor of the Washington arena, was a fine military display has seldom been seen, even in this city of memorable pageants. At the head of the line, mounted on a coal black horse, and enveloped in a large cloak, was Gen. Sheridan, the last of the Grand Army, "Little Phil. Sheridan," followed by four Gen. Custer's years ago, and a host of other distinguished officers of the procession, and General Pius Hogh Lee, on a large bay stallion, brought to another. President Arthur followed about midway in the procession. He was in an open carriage, the only one in the line drawn by four horses. He was cheered through the whole route. Does an enemy of the Republic, Mr. Arthur? Does an individual shouted, "Hello Chet, will live, how are you?" "Very sorry I can't go fishing with you next summer." The sum whose upon the celebration, but the great, the overwhelming majority of those on the streets hugged the lee side of the line, and kept their distance. They were orderly, and seemed far more desirous of witnessing the military display than the ceremonies.

The programme at the base of the Monument was somewhat too elaborate and symbolical for the occasion. The symbolical figures at the four corners, representing the spirit of the Monument Society; Masonic ceremonies; remarks by Chief Justice Waite, and by Gen. Joseph E. Johnston, were the Monument to the President of the United States, and the dedication of the Monument to the name and memory of George Washington by the President, General Sherman and others, were prefaced his introductions by saying so much of the ceremonies as to the Masonic fraternity, and the ceremonies as to the Grand, are common, and are treated in a manner from every point of the compass; from Virginia across the frozen Potomac, on one side, and are as far as the eye can reach on the other, the crowd seated on the grand stand kept their places to get a good view of the exercises of President Arthur's speech the assemblage broke into cheers, and at the close of the President's address the overwhelming majority of my race on spiritual hopes, I would not have given any loyal principles in adhering to the party from which they received their freedom. Then, at first, we were given to leave, and on several occasions we have left, but the good people of this community frowned down such dastardly attempts, and we have remained. Then, at last, we believe the school to be an important factor in the work of education, and we believe that it is the duty of the church to support it, and we will do so.

We believe the church as without women? asks the essayist who starts out to say something new on the oft-treated subject. Of course, the human side of the world would not exist without woman. So the question is academic. It would have been the more sensible to ask: What would the world do without Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription? the great remedy for female weaknesses? It is indispensable for the life of womanhood.

CIVILIZATION.

The great and sad fires of the fort night just closed, in nearly all of our large cities and many of our smaller ones, lead us to consider how frail are the houses out of which one of the nation is woven; our bricks are but wood and our iron but sheet when the great flames have devoured the wooden. The most cautious protective arrangements are mocked and our vigilant guards merited by the flames. City fire engines and domestic extinguishers are but fuel for mad flames. A little ion on the sidewalk robs us of our best bones, and our bones are but pipes; a little snow on the railroad dashes a hundred bodies down a precipice to be consumed by flames or drowned in waters, sending misery to many hearts; an extraordinary breeze scatters our shipping on the furious billows, dashes our vessels against the ruthless rocks, the dark waters close over the noble ship, her valuable cargo and her gallant crew, and only vacancy is left to tell the sad tale. Truly a single year our millionaires on one bargain and honorable men so only in recollection. But this is civil zation, which brings to man a thousand other acquaintances as ill as the savage of which the savage knows little. Is barbarism better, then, than civilization? By no means; but we have not entered the school of our civilization. It will be many centuries yet before we complete our education. We are civilizing more than civilized. The rigors of our school life will one day cease, and, master of our situation, we shall, be the grace of God, reenme the control of natural and tangible things instead of being in constant dread of their pranks, whims and caprices.

MISSIONARY DAY.

This bright important week is very near. The duties of that day are set forth to the Disciples as follows: "An annual collection from the Church and Sunday school, including Annual Day, which is held on Easter Sunday of each year. Of all the moneys thus collected and received it shall be the privilege of the conference to appropriate sixty per cent. for the work within its bounds. The remaining forty per c nt. shall be transmitted at once to the Treasurer of the parent body." We have a definitely fixed, actirn and very nearly self-sustaining mission in Hayti; some ground work laid in Liberia and an extensive field in the Indian Territory. In Africa we might probably have secured many thousands of souls for Christ by investing as much as we have done in Hayti. At our late session the General Conference agreed to raise $10,000 for this work. How much of it has been placed into the Secretary's hands we know not. We no longer talk the missionary talk so popular a few years ag , of our Church or the colored race in America being depended upon by the Lord to redeem Africa, but we still feel to have vast interests there. It has been said that our great civil government laid claim in the right to be heard in the Congress of nations on the fact that 7,000,000 of her citizens were connected with the "dark continent" in some way. We have the same interest in Africa that other Christians may be supposed to have, but that is sufficiently great to attract us thither. Need, more or less. Our Church could support a mission work there, if it only thought so. There is no estimating power that can calculate the good we might do there. The Secretary will expect to receive some of the money already subscribed and will receive other money for this work.

The mission conference in the Indian Territory, as you may read in another column, expects to be self-supporting by 1888. But that is some time yet, meanwhile our missionaries must have bread to eat and clothing to wear. Their families must be supported. Those beautiful prairies over which the Indians roam are rich, but there is no organized government there. It is the Indian's kind of life; not much money in it, but there are precious souls there, and we would be glad to make our missionaries more efficient, that those souls might be won for Jesus. Our Harden field, from which we published an interesting report, is in better condition now than ever before, since we have sent back the two young ministers sent over here five years ago to be educated. They are both young and well informed. They are not in a hard on the handle of government, and more especially without an intimate connection with business. We shall incorporate our powers and bring them to bear upon the common life in business circles as we have never done before. The colored American's sun is far from setting in face of this new morn. It is preparing to enter upon a much clearer expression and a better concluding relation. Of course, we hope we are a miserable prophet as to the course of the new government, and a successful one respecting the colored race despite its parties.

We sincerely wish for the happiest and most successful government then for obtaining in the United States, to be the one just entered upon its destiny. We advise the men of our race, who have enjoyed the emoluments of position and power for many years, to continue in the manly course by which they have won success heretofore; to sacrifice nothing for the patronage of the ruling party, but accept of their crumbs as only consistent efforts, than by those which they must scorn under ordinary circumstances.

IN ANOTHER COLUMN will be seen the significant statements of Dr. Tanner, which we deem well what he is saying, to the effect that our brethren in the North might learn something of decency and order in worship by taking a lesson from the Presbyterians in Charleston, S. C. We trust the matter will not be lightly passed over. In many of our churches there is a large exercise of methods brought into use under the dire pressure as the slave condition that is warranted by reason, or necessity, or success. We need not necessarily try to be like others, but we need to try to be as we should be in our worship and to act in a becoming manner. When there can be no exclusive rules laid down, there are rules that will apply well to most churches. Let the work of bringing men and women to Christ will doubtless always be attended by more or less excitement and an exhibition of the emotional side of our nature. No one may safely oppose this, nor reasonably expect its opposite; but that does not argue that reverence, order and the like are aiming at being emotional nor arrangements for being disorderly. Take as instances the preparation in dressing for a jump in church, the forming a circle to sing and go through given exercises. Nor is it by any means necessary that we should be ignorant of the fact that do as good service whenever sung, to sing one positions that are of little meaning when we wish to make an especial impression upon the minds of hearers.

There are some churches away this side of Charleston that seem to think that all of these things are essential, and that the more they are practiced the better God is pleased and his presence the more powerfully felt in them than elsewhere. We also do not believe that Moses Otselio Hill's new book on Jefferson's opinion of newspapers, or Rev. Dr. Talmage's new volume, "Monuism and Wolfe." Mr. Charles Dudley Warner incorrectly assumes, saying Orawur, with some interesting speculations concerning our coming President, who, unconscious of his high destiny, has just attained his majority. The other editorial contributions are, as usual, timely and entertaining.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Such is the sentiment which is actuating the

which is composed of some of our best citizens and whose object is to prevent, if possible, the visitation of the cholera during the coming summer. They are calling attention to the nuisances and by all means in their power are endeavoring to advance the general health of the city, so that in case the cholera must needs come, he may find as little as possible to feed on. They inaugurated this for and expects no reward save the satisfaction that come from the result of his labors in the general public good. It seems far more in earnest than the men who are paid a stated sum for the mere appearances of men and women from men.

We have had within the past two months some very mysterious disappearances. The last case has not yet been quite a feature this winter. Since December 1st there have been scores of such cases, though only a few have attracted much attention on account of the prominence of the parties. Men and women drop out from our midst every day without the knowledge of the general public, so poor are they. It is hard to find out the reasons why such persons exist, but there are thousands of them, and they are more numerous by far than that of beasts. They toil and starve and perish, and none seem to know or care when they die. Verily it is a sad commentary on our Christian civilization. This is a fact in this metropolitan existence, which seems to increase rather than diminish. It has taken a new turn, and we are to be favored or bored—according to the interest which we take in such matters—with a

GAS BILLS.

The companies seem to charge about what they choose. Some merchants' books show that since the reduction in price, their bills are about the same. People go away and never light their gas during the entire month, but the regular bill is rendered. It does seem as if there ought to be some way to reach these generally insolent robbers of the public, and efforts are being made to bring them to account. The several days of pneumonia Our sympathies are extended to our brother and sister in distress.

—President Mitchell delivered a lecture before the University students on "Bible Study," in Mitchell Auditorium Building." The topic is one of great importance, and the lecture is said to have been highly received. Wilmington is a good place for the construction of such buildings. The work is usually done by students in "When I go out into the world." Yet great students and small students are in this institution. We all build our castles, but don't think that those noble pupils, the faculty of Wilbert rec, do not also build of the most substantial material.

Take as instances the preparation in dressing for a jump in church, the forming a circle to sing and go through given exercises. Nor is it by any means necessary that we should be ignorant of the fact that do as good service whenever sung, to sing one positions that are of little meaning when we wish to make an especial impression upon the minds of hearers.

There are some churches away this side of Charleston that seem to think that all of these things are essential, and that the more they are practiced the better God is pleased and his presence the more powerfully felt in them than elsewhere. We also do not believe that Moses Otselio Hill's new book on Jefferson's opinion of newspapers, or Rev. Dr. Talmage's new volume, "Monuism and Wolfe." Mr. Charles Dudley Warner incorrectly assumes, saying Orawur, with some interesting speculations concerning our coming President, who, unconscious of his high destiny, has just attained his majority. The other editorial contributions are, as usual, timely and entertaining.

OUR NEW YORK LETTER.

"An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Such is the sentiment which is actuating the

which is composed of some of our best citizens and whose object is to prevent, if possible, the visitation of the cholera during the coming summer. They are calling attention to the nuisances and by all means in their power are endeavoring to advance the general health of the city, so that in case the cholera must needs come, he may find as little as possible to feed on. They inaugurated this for and expects no reward save the satisfaction that come from the result of his labors in the general public good. It seems far more in earnest than the men who are paid a stated sum for the mere appearances of men and women from men.

We have had within the past two months some very mysterious disappearances. The last case has not yet been quite a feature this winter. Since December 1st there have been scores of such cases, though only a few have attracted much attention on account of the prominence of the parties. Men and women drop out from our midst every day without the knowledge of the general public, so poor are they. It is hard to find out the reasons why such persons exist, but there are thousands of them, and they are more numerous by far than that of beasts. They toil and starve and perish, and none seem to know or care when they die. Verily it is a sad commentary on our Christian civilization. This is a fact in this metropolitan existence, which seems to increase rather than diminish. It has taken a new turn, and we are to be favored or bored—according to the interest which we take in such matters—with a on the walking match scale. It is expected that there will be about a dozen men agreed to compete for the prizes, which will be nearly or quite a thousand miles in the six days. PNEUMONIA.

The recent dea hs of a few prominent citizens have called the attention of the people to the fact that quite a large ll ify dea h list is the result of this which this disease was the cause. A number of the best and most skillful leading physicians and that paper has given to the general public some valuable hints as to its treatment and cure, as to some good advice in regard to its prevention. Among the list of "other afflictions" which we have to suffer, are our exobitant

GAS BILLS.

The companies seem to charge about what they choose. Some merchants' books show that since the reduction in price, their bills are about the same. People go away and never light their gas during the entire month, but the regular bill is rendered. It does seem as if there ought to be some way to reach these generally insolent robbers of the public, and efforts are being made to bring them to account. The several days of pneumonia Our sympathies are extended to our brother and sister in distress.

—Elder Miles, of Salem, told his people last Sunday a week that he should, on some future occasion, read to them the sermon contributed to the CHRISTIAN RECORDER by Rev. Richard Harpster, on "The work of the Holy Spirit," but on another occasion the sermon by Rev. I. S. Grant, on "The Power of the Tongue."

—President Mitchell delivered a lecture before the University students on "Bible Study," in Mitchell Auditorium Building." The topic is one of great importance, and the lecture is said to have been highly received. Wilmington is a good place for the construction of such buildings. The work is usually done by students in "When I go out into the world." Yet great students and small students are in this institution. We all build our castles, but don't think that those noble pupils, the faculty of Wilbert rec, do not also build of the most substantial material.

GAB DRIVERS.

Sixteen hours a day for not very high wages. They threaten, if their wages are not raised, to inaugurate a strike. They deserve the sympathy, help and encouragement of the entire community. It is a shame that while the companies are making fortunes out of the people they are not willing to give to make them are not more than half paid. Their cause is a good one; they ought to succeed.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 29, 1888.

There will be given only a breathing spell between the celebration of the Washington Monument and the 4th day of March. Preparation for the inauguration is taking more definite shape, and the crowds that are to be present are beginning to arrive. The streets here to event in the past few days and four days' rest during the siege and in the long stretches of wooden sidewalks, with their low roofs, one sees above the other, which have been erected for spectators on the public thoroughfares. Everything is ready, it will mention, as peasant, that a view of the procession will be had and there will be had at one dollar per on tia. The stands are not as high as those that were seen here. There will be nearly twenty-five thousand men in line, military and civic organizations, representing a part of the country There will be thousands of strangers here, and the streets will be filled with people. Many of them will be from the South, and the great procession, which will escort the new President from the Capitol to the White House, will be a series of papers on American Political Ideas. VIRTUE IN THE FAMILY.

There are all sorts and degrees of virtue, and sometimes we are told that virtue is its own reward. Mr. A. F. Evans of Burr's Ferry, La., says, in writing about Brown's Iron Bitters "I have been the recipient of its virtue in my family in a considerable extent." Such great iron tonic has superior advantages as a reliable family medicine. Its power has been thoroughly tried, and its virtues abundantly proved. Nearly a million bottles a year are sold by the druggists of this country.

The sword-cane contains a sword 115 years old, for one seed from which shoots were also has been offered $5, but she refuses to cut it.

BY OUR FRUITS WE SHALL BE JUDGED.

To bear a landsman talk of seafaring life, a blacksmith of the shoe-maker's pleasure, a bargee of the pleasures of a palace, or an ox of the discomfort of the sheep's coat, so is the speculation of those not careful to study well and to compare, concerning the African Methodist Church. Some think it the most expensive Church for colored people; others think it the most progressive, and still others, the most inefficient. But the fact is, they know little about it as a whole; hence think little about it correctly. Every now and then you may read in a secular paper, whose editor is a colored man, of the extravagant demands made upon the people by the A. M. E. Church for the purpose of supporting the Bishops and Secretaries in a grand style; alleging the poor to pay Bishops $2000, when $1,000 would be enough for them and so on. Now, what are the facts concerning the drafts made upon the people in our Church? What are the results? What the comparison?

First, As to the drafts: "Our Dollar Money" is the title of a fund made up by each member's paying one dollar per year. Now, let us see just what responsibilities a member of the A. M. E. Church discharges by this single one dollar per year; less than three mills per day.

a. He assists in the work of education.

b. He helps to care for the widows and orphans of its ministers.

c. He helps to take care of worn-out ministers.

d. He helps to support missionaries.

e. He helps to build churches.

f. He helps to pay the salary of the Bishops and Secretaries. Our pastors' salaries are about like those of their brethren, teachers, editors, clerks, farmers and hotel men. While there are a very few receiving a salary as high as $2000, there are hundreds of others receiving no more than farm hands. We probably pay out no more in proportion for traveling, &c., than the same number in our popular secret societies.

Now, we should like to know in what other church a member can discharge so many responsibilities with one dollar per year; less than three mills per day.

We have the results of these drafts?

a. The establishment of schools that often far have nothing like equal the efforts of any other Christian organization of colored men in the world. From these schools have already come men and women whose comparison with other good men and women must be appreciated highly by all who choose to consider the hands and heads as united to correct the wrongs of a hopeful but injured race. The organized efforts of the A. M. E. Church in educational matters alone challenge the respect of all fair-minded observers. If this has cost the colored Americans one hundred thousand dollars, they have it at a very low consideration, a mere nominal price. If the work of Wilberforce University had cost the African Methodist people one million dollars, the returns bear a rich margin in favor of the Church and the race.

The seventy five graduates of Wilberforce University would not all have been educated had there been no such institution; the one thousand who have drunk more or less deeply from the fountain of knowledge there would not all have done so elsewhere but there been no Wilberforce. This is not the only truly said of Paul Quinn College and of Allen University. These monuments tell where we have thought and where we have walked; they are proofs that the erected by hands unskilled in many matters, but capable of doing work that others either could not do or would not do. These promises of learning are the results of the hard earned dollars drawn from our poor people perforce of a strong and attractive organization whose ranks have forever been filled by the liberal, warm-hearted, intelligent, willing-minded of the race. No one has been driven to be an Africo Methodist. The Church has grown by its own inherent principles and intrinsic worth.

b. We have a network of missions throughout the country by means of which we are hearing the precious word to those sitting in darkness. Nearly every annual conference has its missionaries who labor from year to year for the good of souls. Besides those we have a considerable foreign mission work, in which we have been God's instrument in enlightening the mind through our mission school and our college at home. We have sent two well-informed Haytiens, with diplomas from the best known institutions of learning, back to their own brave island to assist our noble missionary there. We have three others in the university now, preparing to join those two in a few years. Could our ill informed censors know as well as we the hardships and the great results of our home missionary, they would think we were quite worthy of all we ask from our members.

c. We support a Sunday school department which makes no more nor less minds to act upon minds and assist minds not anywhere else attainable by us who act on them. We publish our own Sunday school papers, some of our Sunday school hymn books, our own Sunday school lessons and some other Sunday school helps, thus bringing our whole race mind in meaglog and supporting Sunday schools that would not at all be obtainable elsewhere by the same minds associated with the A. M. E. Church.

d. Our publishing house gives to at least twenty thousand readers a well-compiled paper, the Church a well-compiled and neatly bound hymn book, discipline and several books written by representatives of our own race and communion.

e. We number in our ranks such orators as President J. S. Mitchell, Prof. J. P. Shorter, Prof. W. S. Scarborough, L. J. Coppin, Rev. Dr. J. C. Mitchell, Prof. T. McCants Stewart, President J. C. Waters, Prof. D. A. Straker, Prof. A. M. Green, Prof. P. S. Harper, Mr. R. A. Clark, Rev. Dr. Tanner, Dr. T. G. Steward, Dr. J. T. Jenifer, Dr. J. H. A. Johnson, Dr. T. H. Jackson, Dr. G. T. Watkins, Dr. W. H. Hunter, Dr. J. M. Townsend, Rev. Dr. D. P. Roberts, B. W. Arnett, J. C. Embry, I. M. Burgan, C. S. Smith, Mrs. S. Ella Embry, Mrs. Fanny Jackson Coppin, Rt. Rev. John M. Brown, Rt. Rev. James P. Campbell, Rt. Rev. Daniel A. Payne, Revs. W. J. Gaines, J. S. Thompson, J. E. Hayne, and many others like them. God has blessed us with the ability to draw to His name, as representatives of African Methodism, many men and women who stand on the very highest step reached by any considerable number of the race in the world; they are a result which could not be attained by any other Methodism.

f. The A. M. E. Church is the largest, strongest and most influential religious organization of colored men on earth, with church property worth nearly $2,000,000, and is ground for the reasonableness of its request for larger amount of money than it would otherwise do. It is a sufficient reason for the basis of these large requests—pride in and hope for the race to not allow those from the outside to disturb its confidence very greatly by words without knowledge.

g. The greatest result is the vast influence which God has given this church in the interest of the race, and the incessant fires upon her altars and an everlasting license rising to heaven, which have made her the most spiritual work in more than three thousand cities, towns and hamlets. She has been as a star of promise and the exciter of hope and of courage to Americans for nearly seventy years, guiding them through some of the most fearful crises, edacating them in things concerning which they would have remained most longer in ignorance, but for such a church. The work of Bishop Payne alone in the A. M. E. Church is incalculable. He has been as the arm of God bearing a lighted lamp to our people and holding it out to them when necessity that they might see, then leading them nearer in the light and giving them instruction. Travel where you will in his wake and you find his traces in a literary individual, a literary home, a literary society or an institution of learning, but you will find his teaching a help as it is high.

The directions which thousands have received from the strong and correct personal character of Bishop Shorter and Dr. Hardy, the heroism and unexpected success of Bishops Ward and Cain and Elder Charles Burch, the indomitable zeal and faith of Bishop Turner and evangelist, Bishop Wayman, the great service Bishop Dickerson, Hon. Alex. Clark and a host of others, are in themselves worth all we have invested in African Methodism.

What of the A. M. E. Church in comparison? Such a question as that subject is lodged better often on its absolute worth without comparison. But let us compare, first, as to the matter of salaries: The colored members of the A. M. E. Church are supporting General Officers and Bishops at a very much higher salary than are we. They are supporting those between whose condition and their own there is a much greater difference than that between the members of our Church and the Bishops of our Church. Is it because all of our officers are colored men that they are supported by colored? Is it because our members are hearing an equitable share of the burdens of our organization? We have no complaint against the A. M. E. Church. We are glad their members are receiving a grand return for all they invest, but we wonder why they do not fall under the same ban as we; as oppressors of the poor people. We wonder why those colored members are not instructed that they can't bear this burden of ours. What is true of the M. E. is true of Baptist churches, Presbyterian churches, Episcopal churches, Catholic churches, of all organizations accomplishing worthy and lasting work, and so it will be. The churches seeking release from responsibilities are seeking their own destruction. Those performing their work and paying their vows are in the line of progress, success and a long term of usefulness. It is true the A. M. E. Church must attend well to the work assigned it or fail, just as every other organization; but thus far it holds a respectable standing with all other churches of the land. Among her few moral failures there are thousand of the most virtuous, devout Christian men and women of the land.

THE INAUGURAL ADDRESS of President Cleveland is smooth and unobtrusive; nothing of advanced thought. The remarks are commonplace and by some instances wanting in point. They show marks of a cautious man, and a man not very bright. If supported by the proper surroundings, makes an equitable executive. There is hardly any highly progressive politics which he does speak more clearly and more correctly than that relating to the freedmen. But there are limitations in his address of a tenderness respecting State rights and Federal authority that might, after all, develop into "a pretext for anxiety touching the protection of the freedmen in their rights." He trust we have no just grounds for apprehension as to the real meaning of "I shall endeavor to be guided by a careful observance of the distinction between the powers granted to the Federal government and those reserved to the States." It might be a merciful indifference to wrongs inflicted upon the negro by State powers.

THE Rev. B. F. Fowler and his shipbuilding church, Quinn Chapel, Louisville, Ky., have done rapid work since their association of a few months, having had the old stalwart chapel remodeled as to the interior, newly frescoed, &c., at an expense of $1,020.62. The reports of officers to the quarterly conference are concise and full. If the order were maintained throughout the connection, much good would result.

THE 5th of April is Easter Sunday. It is also missionary day. Dr. Townsend desires it to be a whole-soul day, and missionaries and our mission dependents especially. It is a day of help and relief. Certainly we ought to appreciate the day and do all in our power to make it successful.

THE SALVATION army of Bridgeton, N. J., have refused admission to colored persons. It is a question just as to what the salvelico army "will do with the negro." Poor negro! If the salvelico army discriminates against him, whither shall he go?

WE FEEL that the interest which our readers have to the colored exhibit, as well as the very royal sentiments expressed to some of the remarks, warrant our putting so much space in the article clipped from the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

AN EXCHANGE states that the health of Rev. W. T. Maxwell, of Cadiz, is poor.

Personal.

—Elder Yocum has closed his series of meetings with eighty conversions.

—Rev. Dr. Watkins filled the pulpit of Zion Methodist, South Philadelphia, Sunday, March 1st.

—Rev. J. S. Thompson's revival at "Big Creek" is still in progress and nearly a half hundred conversions.

—The Rev. James V. Pierce, pastor at Cookman, N. J., is having a considerable revival of religion. God bless the work.

—We regret to learn, through the Xenia Gazette, of the severe illness of our old friend, Shelton Morris, the grocer of Wilberforce.

—Col. George W. Williams succeeds Mr. Langston in the Haytien mission. Mr. Langston has nobly served his race and the country. Mr. Williams is a competent man.

—General Grant is said to be in a critical state of health. His life has been a remarkable one. Few Americans enjoyed the distinctions received by this great soldier, and few have undergone a reproach heard while living as he has. The outcome. We might add, he has fought a good fight, he has kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for him a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge, will give him at that day.

—The address of Bishop Shorter before the Western New York Horticultural Society occupies a prominent place in the March number of Lippincott's Magazine. His remarks in regard to the fruit crops of the past year, and the prospects for the future, are instructive and suggestive to the fruit grower. He discusses the progress of horticulture and concludes that throughout the country the general tendency is to make fair progress. His tribute to Charles Downing is given feelingly and faithfully. An article entitled Snowdrops and Crocuses, finely illustrated and giving very complete information in regard to the history and cultivation of these popular flowers, concludes the list of Shorter's contributions to the number.

—The Xenia Gazette states that Mr. James Morris has moved to open a grocery at Wilberforce. Mr. Morris is posted in the business and is experienced, and business and commercial qualifications that ought to insure success.

—The Rev. W. J. Johnson held his second quarterly meeting this conference year in Bethel, March 1st. Being presiding elder as well as pastor he had to be in the interest of the presence of a P. E. This deficiency was overcome by the presence of Secretary B. W. Arnett.

—We are pained to hear of the death of Miss Xenia Lee, daughter of Mr. Cyrus Vena, of Xenia, O. She has been a patient sufferer for years. Miss Vena was an estimable young lady, who will be sadly missed in her city as well as in her family. Her father was contractor in the erection of the great university building at Wilberforce, and is an excellent mechanic.

—On Sunday evening, March 1st, Rev. R. F. Boyd, preacher of Bellefontaine, N. J., Sockeyeer of the New Jersey Senate and member of our Financial Board, delivered a highly interesting lecture in the Odd Fellows of Bridgeton in the A. M. E. Church. Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity," was his text."

Literature.

"Early Dawn" is a tasty little Easter annual published by Emma Pitt, 205 North Carey street, Baltimore, Md., which contains a fine selection of sectional and selected Easter hymns set to music. Single copy, five cents; $4 per thousand.

Although "Allisto: a Romence," by John Emerita, which John D. Williams, 24 W. 14th St., N. Y., has just published, will probably not attain to the phenomenal success of "Called Back," it will be found a work of interest to every admirer of Mr. Conway's famous book. It displays the same combination of the real and the unreal, the same intense and spirited movement; but it has what "Called Back" has not—a lofty ideal and a noble purpose. Its story is, besides, more human in its interest and thoroughly American, its scenes being located in the country covered by the upper Mississippi. If the story was written by a man, he certainly possesses more delicacy of perception and refinement of thought than fall to the share of the average man of letters of our time. Such character drawing, combined with such elevation of purpose as characterizes "Allisto" should be sufficient to make any author on a career of success. A strong story, strongly told, with a high moral aim, with a powerful motive, is the best language in which to open up what time will attest to be a really remarkable contribution to American literature.

THE SNOWDROP.

The first flower of the infant year,
Through frozen earth and wintry springeth,
Though gemmed with many a frozen tear,
By the chill breezes kissed.
Than all that gay June bringeth,
When blossom after blossom flowers
Look bright in summer sun and showers.

For this lone child of wintry air,
Midst storms serene appearing,
Resembleth spirits, sweet and fair,
Who, in this world of grief and care,
Its bitter woes are cheering;
Seem sent amidst its cruelties to bless,
And smiling on the ills of life.

Like them they meekly art, pale flower,
The lengthening hours beguiling,
Although the rude winds shake thy bower,
And on thy form with coldness pour,
The icy storms are howling.

Yet still thy oft crushed buds we see
Their lovely mosses parting.

And their first pledge of coming spring,
The new-born year revealeth,
Shall through the loneliness of winter bring
Than all else from her lap shall fling,
More summer-sun and showers.
For, then dost from her lustless breast
Look forth and promise all the rest.

BUILDING AIR CASTLES; OR, A HALF HOUR IN FANATICISM.

Among the transitless stage of European civilization the Feudal system was the characteristic form of the 13th century. It was the first great progressive movement of that civilization from the barbarism that had darkened preceding centuries—the immediate outgrowth of the amalgamation of Germanic tribes for a higher social and political state. It based claims to nobility upon the intelligence of strength, and made land and serf under different relations, it is true, yet in a common manner. It had the foundation for a style of architecture that was a prominent feature among the institutions of that age, and was much adapted to defense as to comfort.

At Newport, R. I., are yet standing old ruins that give silent testimony to a vain attempt to establish feudalism upon the shores of America. That old system of the dark ages served its purpose and departed. Now it has no position went down together in the demotion of succeeding years; yet from one of the ashes of feudalism have come to us a class of castles that are little else than castle builders and their product and approach the theme of the evening's entertainment. It is our purpose to present a heartless critique on the building of castles, nor to decry the use in odious terms the builders. Were I a politician, I would condemn the perverted tendency of mind—a divine principle given an honored place among the gifts of God—that leads to castle building. Air-castles have generally been regarded as the unprofitable product of disordered brain, a will-o'-the-wisp, that frequents the realm of fools of foolish fancy. He who so declares has not had even a bare introduction to the castle builders. Fanaticism is a genius but the ability to build air-castles is not. Fanaticism is a genius, an ability but the vailed products of scientific research and artistic and mechanical that are seen in the world's progress, civilization? Ideals precede existence. Paper houses, paper collars, these lumps, that stove, our style of dress, the Tower of London, all England, New York and Maryland, Mt. Holyoke Seminary, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Canada, Mr. Ranson taken down and living westward to the Mississippi, while Mr. Arnold opens up the golden regions of the distant west.

They are successful agents. Ten thousand dollars find an annual welcome in the treasury of the University. The pride of their hearts is the Alma Mater, Alumni Hall, just midway the campus, opposite Science Hall. It is built on the style of Chineman Hall, Atlanta, Ga. Here it is. Look at it. Come. Just take a glance and let your next sight be Alumni Hall. It is a beautiful brick structure three stories high, with a projecting centre with an upper and lower veranda in front. Two observers three entrances, one on either side and one in the centre. The lower story is the lower costaina a bell weighing 1,000 pounds. That is to wake the girls up, and then to call Cenia. The second are noted by a clock in the belfry. It tells the time of day to the girls in bed. The main entrance opens into a large hall from which you pass into the ladies' parlor, reception room, music room, library and recitation rooms. Joining the rear of either wing are the young ladies' dormitories. They will accommodate 180 persons. In the eastern dormitory is located the gymnasium and callisthenic room, and two drills are daily had by all the ladies in the hall. Mrs. Cooper has charge of that branch. Returning to the first floor of the main building you rise to the second floor by a stairway right and left. The authorities may be found there from 9 A. M. until bell time. From 1 to 5 P. M., if you are on that floor, you will be saluted by the hum of machines and the thread of pantelets first. It comes from the sewing department. That department is supplied by a ten-horse power portable engine. Mr. Derry is the engineer. He is the trusty in Ladies' Hall. He attends faithfully to the wants and needs of the inmates. Eight sewing machines employ busy hands in one of the rooms, while an addition to our growing industry from Captain Asa Bushnell, of Clark County, Ohio, gives 6 to 8 knitting machines employment in motion. The first machine now in the closet of my recollection is one of the latest inventions in the line of sewing machines. It is a double thread machine, and will do anything in the sewing line. Its capacity is unlimited. You have here no lavish outfit. Yet durability. The donor of this machine, so you in finely executed crayon sketch, is Mrs. Dr. Townsend, wife of ex-President Townsend, of Wilberforce. Dr. Townsend promises that he and wife would furnish the ladies' parlor whenever the hall should be completed. Mr. Arnold and the Philomathean Society showed their appreciation of the kind offer by its acceptance.

But we have detained you almost too long on this floor; let us go above to the second. Here you will find all on the right is the University Medical Class. Of the gentlemen in charge of the bandache; Miss Love officiates. The third floor of one entire wing is devoted to the Normal department. The doctor condescends to furnish the information that there are 55 in this class. Mrs. Arnett, Jr., took up his father's mantle and is now in charge of the most glorious complexion. It is the finest laboratory owned by any colored institution in the land. The apparatus for chemical purposes is unsurpassed. The winter of '86, he introduced a bill in the General Assembly of Ohio authorizing the appropriation of $10,000 for the purchase of this apparatus. The bill was passed, $8,00, and $2,000 was appropriated. Mr. Arnett employed an admirable plan for securing subscriptions. He wrote to the leading colored men of the State asking for the privilege of lecturing. No asking was refused. The donors of every county were solicited. The annual meeting of the Teachers' State Association was held in Xenia, where steps were taken to secure the remainder of the appropriation. As a President drove to Columbus (Capitol) to the White House the sentiment of the people was expressed. There was a deafening round of applause. Governor Hoadley said, "Besides the mass of humanity on the ground and the town of beside bordered the tops of buildings, doors and windows, and men climbed the trees, the Governor and Legislature to get a view of the President.

Another interesting episode was the reception of Gen. Pleasant Lee and his children, embracing the Virginia soldier, Robert E. Lee, Jr., who made a handsome gray uniform and rode a handsome charger. Gen. Lee was introduced and shook hands with the ladies and made a brilliant finale to the festivities of the day. The latter was an immense success. It was a success financially by policeman, who endeavored to clear the building, and the crowd, not being disinterested, in order to procure a seat in the main of 125 bands, was a spectacle of confusion worse than that of Babel. Added to this was the towering dome of Music Hall, the finest auditorium of special value—Mrs. Harper's beauty and the Presidential party. Persons addressed, and a lecture in which he spoke can fully appreciate the "blindness" of the people. In the early years of progress, and especially the days of literary works. The second, coming from the opposite sex, generous enough to step aside from the throne of a pastor's life to speak a word for the cause of God, the Bible, the papers and not a hindrance. In these days of progress, of increase of the sincere zeal and earnest competition, we feel that we deserve special thanks and gratitude for such a noble life. Her traits as the character of woman in the sphere of life in which she has been called to move in the world. Her next generation some of the noble deeds of her mother, and of the noble and laudable labors. How much more beautiful and appropriate it seems that some of us who labored in the Scriptures, distancing its truths to the people that all of us should not ever their ability to do otherwise, must be content to labor in the world. Whenever I read such articles as these what one alluded to, I am reminded of an incident that occurred in my childhood and which was indelibly impressed upon my memory by years of the just indignation it called forth. A number of colored men had been persuaded by some white men to go to their meeting at their meeting-house during a Sabbath. After the congregation had set aside the time for the regular worship, and when, the colored Friend had moved by the Spirit to speak, he upon seeing that he was about to do so his white friend arose in his seat and pressing him gently, but firmly, down into his seat, said, "You had better sit down!" and during the following part of the service he appeared pleased with him not to repeat the offense. The purpose, we are glad to say, for he could not convince the colored brother that he had duly appointed him to speak, and respected American colored preachers would easy to prove that the Lord had given to the expression both of color and sex and we will be found in a white meeting through it when we are in a colored meeting through it as a male member. We can only regret that the policy of the white people to silence their labor in their benefactor, and to ignore the sacrifices of the evening were announced; but the fact that the Rev. Dr. Mansfield, author, "Building Air-Castles; or a Half Hour in Fanaticism," is a very interesting one, as a practical, not merely theoretical, branch. The lines lead to Wilberforce from Bellefontaine, Ohio, where Mr. Arnett's station, where steps are made by all local preachers to be in the charge of the commercial department, under the management of Bishop Arnett.

We shall not have time to take you to our Gallery, opposite the Museum, to give you a feast for the artistic eyes, yet of excellent quality. We assure you it is an excellent one. The whole outfit cost but $215.37½. We have used it two years; have instructed sixty pupils in the art of photography; have more than paid expenses and obtained a good deal of experience. No one ever knows what a passion there is in the soul for miniatures until he becomes an artist. Our pictures range from 8 to 25 cents after the negative is taken. Our rooms are a very nice one the average. There are now 350 students in the school, 75 of whom are students in some industrial art. Every student upon leaving takes with him or her a volume of biography to the former another student to return and so on to the end. It is estimated that 1000 of these Books with the Bible cost $1,000; after the first such 1000 will cost less than one-half that sum. Now, if the Bishops, ministers, and other workers in the Lord's vineyard will give us their hearty support, we will soon be found registered under the Bureau.

AN ADDRESS TO MINISTERS AND MEMBERS OF THE CHURCH.

BY THE MANAGER.

To the Ministers and all Friends of the Cause who may read this. Dear Brethren:—It has become my duty as your agent in conducting our publishing interests, to speak to you in behalf of the Christian Recorder.

1. It is impossible for any one living to attain success in any business without the co-operation of many workers and patrons. Our co-operation is necessary and continued. Year after year you must put forth your best endeavors to bring success to the publishing interests of the Church. Those who do make orders to pay for what they get for their Church with the order" is cheaper to all concerned, and at the same time is a real help to the cause. There is neither loss nor salvage, state-books, love-feast tickets and credentials into the hands of those satisfied on that score? Again, you ask for what about the merchandise? I'll tell you by-and-by. Then,

AS TO MRS. GRUNDY.

This potent personage has been allowed to rule too despotically in the feminine world, and the ladies say that it is time her tyranny received a check. But not even Mrs. Grundy has dared to speak against the value of Brown's Iron Bitters as a strengthening tonic for ladies who suffer from debility. It enriches the blood and completely restores failing health. Miss Hallie L. Paules, Wrightsville, Pa., was cured by Brown's Iron Bitters of back-ache, kidney trouble, and liver complaint.

The rector of a certain London parish has not been seen within the limits of the parish within seven years. This is to come from the parish le £1100 e year, while his duties are delegated to a curate at a salary of £175 a year.

PREMATURELY AGED.

Many a woman is robbed of those charms which the gentler sex values so highly, and made old before her time by functional irregularities. Every tea-spoonful of Hunyadi Janos, a positive and radical cure for Constipation, Sick-Headache, Biliousness, Dizziness, Indigestion, Colds, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, acts as a purgative, alterative, and tonic, and thoroughly cleanses the system, so that after having tested its wonderful curative powers no other aperient will be taken. Its use for a few days will convince the most skeptical that it is the best of all remedies for the relief and cure of the many ills to which the female system is subject.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send, free of charge, to all who desire it, this receipt, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamping this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should be used for children teething; it relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to take; it soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain; relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

OUT OF WORK.

What a terrible case it is to be out of work. Thousands of men are in this case. Is anybody, look as we may, and mee are absolutely famishing for want of food and freezing for want of fuel and clothing. Even children suffer the same like they may be the penalty of their parents' poverty. Mrs. Elizabeth Barrett Browning says:

"God gives no work to the world 'tis the best you get at all,
For food, to nursing, gives us better gifts
Than mere benevolence.
God says, 'sweat for forehead.'
Men say 'rest,' and we all rest as we are crowned.
Ay, gashed with some tormenting circle of Gold
Or work, get work, be sure 'tis better Than gift; work work to get!"

But there are so many who cannot get work at our price. Surely there are wrongs in our body politic and body tail upon us generation after generation these miseries. The following are some of these wrongs: overproduction of manufactures in a given season of the year, exclusive regulations of combinations, unions and wealthy monopolies, fluctuations in immigrations, and contract labor.

There are many idle men who would be glad to get their board and clothing, their board alone, their lodging even, for their work, but the employment of work at say price. That sympathy is so low, is sad; for all the wrongs underlying this abnormal state are based upon a lack of sympathy. You have looked upon the sick and observed the dejection of the decepth, the blind and deaf, but none of these is so helpless able than the involuntarily idle, for the time being. The pinchings of hunger are no worse than the rebellion that with all the powers possessed. We need a preventive in the want of work; that all dependents must suffer not because of the want of work, but on account of the want of work. By force of this condition almost every species of evil is committed. The desperate brutality of the cords of idleness, the soaps them, interest restraints fall away and the strong man becomes a wreck. Indeed, not a few men commit crime in order to be sent to prison and thus draw support from the wealth. This, in turn, tends to the transmission of criminal tendencies to coming generations as well as to deprive the keen edge of the law of its designed effect upon communities.

SUNDAY SCHOOL TEACHERS.

There is no profession demanding closer attention than that of teaching. The profession of law, having for its object the punishment of crime and the encouragement of virtue; the profession of medicine, designed to heal physical maladies and increase the general health of the race, are of no greater worth than the profession which corrects the mental ills and increases the general state of race-mentality. Teachers of the young have greater responsibilities than teachers of the older; teachers of religious truths have greater responsibilities than those of secular and purely mental affairs. Yet we are most careless where we should be most careful, mustering into our teaching forces those most incompetent for their work. Tue non Christian, the illiterate, the indifferent are put in charge of children.

Our children are so often taught in Sunday schools by the most antique and ineffective methods. There is probably a great mistake made in the false notion entertained concerning the number of teachers required. One competent teacher could give the instruction to one hundred pupils much better than ten incompetent teachers, or even eight incompetent and two competent, for often the interests are nearly of a degrading character. You will sometimes hear teachers telling their pupils what they do not believe concerning the Bible. The incompetency resulting from the lack of study has much to do with rendering the Sunday school an unwelcome resort to those whose minds are investigating and progressive. The young men and young women would not drop out of school disinterested were teachers really interested. It is really embarrassing to witness a review in many schools, where both teacher and pupils answer all questions respecting the Sunday school lessons from their lessons leaves.

THE STAR CONCERT.

At the Academy of Music, March 31st for the benefit of Allen Chapel and Central Presbyterian Church, Mr. J. G. Hutchinson will entertain the music appreciating citizens of Philadelphia with an evening's performance by the Great Star Concert. The entertainment of last fall is still fresh in the minds of all who witnessed it. The "little fanny from man," Marshal P. Wilder, who made all laugh till they wished they could escape, yet so held the interest of all that they were sorry when they had to cease, will be one of the attractions. Mr. Hoggett will also again present Miss Nellie Brown-Mitchell and Miss Henrietta Vinton Davis, besides Miss Carrie Melvin, the celebrated violinist, Miss Anne Gregory, Miss V. Adele Montgomery and Prof. J. H. B. Dungee. Prof. F. J. R. Jones's Orchestra of twenty piece will suite with other talent and is high order to render the occasion meritorious and entertaining.

BISHOP DISNEY IN PHILADELPHIA

Reconcile to and from the Episcopal meeting of 12th inst., Bishop R. R. Disney, of the Tenth Episcopal District, called at our office, looking as if all with whom he associates treat him in a sumptuous manner.

Bishop Disney is high order to render the occasion meritorious and entertaining.

Monday brought us to Washington City. The morning was the coldest and cheerless that travel was disagreeable.

Tuesday, the 3rd inst. the writer came into the city in close communion. A description of the military, bands of music, flags and the paraphernalia generer lly exhibited on the streets would require pages of writing to picture. Suffice it by saying the inaugurations were transcendently grand. Dat. Wednesday, 4th inst. was a busy day of days in Washington. The sun was clear and a soothing genial pleasant aspect for a limited time, but by noon the veil of haze very soon and rode gracefully in the bosom of heaven till its final rays flooded the land with light and beauty and the evening closed in the splendors of indescribable beauty. Soon the roar of drums, baritone accents and the pleasant sweetness of the fife were wafted from street to street until the whole city was filled with the inspiring melodious and mean, beat and fowl were the inspiring instincts. The whole day of days in Washington. The sun shone and cheer after cheer rent the air. The Grand Review, handsome, and dangled, smiles surged every lip, determination and resolution were depicted. The objects of ecstacy and delight were the sight of President Arthur and President-elect Cleveland, riding beside each other, Arthur bowing to the left to the nation and its destiny into the hands of Cleveland, the Republican party giving to its funeral and the Democratic party to its resurrection; the Republican party dying politically, the democratic party re-enacting the scenes and men seemed to rise from the ground, from every direction, from the tops of thousands, from public roads presents, and the air was filled with the shouts of horse neighs and sea brays served to break the monotony and modify, to some degree, the rolling tides of humanity which swelled up from every direction. Even from the blood which flowed. The Republican temporary seats had been erected in front of every park, and the men in front of every place; where they were built upon platforms, the seats were built in tiers, each one seats rose higher and higher as they receded from the front. Over the tiers of seats erected upon upright timbers corresponding to the second, third and even fourth floors. The seating and standing capacity was supposed to be equal to the accommodation of 100,000 persons along the line where the President and the grand parade passed.

By 9 o'clock a.m. Pennsylvania Avenue was thronged with sight-seekers, many of whom had come from every continent to witness the inauguration of a democratic President in a city which had not occurred in Washington before in twenty-eight years, since Buchanan took his seat, and very much like the novel. You could see old men and women, young men and maidens, the gliding along, bearing every aspect of condition, hypochondriacal, anibilious, sanguine, lymphatic, nervous, temperate, periodic, dyspeptic, misty, muddy, mopish, cracking, sallow, morose, jolly, yet all were determined to reach the place where the lord of democracy would pass in review, and say by his attitude to take the oath which would make him President, and then enjoy the long running machinery for the next four years.

A few moments after 10 o'clock I was pressing my way through the dense crowd to the Executive Mansion, not to see, but to hear, and we received no virtue from me, sonrosta to where a complimentary platform had been erected for the lucky, the kindness of Mr. Wm Coffeger, Secretary of Legation to Switzerland, when I fell in with the great Fred Douglass. Here we wanded our way on to the city mayor's seat and he was turned to see and examine the stately figure of Mr. Douglass, who, by the frog that met the ox, I tried to a well known fact, that Douglass was a subject of curiosity, but I knew I was not, all the same. I could not blame the people to gaze at, for curiosity to see and not inspect the majestic form and intelligent face of Mr. Douglass, but I threw a way their eyes. The next time I was asked where he is a new suit, I am coming to Washington and shall do so well with Mr. Douglass. Won't I be proud of!

About eleven A.M., while standing at the platform in conversation with Dr. Cromwell, a man of commanding mien in full uniform rode down the avenue trying to pass and as he did he left the veil of haze very soon and rode gracefully in the bosom of heaven till its final rays flooded the land with light and beauty and the evening closed in the splendors of indescribable beauty. Soon the roar of drums, baritone accents and the pleasant sweetness of the fife were wafted from street to street until the whole city was filled with the inspiring melodious and mean, beat and fowl were the inspiring instincts. The whole day of days in Washington. The sun shone and cheer after cheer rent the air. The Grand Review, handsome, and dangled, smiles surged every lip, determination and resolution were depicted. The objects of ecstacy and delight were the sight of President Arthur and President-elect Cleveland, riding beside each other, Arthur bowing to the left to the nation and its destiny into the hands of Cleveland, the Republican party giving to its funeral and the Democratic party to its resurrection; the Republican party dying politically, the democratic party re-enacting the scenes and men seemed to rise from the ground, from every direction, from the tops of thousands, from public roads presents, and the air was filled with the shouts of horse neighs and sea brays served to break the monotony and modify, to some degree, the rolling tides of humanity which swelled up from every direction. Even from the blood which flowed. The Republican temporary seats had been erected in front of every park, and the men in front of every place; where they were built upon platforms, the seats were built in tiers, each one seats rose higher and higher as they receded from the front. Over the tiers of seats erected upon upright timbers corresponding to the second, third and even fourth floors. The seating and standing capacity was supposed to be equal to the accommodation of 100,000 persons along the line where the President and the grand parade passed.

Literature.

"Concerning Printed Poison," by Josiah W. Leeds Philadelphia, 925 Chestnut street. Published for the author, 1885. Square 15mo., pp. 42. Price, (unbled) 6 cents per dozen, 60 cents; fifty copies, $2.25.

"Key to Peace and Prosperity." This is the title of a pamphlet published by the press of William Sycleemore, 1305 Chestnut street, Philadelphia. It undertakes to treat the perplexing problems if the relationships of men by the application of mathematical axioms, showing the value of practical and wisely directed sympathy, general and unremunerative labor systems, a broad and highly moral religion, a non-sectarian and non-political sectarian associate effort; in seeing the world from the bold and decisive standpoint of Christ and his immediate dread and ultimately relieving the race of the malicious of and promptings to the malicious of and promptings to each other. This work is highly commended by such men as President Cyrus Hamlin, D. D., 25 cents; five copies for $1. E. Bailon, 1420 Chestnut street, Philadelphia.

The March number of the Song Friend with its interesting musical reading and choice music has made its appearance. Douglass's place is already supplied by a man of another race-variety and of a different party; civil service reform. The thought expressed by President Cleveland relative to office-holders who had been active in politics applies to Mr. Douglass. He went to Indiana and told the Hoosiers something about the Hon. T. A. Hendricks; "he must go." But, coming right down to common sense, what is a man worth who is indifferent to so exciting a campaign as that of last year? If the President's appointments are to be made by the activity or non activity in politics, and non-activity is to receive a reward, he will soon have called about him a class of men capable of guaranteeing successful failure, while if he is honest in these movements and intends to act on the same principle in 1888 should he live, he is inserting the death of his party; for few will want to venture into politics. As we have said previously, we wish nothing but success to every right movement.

ACCORDING TO REPORTS the one thing needful at the New Orleans Exposition is money. What e pity to allow the only grand effort ever made in this land to help the skilled men of our race to bring their handiwork to the view of those who have questioned their ability and constructive genius to fail. The greater the pity, since the colored people have shown a larger interest in the matter than was anticipated by those who are strangers to their aspirations and inclinations, as well as to the colored people themselves. The colored exhibit is one of the signal and striking bits made by and for the race; one of the instances that call the observing world to a halt, and holds it long enough to be looked at. The only trouble now is the want of money with which to so arrange their exhibits as to render them presentable. There is ability in the colored people themselves to put their department in good shape by organized efforts. We do not feel warranted in referring any suggestions regarding steps to this end, though we do not think $5,000 or $9,000 of our money could be put to better use.

WE HAD ceased the publication of papers relative to the death of Bishop Dickerson, but somehow the Toledo resolution crept in this week. It does not require any more than a second thought for any one to see that our position is reasonable if not equitable, after so long a time and after the very same words have been said over and over to the same readers.

BE SURE to read the highly interesting paper from Bishop Turner, in this number.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, March 13, 1885.

Pennsylvania weather has ruinated an accustomed pass since the great mudflats were engulfed away, and the days of the inauguration passed have been stilled. The tri-colored bunting has nearly all been taken down and packed away for 1888, and now the politicians are in their element for the fray. The overshadowing boss, show their preparations in numbers as at least. Wednesday night the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church, was packed to its utmost capacity, and at the same time it was filled to its utmost capacity, and at the same time it was filled to its utmost capacity, and at the same time it was filled

VERY POOR ENONOMY.

Some people make a business of cheating themselves, either by setting very mean and cheap food, or else by eating too small a quantity of good food. Either way is as bad policy as it would be to buy a coffin instead of a suit of good clothes, just because the coffin would cost less. Poor diet, means impoverished blood; and that means misery. Brown's Iron Bitters enriches the blood, gives it the iron it needs, and tones up the whole system. Cures dyspepsia, indigestion, weakness, malaria, etc.

The New South Wales contingent for the Soudan campaign, comprising 800 men, started for Egypt on the 16th. The departure was the occasion of a public holiday. The patriotic food now amounts to £15,000.

APRIL 5th is Missionary Day. Throughout the connection, the day on which we celebrate the anniversary of our Lord's resurrection, when flowers and songs, sermons and prayers shall mingle in rising incense to Him "that was dead, but behold he is alive and is ascended up on high." With these garlands from Nature's bowers, and these effusions of spiritual expression of devotion to Christ, we shall present our blessing superior to that of receiving-day on which the Bishop Turner's Benevolence, but we do feel a little suspicious. Bishop.

MIXED SCHOOLS.

On the recommendation of their democratic Governor, Ohio will soon establish one-sided schools next year, it may be feared. Schools that for a whole generation will give little encouragement to colored persons to go to them, and which for a generation will say scarcely a word concerning any goodness or greatness of the negro to the youth under their tuition; schools that will respect the noble deeds of men and women all white; schools that will teach of the docility and forgiving temperament of the negro; schools that will but rarely be looked into by colored men and women excepting on the occasions of solemnizations; schools that will read papers very little less than they have done, if any; schools that will for a long while inspire one side of the race with the feelings, aspirations and manners of governors and instructors, hence giving them an advantage over the opposite side easy to build; schools that by driving the opp site side of the race of feelings and aspirations as native to them as to the other, and consigning them to a place of inferiority and depression difficult to overcome; schools that will not develop much more correct manhood nor morals than those of the present; schools teaching subsequently to persons disinterested beyond the acquisition of salary, whose hands have little connection with the social, religious or political touch in the common life of their negro pupils.

We say we fear Ohio is about to take this step, though we would like to hope otherwise. We would like to be shown that the change would still leave positions open to teachers upon merit manifested in competitive examinations, and not political services. Our good friends, Elder Gazaway, the Cleveland Gazette and the many hundreds demanding the change, would do well to have a civil right plank put in for teachers as well as pupils. The day the schools of any one of our States are thrown into the exclusive teaching and management of any given race variety, will prove to that State one of its dark days.

THE QUESTION.

To such explanation of our financial system as we gave two weeks ago, inquiries are lately coming in, as to the seeming conflict between what is conveyed by the dollar and what is asked for in addition to dollar collections as especial items. There are many who say the one dollar per year would not be a subject of complaint, but besides this the presiding elders, the Sunday school department, the educational department, and, in fact, all the departments, make special demands. That may be true enough, and yet figures show that with all of these we have not yet reached the average of $1.00 per member per year.

It will be a glorious year for us financially when we can raise that one dollar for each member. Let the Church reach this standard and we shall not be troubled with any extra collections for general purposes. We shall be rid of so much travelling expenses and at the same time accomplish much more good than we are now doing. It is easily possible for us to accomplish this object if we only determine to do so.

The result of the full development of the Dollar Money system would be not less than $450,000 per year. There would be no missionary day, no educational day, no Sunday school day, no quarter each member would pay 25 cents, which would discharge all of his duties to the general Church. Only those duties of a local character would remain. There could be no complaint against such light duties.

The real equitable share of every member of the A. M. E. Church towards the support of the Bishops of our Church is exactly 6 cents per year. Assuming that there are ten Bishops, 60 cents per year from each of the members of the A. M. E. Church pays them all. A little over 2 cents per month per member pays all of the General Officers; so that about 81 cents is all the money that would go from any one member to the support of all the men filling General positions throughout the Church; if all would pay their part.

Designing men make capital against our prosperity with the thousands incapable of figuring for themselves, by citing our financial affairs to them in totals, not in analysis. Ten Bishops cost so much and seven General Officers so much, many persons being thus impressed with the feeling that all of that comes from each individual, rather than that each would have less than the cents of it to pay in twelve months if all would do their part. They point to the two sons of the Dollar Money raised annually, but fail to say to the people "nearly one half of that is paid out to persons right in your own conference and Church." Certain parties in South Carolina, for instance, it is said, make the people believe that they send all their money up North. Not so, friends; forty cents of every single dollar of your money is kept in your own work, and the balance does no more for others than those do for you.

Of all the One Dollar Money 60 per cent. i. e., 60 cents out of every dollar, does not go into the hands of the general treasurer at all. It is distributed by the annual conference within whose limits it has been collected, to be paid to their aged ministers, widows and orphans, children and missionaries. Thus nearly one-half of every dollar is absolutely used in the development of our ministries. In some conferences this 40 per cent. amounts to $1000, or even more.

Bishop Cain wisely asks the New York brethren, and we take it, all other brethren, if they will not allow the ten per cent. added to the local or conference funds by the late General Conference to go into the general treasury. This would leave for the annual conference distribution the same amount that was paid prior to 1884, 30 per cent. It would be a step of magnanimity that would not be seriously felt by the annual conferences and yet would greatly increase the practical operative power of the Church.

FERDINND BLOSS & C. FELTZ, of the Philadelphia Conference. A. M. E. Church, sailed out for a forty days' journey on his fourth quarterly visits with his Bible, new Discipline and hymn book, and will be absent for the moving subjects: "The New A. M. E. Discipline and Its Literature," "The Relation of Brain and Muscle to Worship," and "How to Pay Church Debts." Evenings are spent at each church visited; one for quarterly conference work and one for the instruction of the people in the duties of the named subjects. His mail will be forwarded to him from number 1322 South Eighth street, Philadelphia, Pa.

BISHOP TURNER'S experience as a collector of statistics is doubtless much like that of a host in many other good efforts, but so much greater in shame that our secretaries fail to forward those few statistics called for by the Bishop. A half hour's work is all he asks from each secretary. If this were rendered promptly, brethren, it would save the Bishop many days of labor. Then, what is here more important than this very serious fact, it would save the Church from untold suffering. For the sake of our standing, let us have our successors, let us have the statistics.

CHILDREN'S DAY, or Sunday school day, is the 14th of June. Secretary Smith commenced a long while ago to prepare for it, and he has done so. Nothing blow, or have failed to do so as kind service, but is it a relief to publish a little fact to the world through the papers? Our readers are in a very unfortunate position to act as jurors, for they have but one side and no pleadings. But in order to better prepare them for their work, the other side must be heard. He, like his brother, presents no testimony, however. Perhaps on the mere reading of the case with our readers, we call for their verdict, how mixed it appears. They are as likely to agree with our opponent as with us. Besides, we are doing no one any good whatever. The same thing may be said with reference to publishing lines of church business which have no proper and regular places for adjudication and settlement.

WE DON'T KNOW who is responsible for so many of our annual conference minutes being published in Atlanta, Georgia, but we are sure that no other Methodist Church having a publishing house would give so extensive a business to another publishing house. The minutes of the Kentucky Conference were about as far as they would have been had they come to our own house.

Manager Embry turns out as neatly bound and well arranged journal as any other house, and on better paper than many others. We are not charging this gratuitously of a vast publishing business in Atlanta to Bishop Turner's influence, but we do feel a little suspicious. Bishop.

Literature.

It has been said, and with much truth, that the best novels of this decade are written by women, and young women at that. However this may be we can say that two of the best novels now appearing in serial form are by young men and in Camelli's Family Magazine, "A Daughter in the Rough," by Miss O'Hanlon, and "Sweet Christabel," by Arabella M. Hopkinson. Two more charming stories of English life it would be hard to imagine. Besides these serials there is suggestive pabulum by way of fiction this month a story in three short chapters, "How She Saved Him," "Frank de Vaud," a story of Swiss life, and "An Old Maid's Friends." Articles of a practical nature are by request in "How American Bread is Made" and "The Road to the Giants' Causeway," of the topical character are "The Soldiers' Meetings;" of "Wild Birds in London City" "Note in the Margin" and "Art, but very far from least, "What to Wear." We certainly think that the Push on Dress Reform in this magazine is the best of any we know. It not only tells us how some wear of fine clothes, but it writes of them in a way the most serious neglected woman may read and be interested, while the picture in might well pass for the illustrations of a story. Camelli's Family Magazine will remember are a review of Julian Hawthorne's "Nathaniel Hawthorne and His Wife," of which the reviewer speaks in complimentary terms; "The Basis of Life," by Dr. Andrew Wilson, "Lady Brady's Invisible Enemies," discussion of Spiritualism, "Mrs. Cleveland's Doctor to whom we have all become so attached that we would like to call him ours. "The Gallows" a poem by Poet Lore with accounts of the latest inventions. Illustrations abound as far as they would have been had they come to our own house.

Personal

—Bishop Taylor has reached Africa and entered upon his travels.

—Prof. M. H. Vaughn, principal of the Harrisburg colored schools, spent his spring vacation at his home in Urbana.

—To night Editor Fortune, of the Freeman, lectures in Union Church, Philadelphia. There will doubtless be a crowded house.

—Elder J. T. Hammond, of Reidville, S. C., is having a precious revival of religion. Already between sixty and seventy persons have been converted. Let the work go on.

—Mr. A. B. Winter, Profs. Shorter and Jackson and President Mitchell left on the New Orleans Exposition. Tell us and our readers what you think of the fair, brethren.

—Elder Chambers will have Elders Kenny, Thompson and Lee with him during the Quarterly meeting at Bethel, as the names are given, on the 2nd Sunday in April at his quarterly meeting services.

—Rev. R. C. Thompson's work and co-workers are prospering, both at Bethel, Philadelphia—over 175 converted since the week day meetings and the sermons by Drs. Steward and Tanner have made wonderful impressions upon the young.

—President Cleveland's civil service reform is working about as charmingly as has that of his predecessors. His reception printed with a type-writer on the back of the envelope, was in striking contrast to those so elegantly sent out by Mr. Arthur. It is interesting to see the ex-Presidents passing in with other guests to do homage to the office which he had only three weeks ago. As soon as he was seen by the President the latter stepped forward and greeted him heartily, and Mrs. Cleveland was equally cordial towards her brother's predecessor. As Mr. Arthur moved about the parlors he was followed by the glances of the crowd of guests.

—Neither the colored people of Indiana, nor the citizens of Wayne county, have any reason to be in the least degree ashamed yesterday of their able representative, Mr. Townsend. That gentleman made a very able address which was listened to by a crowded house, and was afterwards the subject of many congratulations over his excellent presentation of the subject of civil rights, from a colored man's standpoint.—The Minute.

—Rev. R. R. Gay, of the Salem, O., charge, spent a very pleasant visit with Presiding Elder Morris at New Philadelphia and Bridgewater, Pa., recently. Elder Morris was not in a very strong physical condition, but both he and his people were in good spiritual state. Their quarterly meeting was a season of great good.

—Neither the colored people of Indiana, nor the citizens of Wayne county, have any reason to be in the least degree of callers are many celebrated men. Among the President's daily stream Henry Ward Beecher, William H. Vanderbilt, and Red Cloud, the Sioux chief, followed each other in quick succession. The day's events of the day. The frequent changes of Grover Cleveland's greatly perplex the aboriginal mind, and occasioned the repetition of the story of grievances known by the dark-skinned President. Red Cloud renewed his appeal for the late relief of the Sioux, and his request that agent McGillicoudy be removed.

—Wednesday was President Cleveland's forty-eighth birthday. He spent it in Washington. He opened the morning mail, and found among the letters that he took a drive behind a pair of ex-President Arthur's horses which have been left for his use. One episode of the day was an interview with the Prince of Wales by Hon. C. S. Smith, a well-known democratic orator from Illinois. Speaking of the President afterwards Mr. Smith said: "He is a magnificent character, and he will meet the expectations of all who study his character. He is a man of high character, and he will be permitted to take their places.

A TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF BISHOP DICKERSON.

BY DEAN WILBUR F. TIRRELID.

[We gladly give place to the following because it is the estimati n of one from outside our Church, as the article of Dean Tirrelid is. The number was from one of our newly established schools.—Ed.]

MR. EDITOR:—From a late issue of our University Elevator, I clip the following notice of a very publishing house from 1848 to 1880. God has wonderfully blessed it, and has used its observaris during these years. The opposition through which the church has passed, and the success which attends it, there is still opposition to encounter, are the obvious reasons why the services of the membership of the A. M. E. Church—Mount Zion Congregational Church, Union Church, Bethel A. M. E. Church—both of which churches I have had the honor to serve as pastor, A. E. Church. It may be truthfully said that the A. E. Church is the strongest and most influential religious organization among the colored people in the country.

Church property is well located and is valuable. The property originally belonged to the first white Methodist congregation in Cleveland. It was purchased by the A. E. Church when the Rev. H. A. Johnson, during his pastorate here in 1875. The building was refurnished and finished. We have a large pipe organ; original cost five thousand dollars, but it was thoroughly put in remaining indebtedness is six thousand dollars. The annual assessment is two hundred dollars a month, payable semi-annually, which is the annual condition of the church. is good. At present a great work for God and souls is being carried forward. Rev. Jno. Mitchell, Jr., is the pastor, and A. M. E. Church in Cleveland at our next conference. In the assessment portion of the city, five miles from the centre, we have a large collection of people, and a good field for work. I am preaching the word of life, and we shall see near upon the organization of the Second A. M. E. Church. We have been blessed in our work by reason of having the utmost confidence in the men elected greatly in this lake region. At this writing I am nearly able to do anything in the way of speaking. I am out suffering. Our Sunday school work is prospering on. We have one of the best and largest A. M. E. Sunday schools in country. Ohio. Bishop J. W. Smith, formerly of Meadville, Pa., is our superintendent. He is a grand man, and we hope for more.

Any mere outline of this admirable lecture would only convey a faint impression of its fitness, force and its pressiveness. After he had finished, a sister of the late Bishop Gilbert Haven, who was present, remarked: "That address was worthy of any Bishop in any Church."

THE A. M. E. CHURCH IN CLEVELAND, OHIO.

THE SECOND CHURCH—THE SUNDAY SCHOOL, &c.

BY REV. J. W. DALAWAY.

MR. EDITOR:—The record of the A. M. E. Church in this city states that the first quarterly conference was held in December 20th, 1858, Rev. Edward Davis, elder in charge. The Rev. C. H. Gilpin, who was then a member of the Ohio annual conference, acted as Secretary; seven members were present. The total amount of salary reported was three dollars and seventy-five cents. Since then the church has had an existence in this place. Its progress has been slow but steady. The church has been served by the following ministers, to wit: Revs. E. Davis, J. P. Woodlin, J. W. Hood, D. D., Rev. Thomas M. Mc-Johnson, S. T. Jones, J. Tibbs, J. Andrews, James A. Shorter, Jno. Anderson, Lewis Woodson, J. P. Underwood, F. H. Jackson, J. M. Rose, J. W. Galloway.

Thus we have a pastoral record covering a period of twenty-seven years,

OUTCAST LONDON.

Much excitement has been made by reports recently published on the vile condition of the slums of London. As a matter, we found a family consisting of a man sick with small-pox, he dying with his head half naked and body filthy and covered with rags. In some cases there is but a gill-mill in every hundred persons. What deliciousness! Yet correspondents of papers often dedle the shame blood: "They must be cast out by Brown's Iron Bitters, the great strengthener and purifier." Mr. F. J. Grimes, of Salt Lake, Florida, says: "Brown's Iron Bitters is the best blood purifier I ever tried. It gives all the satisfaction a man can want."

MR FORTUNE'S LECTURE.

Mr. T. Thomas Fortune, editor and proprietor of the New York Freeman, delivered a lecture in the Bethel, spoke, E. Church on Thursday evening last upon the "Passing Hour." He dealt principally with grave economic questions, such as labor, wages, profit sharing, social privileges and duties, and applied these principles to the negro problem.

The lecture was a very fleshed production, eloquently written and earnestly delivered and illustrated with many beautiful historic and classic references. The pendant idea of the lecture was, that industry, economy and manly self-assertion were the qualities most needed by the colored men of the country.

THE FLEET STREET CHURCH.

The court of appeals in Brooklyn, New York, has decided the case of this church in favor of its trustees. This case was settled in the same way to the lower court and was appealed by the second party. Pending the decision of the higher court, the church was sold by the sheriff, on application of a mortgage for $100,000.00, and was bought by the second party for $50,000. The seceding party has given up hoods for the salary of Elder C. E. Herbert, the appointee of Bishop Cain. Bishop Cain is responsible for said salary as well as the expenses of the suit. The purchase money above what is sufficient to discharging the mortgage claim will go to the Fleet Street A. M. E. Church, but not to the church of the seceders. This is the result of a long contest.

SPRING STYLES.

We have had a few days to indicate the earnestness of spring, but the styles of these days will be required to excite the thousands respecting the subject. "Wherewithal shall we be clothed?" There are many other thousands, how ever, whom this disturbs very little. They have graver subjects. Not able to change with the ebb and flow of fash ion, they are content to be able to wear something to wear. And after all, they are more likely to be healthy than they would be by bending to the moods of others' wills. The rapid changes in dress to which fashion invites our patronage are demoralizing and unhealthy as well as silly a means of expressing true beauty. There are some styles that may be observed and followed with impunity—indeed with profit. Among them are those of industry, activity and frugality.

The ice of winter leaves on some what embarrassed, but the sunlight will put on her beautiful, her gorgeous robes, she will invite us to pattern her style of consistency and practicability, and teach us to set the liberty powers at once to work and make much of the opportunities of the season. The exercise required in the long winter may now be brought into use, whether they be mental, physical or religious.

There are thousands who have been converted during the past year, whose strength is to be tried by the fiery sun of contact with old haunts and new temptations. It will be well for them to "let their light so shine" that others may serve the Lord in the turning of many to righteousness.

GRADY VS CABLE.

In the April Century Magazine, Henry W. Grady replies to Geo. W. Cable's article in the January number, "The Freedmen's Case in Equity." In his paper, Mr. Cable said much in such a strong way, to such a correct logic, that the reple has "stuck in the throat" of the South all this time; now it is making an effort to cough it up. Mr. Cable talks like a man; Mr. Grady, like a woman; Mr. Cable like an American, Mr. Grady like a Southern American; Mr. Cable in sound logic, Mr. Grady in sophistry. Mr. Grady assumes to know whereof he speaks better than Mr. Cable, because Mr. Cable's parents were northerners, and because Mr. Cable wrote in 1882, "To be in New England would be enough for me. I was once there—a year ago—and it seems as if I had never been home till then." Mr. Grady intimates that Mr. Cable has spoken unadvisedly and unwarrantably with reference to the South-ern people. He says he has heard no such talk as Mr. Cable ascribes to the Southern folks, but if it had been related he seems to believe he would have heard it. He has, however, heard much on this opposite side. In not this good reason for us to suppose that he has not heard much on Mr. Cable's side? Is it says the South can manage its race question very well; at least it has done so for ten years. He gives to the public from the peaceful south one very important fact that has come to pass in the least murky to us; that the "people of the United States have, by their suffrages, remitted to the Southern people (not the Democratic party) control of the race question." The magnanimous Northern democrats and boasting independents have signed this love for a while. He says the republicans did three things for the negro; that was as bait before God to do. They came to a halt before the Cable's inevitable—the disregard of race lines. They freed the negro; they enfranchised him and they protected him in their rights, so far as they could, but seeing that the task would not submit to the latter outrage of their especial tastes and tendencies. Though they had promised to being disprived of their slaves and to having those slaves turned upon them in after the power of panoplied American voters, they could not allow them their civil rights. Yet the South, denying the negro his civil rights, is competent to manage it.

Mr. Grady's argument reminds us of the satirical utterance of William Lloyd Garrison against the Hungarian patriot, Kossuth, as a mere Hungarian; nothi g more. Mr. Grady's line of argument consists of the following chief corner-stones: First, the South is a distinctive section of the United States, marked by a definite cord, and characterized by essential and classified ory rights. Others may moralize and lament, but their advice will be kindly heard, but cannot be received unless it says to the South, "You are all right; if we were you, we would do as you do." Secondly, the white man of the South is the South, perforce of his intellectual, moral and pecuniary standing. Thirdly, the South is the South, perforce of its white ties and looms of civilization thine, the "South," a territory absolutely a part of this great government, can manufacture its own distinct kinds of cloth at once, under similar surroundings, with perfect freedom in the realms of laisiprudence, with all the inspirations of religion, so that let alone by extraneous forces, one side of the fabric will never be found in the fabric of the other, for a time even. Fourthly, that there is a race instinct, which, let alone by Northern influences, will forever prevent race mingling, arresting at once the unphysical and constitutional forces, centralizing the races, respectively, about certain important interests; repelling all encroachments.

Mr. Grady shows the earnestness of the South—that is, the white people of the South—in the past, by the colored people by the favors accorded them in schools, separate, good cars, fair trials in courts, juries, juries, etc. But Mr. Grady seems to forget that the same misguiding Northerners and the regular movements of the rushing flood tide of American progress compelled these very conditions upon the South, and forced them seery step under the pro test of the South; that the matter alone of respectable separate cars had been wrenched by the colored people under the protection of men who have agreed with Mr. Cable, in part. That the people of his own, the South, have stood and seen poor defenceless colored ladies driven from respectable railroad depot quarters again and again without a demurrer, till sentiment was created by strident results of the "horrible war." Mr. Grady, no doubt, speaks for many, many more Southerners than does Mr. Cable, but "who is wiooing? Who is losing?" Will the better sentiment of our country, the better sentiment of our civilization, the better sentiment of the world, the best sentiment of God almighty allow this occutural secret power to make a shelter and final success? If so then "has the offence of the cross ceased," the charity of the great Christ has been wasted in a useless and impracticable experiment, and our view of our American race history is a mirage. If the human race is sunk into the sloughs of Caucasian pre. Africa ought not to be a subject of missionary efforts, for it cannot change its skin; Asia is a mistake and the United States is a blunder. The negro is the largest mistake ever introduced by the South—for what? In the name of common sense how is the aided system to be maintained in the South, under the light of the ages, and the declarations of Mr. Cleveland?

To the subject of amalgamation we pay no attention; it is too contemptible a topic to discuss; not because of any argument on the race instinct topic, but because of the shameful mockery and the perverse reasonings, by which in the very face of a degrading and revolting amalgamation, this miserable subter. fuge is bubbled, and, because of this shamefulness, continued away beyond the date when the rapidity of the white man could turn the gratification at his horrid taste into gain, by selling his two amalgamated blood. This is not the South has stamped the American people irrevocably with the degraded blood. Within the present generation there have some of these very amalgams found their way into the ranks of human beings, if, they have been known as whites, and are helping to increase the "dumleunt" race. This cannot now be stopped. The work has been too well done. It may be a deplorable fact, but it is also an unalterable one.

It is an impossible for Mr. Grady, by the assistance of all the experts that can be acquired, to actually draw the race line so as to absolutely separate the sheep on the right hand and all the goats on the left.

The reference which Mr. Grady makes to the experience of Bishop Haven in Atlanta takes us too far back, near the smoke of battle; yet, of course it must be acknowledged as garmain. As to several facts, it is a fair illustration of the existing status of our country, but is it right? Will it forever pertain? Can it forever pertain? Ought it forever pertain? The colored minister quoted by Mr. Grady said some things in that speech which elicited much applause, but were not in good taste and did not represent the church whose Christian greetings he was authorized to bear to the M E. Church, South They can be no shame that we are advancing. That is both races, in respect to the associate powers and duties of every race-varieties. As a matter of fact we have little time to deal with the shadows of the past. The "coming" events that cast their shadows before" us, we trust, so revolutionize our minds, that we shall see how to walk with man, if not to walk with God.

OUR SPRING CONFERENCES

Draw near. April 8th, Virginia Conference, Wytheville, Va.; April 21rd, New Jersey Conference, Burlington; May 6th, Baltimore Conference, Harve-de Grace; June 4th, New England Conference, New Bedford; June 25th, New York Conference, Buffalo. Churches will please get a good deal of work before these conference meet. Records will be examined, members will be called to account, probationers will be made full members, churches will think about changes that may take place in their pastorates and ministers, of wide and open fields of labor are already ripe for their labors. After all, there are many unpleasant circumstances attending this life of ceaseless action. There is probably no other one where more interesting to the minister then that of the consideration of the divine recognition that has been given him. If he has had the satisfaction of hearing, but God has been pleased to acknowledge him as his workman, he possesses a gift more valuable than all beans, gifts. The souls impressed, convicted, converted by his labors may not all inform him of the service he has done for them, but God will not mocked by them. This is a minister has gone to a large appointment buoyant, but has left it woefully depressed. Many a young minister has gotten his heaven on the appointment where he "could make something," but has been glad to leave it with soul and body unbroken. Any appointment is large enough for any minister to whom it affords as much as he can do. Large charges are too small for those who can do this. As anxious as heathen become to go to large charges, large charge men are very rare. The fact is, the responsibility of 500 to 2000 members, and the get from 1000 to 5,000 souls, so far as religious instruction goes, have burdened many brave men and have done well, and only full souls can supply well. To the pastors of these charges, in the pages, appropriate to the month, "The Law-maker" contains an amusing chapter on the pranks of the bees, and "The Law-makers" contains an amusing chapter on the pranks of the bees, and "The Law-makers" contains an amusing chapter on the pranks of the bees, and "The Law-makers

THE BALTIMORE CONFERENCE.

To the Ministers of the Baltimore Annual Conference of the A. M. E. Church: Rev. and Dear Brethren—Having been assigned by the Bishops at their meeting, held in Washington, D. C., March 12 1885, to hold the next session of your conference, which is appointed to meet in Havre de Grace, Md., on Wednesday, May 6, 1885, I therefore desire to give a few notes as that the members may be prepared. The conference will meet at 9 o'clock A. M. The annual sermon will be preached by Rev. Wm. D. W. Schureman at 4 o'clock P. M. The annual missionary sermon will be preached at 4:30 o'clock Friday afternoon by Rev. Francis J. Peck. The educational and missionary meetings will be held at such times as the Secretaries (if present) may arrange.

In order to accommodate the members of the church, friends and the many applications of the late Bishop Dickerson, I suggest that memorial services be held in Bethel, Baltimore, on Thursday afternoon, May 7, 1885.

I shall spend the most of the time between this and the conference visiting the work, as you will see by my list of appointments. A. W. WAYMAN.

Baltimore, March 14, 1885.

AGENTS WANTED.

Will our pastors who are not supplying the BECORDER to their people, please do so by sending for a package to be sent weekly? occurs in the appreciations of a wholesily. And yet the wild waste of disease startles no one. Sad to relate, women suffer from year to year with these diseases and weaknesses peculiar to their sex, knowing that they are growing worse with every day, and still take no measures for their cure. Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is the result of life long and learned study of female complaints. It is guaranteed to cure.

DON'T EAT IN A HURRY.

A health journal says that people ought to allow three quarters of an hour for dinner. This is well if there is enough dinner to hold out so long. The penalty for hurrying meals, as the people do, is a grievous attack of dyspepsia. In such a case we will have to resort to Brown's Iron Bitters for cure, and did so before the druggist at the Depot. Ala., who writes, "I loned relief in Brown's Iron Bitters after years of suffering from dyspepsia."

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "bright as a button." It is perfectly harmless to the most tender infant, effectually relieves wind, regulates the stomach and bowels, and by giving rest and health to the child, operates like magic. Mothers will find it the best remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

SECRETARIES AND ASSISTANT SECRETARIES OF THE ANNUAL CONFERENCES OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH, IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD!

The General Conference of 1884, among other things, elected me as one of its statisticians; but the labors be ore me as Bishop and the lamentable demise of our beloved Bishop Dickerson, will preclude the possibility of my scanning the statistics of the various annual conferences and making a correct consolidation of our statistics. Hall's Hair Renewer.

The best way to prevent the baldness falling out, is to use Hall's Hair Renewer; it will restore the color and vitality of youth to the hair, and, used as a dressing, will render the hair soft, pliant, and glossy. Mrs. L. H. Storey, Portsmith, R. I., writes: "I used Hall's Hair Renewer after a long illness, and it not only checked the falling out of my hair, and stimulated a new growth, but has also restored it to its original color." Mrs. C. B. Staples, Remsbush, Me., writes: "Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer is the best and cleanest dressing for the hair I ever used. It keeps the hair and scalp in a healthy condition, and removes every trace of dandruff from it. I should scarcely know what to do without the Renewer."

By the use of Hall's Hair Renewer, the hair may be restored to its color, in all its youthful vigor and beauty. Mrs. Ann M. Thompson, Somerville, Mass., writes: "I have used Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer for the past thirty years, and my hair is as vigorous and glossy as when I was twenty. I am now 65 years of age." Mrs. A. E. Bobbins, Warsaw, Ill., writes: "My hair began to grow thin and gray when I was thirty years of age. By using Hall's Hair Renewer, I was soon in possession of a heavy growth of hair. The color was restored, and by the occasional use of the Renewer, in the last twenty years, I have been able to keep my hair in its present healthy condition. It is the most satisfactory dressing I have ever used."

RUMORS OF WAR.

While China is cooing France more than she is bargaining to pay, Russia and England are exchanging grim looks, Africa is a lion's pawfull. America seems inclined to imitate the other great powers by standing by and by her alliance, Nicaragua, against the pretentious movement of Barrios. It is all in the day's work. Sighing believers; hard for plain folks to understand, but clear enough to these commanding.

THE CHURCHES IN several of the Atlantic States will have many pastoral changes during the next three months. There are many things in forming relations with pastors which require much care. Among them we may mention the following:

1. The preparation. Every Methodist society should prepare during the conference session to have a new minister; though the old pastor returns, he feels happy on being informed that a new minister would be. Parsonages are to be prayed and hoarts are arrayed to receive whom the Bishop sends.

2. The reception itself. Too often if we forgot the little acts of courtesy, to say nothing of duty, that may prove the basis of a successful pastoral year's work, for the people, the pastor and wife. The stewards or their representatives meeting the new pastor at the station helps him to feel cheerful. To conduct him to comfortable quarters and give him whatever service he needs is not labor wasted on a right-minded, consideratemminister. How unbecoming it must be for members to treat their new pastor coolly because he is a new man; because he is not the man they were expecting, or because some one has said something against him.

3. Co-operation. A cheerful associativeness on the part of the people enables the pastor to learn his people, their wants and powers, and renders the work light and more pleasant.

4. Performance of vows. How often we forget both the vows made on becoming full members of the church and those indicated when our church buildings are dedicated. We agree to accept our ministers and to support the church irrespective of any favoritism as to minister. These vows should be very sacred.

5. The variety in the ministry. The ministry is composed of men differing in temperament and education, and as much as the same number in any other profession.

6. The itinerancy. This system of church supply is chosen by much the best soldist bodies and is, in fact, one of the fundamental principles of Methodist polity. Upon this some one has said: "Every minister takes his place, knowing that it is but four years at most and not two or three in all probability. Every congregation is supposed to be prepared that the minister is not likely to remain more than from one to three years, and that it is not always possible to move him just when some of them feel tired of him.

7. Christian charity. This is the best gift from the minister to his people, from the people to their ministers, and from God to both.

ELMIRA, NEW YORK, is where the celebrated Brockway State Reformatory is located. In the North American Review for April, Charles Dudley Warner describes this institution, and others, under the head of "Prison Management." Just now, when the subject of convict labor is the topic of extensive consideration in many minds, Mr. Warner's paper is doubly interesting. It gives especial attention to the prevalent custom of paying them so to crime on the one hand, by the holidays, extra dinners and floral gifts, so common on the part of tender-hearted men and women, actuated by a kind sentiment; and, on the other hand, to the severity of the contract system. The chief differentiating feature of the Elmira Reformatory are, 1. The grading rule, by which a prisoner may make his bad hard or soft, comparative. The prisoners are educated, particularly in morals. The whole treatment, as the name indicates, is intended to reform as well as punish. We noticed but few colored persons there, and none at the trades. We were anxious to know why nearly all the colored prisoners were in the domestic department, and were informed that they seemed to like that work and seemed adapted to it. Yet in reply to a question as to whether prisoners were allowed to select their employment, our guard said they were not, as this would seem to be a kinding partiality. Cursed men in the kitchen, dinning-room, laundry, etc., but why should they be known forever by the face of color? The Chinaman works in the brush-shop. We inquired why he was not in the laundry, and were told that he was too quarrelsome. Wicked, the institution has undertaken a great work and is succeeding very well. We have not seen a class of prisoners anywhere else looking so cheerful as those at Elmira. There are over six hundred in the establishment. Readers will do well to read the April North American Review.

THE PRESIDING ELDERSHIP seems to meet, with varying fortunes in the different conferences. In some of the older, ripar sections of the Church it is not exceedingly popular, while in others it is respected. New York has already elected one bishop from that part of the patorate. That is, has made pastors presiding elders. This has been done in the two Ohio and the Pittsburg conferences; and the Kansas strange seems to favor it in the Virginia Conference. He is thoroughly experienced in the presiding elder's duties, therefore does not speak unadvisedly.

There are some smoog us who think that the district plan of Episcopal supervision and the presiding eldership are incompatible. There can be no doubt that in nearly all our work there is work for the presiding elder that is a kind that can be attended to by pastors. Its assists in unifying the modes of action in respect to performing official and religious services. He assists in having prosperity generally secured. He instructs young ministers in their work. He opens new work. He effects changes in the location of conference sessions more easily than could otherwise be done. He is a sort of bond between people and pastor, and thus sometimes saves many a trouble. Even with our present system of Episcopal supervision he may render a considerable aid to the bishops and to the Bishops in the matter of appointments.

With these and other facts before us, and especially with the trial of but one year, we should be somewhat slow to condemn the system in general because we find it impracticable in one conference. Personally we have never felt much enthusiasm for the system; yet we feel that there may be much good in it.

General Grant, in his paper on "Shiloh," written for the February Century, scouts the idea that his army was in a defenseless condition at the battle on the first day of the battle. He says that before the battle he had taken the position, he had given orders to his division commanders to attack at daybreak on the morning of the 6th. The close of the first day he says: "General Lew Wallace's fresh troops had not reached me, and was placed on the right. This division was the only except slightly in time to be of material service to the gallant men who saved Shiloh on that first day's memorable battle." He does not the time of the capture of General Prentiss and his command, about four o'clock in the afternoon, as he himself has told Prentiss at that hour, "when his division was driven in firmly; and that the general was as cool as if he had been inspecting drill."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, April 4, 1885.

Mr. Cleveland has now been President one month, and for ought any one can prove to the contrary, is, for the most part, his own master still. He has had much to bear in that brief time. No President ever had stronger pressure for place. Crowds of shrewd, persistent, plausible men, who were well and full church was resonant with one grand symphonic of child and adult song and garlanded with most exquisitely arranged flowers, crosses, anchors, and rosettes, trellises, pinnacles and arches. That wonderful contrivr of song as well as wonderful singer, the pastor, managed the hundred voices with almost the dexterity and nicety with which a harper does his instrument. Bishop Walk preached an eloquent sermon in the morning, and gave a soul-stirring address to the four hundred children and young persons assembled in the evening. The evening session was the Sunday school's grand jubilee. The cause of missions was as faithfully attended to as were the songs and flowers.

THE UNEXPECTED death of Mrs. Ursula Gould, wife of Mr. Howard D. Gould, formerly chief clerk in the RECORDER office, has cast a very sad gloom over the families of Elder T. Gould and Hans Shadd, Esq., her father, as well as over Bethel Church, of which she was a faithful member, and more especially over the family circle that of the pastor and wife and c mother. The funeral was very largely attended Friday, 3d inst. The sermon was preached by Elder Thompson in a very impressive manner.

WE SPENT Sunday, March 29th, in Elmira, New York. We can but congratulate Elder H. Talbert and the Bethel Band of that city upon their progressive methods of worship and church management. They raised about one hundred dollars. Two persons were received on profession. Elder Talbert is a graduate from the classical department of Wilberforce University. He is one of the men to whom God gives the right training. They are a success. We pray for their church and have paid off over five hundred dollars this year.

Personal.

—Rev. I. Derricks, of Newark, New Jersey, is recovering from severe illness.

—Bishop Cain called at our office in Louisville last week, in good spirits and improving in health.

—The interesting paper of Dr. Shaffer will be continued in our next issue. The Church will be fortified by reading it closely.

—Ex-Manager Gould was called to the city last week by sorrow in his stricken son, Mr. Howard D. Gould, on account of the sudden death of his wife.

—We sincerely trust the statements going the rounds of the press to the disparagement of the Rev. W. Henderson, are entirely unfounded in any conduct of Brother Henderson.

—The Bethel Literary Concert recently exceeded $1,000, of which Allen Chapel received $533.33, and Central Presbyterian received $466.67. The report showed that ticket agents of the church sold $2,000 worth.

—Hon. Frederick Douglass will deliver the chief oration on the day of the celebration of emancipation in the District of Columbia, 15th inst. Mr. Douglass is a man who wears well and grows the higher for it.

—F. T. Lindsey, M.D., agraduate of Howard University, is a candidate for the office of Chief of Police in Xenia, Ohio. We sincerely hope, but very much doubt, his success. For that little city will honor him with an office. Dr. Lindsey will make them a reliable chief of police. He is a scholar in the field, but it is doubtful whether Xenia will acknowledge this fact.

—The March number of The Pulpit of To-day, Minneapolis, Minn., is up-pearing; is fully equal in excellence to its predecessors. The leading sermons are by Rev. Dr. Archibald G. Brown, Henry Ward Beecher and the author of "The Emancipation Century to Century," Arthur Mursell has a lecture on "Ideals," which is characteristically a fine piece of word painting. Rose, Westfield, N. Y.

—Rev. Horace Talbert, A.B., of Elmira, New York, had a grand rally Sunday, 29th inst., to assist in the building of a new church. He will finished payments on the nice, well finished premises on the A. M. E. people worship. Ex-presiding elder Bailey and the editor of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER were with him. There are about seventy-five members; they have paid nearly $300 on their debt this year.

In the city are three churches whose members are colored besides ours; namely: Baptist, Union Methodist and A. M. E. Zion. There is work enough there for one good preacher and one good church among the colored people.

Elmiro is the home of the Rev. Thomas R. Brecher, who, while his brother encouraged young men to support evil in politics, was a devout follower of the veteran Benjomin F. Butler.

Elder Talbert has had a very successful year. The people are hard church workers. Together they should have a very efficient band of Christian Elder Talbert has the right notion of baptizing children. He opposits a Sunday, other than quarterly meeting Sun. day, that he may not have duties so heavy on one day; he makes the day of his service in service and ceremony. We are not quite sure that he would not be quite as correct to speak of baptizing instead of christening. No wonder we are told that there is a special interest in immersion, when so many of us call this baptism, and sprinkling christening.

EASTER SUNDAY was duly celebrated in the midst of our churches in the East. More and more are Protestants visiting with Catholics in recognition of this glorious day. The churches in Philadelphia and near cities were wreathed and garlanded and chorated. We spent the morning service with Elder McCoy, at Morris Brown Mission, Philadelphia, the latter part of the day and the evening with Elder Beckett, in Wilmington, Delaware, where the nicest brass band places of amusement lie children will do the same, and being weaker, they are overcome by the tempter and are led to decide between them. He says seats well, digests well, sleeps well, and gives smiles sometimes.

Of course, the spoilsmen are disappointed with President's slow way of distributing the offices. They expected an immediate and sensational shaking up. "clean out the Augean stables." But there is another class of Democrats who value the Civil Service and has done much in the last few weeks, that he has inspired confidence in his integrity. To the victors more and that he will do most things well. The new Administration has done some sweeping, however, and has undertaken to find out where the sweeping most needs to be done. Some sweeping has been found in all the executive departments. The Treasury has the greatest redundancy of clerks, and large reductions are contemplated when the reserve appointments can be made to receive fitulates its work. One hundred employés were discharged during the week, and seven of the leading officers were asked to resign. The latter are to be immediately replaced by Democrats.

It is interesting to note the criticisms of the different parties and factions as to the President's first act of Executive position, he had given orders to his commanders to attack at day-break on the morning of the 6th. The close of the first day he says: "General Lew Wallace's fresh troops had not reached me, and was placed on the right. This division was the only except slightfalliant men who saved Shiloh on that the time of the capture of General Prentiss and his command, about four o'clock in the afternoon, as he himself has told Prentiss at that hour, "when his division was driven in firmly; and that the general was as cool as if he had been inspecting drill."

WHAT THE CHURCH OWES TO ITS CHILDREN.

A PAPER READ BEFORE THE MINISTERS' ASSOCIATION OF CHICAGO.

BY REV. G. H. SHAFFER, M. D.

The church is to the children within its pale what the community where it is situated: what the family circle is to the children of a family. Man is a social being. Every child is a man or woman in embryo. Every child is a unit in the social mass. Every child is a factor under the seal. And as the child is influenced for good or evil by the conduct, words and deeds of those about him, his surroundings, so the children of the church are influenced by the moral, religious and intellectual status of the church and by the whole influences they are brought and with which they are associated. As these early impressions are the more enduring, and usually decide the future course and destiny of the child, and make the man or woman what they are, we can readily see what immense responsibilities the subject under discussion places upon the church. This responsibility where it justly belongs if it does not make the church a power for directing and influencing cause. The Church is the medium through which the families of the earth are to be saved, and outside of Christian civilization, the Christian church is our strongest and best saving influence, so then it is to the church that we must look for this health-giving and saving power.

The Church is composed of individuals and families, and these, in their aggregate, wields a wonderful influence over society and make up the current and general and individual conduct and grave great license to their acts. It is the true guardian of the morals of the community, and thus through the family circle makes the children what they are, in a moral, physical, intellectual, and spiritual respect; Godly or Godless, earnest and devoted or careful, hypocritical or true and honest, worldly or unwise, learned or illiterate, healthful or diseased, increasing in the physical, moral and intellectual, religious or skeptical, spiritual or cold and formal, philanthropic or conniving and stingy, honest and upright or dishonest and immoral, worldly-minded or Christlike, peacemakers or peace breakers of the Sabbath day and lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God. Wherever a church or community of Christians hold their religious obligations loosely and love pleasure more than they do Christ and the place of amusement more than the house of God, you will find their children hard to control, careless and lax in their conduct and attendance upon the church or Sunday school; if brought into the church at all, hard to keep and almost sure to fall away and often be lost from the flock of servants.

If the church patronize all sorts of

THE MEN WE NEED AND MUST HAVE.

BY BISHOP TURNER.

MR. EDITOR:—Having just completed my little book, rather one upon which I have been working for a time, and having resolved to defer work upon the other until after the Providence pamphlet, I thought I would drop you a few lines upon what I regard as important questions.

The times are evil. The Church is in danger. Christianity is losing ground on the wane, and it is useless to deny or diminish the statement. Facts confront us at every step. God lives, reigns, but his operates and saves men through human agency. The mouth of the preacher is the mouth of God; when the preacher speaks, God speaks; when he preaches in death, God is dumb. Infinite wisdom might have ordered the lightning flash to be the herald of salvation, and bid the thunder's bellowing to make the giant tempest proclaim the word. He might have painted his manifestos on the midnight heavens with the reddest blaze of the darkness, and placed his wrath in showers of sky, built rainbows for his throne, and yet he was not best for man. He selected the imperfect agency of human speaking as the best for the world. Inasmuch as he has selected this agency, he has made it the most important one in the world. Hence, we must have men who can preach, men who can speak the word of God with power and unction, or we must fail. Now, if the Church is in danger, and it is, and if the danger is from the want of preachers, and it is, then Just now, when the subject of convict labor is receiving so extensive consideration in many States, Mr. Warner's paper is doubly interesting. It gives special attention to the prevalent custom of paying tribute to crime on the one hand, by the bolidays, extra dinners and floral gifts, so common on the part of tender-hearted men and women, actuated by a kind sentiment; and, on the other hand, to the severity of the contract system. The chief differentiating feature of the Elmira Reformatory are, 1. The gradation rule, by which a prisoner may make his bed hard or soft, comparatively. The prisoners are educated, particularly in morals. The whole treatment, as the name indicates, is intended to reform as well as punish. We noticed but few colored persons there, and none at the trades. We were anxious to know why nearly all the colored prisoners were in the domestic department, and were informed that they seemed to like that work and seemed adapted to it. Yet in reply to a question as to whether prisoners were allowed to select their employment, our guard said they were not, as this would seem to be showing partiality. Colored men in the kitchen, dinning-room, laundry, &c., but why should they be shown favor because of race of color? The Chinaman works in the brush-shop; we inquired why he was not in the laundry, and were told that he was too quarrelsome. Withal, the institution has undertaken a great work and is succeeding very well. We have not room to dwell upon an anywhere else looking so cheerful as those at Elmira. There are ever six hundred in the establishment. Readers will do well to read the April North American Review.

THE PRESIDING ELDERSHIP seems to mean, with varying fortune in the different conferences. In some of the older and riper sections of the Church it is not exceedingly popular, while in others it is unspeakably so. New York has already merged the office into that of the pastorate. That is, he made pastors presiding elders. This has been done in the two Ohio and the Pittsburg conferences; also Elder Strange seems to favor it in the Virginia Conference. His thoroughly experienced in the presiding elder office, therefore does not speak unadvisedly.

There are some among us who think that the district plan of Episcopal supervision and the presiding eldership are incompatible. There can be little doubt that in nearly all our work there is room for the presiding elder also, but not likely to be attended to by pastors. He assists in unifying the modes of action in respect to performing official and religious services, and in encouraging property properly deeded. He instructs young ministers in their work. He opens up new work. He effects changes in the interim of conference sessions more easily than would otherwise be done. He is a sort of bond between people and pastor, and thus sometimes saves much trouble. Even with present system of Episcopal supervision he may render a considerable aid to the churches and to the Bishops in the matter of appointments.

With these and other facts before us, and unpredisposed with the trial of but one year, we should be somewhat slow to condemn the system in general because we find it impracticable in one conference. Personally we have never had much enthusiasm for the system; yet we feel that there may be much good in it.

THE APRIL NUMBER of the A. M. E. Church Review contains articles by Prof. T. McCants Stewart, Bishop D. A. Payne, Wm. E. Matthews, Esq., Prof. Ellis Elliot, Jesse Lawson, LL.B., Prof W. H. Crogman, M. A., Rev. C. T. Shaffer, Parker T. Smith, Esq., Prof. D. A. Straker, Rev. C. O. H. Thomas, Rev. J. C. Cooper and Rev. L. J. Coppin. The editorials, "Our Book Table," and "Our Reviews" are good and strong.

The frontispiece is an elegant photograph of Bishop Dickerson, the finest picture of the Bishop extant. This is followed by a classic pen-picture of the Bishop by Prof. T. McCants Stewart. Bishop D. A. Payne treats in his usual earnest, simple, but analytic and conscientious style, "The Past, Present and Future of the A. M. E. Church." W. E. Matthews writes on the "Condition of Money as a Factor in Human Progress" in a style stronger, if not so elegant, than Henry Ward Beecher's "Ministry of Wealth." "A Comparison of Wesley and Swedenborg" is Rev. Parker T. Smith's second paper on this subject. He does not attempt to give the lions of divergence in the two great leaders. "The Centennial of Methodism in America" is by Rev. C. T. Shaffer. It contains many facts of gratification. "Americus Statesmen," by Jesse Lawson, is a very readable article. Rev. C. O. H. THE REV. HORACE TALBERT, A.B., of Elmira, New York, had a grand rally Sunday, 29th inst., to assist in meeting payments on the new and finished edifice in which the A. M. E. people worship. Expressiding elder Talbert, and the editor of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER were present with him. There are about seventy-five members; they have paid nearly $500 on their debt this year.

In the city are three churches whose members are colored besides ours namely: Baptist, Union Methodist and A. M. E. Zion. There is work enough there for one good preacher and one good church among the colored people.

Elmira is the home of the Rev. Thomas K. Beecher, who, while his brother encouraged young men to support evil in politics, was a dev. ot follower of the veteran Benjamin F. Butler.

Elder Talbert has had a very successful year. The people are hard church workers. Together they should be a very efficient band of Christians. Elder Talbert has the right notion of baptizing children. He appoints a Sunday, other than quarterly meeting Sunday, that he may have more time and be heavy on one day; he makes the day effective in service and ceremony. We are not quite sure that he would not be quite as correct to speak of baptizing instead of christening. No wonder we are told that there is a special interest in immersion, when so many of us call this baptism, and sprinkling christening.

EASTER SUNDAY was duly celebrated in the most of our churches in the East. More and more are Protestants vieing with Catholics in recognition of this glorious day. The churches in Philadelphia and near cities were wreathed and garlanded and chorsled. We spent the morning service with Elder McCoy, at Morris Brown Mission, Philadelphia, the latter part of the day and the evening with Elder Beckett, in Wilmington, Delaware, where the always beautiful church was resonant with one grand symphonic of child and adult song and garlanded with most exquisitely arranged flowers, crosses, anchors, and rosettes, trellises, pinnacles and arches. That wonderful coorinier of song as well as wonderful singer, the pastor, managed the thousand voices with almost the dexterity and nicety with which a harper plays his instrument. Bishop Cain preached an eloquent sermon in the morning and gave a soul-stirring address to the four hundred children and young persons assembled in the evening. The evening session was the Sunday school's grand jubilee. The cause of missions was so faithfully attended to as were the songs and flowers.

THE UNEXPECTED death of Mrs. Urenia Gould, wife of Mr. Howard D. Gould, formerly chief clerk in the RECORDER office, has cast a very sad gloom over the families of Elder T. Gould and Hon. Shadd, Esq., her father, as well as over Bethel Church, of which she was a consistent member, and over many outside of the same. Some sweeping has been found in all the executive departments. The Treasury has the greatest redundancy of clerks, and large reductions are contemplated when the recently appointed investigating committee finishes its work. One hundred employes were discharged during the week, and seven of the leading officers were asked to resign. It is interesting to note the criticisms of the different parties and factions as they follow each other in the political pantalien. When a Commissioner of Internal Revenue was selected from West Virginia, the Randall men about the Capitol shouted that they ran the administration. When Higgins was selected for Appointment clerk of the Treasury, everybody who was not a Democrat or Gorman obtain control of Federal appointments. The appointment of civil service reform was to be abandoned. Soon the President failed to appoint Mr. Thompson as Minister to any office, notwithstanding the fact that he was one of the leaders of his party, they said that the Administration had failed to protection, and opposed to tariff reform. Now the appointment of Pearson is nominated for Postmaster of New York, and the Democratic Senate, the Republicans talk about so much civil service reform that earlier reformers say Mr. Cleveland is coming up to their views and expectations.

A politician was explaining to me not long ago about Mr. Colman's nomination to the Commissioner of Agriculture in connection with the President's discharge of pressure from Congressional delegations. He said no one knew Mr. Colman was a man who was likely to get anything. He was simply a Missourians were fine fighting among themselves as to who should have the present system of Episcopal supervision, but he may render a considerable aid to the churches and to the Bishops in the matter of appointments.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, April 4, 1885.

Mr. Cleveland has now been President one month, and for aught any one can prove to the contrary, is, for the most part, his own master still. He has had much to bear in that brief time. No President ever had stronger pressure for place. Crowds of shrewd, persistant politicians have assaulted him daily, almost hourly. He has had to listen to the tiresome acrimonious diagnose of rival party leaders, and he has had to decide between them. He still eats well, digests well, sleeps well, and even smiles sometimes.

Of course, the spoilsmen are disappointed with the President's slow way of distributing the offices. They expected to immediate and sensational attempt to "clean out the Augean stables." But there is another class of democrats who think that Cleveland has done much in the last four weeks, that he has practically confined to his purpose to do much more and that he will do most things well. The new Administration has done some sweeping, however, and has undertaken to do more when the sweeping must be done, to be done. Some sweeping has been found in all the executive departments. The Treasury has the greatest redundancy of clerks, and large reductions are contemplated when the recently appointed investigating committee finishes its work. One hundred employes were discharged during the week, and seven of the leading officers were asked to resign. Better new than less to be immediately replaced by Democrats.

THE CATHOLIC CHURCH AND THE REPUBLIC.

The Catholic Church feels very forcibly the awful weight of its duty to the nation and responsibility as well as the force of this truth, and does not shift the responsibility to the shoulders of civil authorities, as is too largely the custom of the Protestant Church, but connects it with every church and in every parish, and often a forerunner of their church, you will find a parochial school of their faith, where the religious training of the children is made as much as the mental power, and the schools are the feeders of the church, and the church should look after the mental training of its children.

The Catholic Education is the foundation of a better and future life, without which no church can expect to do anything great or good in the way of permanent and reliable results, for in-stead of the mere head knowledge, judgment, instinct and passion, appeals to the heart, and will be a controlling and ruling principles of life.

There is no question in my mind but that the Protestant churches have too largely thrown this great and important responsibility upon the state-paid school boards, too often composed of ignorant and unprincipled men, whose zeal and women, who care more for dollars than for souls. The public school system is undoubtedly a great epic means to this end, if properly conducted, but the responsibility of handing it over to unbelievers, infidels and Christless authorities and opposers of the Bible, is to imperil the liberal education of all. And what is more dangerous than to have the stamp the impress of Christianity upon the public institutions as a necessary appendage, and not stamped on the coin of his day. Then enforce such a training upon every child within the reach of her influence even though it may be in opposition to the wishes of parents, that all may be able to read the Bible and carefully search the Scriptures for the means of eternal life as revealed therein and learn to live without an excuse.

Let the world after truth, whether in science or religion, is an approach to God, for God is truth.

II.—THE CHURCH IS RESPONSIBLE FOR THE MORAL TRAINING OF HER CHILDREN.

This is the right side of the framework of the intricate building and the foundation of the whole religious and moral culture correspond to the cornerstone that support the bridge or keep a derrick in position for the most massive weights are piled. We may begin to train a child when it is born, or even before, while it is enfolded in a few years old, but through the years it may impress and influence this even before it is born, by future generations. But in a moral sense, she may begin to train the unborn infant even before it is born. The church should begin to train the child as soon as it is born, and the church should begin to train the child as soon as it is born, and the church should begin to train the child as soon as it is born, and the

A negro attacked with bright's Disease, or any kidney disease, don't want fine words—but its congeror Hunt's (Kidney and Liver) Remedy.

We must tell of the great specific—Hunt's (Kidney and Liver) Remedy. It never fails to cure the Diabetes, Dropsy, Bright's Disease, &c.

The Supreme Court has unanimously framed the constitutionality of the Edmunds Anti-Mormon act.

By lack of open air exercise, and the want of sufficient care in the matter of diet, the whole physical mechanism often becomes impaired through the torpor. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the proper remedy to take in the spring of the year to purify the blood, invigorate the system, excite the liver to action, and restore the healthy tone and vigor.

Several more guests of the Lashham Hotel at Chicago are missing and are supposed to have perished.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound strengthens the stomach and kidneys and all the digestion. Is equally good for both sexes.

Charles W. Gould, of Elgin, Ill., the largest importer of lemons and lemon cheese in the United States, has failed.

It cntivate all—Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Joe Coss, the famous pugilist, died in Boston on Monday.

Fortify your blood, tone up the system, and regulate the digestive organs by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

Tree-planting is systematically fostered in China, and during the year 1881 330 000 trees were planted in Hong Kong alone.

MINISTERING TO MINDS DISEASED

Parker's Tonic scrubbes the blood by aiding digestion and assimilation of food; and then cures the nervous and mental depression incident to dyspepsia.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nerve and Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper, W. A. NOYES, 149 Power's Block, Rochester, N. Y.

A PIECE TO SUCCEED.—Mrs. Wheeler (rocking cradle)—"Now, Mr. Wheeler, you must keep baby entirely quiet. It suffers the little children to come unto me, it produces catarrh, cures sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little church exclaims as it caught at a button." It is very pleasant to take. It soothes the child, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Important Discoveries

are made by scientists, from time to time, which astonish the world, but there has been no discovery, in medicine or medicine, more important than that of Ayer's Compound Extract of Sarsaparilla, which has restored health and strength to thousands. Hon. Peter Lindenberger, Pensacola, Fla., writes: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured me of Liver and Bilious troubles, when everything else failed." The usefulness of the wire is not a more positive proof of the electric current, than are pimples and boils of the contamination of the blood by impure matter. Albert H. Stoddard, 59 Rock st., Lowell, Mass., says: "For years my blood has been in a bad condition. The circulation was so feeble that I suffered cruelly from soreness of the feet and legs; I was afflicted with boils. After taking three bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla my blood circulates freely, and I have no boils or unwholesome." Like an shock, the pains of Rheumatism dart through the body. Rheumatism is a blood disease, and can be made an effective treatment. Charles Foster, 370 Atlantic ave., Boston, Mass., writes: "I was severely afflicted and treated by Rheumatism. I tried a variety of remedies, with little benefit, until I began using Ayer's Sarsaparilla. This helped me, and, at the end of the fifth bottle, I was entirely cured." Miss A. Atwood, 121 I. st., South Boston, Mass., says: "I have been ill a long time, from poverty of the blood and abscesses.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Sarsaparilla has had the effect of toning me up. Under its use I am fast gaining color, appetite, and strength."

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., U. S. A.

"WRITE."

The faithful and true messages of God, sometimes uttered in his especially chosen scribes, are the guides of the ages. Paul's, James', John's, Jude's and Peter's letters to the world were the high standards of centuries. With different force and of different character we have the writings of the fathers and reformers, the revivalists and organizers in the Christian ages.

To-day, if our Church would, without blunder, but with solemn earnestness, without a new doctrine, but through 1st. thousand traveling and local preachers, fill the air with a condensation of important facts relative to personal, political, social and religious life in respect to being, feeling, thinking and doing, it would multiply its powers far good by a very large number in short 2d. snapshots at a cost of one cent apiece would often do more good than a thousand dollars spent in some other ways.

Every minister of ours who has gone to fifteen hundred souls could acquire for a few dollars the copygram, the 3d. hectograph, typewriter or the stencil-graph, to say nothing of hand-presses, can be obtained for very small sums of money. They can be used with comparatively little skill and slight experience. The synopsis of a sermon or a lecture, the week's news, short statements, explanatory of our views of polity and our relationships, directions for reading, studying, etc. All of these things and many more can be successfully done in this way.

UNION.

Dr. Jenifer calls the committee ordered by the General Conference to meet with a similar committee appointed by the General Conference of the Z. A. M. E. Church, in confer on the subject of union between the two branches of Methodism.

The talk of union is the talk of Christianity but not of probability. There is little doubt of the tendency of Christianity to unity, at the same time there is a large and strong tendency in humanity to division. The union, the real, soul-deep union of these two bodies, would be a fruitful source of good, but any forced union or superficial agreement would be baneful.

The divergence was made upon real or imaginary principles, the complete union must rest as truly on principle. The self-acting forces that underlie sect aggregation are exceedingly subtle and deep seated. They are a matter of income by superficial fallacy, nor even eradicated by direct logic. The work of destroying the old centre-germ in each sect and establishing a new one is a very hard. Prejudices of scores of years are to be overcome, pride of as great an age is to be smothered; ambition that has waited long for laurels is to be satisfied. Preferences of long standing are to be maintained, and, in short, love is to be created, marriage settled, the two are to become one, but neither is to be the one. All talk of uniting two large sayways nearly equal bodies of men under the name previously borne by either of them and without concession on the part of both is almost idle. Any attempt at such union by a vote of societies taking the largest majorities, would only be a rupture of two settled church sects, making of them at least three, if not more, sects.

It is well for committees to confer, and this matter to be discussed, as it is likely to be for the next quarter of a century. It will tend to a closer co-operative Christian activity; probably nothing more.

It may be doubted whether organic union between the M. E. and the M. E. South Churches is any more probable after forty years than on the eve of separation. Yet it may be argued, with reference to them as to our reunion with the M. E. Church, that they are more likely to re-unite than are two bodies that were formed almost simultaneously as two sects coming from one common plant. These latter were two different sprouts that had taken on different tendencies in the old relation; each withdrawing to give vent to its own taste. If the ability in these two churches can manage them better united, then they ought to unite; but if they are more wieldy in two sections, then they ought not to unite, but increase in godliness till they could do so. Nor can we fail to see with pride, men of our Church and religion given these positions for which they are so ably fitted. As a Church, let us select these all we can to "render unto Cesar the things that are Cesar's, and unto God the things that are God's."

It is fluent to hear Henry Ward Beecher praising the theatres and the Confederate brigadiers. It is soon to be heard before legislatures and sessions pathetic after we compare the old man of seventy with the young man of forty-five. Seventy years he has thought, and not a few of the most renowned actors themselves and with a much larger number of theatre patrons, that the theatre was a questionable place for a Christian; having crossed the limited three score and ten, he can see in what an error he would have died had he been snatched before reaching that line. What next, Mr. Beecher?

WHILE THE STAR CONCERT, March 31st, did not meet our expectations as a whole, in several parts it was a good entertainment. Mrs. Nellie Brown Mitchell and Miss Hazlelda Union Davis sustained their reputation in Philadelphia well, winning new and even higher encomiums. The Amphion Association, of our city, were fully equal to public expectation. The superb violinist and cornetist charmed the audience; while Mrs. Leggett's fine voice, sadly, but rather weak, made good impressions.

WE WERE very sorry to hear of the destruction of our church in Sabina, Ohio, by fire a few days ago. This little church has had a struggle for existence. We wrote if it was insured. Too many of our brethren fail in here their churches insured. The pastor of this church, Rev. M. H. Wilson, is one of our most faithful young ministers, a graduate of Wilberforce Theological Department. He and his people have our sincere sympathy.

"PLEASE SEND MY CHRISTIAN RECORDER to——, for three months, and I will remit you the money when I have written you." Yes, but this makes more than the second time I have written to you that I have nothing to do with mailing the paper, still I have tried to do every correspondent on this subject the courtesy in hand his letter to Elder Embry, where it belongs.—ED.

THE APPEAL OF BISHOP WARE should meet with a quick, full and hearty response. A small sum from each charge would rebuild the Church on the plains. Let us to the rescue. Providence Missionary Day has just closed, with what results we are unable to say, but we sincerely trust sufficiently to aid the churchless Mankogees.

THE LOUISVILLE BULLETIN has published its valedictory. Its interests and good-will are merged into those of the American Baptist. Both are good papers.

—The printers of Dr. Tanner's Review, up the eve of putting the last form on type were surprised in making a "gap" of it. The result was a number of days' delay.

—Mr. Kenith Hunter was elected street commissioner for Xenia, O., last week. This is the third time, Brother Hunter, that, after a hard fight in our city, was re-elected member of city council, Dr. F. J. Lindsay police commissioner, J. N. Porter assessor and Thomas Conrad member of Central Committee. Good for Xenia.

—Mr Henry O. Tanner, the talented Philadelphia artist, had an exhibition in the National Academy of Design, New York, his excellent painting "The Raising of Jairus's Daughter." The young gentleman of modesty, but unflinching courage, whose position gained success entirely by this exhibition is not acquired by every one. The strictures on her which works are admitted are very severe and many artists of wider reputation have failed to secure the place occupied by Mr. Tanner in this exhibition. He is placed at once in company with Munkacsy, A. Bridgeman, J. G. Brown, Thos. B. Craig, De Haas, Walter Shirlaw and Victor Morsat. Should his life be spared, Mr. Tanner is destined to have a grand future.

A PERSONAL EXPLANATION.

BY REV. O. S. SMITH.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE RECORDER:

—In relation to my politics you will please allow me to say that I am not a Democrat. I make this denial because I occasionally find myself referred to as one. In this regard am as a democrat are very much mistaken. I have not known for all party ties and occupy an independent position. I was an earnest republican partisan until that party turned the negro out to shift for himself. Hereafter I shall claim the right to think, say and what I think accordingly. In the meantime I am strictly attending to my duties as Secretary of the Board of Education in the M. E. Church, and shall continue to do so as long as I occupy the position.

EQUAL RIGHTS TO ALL.

STRONG PLEA FOR THE NEGRO RACE—SPEECH OF REPRESENTATIVE TOWNSEND IN SUPPORT OF HIS BILL TO REMOVE ALL DISTINCTIONS ON ACCOUNT OF COLOR—AMALGAMATION CONSIDERED.

Hon. J. M. Townsend, Representative of Wayne County, in the Ohio General Assembly—the only colored member—was the author of a bill to remove from the statutes all distinctions of race and color, but it was violently opposed by Goodin, of Hancock County, and was eventually postponed indefinitely through the instrumentality of the democratic majority. Singularly enough, when the Thompson Civil Rights bill had passed and a faction of the colored population concluded to celebrate the event, Goodin and his democratic associates were invited to participate in the ratification and they were tendered a vote of thanks for their "able efforts to enhance the interest of the negro," while Mr. Townsend and other republicans, who were more responsible than all the rest, did not forthy in their support of the bill in question, were purposely ignored. Mr. Townsend, similarly shamefully treated by the democratic majority, made an eloquent speech in favor of the passage of his bill, which is reproduced below. It is a convincing proof of the ingratitude of the colored citizens who voted for the late so-called ratification, which was really a Democratic meeting in disguise:

MR. SPEAKER.—I have introduced a bill here asking the repeal of the black laws of Indiana, known as the "black laws." The statutes include just what the sanctions of the gentlemen from Hancock, Mr. Goodin, includes and which is contained in the bill I have offered. Inasmuch as those statutes which related to the amalgamation of the races have been repealed by the bill I shall therefore confine my remarks principally to that topic. I have taken pains to make but a summary of the case. The black laws should be repealed for the following reasons:

1. That simple and exact justice may be done to negro as to white man.

2. Because they are repugnant to the principles underlying our constitutional government.

3. Because, in my opinion, they can not be reconciled with the declaration contained in our State Constitution as seen in Sections 46, 68 and 119.

4. Because, as they now stand, are not in accord with personal liberty and personal sovereignty. This makes the flags as allowed to those not colored, though as a fact there are not a few of color whose tastes incline them to choose from the opposite race.

5. Because of the forbidding of intermarriage, license—aye, encouragement—is given to the white man to ride rough-shod over the negro's rights and to trample on the negro's manhood. This law the negro's inferiority is declared, and it is given to the white man especially, to discriminate against, and practically to outlaw the negro in society, in social and political life. In business, on public carriers, in places of public entertainment, in the public school, in church, in state, everywhere the negro encounters the white man of color, and hence of his inferiority.

All that I desire is to know that before the law I am considered responsible, I stand forth in the broad realm of an American citizen, and that I am not to be made to suffer for the crime of a scoundrel, not a mean, not a slave, not a serf, but a man. I plead no special privilege, but I ask no more grace, I ask no preferment, I only demand that the negro be treated as a man, and that he have the rights and immunities enjoyed by the common citizen.

To be true to myself, to my wife and my children, to be true to that mother who watched my baby life and imparted to me the first instincts of a noble manhood, to be true to the 1,500 colored children of Ohio, to the 50,000 colored voters of this State, who, by their confidence in me, helped to shape the character and the destiny of the nation. I plead also for their wives and their children, that the women of white people who are made to suffer through the law.

Every lawyer knows that law is always more or less tripping with the prevailing public sentiment of the time which its enactment. What was the sentiment of the people when these nefarious acts went into force?

Then no colored man could come within this State to live without some white man became his surety for good behavior. No colored man was allowed to testify in court; no colored man was a citizen; he had no vote; was not a voter; was not a taxpayer; was not a property holder; was not a public elector; was not a juror; was not a militiaman; was not a soldier; was not a citizen. He was a mere nonentity, a political nullity. Such

It effected a complete cure at a time when I had almost despaired of recovery. I consider it an invaluable remedy for all diseases of the throat."

NOTICE.

All questions and business pertaining to advertisements are to be addressed to the RECORDER, and requesting correspondence to the RECORDER, should be addressed to REV. J. C. Embry, Business Manager, not to the editor. There is no part of the business of this establishment to which quiring money to be sent to the editor; nor communications for the RECORDER, to the Manager. All obituaries, the marriage address of the paper, sessional Sunday-school or Church collections, previous race circumstances had been such as to develop something of the proper feelings for the activities of American citizens, but the development in the past twenty-two years has been greater than that of the nearly two centuries preceding. There are now many millions of people in the United sons of both sexes possessed of respectable training, and the schools are turning them out daily. Their influence is the most enlightening life, such impulse as will enable them to make a thousand time more of life than we here done. They are rapidly emerging from the peonage of bondage and are almost out of the transit movement from slavery to unquestioned freedom. Much more than this, than all the glory and addition of men.

BISHOP CAIN called Saturday, 18th. on his way to New York, looking decidedly better than when we met him in Atlanta. He has taken a large interest in the National Leader, formerly the West Indian Abroad. He has joined the prow of the ship Toward Africa instead of the West Indies. The course is right and the haven glorious. May the ship not founder before reaching the shore. If the colored race has no chance in Africa it has none anywhere. Properly organized and directed, a movement may be made out that will bring lasting good to the race.

ALREADY the wonderful revival in Bethel has been the means of over three hundred conversions. Many more than half of the number are from the African M. E. Church. They should be induced by their excellent pastor and leaders to subscribe for the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, buy a copy of our Discipline and book discipline, and whern they have none, a Bible

IT IS NOW a question whether there will be any war. Britain and Russia still growl a little. France and China are quite settled. The Central Americans are quiet; the transit is opened and Egypt is uncertain.

WE LEARN that the National Leader, of New York, is now largely under the control of Bishop B. W. Arnett, who is making it go through it bis African bugle-blasts—"The Redemption of Africa."

THE CLEVELAND GLOBE makes its appearance "to stay." The Globe is a handsome paper, and has one best wishes. Mr. J. R. Snyder, editor.

Literature.

General D. C. Buell, at the urgent request of many members of his old command, the Army of the Ohio, has prepared a history of the battle of Shiloh, which will appear as part of the War Series in The Century Magazine, together with Shiloh and Corinth, and newly found views of the field.

Besides the papers by Generals McClellan, Fry, Johnson and Gustavus W. Smith, in the May Century, the battles of the Peninsular campaign will be further described in later numbers by Generals Franklin, Fitz John Porter, Longstreet and D. H. Hill. General Porter has also written a paper on the Battle of Malvern Hill, Va., which will appear in the same series, along with a full account of the Hill Island campaign, written by General John Pope, who commanded the Union forces against Lee in those days.

Charles Egbert Craddock's serial story now publishing in Wide Awake, "Despair Farnham," is considered by critics and by the author and "her" friends, as among her most important productions. The story is very popular with readers in general because of its swift dramatic movement; and its characters, such and all, are Tennessee mountain people, and the dialect is pecutigiarly picturesque and humorous.

THE MANY FRIENDS and members of Bethel Church gave Elder J. S. Thompson a rousing send-of last week. They did not waste their time in idle words, but met their money in that which perisheth; but paid into his hands as a gift, indicative of their high appreciation, one hundred and two dollars. Instead of a send-off it really looks like a ball—actual conference session is near. There is little doubt that Dr. Thompson would be glad to return to a people so appreciative, and his people will doubtless be glad to receive again the minister whose labors God has blessed with nearly four hundred conversions.

THE QUARTERLY CONFERENCES of Trenton and Millville circuits send us resolutions highly commending the labors of their pastors. Rev. A. H. Newman, pastor of Trenton station, is strongly desired to return. The same may be inferred with reference to Rev. J. S. Thompson, of Millville. The quarterly meeting elder S. B. Williams also received a hearty endorsement from the Millville quarterly conference. We congratulate the pastors upon these resolutions now; later they would not be appreciated. We congratulate the pastors upon these resolutions now; later they would not be appreciated. We congratulate the pastors upon these resolutions now; later they would not be appreciated

A GREAT CALAMITY.

On the night of March 15th, our little chapel in Maricopa, Indian Territory, was by a demon band laid in ashes, burned to the ground. We had struggled hard to get a foothold and rear a building. Our last Indian Conference met there. We had but one member, but such was the marked liberality of the whites that we met calculated our bills but made the church a handsome donation. There was no insurance, as is often the case, as I have heard many express their sym pathy for and interest in our Indian mission work. Here is an opportunity to prove the genuineness and depth of that feeling. Send all remittances to Rev. A. H. Hopkins, Muskogee, I. T, and God will reward you. Help! Help! Help!

T. M. D. WARD.

UNHAPPY MAN.

Why persist in ruining your digestion by eating unwholesome food, and your life ruined by doing nothing to restore it to its usefulness and right action? Some think that dyspepsia is incurable. Such are the ones who have never taken Brown's Iron Bitters. This valuable family medicine makes short work of the tormentor and soon enables its victim to grow at rates to do its work. Mr. H. E. Collins, of Newark, Ohio, says: "Brown's Iron Bitters for dyspepsia, and I am greatly benefited."

Boston has a woman-milliner who makes such too-too-utterly sweet bonnets that Boston women look almost pretty in them. His fortune is assured.

A WOMAN'S AGE.

A woman, it is said, is no older than she looks. Many women, however, look double their actual age by reason of those functional disorders which tread upon the nerves and vitality, and which, if unchecked, are liable to change the most robust woman to a trembling, downdwindling, Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" will, positively, in every irregularity and weakness peculiar to the sex, and requires but a few weeks' use to prove its surpassing merit. Price reduced to one dollar. By druggists.

A standard specific and obsolete cure is found in the great liver and kidney medicine, Hunt's Remedy. Beware of imitations.

A Rodney street young lady asks why an old maid generally has so many cats about her. Possibly because she has such a scarcity of boot-jacks around as old maids usually do. That answer right? —Brooklyn Times

To thoroughly cure scrofula it is necessary to strike directly at the root of the evil. This is exactly what Ayer's Sarsaparilla does, by acting upon the blood, thoroughly cleansing it of all impurities, and leaving nut even a taint of scrofula in the vital fluid.

The noted Arab chieftain Abd-el-Kader always maintained that the two great enemies of the horse were rest and fat.

The enervation and lassitude of spring time are but indications of sluggish action of the blood, overloaded with carbonous accumulated by the use of heating food in winter. The condition may be remedied by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, the best blood purifier known.

However galling the war may be to some people in Europe, it doesn't seem to go against the grain in this country. —New York World.

TAKE IT WITH YOU.

Are you about to travel? For sea-sickness, malaria, or the effects of a change of climate, food or water, there is nothing so beneficial as Parker's Tonic.

The rainfall in Bermuda during the past three months is said to have been so heavy as to seriously injure the onion crop. The Floridians are therefore looking forward to better prices.

It is said that Queen Victoria is the only European sovereign who did not send a congratulatory message to Bismarck on his birthday.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. Sent by mail by addressing with stamp, naming this paper W. A. Noyes, 149 Power Block, Rochester, N. Y.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

NOTICE.

To Secretaries of Annual Conferences.

I have yet to see a case so mean as all of the necessary questions to get a proper knowledge of our Church and the work we have will do this year. Should any minister know of membership not reported by any annual conference, please write me about them. Should any minister know of reports being incorrect in your published minutes, write your secretary at once. Request each conference to have full credit for what it is, and for what it is worth. Should any of you not write plainly, please do the latter that no mistakes for the occasion so there will be no mistakes in the minutes. Should any of the secretaries of the conferences be dead or otherwise unable to answer the above questions, will the Bishop or some presiding elder designate a brother to answer for the conference?

YOURS VERY TRULY,
R. M. TURNER.

THE BALTIMORE CONFERENCE.

To the Ministers of the Baltimore Annual Conference of the A. M. E. Church: Dearly Beloved Brethren—Having been assigned by the Bishop as the statistician of the Baltimore Conference, I am compelled to call upon you for the statistics; but the labors before me, increased by the lamentable demise of our beloved Bishop Dickerson, will preclude the possibility of me scanning the several minutes of all our annual conferences and making a correct calculation of our statistics. Therefore I write to ask assistance at the hands of the several secretaries, which you will please answer by the 25th of April, 1885, in the following order, from the last published minutes of your annual conference:

MONEY RAISED.

1st. How much Contingent Money.
2nd. How much Dollar Money
3d. " " Missionary.
4th. " " Sabbath school money for Pastor's Support, including traveling expenses.
5th. " " Building and repairs.
6th. " " Educational and benevolent purposes.
7th. " " Sabbath school money for Pastor's Support, including traveling expenses.
8th. " " is the sum total.

PROPERTY VALUE.

9th. What number of churches.
10th. What number of parsonages.
11th. What number of Sabbath schools.
12th. Probable value.

MINISTRY.

13th. What number of traveling preachers,
14th. " " deacons.
15th. " " elders.
16th. " " locals.
17th. Total number.

In the above to include supernumerary and superannuated among the local ministry.

Members.—Number of members, probationers, sum total.

Sabbath-schools.—Number of schools, Sunday schools, pupils, teachers.

You will see I have by no means asked all the necessary questions to get a proper knowledge of our Church and the work we have will do this year. Should any minister know of membership not reported by any annual conference, please write me about them. Should any minister know of reports being incorrect in your published minutes, write your secretary at once. Request each conference to have full credit for what it is, and for what it is worth. Should any of you not write plainly, please do the latter that no mistakes for the occasion so there will be no mistakes in the minutes. Should any of the secretaries of the conferences be dead or otherwise unable to answer the above questions, will the Bishop or some presiding elder designate a brother to answer for the conference?

Many cases like the following could be cited: Frank Laprise, Salem st., Lowell, Mass., says, that on account of impure blood, his whole constitution was shaken. After taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla freely for a month, his health was restored, and like original vigor regained.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla saved my life. My appetite and digestion are good, and I feel like a new man." Two bottles of

It has also greatly lessened the swellings. I can confidently say it has entirely removed by constituted use of the medicine." Thomas Hines, Hightstown, N. NOTICE.

To the Bishops, Secretaries and Ministers of the Several Conferences of the A. M. E. Church of the United States:

Dear Brethren—It is necessary for us to print additional catalogues of our University. The Jubilee will be shortly recully without a revised and complete list of the Trustees. Should any of you under whose solicitation we may come be in possession of any such information you will confer a great favor upon us by sending it to me immediately. Remember, we have no other means of obtaining the information absolutely necessary to enable the President to prepare and print a catalogue list more complete in every respect.

With the fond hope and assurance that you will not withhold such vital information.

I am yours fraternally,
J. P. MAXWELL,
Sec'y Wilberforce University.

REVIVAL WORK.

BY REV. L.H. WHEELER.

Mr. EDITOR:—Since the adjournment of the Alabama Conference we have been engaged in a meeting at Mount Zion, Coosa county, which resulted in the conversion of about 30 persons and the reclamation of a number of backsliders. Rev. Mr. Hall, the pastor, was with us all the time, and rendered valuable assistance. The Methodists and Baptists have been holding a protracted meeting at Rockford, Coosa county, for the last two weeks, which has resulted in much good. Rev. Mr. Hall will go to Rockford to-morrow and will be assisted by Rev. Mr. Bowden, of the Baptist Church. I was to-day married to Miss Mary Lee Tarver, daughter of Rev. Mr. Tarver, of the Alabama Conference. The old man was present, and performed the ceremony himself. He is now in his seventy-fifth year, and has been a minister of the Gospel for more than forty years. He is still hale and hearty, and preaches with much power. He is a model preacher, and is highly esteemed by all who know him. I was married at his residence, and the occasion was a very pleasant one. Many of the old preacher's friends were present, and all seemed to enjoy the occasion. I am now on my way to Talladega, where I will spend a few days with my wife's relatives, and then go to my work on the Talladega Circuit. I have had a very successful year on this charge, and have received 150 members into the Church. I have also received a number into the Church on the Talladega Circuit, and have had a very pleasant year's work. I am now in the midst of a meeting at Talladega, which is doing much good. Rev. Mr. Hall, the pastor, is assisted by Rev. Mr. Bowden, of the Baptist Church. Mr. Bowden is a good preacher, and is doing much good. Brother Hall is a model pastor, and is highly esteemed by his people. He is a man of much piety, and is a good preacher. He is doing a good work on the Talladega Station. Talladega is a beautiful town, and has a population of about 3,000. It is the county-seat of Talladega county, and is the seat of the Talladega College, which is under the control of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The College is in a flourishing condition, and is doing much good. Prof. Tarver, father of my wife, is the President of the College. He is a man of much ability, and is a good disciplinarian. He is a model gentleman, and is highly esteemed by all who know him. Mrs. Tarver is a lady of much refinement, and is a model mother. She is a member of the Methodist Church, and is a lady of much piety. Miss Tarver, my wife, is a lady of much refinement, and is a model wife. She is a member of the Methodist Church, and is a lady of much piety. She is a graduate of the Talladega College, and is a lady of much refinement. She

NOTICE.

I have begun the preparation of a volume commemorative of the late Bishop Payne, with the view of its being sent of his widow. This work will include, in addition to the excellent biographical sketch, many of the letters and addresses, etc., of our late Bishop. Any material is not lacking, but much of it is scattered. I desire to ask him any who have such letters, etc., were directly or indirectly associated with the Bishop, and who may have letters, papers and other items that will do for publication to be kind enough to let me hear a copy of the same, and I will return them. I shall be glad to hear from as many as may be able to contribute to the interest of a commemorative volume, such as we desire to publish. The late Bishop was a friend to many, a friend and colleague, the Senior Bishop, Dr. D. A. Payne, will write the introductory to the volume. With the earnest desire to hear from as many as possible and as soon as possible.

LESSON FROM A MASTODON.

The tusks of a mastodon recently found in Illinois weighed 175 pounds each. What a gigantic toothache that animal must have been compelled to bring! And such neuralgia! Neuralgia, or nerve-ache, generally proceeds from a disordered condition of the blood. Brown's Iron Bitters enriches and purifies the blood, relieves neuralgia etc. Mr. W. W. Redmon, Pque, O., says, "Brown's Iron Bitters permanently cured me of neuralgia."

An ordinary looking cane of very peculiar construction has been invented by a Medford man. It contains, in addition to a set of topographical and telegraphic instruments, a bellograph, and a lantern. It is intended especially for engineers in the army service.

"Be wise to-day; 'tis madness to defer." "Don't wait for the next cough. If you do your late may be that of the incurable thousands who lie around us like wise, and who to day fill consumptives' graves. Night-sweats, spitting of blood, weak lungs, and emaciation, and self if taken in time can be cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." This wonderful preparation has no equal as a remedy for long and chronic diseases. All druggists.

The smallest human being living is possibly a dwarf residing in Skigaton, Denbo. He is 26 years of age, and only seventeen inches high. He is reported to have received a good education, and can write remarkably well.

For Cholera morbus, or ile, diarrhœa, dysentery or bloody flux, for sudden colds, fever or fever and ague, use Dr. Pierce's Compound Extract of Smart-Weed or Tonic of the Pepper. At once. By druggists.

In terest in politics increases in Germany. There are now 565,197 more voters, allowing for all increase in population, who went to the polls in 1884 than in 1881. Of this increase the Social Democratic party polled 248,129 votes.

Persons of unchaste principles curse and speak lies, and use vicious preparations Take only Hunt's Kidney and Liver Remedy.

Hunt's [Kidney and Liver] Remedy has been used in their thirty years, and endorsed by thousands of the most prominent clergymen of all denominations.

A young Swede living at Spencer went out to see the late eclipse of the sun, and didn't see smoked glass. The consequence is the loss of one eye and the serious injury of the other.

100 Dress One Dollar is inexpensively constructed with Hood's Sarsaparilla, and is true of no other medicine. A bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains its 100 doses, and will last a month, while others will average to last not over a week. Use only Hood's Sarsaparilla.

High conflicial mass was recently celebrated in Copenhagen for the first time since the day of the Reformation, and such a service having heretofore been forbidden by law.

Quantity in medicine is no indication of value. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is concentrated and powerful; requires a small dose, and is the relative, cheap for dose, than any other sarsaparilla. It is the best of all blood purifiers.

A QUEER NOTABLE.—Mr. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer at once; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to take. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

A suit for $5,000 damages has been instituted by a resident of Rome, Ga., against a local grocer who displayed in front of his store a card with the name of the prosecutor on it and the words "Dead-beat, $6.38."

SECRETARIES AND ASSISTANT SECRETARIES OF THE ANNUAL CONFERENCES OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH, IN ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD:

The General Conference of 1884, among other things, elected me as one of its statisticians; but the labors before me, increased by the lamentable demise of our beloved Bishop Dickerson, will preclude the possibility of me securing the several minutes of all our annual conferences and making a correct calculation of our statistics. Should any minister know of some here not mentioned, at the annual conference, please write me about them. Should any minister know of reports being incorrect in your published minutes, write your secretary at once, that next conference it may be in full credit for what it is, and for what it is worth. Should any one see my wish plainly, please get a plain writing amanuensis for their secretaries. There will be no mistakes in the forms. Should any of the secretaries of the conference be dead or otherwise unable to answer the above questions, will the Bishop or some preacher please designate a brother to answer them for the conference?

THE BALTIMORE CONFERENCE.

To the Ministers of the Baltimore Annual Conference of the A. M. E. Church: Dear and Dear Brethren—Having been assigned by the Bishops at the last session of the Washington, D C, March 12 1885, to hold the next session of our conference, which is appointed to meet in Havre de Grace, Md., on Wednesday, May 6, 1885, I therefore write you to inform you of the same, that the members may be prepared. The conference will meet at 9 o'clock A. M. The annual sermon will be preached by Rev. Wm. H. W. Schurmers at 8 o'clock P. M. The annual missionary sermon will be preached at 4 o'clock P. M. by Rev. Francis J. Peck. The educational and missionary meetings will be held at such times as the Secretarial (if present) may arrange.

In order to accommodate the members of the church, friends and the many acquaintances of the late Bishop Dickerson, I suggest that memorial services be held in Bethel, Baltimore, on Thursday afternoon, May 7, 1885.

I shall spend the most of the time between the dates of conference visiting the work, as you will see by my list of appointments. Yours truly,

J. WATHAN.

Baltimore, March 14, 1885.

SPECIAL REQUEST OF THE SECRETARY OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION.

To our pastors and Superintendents:

We are about to observe Sunday schools, and to supply even a majority of those with the Jubilee Gem for the next Children's Day. It will give a great deal of time and labor. In order, therefore, that we may be able to distribute the Gems in time so as to allow the schools opportunity to make favorable preparation to properly observe the day, we earnestly ask that you immediately forward to us the number you will need. Pastors having charge of circuits will please send for each school separately.

Now, do not delay. In order to make the day a grand jubilee, it is necessary to have sufficient time to get ready. While only twenty cents is required to observe the day, yet we believe in voluntary service, and we hope to secure the support and interest of every pastor and superintendent. Order your Gems at once, and be sure to do so to state the number you want, and the person and place to whom they are to be sent.

O. S. SMITH.

CHANGE OF TIME.

The sitting of the Baltimore Annual Conference will take place Nov 11th, 1885, in Havredo Grace, Md.

THE BEST EFFECTS.

Ayer's Pills are made from the concentrated extracts and active remedial principles of purely vegetable drugs only. They are, therefore, far more effective and satisfactory in their cathartic, diuretic, and tonic effects than Pills made by the ordinary process from powdered drugs. M. C. Lawson, Greenville, Texas, writes: "I have used Ayer's Pills for Stomach and Liver troubles with excellent results." J. M. Hodgdon, Lawrence, Mass., writes: "Ayer's Pills are invaluable as a cathartic, and especially for their active upon the liver. I am sure they saved my life." Antoine Alberts, Los Angeles, Cal., writes: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills cured me of a severe bilious attack, when the medicine given me by the doctors failed to do any good."

A GREAT CALAMITY.

On the night of March 16th, our little chapel at Mackinge, Indian Territory, was by a demon bend laid in ashes, burned to the ground, and struggled hard to get a foothold and succeed. Our chapel is a Union conference meet there. We had but one member, but such was the marked illegality of the case, that the fire was paid our bills but made the church a hand come donations. There was no insurance, as is often the case. I have heard many express their sympathy for the interest in our Indian mission work. Here is an opportunity to prove the genuineness and depth of that feeling. S nd all remittances to Rev. C. H Hopkins, Muskogee, I. T., and he will reward you. Help! Help! Help!

THE NEW JERSEY CONFERENCE

This conference has grown much in the nine years since we visited it last. Then the powerful, strong, and able Morris Williams was its acknowledged leading spirit. W. M. Watson, D. A. Mills, W. Peterson, J. W. Sheppard, the late Geo. E. Boyer, D. F. Bisby and T. H. Cooper were there with influence. S. H. Williams, E. V. N. TenEyeke, R. Fansett, R. M. Turner, J. V. Pierce and T. A. Cuff were prominent also; J. H. Bear, J. T. Diggs, Whittaker, J. P. Hefter, W. S. Thompson, J. H. Pierce and R. J. M. long were among the rising men. This last class, together with some of the older men, are now leaders, together with others who have entered the conference since, as W. H. Jones, B. D., A. H. Nowtoe, I. Derricks, Gee, Wittee, J. P. Sampson H. Miles and J. H. Acsoce are men well known both in New Jersey and elsewhere as able workers.

Many visiting ministers were present, prominently oldest Long and Chambers, of New Haven; Derrick, of New York, and Offer, of Pittsburgh. The business of the conference was transacted with dispatch. The liberality manifested towards the cause of missions, Sunday schools and education was characteristic. The dollar roll was good. The brethren voted ten per cent. to the general treasury, whether as a lean or gift we are not apprised. Drs. Arnett, Tanner, Embry, Townsend and Johnson were there to represent their respective departments. The conference suspended the rule and elected B. F. Martin—for one year, by having left his charge unauthorized. Aside from this, the character of all was passed. Though the membership at Burlington is small the conference was well entertained.

RALLY AGAIN.

If the children of the Church could only know what foundation work they were laying for their own future, they would more into arrangements for children's Day, June 11th, with zest and good will. This they have seemed to do in the past, and we have no doubt will do this year. We understand Secretary Smith and his efficient Board have complete doing a larger work this year than in any preceding. The Jubilee Gem is already out, brimful of song and cheer for the little folks. The Child's Recorder will be made superior still to what in its June number, both as to illustrations and literary matter. There will be no effort withheld that would make the day rife with good works and joyous with earnest praises. No less than $5,000 would be creditable to our Church on that day. It is none too soon to lay out our work. June is much nearer than one would think consulting the temperature rather than the calendar. Five thousand dollars will cost some effort, but not severe effort if only general co-operation will pertain. If only one in every five schools acts, that action must be five times greater than it should be. A general, a universal activity is what is demanded. There is no reason why this department of our work should come short of its fall ability; $5,000 is a low estimate of that ability. The benefit of the concerted act to the school is worth much more than it costs. The benefit to schools in the distribution of literature, the impulse awakened in the exercise of benevolence and the strengthening of general organic Sunday school life and feelings cannot be estimated in money. We have already stated that the department intends to develop its literature and its general ability to help the needy within the next twelve months, and probably to make itself independent of the general Church treasury. This department ought to be self-supporting; it can very easily be made so.

"IS IT LAWFUL?"

The New Jersey Conference has followed the two Ohio Conferences in respect to the presiding elder office. If not violating the letter it is not quite keeping the spirit of the law that the presiding elders all have charge of churches. The New York Conference began last year in regular obedience to law, but found it necessary, some months ago, to merge the office into the pastorate. It only remains for the New England and Philadelphia Conferences to follow suit to have the entire First District out of the regular line of presiding eldership. The Third District, excepting Indiana, is already in this irregular line. May it not be an intriguing question as to whether seven presiding elders in a conference, though having seven especial appointments as pastors will not cast said conference as much as would two regular presiding elders and seven pastors. We should be very glad to have figures from Ohio and Pittsburgh on this point. It would seem that this modification were but the prelude to a further modification, viz., the resignation of all charges whose pastore are elders from presiding elder supervision, having the elder act as his own presiding elder, as the case really stands now respecting seven charges in the New Jersey Conference, as many in the Pittsburgh Conference and six or eight in each of the Ohio Conferences. Nearly one-fourth of the appointments are without presiding elders. As we say above, this is not to merge the spirit of the law and seems to be a very severe test on the letter, for though these points are included in Districts, yet, without severe violence to reason, they can scarcely be said to be under the supervision of a presiding elder.

So much for the facts; now, what answer shall we, the Ohio Conference, and others give when judged concerning the law? Ohio will probably plead necessity of case, and New Jersey the inability to support the office. What of New Jersey, who has tried the office for several years? What will New Jersey answer? Will Philadelphia, after but a single year's trial, decide for this matter? keeping of the law on the ground of either Ohio or New York? It looks very much as if there had been some good accomplished in this conference by the office. Having been more intimately associated with the office here than elsewhere, we must confess our unwillingness to concede that Philadelphia would gain anything whatever by relieving herself of the burden of the districts and thus leaving as many charges without any presiding elders, while the eight or ten pastors of said charges must neglect their own work—must do it to supervise that of other elders equal to or more than themselves. Those are questions of pure pleasure of law; acts that are in letter violations of law; acts that are in the general heart of the Church that will make any protest a cause for complaint. The Dollar Money cannot cause degeneracy in our religious life. It is out of the question. It is not the Dollar Money, but it may be that the talk about the Dollar Money in an unwise way does affect the religious standard but not the money. Brother Argyle's notes are such as could be made respecting some members or members of the Church at any period. It is so of Brother Lowe's remarks also. Universal respect for law, universal charity for one another, universal co-operation in doing the full measure of work required under the law, universal consecration—these are among the many things wanted by our Church, by every church, by those nearest us.

There can be no doubt that ambition, as mentioned by both the brethren already referred to, is doing a vast work of ill for us, as for all religious bodies, but probably no more. Wherever inordinate ambition has its place there is danger. We say well be uneasy. We never anxious to know if the state of the Church in Arkansas, that is represented to be in good condition by some ambitious preachers, is not as near correct as we might infer from Elder Argyle's article. We would prefer thinking he has not put himself in position to gather information. We do not doubt that certain conferences reporting fewer members than years ago is the result of more correct statistics now than at the time the conference seemed to include more members. We feel quite sure of the strength of God's grace and the truthfulness of his promises.

ATTENDING a conference lately, we witnessed the suspension of a minister without trial. There are some serious questions concerned with this act of suspension. First, where does the suspended minister hold his church and elect membership? Secondly, who shall represent him at the conference session at which he is supposed to be reinstated to the full ministry? Now, in the special case referred to above, the suspended minister is probably outside the limits of the conference that suspended him. What will they know about his work? What will they know about his year's works and walks at the end of twelve months? His certainly should be held in some sort of church relation as a Christian, though a suspended minister; for suspension is supposed to be the penalty of violations of propriety and not of crimes, and if he is a man, and not a child, he does not cease to be a man in his relations to others because he has violated propriety. Then who have received their doctorates from an institution of which the strangers to grace, whose religious opinions consist entirely in notions and are without the power of godliness, and to the Bible, what are we to say then? Shall we say they know about his life? righteousness, confess our sins, not to those justifiable before God, for says the apostle, "If we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us." Then we should make mention of his righteousness, and if only ex-President Lee can. Dr. Arnett gave his powerful influence to the cause of temperance, and educated the people to the consequences to the amount of $215.46, including $15.46 to the Bishop Coke Fund, amount on the table. How soon would our educational work become a dispensed power and honor were the Church full of such men! Many cannot do much, but are they doing what they can? We append our subscription list taken up in conference, headed by ourself, and to have his character passed upon by the quarterly conference, which should give a certificate to the next session of his annual conference.

Notes on Education.

John Goodwin, 70 years old, was recently taken to a police station in Philadelphia in an insensible condition. He was suffering from exhaustion, and died in a few hours. The facts ascertained that he was a graduate of Cambridge University, England, and was for a time teacher of Latin, Greek and music in this city. He was taken to the Philadelphia Hospital.

The first published Year Book of Rochester University, N. Y., shows a total number of students in all departments as 550. Last year it was 610, two years ago 555, three years ago 506. There has been a steady and healthy growth for five years. Of the present total no less than 233 have already received liberary, scientific or professional degrees. One hundred and one of these are women are candidates for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy.

NEW JERSEY CONFERENCE.

The necessities of Wilberforce University have compelled us to the following: The Board of Education organized at this Conference commencement approaching and at the same time the urgent necessity, pressing for attention, gives some intimation of our embarrassed condition. As almost a complete stranger, I was unmarked by special incidents, save the being a company of Rieder from Springfield, Ohio, enroute to Columbus to the same Institute, to commence on the school question, brought Dr. Arnett and self to Burlington, New Jersey, April 24. Most cordial was our reception and kind and welcome the home to which we repaired. We were entertained by Bishop Watson's, whose daughter is pursuing a scientific course at Wilberforce. Our popular and parliamentary Bishop Coke presided over the conference and business was executed with dispatch. On Friday evening the first educational meeting was held. Strong resolutions were adopted. The chair made the earnest introductory speech. The writer paid his courtesies to the chair, but not unexpectedly and unintentionally his bosom friend, and the most intimate incomparably witty and talented Secretary of Education, Dr. Dr. Johnson, stirred the conference to its depths and editor Lee made such a strong and appropriate appeal for Wilberforce that only ex-President Lee can. Dr. Arnett gave his powerful influence to the cause and others, and education received encouragement to the amount of $215.46, including $15.46 to the Bishop Coke Fund donation and $200 in cash and subscription to Wilberforce. The largest donation was made by Rev. J. C. Ayler, a young man who is a student at the Seminary of Leander, under the auspices of the Dutch Reformed Church. He contributed $50 in cash, $15 on account on the table. How soon would our educational work become a dispensed power and honor were the Church full of such men! Many cannot do much, but are they doing what they can? We append our subscription list taken up in conference, headed by ourself, and to have his character passed upon by the quarterly conference, which should give a certificate to the next session of his annual conference.

THE Rev. Jonathan Gould, of Smithtown, N. Y., was the first bold this year within the First Educational District and possibly in the country to unfurl the standard of Christian liberality to the breezes. Now that Wilberforce is the only institution for the education of the colored race in the New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Ohio Conferences, it is a noble contribution from a conference of such size as the New Jersey, and we do not wonder at the pride and pleasure that so frequently fall upon our brethren relative to the noble accession of that work. We have attempted no general report of the actions of that conference. Another pen will do that service.

We conclude by announcing the trustees elect of Wilberforce University, namely: Rev. W. H. Dickerson, Rev. Diggs, J. P. Sampson and Messrs. B. F. Lee, Jr. and F. S. Cox; and the local Board of Education composed of Bishop J. H. Morgan, Israel Derricks and A. H. Newton and Messrs. W. G. Pine and B. F. Lee. We take this opportunity of stating to the brethren of the New Jersey Conference that we hope to print a more comprehensive history of Wilberforce University than has ever been published and our kind friends may expect to be remembered.

Most fraternally yours,
S. T. MITCHELL.

A RELIGIOUS HERESY, OR A DANGEROUS DOCTRINE.

BY REV. R. SEYMOUR.

MR. EDITOR:—The CHRISTIAN RECORDER is considered the organ of the Church, the moral power of this land for our people, therefore it is supposed that through its columns men can speak of wrongs in the Church or of its impending dangers.

Permit me to say through your columns that one of the evils that our church of to-day is threatened with, is the so-called holiness movement as it is now conducted. We must know and see there is a difference between the work and its advocates. I believe in holiness as set forth in the Bible, urged by Mr. Wesley and Mr. Clark, and sometimes wish that every line in the sacred men apart from these were burned. That a man can live a holy life, no Methodist man with sound judgment will dispute. I believe that a man can live just as holy as he will live, and that that is longest everything else that pertains to godliness, and it is life and not profession that God requires. The teachers of sanctification by the part of the country binge everything on profession.

I believe that every Christian should always be ready to give a reason for the hope that is in him; but this does not first be in him, then he is ready to give a reason to every man. To-day men bring the hope, and the reason is the answer, and where God has implanted his grace in our hearts, he will ever able us to walk as he told his ancient servant, "before him and be perfect." I believe that hundreds and thousands of our people who feel in bondage have lived holy and sanctified lives, but never made set professions of sanctification whatever, and I also believe that there are many thousands will be lost who profess this higher and holier life. To be justified is the state of Christian life. Or, as the apostle has it, "being justified free by his grace, we have peace with God." There are many things that are excusable that are not justifiable before the law. I may take my revolver and shoot down the street and scatter sin and shout and say that I would do no harm, yet I might accidentally kill my neighbor. I am guilty of excusable homicide, for I had no intention of harming anyone, yet I am not justified before the law, for the law forbids me to fire a revolver in the city limits. So our professedly holy men are excusable, but not justified by the law of holiness as set forth in the Bible, which permit her to run him and say, "I am sanctified, and I understand it, means to be wholly set apart for God from the world." Where there is to take place we will not stop to discuss the merits of Christian who profess sanctification are to be saved, and this is what sanctification means, we are not justified. Is sanctification so it is taught now places in such professed holiness as in no other place than any other church members, no matter how good or holy their life may be, I say we do not profess it. Where is a new birth, a higher state or a second work of grace? Is there any one who lives to judge, but one thing we do know, and that is the fruits of love and disobedience and rebellion are twin sisters. Let our best Church members get what they call the second blessing, or be wholly sanctified, and what then? Why, they are at war at once with the Disciplines and Church government and pastor. They tell us they are sanctified wholly, and that is the end of the comforter. If this be the case then the close of the first year, when the annual commencement approaching and the time for the annual conference appointments, gives some intimation of our embarrassed condition. As almost a complete stranger, I was unmarked by special incidents, save the being a company of Rieder from Springfield, Ohio, enroute to Columbus to the same Institute, to commence on the school question, brought Dr. Arnett and self to Burlington, New Jersey, April 24. THE DEATH OF KING MTESA.

Even at a time of life the present, when there is so much to occupy the public mind, the death of Mtesa, the king of Uganda, has not been permitted to pass unnoticed. The fact is, the eyes of the world are being directed to that country itself just now in a manner that would have gladdened the heart of Livingstone had he been spared to witness it. Mtesa stood out consciously among African potentates. His dominion was not merely vast, fruitful, and his subjects most intelligent, but he was conscious of his position, he used it in a Pickwickian sense, for to him it was a magnificent conception. Mrs. Stanton speaks of modern women being "in a condition of slavery," she is justified in the use of the word, but slavery, or she is using words with no reference to their proper significance. Under laws which make the husband responsible for the wife's debts, and exempt her properly from all responsibility for his; which permit her to run him in debt, which, in case he cannot earn money with one of his fingers; to say nothing under many laws, to call her a sheet as ridiculous as folly can make itself.

And naturally what follows this proposition is in keeping with its absurdity. The wife is the equal companion of the husband, and boldly avows that Christianity will never do perfect her fallen women until the Protestant Bible is taken from the altar, and the pages all invidious distinctions based on the Bible are torn out. Christianity, she tells us are at a loss to know, inasmuch as the Roman Catholic Bible does not differ materially from the Protestant version. But we are fully in accord with Mrs. Stanton in this, and consider that nothing for her cause until we have a wholly different Bible from the one which teaches the doctrine of the Christ. In all history, sacred and profane, the woman has been the weaker vessel, and will remain so, and will continue to be the slave of man, until the Roman Catholic missionaries shall have succeeded in their efforts to convert the Protestant nations to Romanism. This created such disgust in the mind of the King that he revenged himself upon the woman. He, however, was always favorably disposed towards the Christian Missionaries, which, in connection with the Disciplines and Church government and pastor. They tell us they are sanctified wholly, and that is the end of the comforter. If this be the case then the close of the first year, when the annual commencement approaching and the time for the annual conference appointments, gives some intimation of our embarrassed condition. As almost a complete stranger, I was unmarked by special incidents, save the being a company of Rieder from Springfield, Ohio, enroute to Columbus to the same Institute, to commence on the school question, brought Dr. Arnett and self to Burlington, New Jersey, April 24. Most cordial was our reception and kind and welcome the home to which we repaired. We were entertained by Bishop Watson's, whose daughter is pursuing a scientific course at Wilberforce. Our popular and parliamentary Bishop Coke presided over the conference and business was executed with dispatch. On Friday evening the first educational meeting was held. Strong resolutions were adopted. The chair made the earnest introductory speech. The writer paid his courtesies to the chair, but not unexpectedly and unintentionally his bosom friend, and the most intimate incomparably witty and talented Secretary of Education, Dr. Dr. Johnson, stirred the conference to its depths and editor Lee made such a strong and appropriate appeal for Wilberforce that only ex-President Lee can. Dr. Arnett gave his powerful influence to the cause and others, and education received encouragement to the amount of $215.46, including $15.46 to the Bishop Coke Fund donation and $200 in cash and subscription to Wilberforce. The largest donation was made by Rev. J. C. Ayler, a young man who is a student at the Seminary of Leander, under the auspices of the Dutch Reformed Church. He contributed $50 in cash, $15 on account on the table. How soon would our educational work become a dispensed power and honor were the Church full of such men! Many cannot do much, but are they doing what they can? We append our subscription list taken up in conference, headed by ourself, and to have his character passed upon by the quarterly conference, which should give a certificate to the next session of his annual conference.

A VACATION RAMBLE.

BY REV. W. H SMITH.

MR. EDITOR:—Please allow us to speak once more through your valuable columns. We have just passed through a glorious revival of Sister Campbell Station, during which time twenty were happily converted and forty-one united with the church. Seeing that all was harassed, we were advised by our physician to take a vacation. Feeling that it would be of more benefit to us to visit our children, which were scattered in different parts of the country, we left home on the 7th inst., and after a delightful ride of 150 miles on the south bound train, April 8th. The air was bright and lovely. Nature seemed to be in her best mood, and the beautiful verdure of spring was just peeping forth. Spoke to Stanley. He swayed the scepter over a country three hundred miles in length and sixty in breath, and described by Stanley as being a "voluptuous land of meadows and plenty." His subjects were estimated at nearly three millions, and he could boast of a disciplined army of one hundred and twenty-five thousand men and a thousand of their canoes. Still another was struck with the noble bearing of the king. He was a man of sixty-eight, and reigned twenty-eight years, and was known to all the great travelers that have Spoke to Stanley. HAS CHRISTIANITY BENEFITED WOMAN?

A woman takes one side of the question, and a man the other, and the result is the man affirms it.

The North American Review for May. Mrs. Stanton endeavors to prove that Christianity has been of no benefit to woman, and that she is to-day depressed in no surprised by anything which the Bible contains, and that she may say or do, we would be astonished that any woman, even of moderate information, could for a moment call in question the unspeakable advantages which Christianity has conferred upon the sex to which these persons have the misfortune to belong. She contends that the whole system of religion is a fraud, and that all forms of it have been equally so. Mrs. Stanton is a slave to slavery." Of course, if a woman in the midst of civilization and Christianity can be reduced to the level of the condition of slavery, she is not in a state of Rome says he is a prisoner in the hands of the Lord, and that he will be let at perfect liberty to go and come at his own sweet will; that when he dies he will be buried by the Lord in a Pickwickian sense, but in a Pickwickian sense, for to him to depart is to be present with the Lord. Mrs. Stanton speaks of modern women being "in a condition of slavery," she is justified in the use of the word, but slavery, or she is using words with no reference to their proper significance. Under laws which make the husband responsible for the wife's debts, and exempt her properly from all responsibility for his; which permit her to run him in debt, which, in case he cannot earn money with one of his fingers; to say nothing under many laws, to call her a sheet as ridiculous as folly can make itself.

MRS. STANTON'S IDEA.

"Among the Greeks there was a class of women that possessed absolute freedom, surrounded by the wisest men of their day. They devoted themselves to the cultivation of the mind, looked them to add to their other charms an intellectual companionship which made them themselves the centre of a literary society of the most brilliant. Aspasia was famous for her genius as her beauty. She is said to have composed the funeral orations, and inspired his loftiest flights of eloquence. Corinna, too, owed his deep obligations to Diotema.

In the society of this remarkable type of Greek women, we find the highest artists, poets, historians and philosophers that the world has ever known. Among the society of this remarkable type of Greek women, we find the highest artists, poets, historians and philosophers that the world has ever known. Among these women was queen Thalestris; but as they were the only women of their time whose names are recorded, they illustrate the civilization of that age."

BISHOP SPALDING'S IDEA.

"Purity, meekness, patience, faith and hope were the virtues that adorned blessed Lord most emphasize—are, above all, womanly virtues. He does not speak much of manly virtues, though he put gentleness, and lovingness, and humility in the highest place. Moses, like all heroine, shows his supreme strength in suffering rather than in doing. Even the Apostle Paul shows more of woman's existence the Saviour has brought to light and illustrated grace. In all literature, sacred and profane, there is nothing so touching, so full of womanly tenderness, as the Gospel episode of Magdalene; and he who would understand the spirit of Christianity should ponder these words and speak with Plato at her feet than upon the beautiful statue at the foot of Jesus, is self-condemned.

THE AFRICAN DESERT.

If the "wilderness" in winter offers many attractions, it is quite the reverse with the "simoon," as the Arabs call the sultry blasts that sweep the Sahara. This is truly the ideal desert, consisting entirely of hard, gravel and sand, rocky ridges, sometimes of considerable altitude, and occasionally a few miles in extent of desolation of vegetation and consequently of animal life. Here and there a stunted and brave cross it swiftly by night, and the vulture hovers over the caravans by day. Not a tree, not a bush, not a blade of grass relieves the glare of thy sunless rays. Without water a man, too, can resist the solemn impression of deep silence and infinite space produced by the desert. Here, in the midst of the solitudes and Bedouins are asleep in their burnous, walk away under the unclouded African moon beyond the first ridge of sand or rocks.

Then the silence and the boundless sense like horizon. The sand gleams almost like snow, and the moon, at her zenith upon the ear, not the murmur of a breeze, nor the rustle of leaf or grass. Not a sound to break the awful silence—only silence—as profound as the grave, and as boundless by the bent of a prowling hyena, or the distant roar of the lion. Such is the desert in the Pyramids of Egypt and the Soudan these descriptions extend over three quarters of a century, and are as true to-day as when penned by the first of man. Only a few years ago a caravan of 2,000 camels, horses were usually stopped when passing through Algeria, and the Arabs, and assembled in the vast arsenal conference at Algiers, which permit her to run him in debt, which, in case he cannot earn money with one of his fingers; to say nothing under many laws, to call her a sheet as ridiculous as folly can make itself.

And naturally what follows this proposition is in keeping with its absurdity. The wife is the equal companion of the husband, and boldly avows that Christianity will never do perfect her fallen women until the Protestant Bible is taken from the altar, and the pages all invidious distinctions based on the Bible are torn out. DANGER AHEAD!

There is danger ahead for you if you neglect the warnings which nature is giving you of the approach of the destroyer—consumption. Night sweats, spitting of blood, loss of appetite—these symptoms have a terrible meaning. You can be cured if you do not wait until it is too late. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery," the greatest blood purifyer known, will restore your lost health. As a cathartic, it is far superior to cod liver oil. All druggists.

ROYAL BLOOD:

We are all kings and queens in this country, and we have a right to as good blood as that which courses through the veins of emperors. If the blood is poor and the cheeks are pale, it is well known that Brown's Iron Bitters is the great tonic which will give color, vigor, and vitality. Mr. M. K. Gibson, of West Point, Miss., says, "I felt weak and debilitated. Brown's Iron Bitters made me strong and well."

The English Mint is suffering by the importation or manufacture of French copper coin. This coin is intrinsically worth but one-fourth of its nominal value, leaving 75 per cent. of profit for the people who are flooding the English market with it.

Ayer's Cathartic Pills are the best medicine that can be employed to correct irregularities of the stomach and bowels. Gentle, yet thorough in their action, they cure constipation, stimulate the digestive organs and the appetite, and cleanse, build up, and strengthen the system.

Sick headache? Piles, constipation, billious headache and dyspepsia, are all speedily cured by Hunt's [Kidney and Liver] Remedy.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are cutting teeth. It relieves the little sufferer immediately; it produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakens as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Actuated by this motive and a desire to relieve human suffering, I will send free of charge, to all who desire it, this recipe, in German, French or English, with full directions for preparing and using. The members of the Board of Publication are hereby notified to meet in annual session at the Book rooms in Philadelphia, on Thursday, May 7th next, at 9 A. M. Members of the Board are earnestly requested to raise from their respective charges, the means to defray their traveling expenses. This is extremely necessary because of the large sum required to bring so many members from afar. To defray this expense out of the meagre resources of the Department would cripple it for the whole summer.

RT. REV. B. H. CAIN,
President of the Board.

To the Ministers and Members of the A. M. E. Church:

The last General Conference increased the obligations of our office and reduced the income. Consequently we are in quick need of money to carry on the work of the Church. I appeal to the ministers to send me the money they have in hand, and if they have none on hand, raise a collection of Dollar Money and send me immediately that I may meet the demands of our growing Church, and supply the wants of those who are dependent on it for their bread and meat. "Do the best you can."

I am yours for God and the race,
BENJAMIN W. ARNETT,
Financial Secretary.

SPECIAL REQUEST OF THE SECRETARY OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION.

To our pastors and Superintendents:

We have three thousand Sunday schools, and to supply even a majority of these with the Jubilee Gem for the next Children's Day will involve a great deal of time and labor. To order, therefore, that we may be able to distribute the Gems in time so as to allow the schools opportunity to make reasonable preparation to properly observe the day, we earnestly ask that you immediately inform us of the number you will need. Pastors having charge of circuits will please send for each school separately.

Now, do not delay. In order to make the day a grand Jubilee, it is necessary to have sufficient time to get ready. While every school is required to observe the day, yet we believe in voluntary service, and we hope to secure the support and interest of every pastor and superintendent. Order your Gems at once and in so doing be sure to state the number you want, and the person and place to whom they are to be sent.

O. S. SMITH.

With the fond hope and assurance that you will not withhold such vital information.

A Sensation

of relief is sure to follow the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and thousands thankfully acknowledge its good effects. Charles C. Smith, Craftsbury, Vt., says: "I have been troubled, for a long time, with a humor, which appeared on my face in ugly pimples and blotches. Ayer's Sarsaparilla cured me. I consider it the best blood purifier in the world."

Judge of the feelings of Mrs. T. P. Cushing, 87 Suffolk st., Chelsea, who, after being so afflicted with Salt Rheum that her fingers would crack open, and bleed and itch terribly, was cured by four bottles of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. E. G. Evans, 78 Carver st., Boston, Mass., suffered severely from rheumatism and debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla proved a specific in her case. Francis Johnson, Editor of the "German American," Lafayette, Ind., writes: "For years I have been subject to chronic attacks of neuralgia, especially at the commencement of spring. I have derived great benefit from Ayer's Sarsaparilla." It has restored thousands. Walter Barry, 7 Hollis st., Boston, Mass., after vainly trying a number of medicines, for the cure of lumbago, was persuaded to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. He writes: "Your valuable medicine not only relieved me, but I believe it has worked a perfect cure, although my complaint was apparently chronic." Thos. Dulby, Watertown, Mass., has long been a sufferer from lumbago and rheumatism. So great has been his improvement since using that he has every reason to believe it will effect a permanent cure.

Saved and

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass., U. S. A.

For sale by all Druggists. Price $1; six bottles for $5.

NOTICE.

I have begun the preparation of a volume commemorative of the late Bishop Dickerson, with the full consent of his widow. This work will include, in addition to an extented biographical sketch, many of the letters and addresses, etc., of our lamented friend. The material is not lacking, but much of it is scattered. I desire to ask his many friends and others, who were directly or indirectly associated with the Bishop, and who may have letters, papers and other items that will do for publication to be kind enough to let me take a copy of the same; I will return them. I shall be glad to hear from any who may be able to contribute to the interest of a commemorative volume, such as we desire to publish. The late distinguished Bishop's warm friend and colleague, the Senior Bishop, Dr. D. A. Payne, will write the introduction to the volume. With the warmest desire to hear from as many as possible and as soon as possible,

I am yours very truly,
W. S. SCARBOROUGH.

In Court

one who needs help is indeed fortunate who finds a friend. But he is still more fortunate who discovers that he may eradicate the poisons of scrofula from his system by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Scrofula is one of the most terrible of all diseases. It is in the blood, corrupting and contaminating every tissue and fiber in the whole body. Patrick

Lynch

Wholesale Grocer, Lowell, Mass., says: "Ayer's Sarsaparilla is the best." The following, from R. L. King, Richmond, Va., is corroborated by Purcell, Ladd & Co., druggists, of that city. Mr. K. writes (May 12, 1884): "My son Thomas, aged 12, has suffered horribly, for three years, with scrofula, in its worst form. His case was said to be incurable. One arm was useless; his right leg was paralyzed; a large piece of bone had cut through the skin at the shoulder-blade, and three large sores constantly discharged offensive matter. He began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla on the 6th of March, and, oh, what a change; indeed, a miracle, in a few weeks the sores began to heal; he gained strength, and could walk around the house. We persevered with the Sarsaparilla, yet having little hope of his recovery. To-day he can run as far as any other boy of his age. The sores on his arm, shoulder, and back, have nearly healed, his muscles are strengthening, and he is the picture of health." Equally important facts concerning the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla

by other members of Mr. King's family, are contained in the same letter.

ROYAL BLOOD.

We are all since and ignorant in the country, and we have a right to as good blood as that which courses through the veins of emperors. Gibson, of West Point, Miss., was terribly reduced and debilitated. Brown's Iron Bitters made me strong and well."

THE BALTIMORE CONFERENCE.

On Wednesday, May 5th, this conference sat at Havre-de-Grace, Maryland. Bishop Wayman presiding. Hev. J. W. Upshaw was appointed Secretary. The usual committees were appointed. Bishop J. P. Dorsey, of Virginia, and Ohio were introduced to the conference, as were Hevs. Secretaries Arnett, Townsend, Johnson and President Mitchell, of Wilberforce University. There were several transfers to this conference. Rev. Dr. J. H. Johnson, D.D., made a very eloquent address of welcome to the conference. Rev. J. M. Gilmore, B. D., made an eloquent response. Rev. J. A. Handy, D. D., made an address of welcome to Bishop Wayman, who came into charge of this conference of the third district by agreement of the college of Bishops after the death of Bishop Dickerson, Bishop Turner taking the Virginia and North Carolina districts. In his reply the Bishop said it had been forty-three years since he met this conference first, and that he is now one of the oldest consecutive itinerants in the connection.

In the afternoon of the first day Rev. W. D. W. Schureman preached the annual sermon. Text, "The first breath was like a lion," &c. We heard Elder Schureman preach this text twenty-two years ago. It is remarkable how he has held on to both word and power, nearly every expression being the same as used on that occasion. Elder Schureman has been a traveling minister about thirty-seven years. The sermon was well received. It was highly figurative, as will no doubt those who know the speaker will readily believe. At night Rev. W. D. Johnson, D.D., Secretary of Education, preached a very good sermon. The Dr. received a statement to the effect that the work was in a very critical state of health. The reports of the pastors were nearly all in the first day. The presiding elders made good reports, showing that their work was in a very promising condition. Among the most notable pastoral reports were the following: Revs. J. W. Bowser, four hundred and sixty-two conversions, Rev. C. W. Fitzhugh, seventy deaths, fifty baptisms and four marriages; Rev. C. T. Shaffer, four hundred and twenty-five dollars Dollar Money. It is probable that the entire dollar collection of the conference will reach quite equal that of last year. The interest manifested does not lag, but the severity of the winter has been felt.

The presiding elders' reports were very good, especially that of Dr. J. H. A. Johnson. Everyone acquainted with the Doctor will infer that his was correct in English and fully comprehensive of all items inclnded in the field. So it was.

On the second day of the session, just before we left the conference, Hev. J. W. Upshaw resigned the secretaryship to hasten to Washington to resume the work of his office in one of the federal departments. It is a question whether the President will trouble him with the burden long after his arrival, yet we sincerely hope his efficient service and non-offensive partisanship will commend him to democratic favor which, sometimes like the tender mercies of the wicked, is cruel. May it not be so in his case.

In the Baltimore Conference there are fourteen members whose average itinerant life is over twenty-four years. Foremost among them is the Rev. Watters, who has been a member of the conference forty-two years; following him are Revs. J. J. Herbert and W. D. W. Schureman, thirty-seven years each; W. M. Johnson and P. J. Peck, thirty years; R. F. Wayman, twenty-nine years; D. A. Ridout, twenty-eight years, J. R. Henry and J. P. Shreeves, twenty-seven years; Jacob Nicholson and J. A. Handy, twenty-three years; G. T. Watkins and Daniel Draper, twenty-one years; J. H. A. Johnson, twenty years; several others from eleven to fifteen years. Dr. Watkins, who has spent nearly five years in the Virginia conference and one in the Philadelphia conference, goes back to his first love and meets a hearty greeting from his old companions of the Baltimore Conference. Rev. J. H. Lavatt, of the Presbyterian Church of Lynchburg, Virginia, also joined the conference. The young man received at the New Jersey Conference and at this conference are of a very good order judging from their recommendations. We felt as if we should like to have our old associates of the Ohio Conference present, Drs. Jackson and Mitchell, who have so long stood in the gate of those conferences, demanding the "shibboleth" of candidates, all but two or three of whom smog eighteen or twenty have said "shibboleth," and been received. It was highly figurative, as will no doubt those who know the speaker will readily believe. At night Rev. W. D. Johnson, D.D., Secretary of Education, preached a very good sermon. The Dr. received a statement to the effect that the work was in a very critical state of health. The reports of the pastors were nearly all in the first day. The material she draws upon is fresh and has come from the most authoritative sources. Where possible, she has confined herself to the language of those who have had a necde as to tall the famous painter and this gives a delightful raciness to the story of his life.

CHATS.

BY REV. AMOS J. WILLIAMS.

EIGHT CHAT—THE PASTOR AS AN OBSERVER.

Each pastor should be an organizer in the fullest sense of the term. He may lack the power to organize in a comparative failure as pastor. The whole Church is to be kept well in hand. A pastor should have the power to organize the elements and living forces of a church action. He should be endued with the cohesive power, which brings success. It is his duty to form Bible classes, missionary societies, literary societies, church aid societies, benevolent societies and Sunday schools if he has none. The pastor is the living epistle through which the whole machinery of the church is directed and controlled. Some pastors who are fine orators fail because they lack organic power; other pastors who are splendid financiers fail because they have organic power. The pastor who has the rhetorical powers combined with organic genius and Christian grace has a successful ministry. You take a pastor who is a fine rhetorician but without executive ability, and you will find that with the pastor who is a good executive, but no rhetorician, and you will find that the fine rhetorician draws great crowds that hang upon his words, while the executive pastor has only a fair share of the community to wait upon his ministry; and so we let them stand. We remain in the same city for three years, under the ministry of each, and then both be moved elsewhere; then let two pastors who have the same qualifications in one man, and you will find the latter for one year, at the end of the fourth year compare favorably with the former, financially and spiritually and you will find that the latter has built a large body of members and the charge is further in advance in every respect than the one which the powerful rhetorician has left after a stentorian power had in charge. Why is this so? The latter has put into the words of the rhetorician were borne upon the wings of fancy; they were not the words of the rhetorician were borne upon the wings of fancy; they were not the words of the rhetorician, like the freshet before the rushing winds, they were carried along with the force which take trees in the hurricane; they as his heart burned warmer and his words of heavier mail they were swept, like a tornado, across the elestial fields of glory. And now, when he has exercised a pastor succeeds this powerful orator, nine times out of ten he finds the people are in a serious lying all around and the first thing he has to do is to forget the sermons of his predecessor. Now, follow the executive pastor and everything is in perfect working order, you take bold hold and go to work. Happy are those pastors who have the rhetorical and executive abilities combined; their success is assured.

AMONG THE MILLIONAIRES.

BY PRESIDENT S. T. MITCHELL.

Our two days' stay with Editor Lee, as all other things must do, came to an end. We had looked in upon the Conference, had taken a hand-shake, had disentangling the complications of debits and credits—the former somewhat predominant, met the busy clerical Misses Tanner and other auxiliaries in the work, talked with the pastor in the editorial sanctum, ascended, yes, ascended to where the great magazine is manufactured, and comprehended all of the process, contested a game and a principle on the Bible, and were ready to start in search of fresh adventure.

Certain literary work was demanding our attention and the city of Trenton, N. J., Love contained too many distracting forces. We returned to Burlington, and on the afternoon of the week an answered correspondence, and thought. Burlington is a beautiful and old gentleman named Dutton in our stopping place; ready in conversation, he cheerfully accessible to the visitor, supposed to be liberal, not forgetting to attach his own name to the amount of $5.00. His age and his occupation made us appreciate his liberality. Before the close of the next day he brought it wrapped in a piece of brown paper, it reminded us most forcibly of Mite, Mite, and we could but respond, God bless that good brother.

On Monday following we undertook to call upon a few millionaires who fused outright because he had so much responsibility; the second had given to benevolent societies and Sunday schools her own husband's savings, $5.00, with the remark, he wished he could make it a million; the third was a poor widow, but were protected that pleasure on account of illness; the word was not spoken, the promise made to Bishop Payne to be sure to call at the next visit, we assured that Wilberforce should not be forgotten. In the afternoon we went out to a fine mansion, which, we learned, was controlled. We passed a house that had been closed and entered. Very hospitality were we received. It was a visit of love, and we felt that the fine rhetorician draws great crowds that hang upon his words, while the executive pastor has only a fair share of the community to wait upon his ministry; and so we let them stand. The latter remarked: "Silver and gold have I none, yet what I have I give unto thee;" and therewith he took us up into his studio, where, amid paintings one of which reached an estimated value of $40,000, we spent a most delightful hour. We descended by an elevator, and there we raised horses, material, etc. After having thus introduced Wilberforce, we continued our walk, and a half mile brought us to elegant mansion of the latter stone. As one we stopped; the servant met us at the door, but no further could we enter as an interview was denied us. At another we met the same refusal, based on the fact that the master had been on similar missions and that it was afterward learned that their donations were limited to the sectarian; however, did not permit us to return empty handed, and the cause for rejoicing in the thought that literality of not forging at least in our own pockets and that well directed industry will be reasonably rewarded.

A letter received from Harve-de-Grace. We anticipate that we shall not labor in vain in behalf of the Baltimore Conference will surpass the New Jersey in average liberality remains to be demonstrated. Next week, D.V., will find us at Wilmington, Delaware.

EDUCATIONAL, NO. 1.

BY REV. C. C. PEETS.

Two years ago I conceived an idea by which I thought, and yet think, Wilberforce University might be made a paradise of intelligence and usefulness. My notions were seconded by a number of persons interested in the subject of education, and I was called upon by a temporary organization to act as general agent in perfecting plans for permanent organization and operation. The chief idea was to unite the former and present students, graduates and undergraduates upon whom the university has conferred honorary degrees—these and special friends of Wilberforce University into an "Aid Association," making the institution a special object of interest. On the appearance of the "Aid plan" for the General Conference, I slacked speed in my zealous because his plans smouched so much of what I thought could not be bettered, and I could not have it my narrow subservient. I waited to see its results, which after a year's trial, we are sorry to say, have been nothing like what was hoped for. $10,000 would have been sufficiently small for an practical a plan as was put in the hands of the District Secretaries to execute. Under this plan only the combined efforts of the Secretary and Treasurer, Rev. Dr. Secretary, President S. T. Mitchell, Rev. A. M. Green and a very few others, $6,197.51 have been collected and distributed among the schools of our Church. Per the Secretary of Education, and $300 in specie to the District Secretaries, and the balance, $1,541, every cent of which a District Secretary ought to have to devote his time and talent in getting money through his district for the various schools he represents.

These thoughts are to be hereafter considered. 1. Redowment Day; 2. Educational plans, and 3. New or additional ideas to be followed up. It will take any man quite a year to properly organize a district, by getting each pastor and the Baptist church at 3 o'clock P. M. Before the appointed time crowds of people will have assembled and a promise made to Bishop Payne to be sure to call at the next visit, we assured that Wilberforce should not be forgotten. DO YOU MEAN BUSINESS?

Well, if you have strength to push your business, it is well; but if a man's business has broken down because the man was broken down, and had no push in it, he can work it up. If success, build up your system by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters. Rev. D. M. Winfree, of Petersburg, Va., says: "There is no medicine equal to Brown's Iron Bitters for general debility." It cures dyspepsia, enriches the blood and strengthens the muscles.

Some white people living near a camp of the Coahuilla Indians in San Bernardino county, Cal., who lately sold the Indians had condemned to death one of their number on the charge of witchcraft, interposed and influenced the chief of the Indians to lay the matter before the Indian agent.

DO NOT BE ALARMED

at the raising of the blood from the lungs. It is one of the very earliest symptoms of consumption, and only shows the healthy efforts of the system to throw off the scrofulous impurities of the blood which have reached the lungs. Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" is a powerful remedy for consumption at this stage. If taken faithfully, it will cleanse the blood, heal the cavities in the lungs, and build up and renovate the whole system.

Among the "curiosities of commerce" noses, perhaps, is more curious than that the major portion of the produce exported from South Africa is used for the adornment of ladies. Out of the total value exported of 57,500,000, which includes ivory, hides and skins, no less than 45,000,000 consist of ostrich feathers.

Many ladies admire grey hair—on some other person. But few care to try the effect on their own heads until the book of larger size and type for pulpit use, and to accommodate the older people. Then we need a choir edition, containing a number of the 1000 standard tunes and a half dozen chants and anthems at the end. It is estimated that 1,000 copies of the book with the duplicates will cost us $1,000; after that each 1000 will cost less than one-half that sum. Now, if the Bishops, ministers and members desire such a book and will give us their hearty support, we believe such an edition can be prepared and furnished to the Church within the current year. We do not mean support by words; but we mean will you and your church subscribe of the $1,000, to be secured by lein on the first 2000 books? In other words, how many will you subscribe for at cost, and take the note for the amount, payable in the proper persons.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.—MRS. WINSLOW'S Soothing Syrup should always be used when children are getting teeth. It relieves at once the little sufferer of teeth. It produces natural, quiet sleep by relieving the child from pain, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button." It is very pleasant to taste. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, relieves wind, regulates the bowels, and is the best known remedy for diarrhœa, whether arising from teething or other causes. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

OUR MISSIONARY AT HOME.

A few days ago we were surprised by the entrance of Rev. C. W. Mowell into the room. We had heard that he was expected in the States this spring, but were not looking for him so soon. He has spent eight years in Hayti. During the late rebellion of 1883 he suffered greatly between the contending fires of government and revolutionists; scarcely escaping with his life, his possessions all falling in the flames and beside of plunderers. Mrs. Mowell accompanies the Elder to their home again after eight years of trial and suffering. The Rev. S. G. Dorce is in charge of the church in Hayti. Elder Mowell believes the work on that island to be of very great interest; he thinks the young ministers educated and sent over, if put at work in the ministery according to their ecclesiing and education and experience, would find much to do. We welcome the Missionary home.

MISSIONARY MEETING.

Next Sunday and Monday the anniversary of the General Missionary Society will take place in the Sullivan Street A. M. E. Church. Among the speakers will be Rev. Bro. Turner, Arnett and others. Elder Mossell, who has spent eight years in Hayti, will be present and make a report concerning that relative to his work there. Several of the Bishops are expected; Bishop Shorter, President of the Society, and Bishop Cain, of the First District, at least. The pastors and people throughout the State and adjoining States of the churches are cordially invited by the Board to join in this annual meeting with heart, hand and money.

Bishop Shorter requests us to make this as an especial request from him as President of the Parent Home and Foreign Missionary Society of the A. M. E. Church. This is the purpose of which Board to hold meetings in Philadelphia in the same week. It is the object of this meeting, not only to review the work of the past year, arrange for the following year and gathering up of what is which to do this, but also to enlarge and deepen the spirit of missions in the hearts of our people.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL UNION.

The field day for this institution of the Church is June 14th. Secretary Smith speaks for his department in this number of the Recorder, with reference to Children's Day, in a most seasonably language. We think what he has said with reference to his political status is sufficient. We do not believe there is any good reason to call it question his loyalty to our cause as a Church, nor his interest in the schools. Amid the fire and smoke, the clouding of political sounds and the booming of party cannon, it was common to hear many sounds that could not be analyzed in the moment; they were too rapidly followed by others. Casual remarks were magnified into cumulative argument and incidental exclamations into mature deserations. Many a man state became somewhat bewildered. Indeed, some of our very strongest men were political paralytics. Dr. Smith has declared himself out of active politics since then.

Now, in supporting our glorious Sunday school work we are but supporting ourselves; the work is ours. Its success is ours, its service is ours; to make it a great day is to help to lay the foundation for our children's children. We need just now more cohesiveness. The children may be educated in this matter. It is not too late for them; for many of us it is. The spirit that glories in the cross of Christ our Lord must be enlarged enough us. Childhood is the place to life to make sure work. It would be a shame to allow any slight technicality, and mesh less any shading of the political status of the Secretary or any thought of mere local preference, to prevent our young folk from exerting their full strength on Children's Day. We want success, and to have it must work in harmony, though we differ in opinion. The work before our Church is immense. The material with which to perform it is in our hands. The grace of God is large towards us. Let us meet work in unity and practicability. Our entire Church should feel the responsibility of Children's Day, and meeting it with united effort, give such impulse to the Sunday school work as will enable the department to be of great service to the connection. Let the Church rally around the head of the Secretary of the Sunday School Union, but that he and we are together serving our own age and the coming ages. We cannot expect financial results from a divided house. Let us be one, and we shall be more than conquerors. Let us go forward in his limitless memory and supply them to our character in his infinite righteousness.

UNION BETHEL, WASHINGTON.

This great church building, called the Metropolitan Church, is a vast structure. When completed it will cost $70 000, so Rust. It was consecrated in 1886 under the pastorate of Rev. J. W. Stevenson, under whose pastoral spirit the whole place was projected and several thou sand dollars raised. Rev. A. Hendy succeeded Dr. Stevenson. The work has been carried on till, the building is enclosed, covered with a good slate roof Thirty thousand dollars has been paid by the energies of pastors and people; forty thousand remains to be paid. Dr. Handy merits the gratitude of his people, the connection for the service rendered in carrying the project forward to this point, when Dr. Stevenson for the courage to project it in the first instance.

The Baltimore Conference appointments show that the Rev. J. A. Handy, D. D., is now presiding elder, and that the pastor of Union Bethel Metropolitan Church is the Rev. George T. Wat-kine, D. D., the highly popular and well known to require solution or introduction anywhere is the connection The charge is one that may be occupied safely. The Doctor will not be troubled by many rivels. He will possess the field for three or four years nemine contradicente, before Gov. Good. we may expect great results from this appointment. Dr. Watkins' scholarship, pastoral experience, success in rising churches and people, his unsullied character, and fervent piety render his appointment eminently fitting. Few men emoge us have the ear of the people as he has, and few men possess the confidence of the people of the capitol city with more force; none among us is able to awaken greater interest than he. The people reposing their final ability a respose ability than the very man who once raised twenty-three thousand dollars to aid Bethel Church, Baltimore, in one day.

The Metropolitan Church is under efficient hands, and we have a work of big Sunday school and an excellence class of young people. There is probably no superior literary association among our people, to that of Union Bethel, made so, largely, by the literal spirit of pastors and people, who have not drawo denominational lines too tight, but have invited the co-partsion of men and women for their merit and service.

Dr. Watkins goes to his new field with the confidence and love of the whole State and adjoining States of the churches are cordially invited by the Board to join in this annual meeting with heart, hand and money.

THE AFRICAN M. E. CHURCH REVIEW.

No better time than now to subscribe for the Review. No better time than now to renew. With the next number will begin our second volume. As it relates to the first volume, the reader is doubtless aware that the best brains in the race conspired to make it the finest publication of the kind ever produced. And yet, as grand as was its success, the dedication are that it will be fully equalled, if not really surpassed, in the volume about to commence. The first number, that of July, will open with a fine phototype of Bishop Disney, accompanied by an article by the biographer. Almost each succeeding issue will be Bishop Holly, of Hayti; Judge Reffin, of Massachusetts; Bishop Hood, of North Carolina; Rev. Dr. Heedy, of Washington City; Rev. Dr. Steward, of Philadelphia; Mrs. F. E. W. Harper; Mrs. M. E. Lee, Mrs. M. E Lambert, Miss Josephine T. Turpin, Mrs. N. F. Mossell, Miss Gordelia Ray and others. It will also contain a symposium on the question: What should be the policy of the colored American towards Africa? The contributors to it are Rev. Dr. J. B. Reeve, of Philadelphia; and Rev. Rufus L. Perry, of Brooklyn, and others. The Editorials, Book and Review Notices of each number will be unexceptionally large. Now is the time to ask Scribe. Now is the time to renew. Subscription, $1.50.

THE following telegram was received Monday, 25th inst.:

DES MOINES, IOWA, May 25.

To Rev. B. F. Lee, 631 Pine St., Phila. Rev. Geo. H. Hann died last night at the pulpit.

J. W. MALONE.

Elder Hann was one of the most promising young ministers in Iowa Conference. He was one of its delegates to the late General Conference. His career has been brief, but exceedingly energetic. He studied one year at Wilberforce University. Self-contained, he was doing so by his own unaided efforts, but owing to his circumstances, left to go to work. After three or four years he married. He has studied two years at the college, Chicago, and could have gladly remained there had he not been prostrated by consumption of which Malone last year.

IN THE YEAR ending April 1st, 1885, the UNIVERSAL RECORDER, though its subscription price had been reduced to $1 50, did about as good business, according to Manager Embry's report, as in any preceding year. Has there not been good reason why our subscription list should not reach 20,000. We need a larger paper, which can be given very easily if the number, or even fifteen thousand, is reached. A paper could be published sufficiently large to meet all our wants. A prompt attention to the payment of subscriptions and money for sales would also add much to our ability to increase the size of the paper. Brethren who receive bills may remember that though each is but one, there may be two or three hundred like them. We believe the business at the office is attended to with unusual promptness, and in as correct a manner as possible. Send your money in, brethren. We need it badly.

GREAT MISSIONARY MEETING.

Secretary Townsend has reason to congratulate himself and the Society at large for the very great success of the annual meeting at Sullivan street, New York. Rev. W. H. Derrick had all things ready, for enthusiasm was everywhere manifest, from the Sunday school to the choir. Of the choir it is to be said that Brother Sawyer never had it in better trim. It was worth a trip to this great metropolis to hear them sing:

"Over the ocean wave," with the rich alto of Bishop Cain's at times rolling out upon the air. The absence of Bishop Shortar, who was compelled to go home on account of bodily affliction, was deeply lamented. Providence, however, was most propitious, and besides the presence of Bishop Cain, who presided with his accustomed grace and dignity, the meeting was brought to port, early Sunday morning, Bishop Campbell and Dissey, from Bermuda. The presence of three Bishops, three General Officers—Arnett, Townsend and Tanner, and the missionary from Hayti, Rev. C. W. Mossell and wife, made the occasion one of real color to the people. That they enjoyed it was evidenced by the crowds present, all day. This was especially true of the morning when Bishop R R Disney preached from the text, "O Give thanks unto the Lord, for he is good."

In the afternoon, the address of the hour was by Dr. H T. Tanner. His subject was, "The press a necessary adjunct to successful missionary work—The philosophy of it." The doctor did not speak more than twenty minutes, yet was the subject treated in the most thoughtful and practical way. After the collection Rev. C. W. Mossell spoke with great feeling for quite an hour, rehearsing to the most pathetic way the story of his sufferings.

At eight the church was literally crammed to hear Dr. Arnett. He preached from Matt. 15, 15. "Go ye into all the world," &c. The sermon abounded in wit and pathos.

The collection of the day amounted to over ninety dollars. To say nothing of the pastor, whose zeal is the common cause is to the mouth of all, the trustees, stewards, and the entire choir are worthy of all thanks for the broad liberality displayed. Taking it all in all, the day was such an one as will not soon be forgotten. PARTICEPS.

BISHOP TAYLOR suggests that the colored people of America raise the $500 000 necessary to the relief of Liberia from the lion's paw. This could be done and the colored man of America would never suffer on account of it. One dollar each given by one in every fourteen colored persons in the country would do it. This gives us a fastening notion of our power, but we are humbled in the remembering that scarcely any subject could draw anything like that amount of money from us, simply because we are not organized. As to the matter referred to we can scarcely feel any more responsibility. The government would give us no guarantee against an unwise loan being made, at any time that would subject it to another attack upon its treasury. If the Liberian government remain a better country longer an autonomic government by power divine. They have been preserved by such a power and one of them in particular to play its part in a remarkable coincidence at the present time. In your editorial of the 14th inst. you mentioned my absence at the anniversary of the course of Christ, he has rushed into the hottest contest, the day of literary and moral warfare, them on the enemy. The ground is strewn with the wounded, and deserters are captured and brought back. Many are the victories won by him, yet there is much ground to conquer in the present service, which must be captured.

Bishop Taylor arrived at Baltimore, D. C., at 2 30 P. M. on the 24th inst.; met many of the preachers throughout the day who made it very pleasant indeed for us.

Saturday, 25th, Rev. Lykes having arrived in company with the Bishop elder, I was called upon to preach at the Quarterly Conference. In other passages I have given the details of the conference so I will not repeat them. Suffice it to say that the Bishop and I were entertained by Rev. Mr. Lykes, at one of his elegant homes, and he and his wife and family did everything in their power to make us feel at home. His being one of our old appointments we accepted the invitation. We found him to be a man of fine literary attainments, and a good preacher. The next day, Sunday, we met Elder Hasmill and his officers ready for the battle for the Master, and soon after the Bishop and I were in the field and was dispatched in short order. We preached to a large and attentive congregation, and found that no hostile fleet or tribe had lifted the head of discord upon the whole circuit in terms of war. We then go Sabbath at 11 A. M. At the close of the service we organized a two horse team, owned by Bro. Sydney Ellis, Jr., and started on to the church in the afternoon, after which we secured a two horse team, owned by Bro. Sydney Ellis, Sr., and started on to the church where we spoke for Rev. G. T. Strick-land—Revs. Bishop, Lykes and myself. Handy never can be forgotten, even though some other church should sweep the silken thread to bind us, as long as I is remembered.—Jas. A. Handy, I mean, was the first circuit preacher I ever met. I trois, long ago should have been a Bishop because he is on Tuesday, May 19, 1865, in Charleston, presented me for Elder's orders.

Hoping my success in an increased extent, friend editor, I submit this brief correspondence, and remain, as ever, anxious to give you all the help I could.

Rev. Dr. Jones, of Philadelphia, assisted me 52 articles giving vent to pent up be mor, but could not get the smallest stone to grind the pen.

SOUTH CAROLINA LETTER.

BY REV. W. H. SMITH.

We last wrote you at Statesburg, S. C., and on our arrival there we proceed to give you and your many readers a further detail of our work and trip to the Palmetto State and the workings of the Independents on the Lord's side of the street. We therefore set about our work.

Never were we more struck with the beauty of nature; the trees were just putting out, the songsters were perched carols, the trees filled their foliage to the perfect fullness, the wild flowers peered forth to grace the occasion by pouring their sweetness on the air, the soil had been locked up in the cold, icy and frozen bosom of winter, but the gentle spring came with its balmy breath of warmth, unlocked his door of death and the dead sprang to life, and lived, disrobed, they are free. Contions with us, sweet spring speak with your musical voice, check the flying, the sea can not bar your wheels more forward.

Now to our task. We reached A. C., at 2 30 P. M. on the 24th inst.; met many of the preachers throughout the day who made it very pleasant indeed for us.

Saturday, 25th, Rev. Lykes having arrived in company with the Bishop elder, I was called upon to preach at the Quarterly Conference. In other passages I have given the details of the conference so I will not repeat them. Suffice it to say that the Bishop and I were entertained by Rev. Dr. Tanner, Managing Editor of the Church Review, in his annual report says of it for the Review:

The Editor feels to thank the Bishops and Clergy for the unanimity and promptness with which they have given him; and he will say that he will do his best to send out each issue of the Review on the 1st of January, April, July and October, and will be read with much pleasure by those acquainted with the original, though, in this respect, all will not agree with the new text. Them are very many, yea, hundreds of instances, in which a different rendering of the original gives better sense or more consistency. In some cases, with the old, as for the fact relative to the revision of the New Testament, the choice has fallen in favor of the rendering more conspicuous than the old rendering. The Manager has the revised Bible on sale in different styles for $1.00 to $2.00.

The expenses of an education at Cornell are not large in comparison with other institutions of learning. A student can spend $1 100 for his legitimate expenses, but $300 will cover them, providing he is economical. To illustrate the difference between a man's and his fancied needs, it is said that a student at Yale College can pay all his real expenses with $400 a year, and yet $5,000 can be expended in so-called legitimate expenses.

MR. EDITOR:—Greetings: Whilst sitting by a fire in the Blue Ridge recipe preparing my almanac for the eighth and last year's hard work of preaching elder, I turned my attention to some of my musty records. On doing this, great was my surprise when I found these which it was presented had shortened the days of literary men but some years ago. It seemed as though they had been preserved by some divine power. THE MANAGER'S annual report leads us to believe that after a long pull, if we will give a strong pull, the Book Concern will be able to lift its head above the waves in a few years and become a means of revenue to the Church, instead of drafts to secure the race from its threldom.

The report shows a business during the year ending April 1st of $12,375.71, and a total profit on the business of the last year of quite $1,000. The Manager makes the following statement:

The Manager has been able to collect the RECORD-BOOKS and subscriptions, nevertheless, he is pained to say by the statement that in round numbers the Church owes the same within $1 6.10 of paying its own way. And if the Publishing Agents have been collected, it would have come out $646.00 ahead. Many of the subscribers to the Sunday school helps express reported does not fully represent the number of the RECORDERS. At one time, we can safely say she is nearer home to the eleven thousand mark than ever before. Some strong pull will turn the scale, the Lord helping. Something I have done for the very best I could. We could not afford to employ a book agent at our Book Concern. This is a business to be learned, and it requires time to get a clear knowledge of how to do it best—a thing we are not willing to do at our Book Concern. THE OLD TESTAMENT REVISED.

THE AMERICAN SUGGESTIONS

of the American Committee were adopted and embodied in the revised version. Many others, not adopted in their exact words, were inserted in a modified form, which satisfactorily expressed the American views. Many that were not then incorporated in the text were not deemed of sufficient importance or sufficiently important to insist upon. In cases, however, where such importance was deemed necessary, a very high class of young men admitted into the conference to take the places of those who were to go to England and Herbert, who are the fathers of the conference.

On Thursday afternoon, May 14th, I left Baltimore for Jersey City, and took the B & O Railroad to the Queen City of the West (Cincinnati) where I stayed and took the Cincinnati & Southern Railroad to Chattanooga, Tennessee. From there I took the Atlanta & Alabama Great Southern to Meridian, Mississippi, where I met Rev. Dr. Lucas, arriving Saturday afternoon 9 o'clock, on time. I was not long in finding St. James pertaining to Rev. Dr. Lucas, where I spent a little sorjourn. I was a little surprised to find that the Rev. Dr. Lucas had been appointed the commissioner from Texas to the great Exposition, after a good night's rest I met him on the morning feeling bright.

On Sunday, May 17, I preached to a large congregation, and found the Rev. Dr. Lucas a younger brother of his in the ministry, J. M Carroll, C T Shaw, J. Hunter, J W Lovett and wife, D Draper, S J Johnson and wife, Mrs Harriet A E Wyman. 1870-80—Rev. Dr. Lucas, Mrs. Lucas and wife, J T Morris, D A Bid ost. 82 1880-81—Rev. DeGrasse, Mrs. Mary C E Cox, 81—Revs T H Jacobs, Mrs. Mary, G B Young, M W Travers, H Carver, C Arnett, E Lawson, J H Cromwell, 1880-81—Rev. Dr. Lucas, Mrs. Lucas, W Goldsboro, S L Cassell, T A V Henry 80 seats—Thos Wyman. Public collection, $20 27. Educational money, $27 47. Sabbath-school collection, $2 50. Total amount for conference appropriation of $126. Sabbath-school, $175. Sunday collection, $20. Grand total, $425 51. The total does not include the $50 subscription by Bishop Wade Hampton, of South Carolina, by Secretary Townsend.

We now invite your attention to the record of the Philadelphia Conference. $50—Rev J S Thompson, $50—Rev Jas Bryant, $20—Rev Wilson; $10—Bishop J A Shorter, Revs. T Gould, T H Moore, W F Bissel 8 seats—Rev. Dr. Lee, Mrs. Lee, 85—Revs M F Sloby, B T Tanner, C O Boothe, Mrs. Mary E Lee, Mrs. Sarah A Cuff, J Jervis, W H Davis, M V Lawson, G H Hubard, Mrs. Amelia C S Williamson, Mrs. Mary E Coppin, J M Townsend, J Wilhelm. Cash, $8 W Arnett, $1 Mrs. Mary E Lee, $1 Mrs. Sarah Bell. Mrs Harriet Baker, $3—J W Rogers, $5—Rev. Dr. Lee, $5 Mrs. Lee, $5 Miller; $1—Revs W H Bryant, S Drake, J B Bell. Public collection, $30 2; reported money, $7 74; Sabbath-school subscription, $135; conference appropriation, [not paid] $100; grand total, $425 56.

A comparison of the two sets of figures shows that the Baltimore Conference leads in number of contributors, in contributions and in the aggregate collection and in total amount. The Philadelphia Conference leads in number of attendees, reported money and in cash donations. The Philadelphia Conference has a total of 1,000 more members than the Baltimore Conference, and yet the latter leads in the aggregate collection and in total amount. THE BALTIMORE AND PHILADELPHIA CONFERENCES EN-DORSE WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY.

BY REV. S. T. MITCHELL.

MR. EDITOR:—In my last article I made the statement that the Baltimore Conference and the Church should undertake more fully the work of the higher educational work in general, and the Rev. Edward Wilmot Blyden, LL. D., University, in particular. In no better way can the sympathies of the millions be manifested. The experience of the last ten years has demonstrated that the church means to do her duty in the premises. The wild scenes of liberty's day—last night of bondage darkened all the land of the fathers, out of their powers and distress, laid more upon education's altar than the same time in a century. The support of this work has not kept pace with the advance of light, of privilege, of financial ability. Wilberforce University, especially these recent entered, in your estimation, to take upon yourself the responsibility of the announcement, the support of this institution will not entreat you to discharge your obligation to the holy cause of Christian education.

PHILADELPHIA CONFERENCE

BY REV. C. S. HERBERT.

The sixty-oldest assessor of the Philadelphia Annual Conference, held in the A. M. E. Church at Wilmington, Del., adjourned the sine die at 1 o'clock on Tuesday night. Bi Bi Rev. B. H. Calo, D.D., the presiding elder of Wilmington district, by his venerable colleagues, Bishop A. G. Shorter. The conference was unanimous in the opinion that it was one of the most peaceful, harmonious, delightful and profitable sessions ever held. The Bishop was equal to the task. Notwithstanding the long, cold winter and the monetary depression, the financial reports equalled, and in many instances exceeded, those of last year. Dollar Money amounted to $2,000. Conference appropriation, $2,500; educational, $417 77; paid on churches, $1,000. Collected for Sunday schools, ——. The Bishop's appointments on last page. The reports also show an increase in the membership, Sunday-schools and Sunday-school scholars. He had been prostrated with a severe attack of grip. We took leave of him and family and left at 5 30 P. M. for Dover, the beautiful city on the Brenze Delaware River, where the next session of the conference was filled by Prof. J. W. Hasdolph, B. Lee Wilson and Rev. A. G. Scott, presiding elder of this district.

BY REV. C. S. SMITH.

The above headlines are presented for the comfort of the croakers and growlers who have been planning to defeat Children's Day from one end of the year to the other. Last year there were less than 500 Sunday-schools reported on this date, and reported to us; now at this late evening, May 30th, we have over fifteen hundred Sunday-schools reported and the Bishop and I are pledged to observe the day, and we have supplied with Gems. I am sure that "Our Fathers' Church" may be depended upon to observe it, and the zeal of the youth committed to our care.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

All churches and Sunday schools that desire the Jubilee Gem for use on Children's Day, Sunday, June 14th, 1885, must apply for them, and none will be sent unless they are asked for. This notice includes all schools, whether they have before observed Children's Day as above that date or not. We are only making a new enrollment and desire to have the organizer necessary to supply each school. We must have this as a guide in sending out the Gem for Christmas and Easter.

Three banners will be given this year; No. 1, to the Sunday-school in the largest amount of money in proportion to its membership; No. 2, to the circuit that raises the largest amount of money in proportion to its membership; No. 3, to the mission that raises the largest amount of money in proportion to its membership.

All orders for Gems must be sent in immediately, and we will not mail any after the first of June. Send us a postal card stating the number wanted and the name of the office to which it is to be sent. In every case give full directions as to the manner in which you desire it sent, whether it is by express, then give street and number. For the future Church,

C. S. SMITH.

We have many calls for a different style of our Hymn Book. The present book has been made to suit the pulpit use, for members and congregation; but there is an urgent demand for a book of larger size and type for pulpit use, and to accommodate the older people. We have such a book in preparation containing an appendix of about 100 standard tunes and a half dozen responses and anthems at the end. It is estimated that 1000 of these books with the plates will cost us $1,000; after that each 1000 will cost less than one-half that sum. We will be thankful for letters, papers and other items that will help us to be able to carry out our plan. If we make a copy of the same; I will furnish it free. I shall be glad to hear from any one who may be able to contribute to the interest of a commemorative book of the kind. Yours truly,

C. S. SMITH.

The late distinguished Bishop's warm friend and colleague, the Rev. Bishop Dr. D. A. Payne, will write the introduction to the volume. With the sermons of Bishop Cain, it will be a fair rendition of the evident desire to publish and so soon as possible.

I am very truly,

W. S. SCARBOROUGH.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

BY A. W. WAYMAN, D.D., BISHOP OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

MR. EDITOR:—I closed the Baltimore Conference on Tuesday afternoon, May 12 h. All the preachers with a few exceptions were pleased with their appointments. Some thought they ought to be presiding elders and others thought that they were not. But all were pleased always. By this time I hope they are settled and have entered upon their work. A very high class of young men admitted into the conference to take the places of those who were to go to England and Herbert, who are the fathers of the conference.

A comparison of the two sets of figures shows that the Baltimore Conference leads in number of contributors, in contributions and in the aggregate collection and in total amount. The Philadelphia Conference leads in number of attendees, reported money and in cash donations. The Philadelphia Conference has a total of 1,000 more members than the Baltimore Conference, and yet the latter leads in the aggregate collection and in total amount. THE BALTIMORE AND PHILADELPHIA CONFERENCES EN-DORSE WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY.

BY REV. S. T. MITCHELL.

MR. EDITOR:—In my last article I made the statement that the Baltimore Conference and the Church should undertake more fully the work of the higher educational work in general, and the Rev. Edward Wilmot Blyden, LL. D., University, in particular. In no better way can the sympathies of the millions be manifested. The experience of the last ten years has demonstrated that the church means to do her duty in the premises. The wild scenes of liberty's day—last night of bondage darkened all the land of the fathers, out of their powers and distress, laid more upon education's altar than the same time in a century. The support of this work has not kept pace with the advance of light, of privilege, of financial ability. Wilberforce University, especially these recent entered, in your estimation, to take upon yourself the responsibility of the announcement, the support of this institution will not entreat you to discharge your obligation to the holy cause of Christian education.

PHILADELPHIA CONFERENCE

BY REV. C. S. HERBERT.

The sixty-oldest assessor of the Philadelphia Annual Conference, held in the A. M. E. Church at Wilmington, Del., adjourned the sine die at 1 o'clock on Tuesday night. Bi Bi Rev. B. H. Calo, D.D., the presiding elder of Wilmington district, by his venerable colleagues, Bishop A. G. Shorter. The conference was unanimous in the opinion that it was one of the most peaceful, harmonious, delightful and profitable sessions ever held. The Bishop was equal to the task. Notwithstanding the long, cold winter and the monetary depression, the financial reports equalled, and in many instances exceeded, those of last year. Dollar Money amounted to $2,000. Conference appropriation, $2,500; educational, $417 77; paid on churches, $1,000. Collected for Sunday schools, ——. The Bishop's appointments on last page. The reports also show an increase in the membership, Sunday-schools and Sunday-school scholars. He had been prostrated with a severe attack of grip. We took leave of him and family and left at 5 30 P. M. for Dover, the beautiful city on the Brenze Delaware River, where the next session of the conference was filled by Prof. J. W. Hasdolph, B. Lee Wilson and Rev. A. G. Scott, presiding elder of this district.

YOUNG AFRICAN METHODISM COMING TO THE FRONT—OVER FIVE HUNDRED DOLLARS RAISED IN ONE DAY FOR CHILDREN'S DAY, AND—UFFLIAN BACK FROM AFRICA—A MESSAGE FROM THE PEOPLE OF FOREST CITY, ARK.—FULL BACK FROM AFRICA—A MESSAGE FROM UNKNOWN—FAITHFUL LABORS RE-WARDED WITH THE PROMISE OF SUCCESS.

BY REV. C. S. SMITH.

The above headlines are presented for the comfort of the croakers and growlers who have been planning to defeat Children's Day from one end of the year to the other. Last year there were less than 500 Sunday-schools reported on this date, and reported to us; now at this late evening, May 30th, we have over fifteen hundred Sunday-schools reported and the Bishop and I are pledged to observe the day, and we have supplied with Gems. I am sure that "Our Fathers' Church" may be depended upon to observe it, and the zeal of the youth committed to our care.

SPECIAL NOTICE.

All churches and Sunday schools that desire the Jubilee Gem for use on Children's Day, Sunday, June 14th, 1885, must apply for them, and none will be sent unless they are asked for. This notice includes all schools, whether they have before observed Children's Day as above that date or not. We are only making a new enrollment and desire to have the organizer necessary to supply each school. We must have this as a guide in sending out the Gem for Christmas and Easter.

Three banners will be given this year; No. 1, to the Sunday-school in the largest amount of money in proportion to its membership; No. 2, to the circuit that raises the largest amount of money in proportion to its membership; No. 3, to the mission that raises the largest amount of money in proportion to its membership.

All orders for Gems must be sent in immediately, and we will not mail any after the first of June. Send us a postal card stating the number wanted and the name of the office to which it is to be sent. In every case give full directions as to the manner in which you desire it sent, whether it is by express, then give street and number. For the future Church,

C. S. SMITH.

We have many calls for a different style of our Hymn Book. The present book has been made to suit the pulpit use, for members and congregation; but there is an urgent demand for a book of larger size and type for pulpit use, and to accommodate the older people. We have such a book in preparation containing an appendix of about 100 standard tunes and a half dozen responses and anthems at the end. It is estimated that 1000 of these books with the plates will cost us $1,000; after that each

CONNECTIONAL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.

ATLANTA, GA., April 4, 1885.

Ministers A. M. E. Church:

The General Conference of 1880, as you are aware, established a Connectional Literary, Historic and Educational Association, and the General Conference of 1884 affirmed the same. But from 1880 to 1884, we could never get the constitution and by-laws properly before the connection, as they were rather too voluminous to get into the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. The constitution and by-laws, however, were amended from time to time by the Bishops' Council, but never perfected and properly presented to the people till at their last regular session, at which time they were rigidly examined and put in a practical form and put in the Annual Budget, edited by Rev. Dr. Arnett. Since their publication they have been patiently waited for in the Budget to get around to all the annual conferences, so the ministers, at least, could procure them, and thus have built the connectional constitution, the annual conference constitution and the church constitution—the three with the by-laws. I think I have waited long enough, and as one of the Bishops have been calling upon me months ago to help them sell books, I have kept back these long for the reasons above. Please refer to the minutes now in page 263 of the Budget for 1884, and you will find all necessary information and the duties of their duties, &c. The subjects for the present year, upon which essays for the next session of conference will write an essay—I mean any one a member may select, will be as follows:

1. What ought to be the home of the Christian people? By Bishop Payne.

2. What constitutes the accomplished Christian pastor? By Bishop Payne.

3. The value of Ecclesiastical studies. By Bishop Payne.

4. Is there any evidences that the world is improving morally? By Bishop Payne.

5. Is there any conflict between nations and revelation? If so, in what?

6. The best method to do fatherhood of the reformation, John Wicklifs or Martin Luther's.

The ministers will see by the connectional constitution, as published in the Budget, that we have the right to select any one of these subjects that may suit them, and prepare an essay upon the same for their annual conference examination. They will also see the prize essay arrangements, etc. Presiding elders will see their duties in the by-laws. Please write me a communication so that the most interested can understand. Let us now begin to work in earnest, as you will hear from me often upon this subject.

H. M. TURNER,
President.

Is an soothing expectorant, of great curative power. It aids the throat and lungs in throwing off diseased matter, and, at the same time, allays the irritation which causes the abnormal action of these organs. A. H. Dowling, Atchison, Kans., writes: "I have used Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, for throat and lung difficulties, with marked success. PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 4, 1886

HONORARY TITLES.

The season for issuing titles draws nigh. Our colleges throughout the land have commenced. The inordinate ambition of some men on their own account and that of others, for public friends for titles is manifest in America on all heads. The pressure brought to bear upon institutions of learning is this matter is severe and often very unreasonable. A few more years will carry the matter to such a height as to make our colleges ridiculous in the sight of the hotter thinkers. Of what service are these titles? It is necessary, of course, to have a distinguishing title, by which a man's profession may be marked; but for a man to bear titles of more honor, so-called, though often they are of dishonor, is a useless thing. Louis Agassiz, Newton, was significant, much more so than a series of initials that the common people must skip and the better informed sneer at. Titles have their place, but too much care can hardly be exercised in the breadth given to that place.

YOUR SUBSCRIPTION.

This is the month that becomes most live, but in order to a vigorous life it must be supported vigorously.

The Church cannot dispense with the paper, but the paper cannot dispense with the Church. To the success of the cause of depraved business with the RECORDER. The people do not know or dream of the inconvenience and really severe hardships to which Elder Embry is subjected in this business. Prompt responses to bills and notices of failing of subscriptions must be made. Think of it! The paper must be paid for, the composition must be paid for, in fact, all the business pertaining to the concern is supposed to be met promptly. A delay of a few months on the part of two or three hundred subscribers works great ill to the business. The RECORDER cannot be complained of for the source of subscription prejudice or literary quality, our yet of news. We have received scores of commendations from men whose good words are valuable. We have chosen to withhold them from print because we would not embarrass those who praise us now in case they may find it necessary to condemn us in the future. But we believe that the organ of the A. M. E. Church is, as a rule, as free from objectionable matter and as full of current matter as any paper read by our readers at the same price. It should be paid for promptly. We have managed the paper one year and feel warranted in saying that there is no legitimate reason for its limited subscription list and embarrassed condition. See to it, reader, that you add one subscriber to our list and that you examine the tag telling when your year's subscription ends and that you forward the $1.50 at once. We wish to make out a large number of receipts within the next two weeks. Help us to do so.

DEATH OF MRS M. BANTON.

Died at Americus, Ga., Wednesday morning, May 26th, 1886, Mrs. Margaret Banton, aged 50 years, 4 months and 25 days. Mrs. Banton was born in Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 25th, 1848. Her parents, (now deceased) Osborn and Rebecca Spriggs, were well known and are yet remembered and revered in Bethel African M. E. Church.

Nearly eighteen years ago she was converted and became a member of Bethel Church and Class No. 1, then under the leadership of the late Henry Gordon. For many years she was actively engaged in the Sunday school of Bethel Church, much of that service being as assistant to Miss Esther Armstrong, then in charge of the large infant class. September 24th, 1878, she was united in marriage with Mr. William C. Bentee, the late Deaton Darrell performing the ceremony. Her discharge of wifely duties was pleasant. She prudently managed her household and rendered devoted attention to her husband and their six children. January, 1882, her husband was transfered to the North Georgia Conference and appointed to Sparta Station. In May of that year she rejoined him at Sparta. The impress of her life on the community contributed is no small degree to her husband's success during their three years' residence in that charge. During the latter part of the year 1885, severe physical disorders for several months unsettled her mental powers. By Divine favor, through skilled medical treatment, and equally competent nursing, she was restored during January last to assume her place at the head of her family. She was not permitted to engage in her well loved cares as formerly, because of physical weakness. About six weeks ago she became unable to go abroad. She directed the affairs of her household until within four days of her death, on the date given above.

She died without a struggle at her husband's side. An humble yet active worker in the vineyard of the Lord, her consistent, Christian life of nearly eighteen years is the record of her faith in Christ. The funeral services were fitingly conducted by Revs. S. B. Jones, P. E., and L. Thomas, of Columbus, Ga.

" ONE SUNDAY SCHOOL REVIEW," after a rest of several months, reappears with Children's Day greeting, a list of nearly two thousand names of persons having ordered the Gem. Success to the Sunday School Department will issue a teachers' quarterly. The scholars' quarterly and a monthly gem for little folks, besides giving the picture of Children's Day in Bethel, Baltimore, 1883, and an outline of work for the next year under the orders of the grand commander of the "Grand Army of Young African Methodists." Of course thing there can be no question, the Sunday School Department, under Dr. Smith's management, is developing as to literature.

THE REV. M. J. CRAMER, D.D., United States Minister at Berne, Switzerland, has just been called to the Chair of Systematic Theology in Boston University. Dr. Cramer, like Dr. Philip Schaff, of New York, illustrates the advantage of a German parentage and an American education in combination. He is as familiar with the German language and literature as with the English, and is hardly less so with the French. Italian and Spanish. He is a brave, Greek and Latin he is also thoroughly grounded. He is a graduate of the Boston Wesleyan University, and was for several years a student in the University at Leipsic. His English and German contributions to the periodical literature are almost every month. The element of theology, philosophy, literature and art. It collected they would fill several large volumes. At the beginning of the civil war he left the pastoral work to become chaplain of the regiment in which his brother, who afterwards fell in the battle of Vicksburg, had enlisted. After the war, owing to impaired health, he accepted pretfered positions in the consular and diplomatic service of the country, for a time of depressed business with the RECORDER. A delay of a few months on the part of two or three hundred subscribers works great ill to the business. The RECORDER cannot be complained of for the source of subscription prejudice or literary quality, our yet of news. We have received scores of commendations from men whose good words are valuable. We have chosen to withhold them from print because we would not embarrass those who praise us now in case they may find it necessary to condemn us in the future. But we believe that the organ of the A. M. E. Church is, as a rule, as free from objectionable matter and as full of current matter as any paper read by our readers at the same price. It should be paid for promptly. We have managed the paper one year and feel warranted in saying that there is no legitimate reason for its limited subscription list and embarrassed condition. See to it, reader, that you add one subscriber to our list and that you examine the tag telling when your year's subscription ends and that you forward the $1.50 at once. We wish to make out a large number of receipts within the next two weeks. Help us to do so.

DEATH OF MRS M. BANTON.

Died at Americus, Ga., Wednesday morning, May 26th, 1886, Mrs. Margaret Banton, aged 50 years, 4 months and 25 days. Mrs. Banton was born in Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 25th, 1848. Her parents, (now deceased) Osborn and Rebecca Spriggs, were well known and are yet remembered and revered in Bethel African M. E. Church.

Nearly eighteen years ago she was converted and became a member of Bethel Church and Class No. 1, then under the leadership of the late Henry Gordon. For many years she was actively engaged in the Sunday school of Bethel Church, much of that service being as assistant to Miss Esther Armstrong, then in charge of the large infant class. September 24th, 1878, she was united in marriage with Mr. William C. Bentee, the late Deaton Darrell performing the ceremony. Her discharge of wifely duties was pleasant. She prudently managed her household and rendered devoted attention to her husband and their six children. January, 1882, her husband was transfered to the North Georgia Conference and appointed to Sparta Station. In May of that year she rejoined him at Sparta. The impress of her life on the community contributed is no small degree to her husband's success during their three years' residence in that charge. During the latter part of the year 1885, severe physical disorders for several months unsettled her mental powers. By Divine favor, through skilled medical treatment, and equally competent —Bishop Shorter, though still weak, is improving in health.

—Rev. A. A. Williams, in "Chats," is making some good hits. He hits me. Let him hit away.

—H. M. T. follows his contribution of this issue with another next week, in which he discusses the "Negro" question and unpopular topics. Prepare for racy reading.

—The annual sermon preached at Allen University, by Rev. A. C. Hayes is well spoken of. The graduating class have decided to have the service of Bishop Hayne.

—Dr. T. O. Steward's new book, which will appear in short time, promises a vast field. Its title and the scholarly character of the author lead us to expect a highly interesting work in "Genius Re-ized."

—Prof. D. A. Straker, of Allen University, received the honorary degree of LL. D., at the hands of the Selma (Ala.) University recently. Prof. Straker is prominent among those likely to succeed Dr. Waters as President of Allen.

—The Rev. R. R. Well delivered the annual address before the graduating class of the law department of Allen University. The address is said to have been highly satisfactory by those who heard it. We shall give it to our readers in our next issue.

—The arrival of Bishop Dickey and Conference at Wilmington, Del., was a time of thankfulness and pleasure. They report the work in a prosperous condition. Bishop Dickey's best left Friday for his Episcopal field, and Rev. Dr. Sargent is left in charge of the Conference work, superintending Sunday in Zanesville with Rev. Robert A. Johnson.

—Fuller R. Holmes, one of the four colored young men graduated by Prof. D. A. Straker in the first law class, Selma University, and the A. G. Riddle, United States District Attorney at Montgomery, Ala., has established partially in St. Nicholas, beginning with the June number.

—General Fitz John Porter and the Confederate general, D. Hill, describe in the June number of the Century the first battles north of the Chickahominy in the "Seven Days' Fighting," and General John D. Imboden gives an anecdotal account of Stonewall Jackson's fatal wounding in the Valley preparatory to his uniting with Lee for the defense of Richmond.

—The June Century, which was issued on the first day of June, includes the first installment of a paper by the Protestant Episcopal Bishop of Kentucky, Dudley Tyng, entitled "How shall we help the Negro?" in which the writer, who is a Southerner by birth and an ex-Confederate officer, takes the ground that the whites must help the colored people, but that they must, also, lift them up; and that we may do so, we must treat them as men." Theodore Roosevelt's article on "Still hunting for the Grizzly" is a paper on the Herschel family, with three fine page portraits; another New Orleans Exposition paper by F. V. Kemble, are full of characteristic drawings; and an illustrated article on Orchids, by Mrs. Sophie B. Herrick, are among the other contents.

A lovely picture of buds and blossoms, of a lad and lassie lingering under the trees in the soft sunlight, opens Cassell's Family Magazine for June. An engraving of the "Ballroom of the Future"; is well put in the form of a fan, and Henry Frith's article, followed by a "Riverside Reverie" is an entirely different vein, by the author of "All Sorts and Conditions of Men," "Ancient and Modern," are considered in Walter Besant's article, who traces the history of the arm chair from Assyria to the "Easy Chair" argued that in the World," is a careful description of New Guinea. A less cheerful paper is the one on "An American Prison," by Walter Squires. The State prison at Auburn, New York, is described, and the writer concludes that with all its faults it is pretty well managed. A timely article is on "Yeoman Cookery in English and Foreign," and not less so is the one on the valuable hints of the Paris Correspondent on Dress. The interest in the serials, "A Diamond as the Rough," and "Sweet Christabel" is at high-water mark in this number, and the short stories have an absorbing interest of their own. The poetry of the number is contributed by A. C. Gillington and Prof. John Stuart Blackie. The Reading Club and "The Gatherer" appeal to all those who are anxious to improve their minds, and the Family Doctor to those who regard their bodies.—Cassell & Company, Limited, New York. $1.50 a year.

The Quiver for June is as bright and sunny as the month whose name it bears. Instead of opening with the usual serial, it gives us a May dawn poem, not a very cheerful one, but one full of human sadness and suffering. A paper on "Among the Deaf and Dumb" follows, in which the Rev. E. L. Hardy tells some touching facts about that interesting period. In "A Mission Underground" Maud Beale gives a graphic account of the work carried on in the crypt of St. Phillip's Church at the back of the London Hospital. There is a similarly interesting paper in on the "Gravel Ice Records of Bexhill Fields," a burying ground apparently given over to the bones of famous people. Not only does the "Bells of Mrs. Bunnaby" ring here, but also that of her famous son John, "under God, the founder of the societies of the people called Methodists." David De Pue, Isaac Penington and George Fox, repose here, and last, but not least, here is to be found the tomb of John Bunyan. In his article on "Popular American Preachers," Dr. L. D. Bevan crosses the ferry to Brooklyn and gives us sketches of Henry Ward Beecher, Richard S. Storrs, and Dr. David Thompson, with specimens of each. By way of special Sunday reading we have "Thoughts on the Lessons for the Rev. Alexander Roberts"; "The Promises and the Song," by the Rev. Wm. Barnes; "Temptation: Its Sources and Issues," by Dr. Henry Allon; and "Not Done in a Corner," by the Rev. Fred'k Trestrail. Prof. Blaikie contributes his Missionary Memories, "Pioneers of the second paper on France in 1685. There is a moderate amount of fiction in the number, not enough to form an article in which we are so deeply interested, but what there are pages and full of several short stories. A fine portrait, the last of the Herschel (the frontispiece, engraved by Johnson) has rarely been published in the Century. Two other full-page portraits, of William, the lather, and Caroline, the sister, of Sir William Herschel, Professor Edwin S. Holden's authoritative paper on "The Three Centuries of Amusement and information are mingled in Eugene F. Smalley's second paper, "In and Out of the New Orleans Exposition," and the illustrations, by Kemble, are full of characteristic drawing. Mr. Howell's third paper under the head of "Literature and Life," in which the artist Pennell has contributed some of his best work), was read by a large audience of the graver and more refined with a fine historical sense. It will be remembered that Theodore Roosevelt, after his experiences at the Chicago Convention a year ago, went upon a hunting excursion to the far West. In a graphic paper, entitled "Still-hunting the Grizzly," he describes the present state of that dangerous species of game, with appreciative, full-page pictures accompany his narrative. The paper on "Cycles," by Mrs. Sophie Herrick, is a thoroughly illustrated by the author of the paper, who covers in a popular way much interesting information regarding the cycle of years. Stanley Waterloo, of Kentucky, contributes his answer to the question, "How Shall we Help the Negro?" and John S. Pierce, a prominent public his experience in the organization of the schools when he was held as a bondsman. "John Brown at Harper's Ferry," by Richard J. Hinton, "Lincoln as a Lawyer's Husband," a clever character sketch by Miss Grace Denio Litchfield, Mr. Howells' "Boston Boy," and the grave shortstingly interesting as a contribution to the same time by the Rev. Fairs of the daughters and in the practical part of the number, especially the letter-box, with its usual results. In the fifth part of Henry James's story, "The Bostonians," the friendship of Olive Chancellor and Verena is interestingly developed. The May Century Open Letter in the amateur Campaign was treated broadly by the leading commanders on both sides. In the June number these events like the disaster to the Confederates at Bearss' Dale Creek and the terrible battle the next day at Galnes's Mill are particularly described by General D. H. Hill, and by Generals Fitz John Porter, who gained great credit for the masterly manner in which he saved the Confederate army with a little more than half the number, at Gaines's Mill. The maps in these papers are probably the most accurate that have appeared. Its-map-axe were published in this country, and striking pictures and portraits accompany the illustrations. Mr. Gilder contributes a striking anecdotal paper on "Some Small Incidents in the Life of Jackson," describing the famous Valley campaign, which was an important bearing on the withdrawal of McClellan to the James River. In "Memoranda on the Civil War," Colonel Theo. A. Dodge describes the ingenious methods adopted in leaving one channel open in the Red and Number Two, which led to the defeat of the Confederate stronghold on the Mississippi. In the shorter papers the "Topics of the Time" discussed, in which we find a paper by Edward Atkinson on "The Causes of the Low's Delay." In "Open Letters" there are also two papers on "The Law's Delay" by Walter B. Hill; "The Death of Tecumseh," by D. R. Goet; "Color-Sedding," by Alice Cultare, by Samuel Parsons, Jr.; and Christianity and Art," by Joseph Jeffers ments," by Washington Gladden. The poetry in this number, by Sidney Lanier, "Sunrise," verse, are by James T. McKay, Alice Ward Bailey, Robert Trowbridge, Walter Learned, and Capt. Sumpter Sherman and Bessie Chandler.

This work will include, in addition to an extended biographical sketch, many of his letters and addresses, etc., of our lamented friend. The material is not lacking, but much of it is scattered. CONSUMPTIVES

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East India missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. Also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints. Parties wishing the recipe, will please address, Rev. EDWARD A. WILSON, Box 1179, Williamsburgh, Kings Co., New York.

CONNECTIONAL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.

ATLANTA, GA., April 4, 1885.

Minister A. M. E. Church:

The Annual Conference of 1880, as you are aware, established a Connectional Literary, Historical and Educational Association, and the General Conference of 1884, affirmed the same. But from 1880 to 1884, we could never get the constitution and by-laws properly before the connection, as they were rather too voluminous to get into the Discipline of the Church. The constitution and by-laws, however, were amended from time to time by the Bishops' Council, but never perfected and properly presented to the people till at their last regular session, at which time they were rigidly overhauled and put in a practical form and shape in the Christian Recorder, edited by Rev. Dr. Arnett. Since their publication I have been publicly urged for the Budget to get around to all the annual conferences, so that the whole church could promote them, and thus have both the connectional constitution, the annual conference constitution and the local church constitution—the three with the same object in view, which I think is enough, as some of the Bishops have been calling upon me months ago to get them for the Budget, but I have thought this long for the reason above stated. I will be at the session of the Bishops' Council, and will be able to give all necessary information on the subject. Therefore, I make the request for the present year, upon the Bishops' Council, that a connectional conference will write an essay—I mean a sermon—to consider any subject, will be a subject for discussion.

1. What ought to be the bonus of the Christian Recorder for the year 1886?

2. What constitutes the accomplished Christian gentleman? By Bishop Payne.

3. The utility of biographical studies. By Bishop Payne.

4. What are the evidences that the world is improving morally? By Bishop Dickerson.

5. Is there any conflict between nature and grace? If so, what is the cause? If not, what is the reason?

6. Who is entitled to the fatherhood of the reformation, John Wickliffe or Martin Luther?

The ministers will see by the connectional constitution as published in Budget, that they have the right to select my one of these subjects that may suit their taste, and they will report upon the same for their annual conference assembled, and then they will also see the prize essay arrangements, etc. Therefore, I would say, see that you write also. I have been thus plain in this communication so that the most ill-informed may understand. Let us now all begin to work in earnest, as you will hear from me often upon this subject.

H. M. TURNER,

President.

NOTICE.

To the Bishops, Secretaries and Ministers of the Annual Conferences of the A. M. E. Church and the United States:

Dear Brethren—It is necessary for us to print additional catalogues of our University. This cannot be done conveniently without a full and complete list of the Trustees. Should any of you have changed your address, please send us possession of any such information you would confer a great favor upon us by sending it at once, as immediately. Remember, we have no other means of getting the list of Trustees published necessary to enable the President to have the catalogues of Wilberforce fall out complete in every respect.

With the fond hope and sweetness that you will favor us with the above, we remain,

Yours fraternally,

PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 11, 1885

THE COMMITTEE that will meet next month to consider the subject of union between the two greatest bodies of colored Christians will have a very grand subject before it. We cannot wish, with one of our correspondents, that those members of the committee who are opposed to the measure may die before the session, but we do hope there will be in the committee a sufficient wisdom to inaugurate at this late hour a movement the people may be had; for the basis of union must be in them, not the ministry. The prejudices and sentiments of years' growth are to be overcome before a union is effected. In order to secure a healthy and profitable union quite ninety per cent of the membership on both sides must acquiesce, or the term union will be a misnomer. It is unreasonable for either side to ask or expect a union without concessions. One thing is certain, there is likely to be much hesitancy in that of name, which should not, if there is the real Christian demand for union in the hearts, prove a subject of dispute, provided a reasonable and properly distinctive title can be agreed to.

A more serious question is, have the two bodies the requisite wisdom and executive force to control a new church formed of the two? This question is not flattery to our ears, still it is pertinent. "In union there is strength" is not applied to all cases. Sometimes union means destruction. The executive force requisite to control and regulate a church composed of the A. M. E. Zo and A. M. E. Churches would be greater at first than that required to control them separately. Now they are to a great extent in two bodies, each settled and satisfied in its own corporate history, powers and hopes; then they would be for many years seeking a proper adjustment and adaptation. These questions face the committee. We favor a proper union, but question its probability.

LAST SUNDAY was Sacrament day in Sullivan Street Church, New York. The Rev. B. F. Derrick was assisted by Rev. Caleb Woodyard and the editor of the RECORDER. Sullivan Street Church is a historical spot. Some of the very first men in the connection have been its pastors. Under the pastoral charge of Elder Derrick Bethel church has increased in attendance and general interest.

Sunday, 31st ult., the Bishop Dickerson memorial window was declined with becoming ceremony. The window is of stained glass in tasteful design. On the upper part is inscribed: "Sacred to the memory of Bishop W. F. Dickerson, died December, 1881." Below, "Erected by Cants Stewart, former pastor, assisted in the dedicatory services.

To worship in Bethel Church is to feel to be in the spirit of devotion and in the presence of God. Few congregations have their worship freer from everything like levity. Elder Derrick and his people take their time to worship; nothing is done hurriedly. A more orderly congregation is hard to find than that of Sullivan Street, numbering from eight hundred to fifteen hundred. The people are apparently instructed in the facts of common life as well as of religion. They have raised over $4,000 during the current conference year. Their expenses, besides the support of the pastor, are about $1,500 annually. Their benevolent work, caring for the poor and indigent especially, costs them from $600 to $800.

On Sunday night the Doctor addressed the Harriet Martini Lodge of G. U. O. F. It is said that he has been instrumental in establishing an Odd Fellow institution in New York. He and Mrs. Derrick seem to bear the responsibilities of the great church very cheerfully and effectively.

The star concert gives June 4th, netted to the church $267.85.

HON. J. E. W. THOMPSON, Minister to Hayti, was banqueted in New York June 4th. The management of the entertainment was in every way creditable to New York and encouraging to Dr. Thompson. Three prominent Catholic priests were present, also Mr. Fortune, of the Freeman, and other prominent gentlemen. The committee, Messrs. T. B. Francis, J. P. Williams, V. C. Murray, W. E. Gross and C. H. Lansing, Jr., did the right thing for Mr. Thompson. Query: Did the young democrats of New York do likewise? Most colored democrats depend upon colored appreciation, republican, independent and democratic; or will they find warmth in the white democratic heart as well?

THE STORY by R. L. B——r contains some expressions that are unbecoming a journal such as the RECORDER; yet it is allowed to exist just as the author has presented it for the sake of the good that it contains. Mr. R. L. B——r is a young gentleman of good intellectual parts. He might have accomplished all of good the article will do without resorting to those light expressions and cheap fictitious names.

THE RECORDER will reach comparatively few before the songs of Children's Day will have hushed, the hopes of the day may be satisfied and the Sunday schools into the work again for twelve months.

THE UNITED BRETHREN, at their late General Conference, elected six additional Bishops, viz: J. Weaver, Milton Wright, Missionary Bishop for the Pacific coast; Bishop for the Pacific coast, Milton Wright; Missionary Bishop for the foreign work, D. K. Flickenger They fixed the salaries of each Bishop at fifteen hundreddollars ($1500). Bishop Flickngar is Bishop of Germany and Africa and collegator of funds in England. Bishop Wright is Bishop on the Pacific Coast and is to act as Presiding Elder of a district or pastor of a church. Each of these receives the same salary, $1,500 as a "full Bishop." The process seems strange; that our Episcopal churches should have such distinctions between Bishops and Bishops. Our own Church was of about the threshold of doing this strange thing at the late session of Conference. It is something that can scarcely over be necessary. Bishops should be Bishops. Every Bishop, ibis every elder, deacon or licentiate, each of whom that he is liable to have the oversight of the work of his church located in Africa as of that located in America. The M. E. Church has elected three missionary Bishops. There is no just reason for or to imitate in this respect, though our brethren find it well for them.

Personal.

—Bishop Brown has about completed his new home in Washington.

—Bishop Payne is at his beautiful Wilberforce home.

—Rev. P. Sawyer has the Sellirian Street choir well harmonized. Their singing is excellent.

—Rev. Dr. Bishop, Rev. S. T. Mitchell and B. W. Arnett attended the New England Conference session.

—Rev. Dr. Johnson, with Bishop Campbell present, raised $230 May 31st to pay on expenses of repairing Zanesville church.

—Mr. J. G Bergen is to give a concert in the opera house, Wilmington, Del., July 2d, under the auspices of Bethel Church of that city.

—Mr. William Still made a strong speech at the Presbyterian Synod in place Cincinnati on the report of the Committee on Freedmen's Board.

—We were pleased to receive a call from Editor Gardner, of the Philadelphia Sentinel, last week, accompanied by Rev. Dr. Howard Williams.

—Rev. J. H. Pierce has the thanks of President Mitchell for the kind service rendered in conducting him to the University of education in Burlington, and those friends have his thanks for twenty dollars.

—President Mitchell has returned to Wilberforce University, Ohio, after as we have known a long while, in sympathy with the work and workers at Wilberforce University. The President's visit was a source of pleasure to us.

—Dr. G. T. Watkins has become well settled in the work of the Metropolitan Church. His is very hopeful of success. Work has been resumed on the building and is there at present. Services are probably be worshiping in the basement. The people have a mind to work.

—The Bridge Street Church, Brooklyn, was re-opened last Sunday. Elder Embry assisted Elder Thomas, who is said to have made a very successful year in Brooklyn considering the they were hemmed in. The repairs have cost about $5000. The church is now in good condition and will, no doubt, place a now organ in the church this fall.

—Mr. D. J. Williams, one of the very efficient and genteel men who have done the actuarial work of the A. M. E. connER so well for many years, has been called to publish a newspaper in Savannah, N. C. We wish Mr. Williams great success and commend him to the people as a gentleman who will give them a live paper if they will give him a living patronage.

BOOK NOTICES.

Rev. C. T. Shaffer, of the Baltimore Conference, has published a convenient hand book for pastors entitled "Pastor's Visiting Companion, Diary and Ritual," arranged for and dedicated to the ministers of the A. M. E. Church. It is arranged for visiting, appointment of the general record of members and their residences, visitations, church and committees, session of business meetings and conferences, number of church papers and periodicals taken, amount of money collected for general department and local affairs, number of conversions, marriages, baptisms, &c. Besides the ritual it has an excellent selection of Scripture verses and a few hymns for the sick room. Price, 45 cents. Rev. C. T. Shaffer, 51 Centre St., Baltimore, Md. On sale at our Book Store.

"History of China," by Robert K. Douglass. Edited by Arthur Gilman and published by Messrs. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston. It is the most attractive books of our times. The late movements of the Chinese people, their social intercourse, renders their history very interesting. They are rapidly changing their customs with the advancing age, and we being more and more affected by the presence of general enlightenment and Christianity of the century. The book is written by a scholar well qualified for his task. It is on good paper, in clear type and well bound in cloth. It is not a denominational book, but a lively, philosophical, popular history. The readers of the RECORDER would do well to order the work from D Lothrop & Co., 32 Franklin street, Boston.

In "The Women of the Reformation" Mrs. Annie M. Wiltenmeyer has given the world a collection of the biographies of many of the noble women who entered into the well-laid basis of Protestantism, and who, with their associates, the men of the reformation, literally obeyed the injunction of the inspired scriptures: "And ye ought to lay down your lives for the brethren." The introduction is by Kate Brownlee Sherwood. The book contains four hundred and sixty pages of very well composed matter, beginning with the noble mother of Richard II of England and the "nursing mother of the reformation," who, amid the ruthless mob and the bloody scenes that followed the brave and ingenious Wickliff, and ends with Lady Gusnell Hume. The work is illustrated and is attractive as to style, arrangement and type. It will be found in cloth. Price, $2.00. Phillips & Hunt, New York. Cranston & Stowe, Cincinnati.

A grand gain day is in store for our Sunday Schools. The great Methodist Episcal Church holds here annually what is known as the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting. Well, we shall hold forth for twenty-four hours in their vast auditorium, which seats six thousand, July 16th is the day set apart for the great outpouring. Six thousand African Methodists will stamp the grandeur of their organization on the world's mind too deep to be obliterated even by dashing waves. For Dr. Stokes, the chief of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting, told me of a prayer that he heard Bishop Ward, then an elder, pray in 1864. And you know the sabge gun and monitor artillery were making the heavens and earth tremble with their thunders. That was Dr. Ward's words collect them all in at least one man's ears. What will six thousand do? Good by, devil, good by! At night, Education Hall will by open to our institution. Pastors, send your chief pastors are coming, some from beyond the Alleghany mountains, some from the many South; some will come from most of the leading churches of New York, Philadelphia, New Jersey and Delaware. Six thousand children will form a chorus under the direction of our "Sankey," Rev W. John W Backett. How do I like the sea? Fret as a silly boy, like his pa. Is Ocean Grove holy? Did you ever love a pretty girl? That's how I like it by the sea.

ANNUAL ADDRESS.

DELIVERED BEFORE THE LAW GRADUATING CLASS OF HOWARD UNIVERSITY, BY REV. B. R. WALL.

Mr. President, ladies, gentlemen and young gentlemen graduates of the law department: It is appropriate that we grace the high appreciation I feel for the distinguished honor of this invitation penetrated my humble abode, I decided address a few words to you upon this auspicious occasion, prudence whispered decline, while, with impulse of my heart, my patriotism leaped forth and vociferated, go bid those young men God speed in the manly struggle o'er life's stormy sea. Having had some practical experience in the profession which you have selected, I shall not attempt to deal in any metaphysical or theoretical discourse, but in a few plain, practical words endeavor to make known what is so facily understood by you

Laurels fade as when I attempt to describe the obstacles surmounted, the prejudices overcome, the sacrifices endured, the zeal, determination and patience exhibited by both your Dean and yourselves in this small effort to be a recognition of Afrio-American brain and heart in the well trodden fields of professional life.

No compliment that I can pay you would be considered, as one worthy of the word of cheer to the down-hearted, a kindly word to encourage to the strife, you can help remove some obstacle from the path of the weak; you can incite in the minds of those around you a desire to live a straightforward, virtuous life, you can bid those who are almost overwhelmed by the billows and waves of every look up and see the sun shining through the rifts in the dark cloud passing over them. All this you can do, and a grand success will be your reward.

Failing in this you sinillify your very best endeavors, blunt your finer sensibilities, fail far short of those something qualities that characterize the love of God and drift into the trickster and pettifogger of the profession, whose contact is as deadly as the coils of the cobra. Enter into your profession with your dignity, integrity and honor, with a determination to succeed, and, to use a rather common expression, "hold your ground and push ahead." Be patient, work hard, wait opportunities, be rightly honest, hope for the best, trust in God, and if you do not reach the top-most round in the ladder of fame you will have the consciousness of knowing you have done your best, reaching the plaudits of your fellow-men, as "The man of life upright, whose guiltless heart is free

From all dishonest deeds and thoughts of treachery."

The life of such a man becomes repeated in the lives and actions of others. He is lost and pright in his business dealings and in his public actions. He will be known in all the walks of life by his works and in his words. He will be generous and merciful to the oppressed and the down-trodden. He will be honored as a man and as a citizen, and those who are stronger than himself.

It is impossible to think of a truly great character and not think of one in which there is a spirit of kindness, generosity and love.

Earnestness is one of the essential elements of success. There are so many men to-day repining under discouragements who have expended enough energy sufficient to have attained the highest success, but they have failed because they have not sought counsel from the lips of wisdom. The truly zealous, energetic, earnest man unconsciously carries others along with him. His earnestness is contagious and compels imitation. His exercises a sort of electric power which sends a thrill through every fibre, and he is lifted above the level of himself into the realms of more brilliant intellectual achievements.

It has been said that God never infrequently are the truest and greatest men selected by clinging to others, but should be reared in the school of adversity. The difficulties, hardships and trials of life, the obstacles one encounters on the road to fame, are a positive blessing. Peril is the very element in which heroism lives. Help from others sometimes made by your own exertions and you can have the consciousness of having done your best, while on the contrary, help from others, however kind and generous it may be, is a stumbling block to your manhood. Some of the most scholarly men of the day have been self-taught men. Lincoln was a rail-splitter, Johnson was a tailor, Garfield was born in a log cabin. The very nobility of Christian literature has been produced by men of adversity. Milton, Whitfield, the Demosthenes of the pulpit, Bunyan, who was a tinker, Alfred, founder of Oxford, Bunyon was a tinker, Alfred, from a miner's cottage, Douglass from the lash of slavery, Wm. Lloyd Garrison, Wilberforce, and there are a host of others worthy of your emulation, among whom may name Robert Brown Elliott, eloquent statesman in peace. Upon his native clime he expends his inanimate body, and long can now crawl. His genius has crossed the Atlantic, and they are compelled to acknowledge that such a man was bronzed by nature's hand, yet he was a man. Demosthenes stammers set stentorian pets. It matters not the man who have been reared in affluence who have left the most endearing associations of home, it is not the sheltered garden or hot-house, but the rugged Alpine cliffs, where the qualities that characterize the love of God and drift into the trickster and pettifogger of the profession, whose contact is as deadly as the coils of the cobra. Enter into your profession with your dignity, integrity and honor, with a determination to succeed, and, to use a rather common expression, "hold your ground and push ahead." Be patient, work hard, wait opportunities, be rightly honest, hope for the best, trust in God, and if you do not reach the top-most round in the ladder of fame you

I have begun the preparation of a volume commemorative of the late Bishop Dickerson, with the full consent of his widow. This work will include, in addition to an extended biographical sketch, many of the letters and addresses, etc., of our lamented friend. The material is not lacking, but much of it is scattered. I desire to ask his many friends and others, who were directly or indirectly associated with the Bishop, and who may have letters, papers and other items that will do for publication to be kind enough to let me take a copy of the same; I will return them. I shall be glad to hear from any who may be able to contribute to the interest of a commemorative volume, such as we desire to publish. The late distinguished Bishop's warm friend and colleague, the Senior Bishop, Dr. D. A. Payne, will write the introduction to the volume. THE DEBT ON WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY.

As stated elsewhere, Prof. Yelland's visit to Wilberforce University was very pleasant to him as well as to the students. Prof. E. N. Yelland is an Englishman and a gentleman of refinement, philanthropy and wealth. His visit has indeed him to suggest that twenty men be found willing and able to give to Wilberforce University by next Christmas six thousand dollars ($6,000) to relieve the institution from the embarrassment of debt. This would be $250 for each of the twenty men. He will be one or more of the twenty. There are two or three African Methodists in Ohio who could easily be four or five, three or four in Pennsylvania who could be seven or eight, and there are several ministers who could raise that amount. There are at least an alumni of the institution who can take as many shares. This would make Prof. Yelland's share or shares safe. That $5,000, added to what Endowment Day ought to do, would relieve the university from all debt and embarrassment. Prof. Yelland has already given the institution slight substantial evidence of appreciation.

THE COLORED CADETS.

"The total number of cadets found deficient to studies and discipline is quite large considering that the hickory switch has well weeded out last January. Four drop from the above number and one of the third class have received furloughs not returnable and serves in the first class year. The time has expired for candidates to report. The outlook now is that the Board of Examiners will have to find accommodations for about 120 young aspirants for bell bottoms. Both the colored cadets will probably be present. Their hardest time comes in the third year, especially in philosophy and chemistry, which brought Cadet Whittaker down."—Philadelphia Press, June 10.

This is the way the colored race has been judged by Americans for two hundred years. Cadet Whittaker was brought down on chemistry and philosophy; therefore young men who are classified with Whittaker, only as being identified more or less with the African race, are likely to find their hardest time in these studies. In what studies is it given to them to excel, or not marked "colored" prove deficient? For upon the reasoning of the Press we may infer that at just that place is the curriculum all not marked "colored" will be a critical time. There will be thousands of colored youths who fled so more serious trouble is chemistry and philosophy than Cadet Whittaker found in geography. Whittaker cannot represent the entire race. Wonder if the Press ever read Du Bois? If so why not infer that all colored men are successful in philosophy! If such a source of reasoning is to be followed to the disparagement of the ability of colored men's brain, do follow it sometimes to their credit.

OLD FOLKS' HOME.

The anniversary of this institution took place June 11th. The President being absent, attending the 50th anniversary of his brother's marriage, the vice-President, Mr. Wm. Still, presided over the meeting. Addresses were made by Dr. Wayland, Mr. Grossley, Mr. M. M. Macgaesarian, Rev. Gorrier and Mrs. Fassy J. Coppio. The reports show that during the existence of the Home more than three hundred persons have enjoyed its benefits. Substantial improvements and additions were made to the building last year. The Treasurer's report showed a remaining indebtedness on account of these improvements of $1,500. Balance in treasury only little more than $800.

Israel H. Johnson, the venerable treasurer, could not be present at the meeting, owing to his sad bereavement in the death of his wife. His report was read and he was reprimanded generally by Mr. Godwin, who asked the audience to join him in prayer, that God's blessings might be given to the treasurer in comforting influence. The prayer was very touching.

Among the colored people of the city of Philadelphia who have paid especial attention to this enterprise may be mentioned Mrs. Gordon, widow of Henry Gordon; Bishop and Mrs. Campbell, who have given very much attention and not a little money to its necessities; Mr. Still, Mrs. Coppin, and a large share of the ministers.

It is pleasant to look upon these old folks spending their declining years in so comfortable a place, still it looks a little unnatural, for nature seems to make no arrangements for isolating any class of human beings from all others on account of age. One has thoughts on entering an old folks' home similar to those which he has on entering a children's home: that there is too much of similarity of condition to condense to a single place. The association of all colored persons therewith. There is this in question, however: how could Secretary Townsend have made his arrest from debt, it requiring from four to six weeks to get returns from a letter? Whether he received it, is known to him. The Sentinel would probably not be able to say "visit to parish," if Dr. Townsend should call upon him to tell Daniel Literary Society his side of the case.

ONE DOLLAR spent for fine clothes to enable us to appear like white people is not as valuable as one dollar spent for books, for with it they purchase a dollar's worth of real estate. It is a real worth, not appearance, that we need. A dollar buried in the earth every now and then will commend us to our Master. His will sever on that account call us negligent servants. A dollar supposed now and then invested in mental improvement will sever be ground for our being ordered into outer darkness. "Make to yourselves friends of the unrighteous mammon," not of rich dress.

"Moses as a Factor in Human Progress," by W. E. Matthew, Esq., in the April A. M. E. Review, is apropos to this subject. He says, "Human progress has been centered and moulded by two principal facts, Christianity and wealth." While this statement may be regarded as a tightly ambiguous in the use of Christianity, it is fair to infer that the meaning is that religion life and prudent association with and use of material wealth are great facts to the seen of facts contributing to human good. I meet. There can be no question as to the precedence which wisdom must have over wealth in order to the worth of the latter. In this connection wisdom is not to be taken in its lower sense, to know, but in that higher sense, including judgment, discretion and economy.

The remarks of Mr. Matthews on the utility of wealth as means to an end are fine. There is no point in the pe per more pertinent or serviceable than that asserting the utter inadequacy and inefficiency of communicating spirit to give to the world anything like the equity of wealth. Wealth d pends upon the quality of mental itsnce and tendency more than covering dollars with the hand. Mr. Matthews shows that excessive wealth is rarely transmitted through the fourth generation. The weakness which false notions of wealth beget are destructive. At the same time by clean adherence to correct principles of life, the poorest man of to-day may be grandfather to the wealthiest man of the third generation after him.

Save the dollar to buy land with which you think of buying a nar ow ary. After you secure real estate enlarge luxury.

THE RESIGNATION of the Right Honorable W. E. Gladstone, Prime Minister to the Queen, is not a great surprise as a fact, for it is an event that has been threatened in several instances; yet it startled the world. Few lives have acted more strongly and intimately with the British government for the past fifty years as the life and service of Premier, Mr. Gladstone has been unpopular for several months. His own constituency have been relaxing their sympathy until the reinstatement. Lord Salisbury succeeds Mr. Gladstone.

Rev. C. W. Mossell delivered an interesting lecture in Bethel Church, Philadelphia, Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Bethel Literary Association. Subject, "Haytian Progress." Bishop Derrick Rector Elder Mossell recounted some of the hardships borne by him and his noble wife, intimating at the same time that the church could not be expected to give support. The two facts had great effect upon the audience, causing sobs to be uttered in several parts of the house.

APPENDED to an article from Anderson, S. C., are the following words: "While I was writing this article a friend came in and said, 'You'll never see that article again.' I hope to be able to show it to that person in the RECORDER." Brother, but not before you attach your name. The article in question is without name.

IN HIS REMARKS on union, "A Wall Washer" touches a tender cord in his reference to the episcopacy; yet reading the minutes of the late General Conference of the A. M. E. Church, we find strong words regarding connection for the sake of union by both Bishops and Bishop.

NOTES ON THE WAY.

BY A. W. WAYMAN, D.D., BISHOP OF THE A. M. E. CHURCH.

THE NEW York Conference meets in Buffalo June 25th, the Ontario Conference, Canada, meets in Toronto, and the Iowa Conference in Chicago August 5th. The 1st week of the year passes without from one to four Conference sessions in the connection.

IN THE DEATH of Dr. Whedon, of the M. E. Church, the world has lost one of its clear metaphysicians and strong English critics.

Personal.

—Prof. Scarborough has recently addressed the colored voters of Ohio through the Xenia Gazette, on the necessity of sticking to the Republican Party.

—L. C. Maxwell, Esq., a prominent lawyer of Xenia, O., and a colored gentleman of high social and business irregularities in the record of the Commissioners of Greene county, has exculpated promptly exposed them. Mr. Maxwell was for six years city clerk of Xenia.

—Rev. Dr. Rankin, mentioned as stated in our office a few days ago that his work at Trenton is opening for the year nicely. He has already established a good work at Camden to all respects He are taking on so much of the form of the Episcopalians and the Presbyterians we are not this Methodist enough. Why, brother, some preachers won't let us say, and we don't know why. Both forms have taken the power and Holy Ghost from the meetings." Now, there is some truth in what you say. Some, indeed, lifeless sermons, with only short chosen words and sentences, have no Christ, no power of the Holy Ghost, but does not build up and convert souls to old believers. Every minister of the Gospel should feel what his preaches, should preach with the Holy Spirit, for some one's salvation depends upon your sermon.

As the little foxes injured the vines so the many sentiment fields retard the forward march of the church. We have set apart the fourth Sunday in June as a gospel day for the A. M. E. Church, to the glorious. We have, promiscuously, indulgence more than we should, now, for the blessing upon the work now. Excuses are discovered to bear now, reject now, accept of Christ and the Christian now, without willing for to-morrow. Let us all come to them. "Whereas ye know not what shall be on the morrow." (James 4:14) "Behold, now is the accepted time; behold now is the day of salvation." 2 Cor. 5:2.

Bishop Matthew Simpson, D.D., LL. D., in the Methodist Review for 1896 delivered before the theological department of Drew Theological Seminary, a lecture: "Christian preaching arises from the fact that God has revealed himself as from God's nature as perceived by the Holy Spirit, who has given the Bible. Yet is all ages where there has been worship there has been a ministry, a proclamation of the truth to the world. Only work of a Christian minister. His sermons should be full of the Holy Ghost, and commissioned to preach the truth. Brief, but important movements both within and without his own congregation. Yet all these words are unsatisfactory, as they are not a preacher; they either tease from it or are barren to it. St. Paul magnified the office of the preacher above all other departments of church work, also he said to the Corinthians: "God sent me not to baptize, but to preach the gospel."

We heartily endorse the sentiments of Bishop Simpson, and encourage every preacher to do his work well. Let him always have a message from God to deliver to the people. Labor and practical discernment and knows how to adapt means to obtain the best results. Want of success in a minister may be the result of non-preparation of his helpers. If this is not the case, it may be from his incompetency for the work. But if we have the right competency both in his favor and then fail to win souls it must be, we think, because he is indolent and too wicked to perform his duty well, and should be speedily removed.

But the question at issue is the best method of preaching. We have not by here very briefly hinted at the time and feel that preaching is needed. We believe that all Gospel preaching should be practical and instructive, and if carried on faithfully and in the power of the Spirit it will embody all the doctrine that is necessary for man's salvation. The preaching should be direct as possible; the gospel should be preached for its own sake and not as much from the Gospel minister should preach to men about their sinfulness, and only so far as to leave the impression that he is preaching to them about other men's sins. Paul preached to the conscience by carefully comforting themselves when the minister in preaching the sins of his people by saying, "He does not mean me, it is my neighbor;" and what a sad mistake it seems to be when in his neighbor. Sinners should be made to feel that they have great and personal responsibilities to meet; and they are to be dealt with as to the need of the individual. Now, brother, you are the man. Thou art the man." Or inquiry, he is a reproduction of one of the inland tribes that lived away back in the mountains, and which for the same down once a year to trade. Upon further investigation he found that the people had never been preached to them, and that it was very hazardous to venture among their countries, but not to send believers. Every minister of the Gospel should feel what his preaches, should preach with the Holy Spirit, for some one's salvation depends upon your sermon.

THE PULPIT AND PEW.

BY REV. J. A. BROADNAX.

The preacher must be a consolerate man; he must study the people's condition as well as the gospel to convert his sermons to the people. Put yourself in the pew; what ever would annoy you to the pew would in the pulpit. Don't be light and flippant, for that hits all seriousness; don't be dull and monotonous, for that robs you of power. Be natural and earnest. Don't be tedious; put spirit in all you say and do, and with a languid manner makes even a short service seem long. Be careful in preparation for brief. You may pray long in private, fifteen minutes or half an hour, but in public two or five are quite long enough for edification. A sermon of fifteen minutes, commencing with the opening prayer has already partially closed the hour against his own interest. The preacher who exceeds five minutes in his sermon after the people are wearied, is more of the sinner than he should hope for. Be earnest, be brief, be practical. Do the best you would be as considerate as the circumstances will permit, be patient with the people, be kind to the poor, be sympathetic in the pulpit or out of it. If your people are poor, be not severe under as he might be, or is not quite exact in the use of words as you are; or is a little awkward in your manner, say nothing of him that seems the likeness of God in him. Be careful in your dress; make the most of what he says; be temperate and look your interest straight at the preacher, and not be talking. Elevated head and bright countenance will be a great help to the preacher. Prepare the heart before the service begins. Very able speech and the impressive manner of his department. He told how God had led him to raise for the last thousand dollars for our great church in Washington. This amount is to complete the church. This amount of the first amount received from our mission fields in Africa. Many touching addresses were tendered him. The conference gave his claims their co-operation and love.

Rev. Prof W. S. Mitchell, M. A., our Professor of Mathematics and Wilberforce University, came after the delegation had retired, and was most joyfully received. In an attractive manner he presented our beloved Bishop Arnett, and commended him for his claims. He received nearly one hundred dollars in cash and subscriptions. The conference assured him that they would be furnished to the number to come to them.

The missionary speech of the conference was made happy by the arrival of our Bishop, Rev. Dr. Arnett, D.D. W. Arnett, D.D. The Doctor made some good remarks after the Bishop introduced him at the request of the Bishop, Dr. Arnett preached the annual missionary sermon. The Doctor delivered an instructive, live and eloquent sermon from Eph. 6, 10. "Be strong in the Lord and in the power of his might." Many times we have heard the Lord and is the power of his might." Many times we have heard the Doctor preach the gospel with reverence for the message and its Author. He should do it solemnly, earnestly, and with the power to do so. Let the people understand thoroughly and not be misled. Preach the blessed story of the Cross in a simple, yet dignified, conversational manner avoiding as far as possible superfluous loftiness; remembering that all hearers should be instructed, and that them to be instructed it is imperative for them to understand rightly. Yes, the minister might well afford to repeat what is not perfectly understood.

Let us all as ministers to preach Christ and not themselves, take Christ to the people. Christ, yes, Christ went down to the city of Samaria and preached Christ to them. And there was great joy in that city. The effect followed the sermon. "And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spake, hearing and seeing the miracles which he did." Acts 8:6.

The minister should imitate Paul in preaching. He was called the Great Apostle to the Gentiles. He said: "But we preach Christ crucified unto the Jews a stumbling block, and unto the Greeks foolishness. But unto them which are called, both Jews and Greeks, Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God." 1 Cor. 1, 23, 24. Again he says: "And I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God. My speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power, that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." 1 Cor. 2, 1, 4, 5.

Paul reminds us in regard to the best method of preaching. He says that "Therefore seeing we have this ministry, as we have received mercy, we faint not. For we preach not ourselves, but Christ Jesus the Lord; and ourselves, your servants, for Jesus' sake." 2 Cor. 4: 1, 5).

The time was when we all as any of the Apostles, demand all ministers preach Christ the Lord. And they have the right to demand it. Christ is the only way to heaven, the only truth to be learned, the only life to be lived. Christ must be true to God, true to themselves, true to their unconverted brethren. Now, we are in the time when we must preach Christ the power of God and the wisdom of God." 1 Cor. 1, 23, 24. Again he says: "And I, brethren, when I came to you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, declaring unto you the testimony of God. And my speech and my preaching was not with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power, that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." 1 Cor. 2, 1, 4, 5.

THE CIGADAR.

Nearly seventeen years ago, that is to say, about Midsummer, 1869, the Clerks, City of Germantown, Philadelphia, went in corporate body to the country and somewhere; they were but a few miles from the city, but were still in the country. They inmished of the trees and beauty of the greensward soft for season of withdrawal from the world half a business generation in length.

Dr. Nelson, one of the Locusts.

"The seventeen-year locusts are in much like the locust proper," said Dr. Harry C. McCook, "as a locust is like a locust; Bergen, W. A. Merrill; Bondentown, J. P. Thompson; Bridgeton, J. Hammond; Burlington, F. P. Baker; Camden, Broadway, Wm. Miller; Centenary, Wm. Starr; Clayton, Wm. Hilles; Clinton, Wm. M. Weaver; Greenbank, Wm. Warrick; Haddonfield, Wm. Warrick; Harrisburg, Wm. TO THE MINISTERS OF THE A. M. E. CHURCHES OF PHILADELPHIA, NEW JERSEY, NEW YORK AND NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCES.

DEAR BRETHREN:—With the assistance of Rev. A. J. Cheesborro, of Asbury Park station, we have secured the co-operation of the Camp-meeting Association of Ocean Grove, N. J., for a grand A. M. E. Church dev otional place on July 16th next, when we shall have an opportunity to reach a class of persons that it would be impossible to meet on account of circumstances. We propose, by the help of God to raise about $500 or more for the cause of Christian missions at that day, and we can do it if we have the co-operation of the pastors and people of the First Episcopal District. We have pledged ourselves to make a decent and honorable display of our church forces, as we are the first colored denomination on the globe to whom has been accorded the privilege of using that great sanctum of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In view of the above we ask that all churches of the above named conferences that can or may see fit to come with their Sabbath schools and bands and let us make the occasion one of great interest and long to be remembered.

The literary programme will be prepared by the Missionary Board. There will be a chorus choir of from three to five hundred children. Rev. J. W. Beck is chorister. Accommodations for the pastors and other distinguished guests will be provided by Rev. J. Allen Jamison, of Asbury Park, N. J., and every thing, it is hoped, will be exceedingly pleasant. Pastors in Philadelphia and vicinity can secure a liberal discount for their churches by applying to Mr. J. G. Shoemaker, General Passenger Agent P. R. R., which will make the round trip rate about 25 or 30 per cent for the benefit of their churches. Churches in the vicinity of Camden can take a special excursion that will be run on that day and will also receive the benefit of a reduction for their respective churches. The deliberations of the occasion will be presided over by Bishop B. W. Arnett, D.D., from whom a word will be said in the RECORDER in reference to the meeting later. Our distinguished Secretary, Jas. M. Townsend, D.D., will be on hand, accompanied by Dr. Bell, Wescott, to us this great occasion.

Brethren, let us all arise and by the help of the Great Head of the Church, by one grand effort make this the Methodist-like hearing, leave the impress of African Methodism upon the pages of the history of this great Methodist Episcopal stronghold.

ISRAEL DERRICKS.

The Nature of Fire and the human body are such that the latter cannot escape perfect and continuity to the former. Hence the instant warning of intense pain when fire approaches too near for safety. If any person would deliberately neglect the warning. And yet the constant though slight pains in the right side, shoulders, back and chest, the light dry cough, the listless weakness, the loss of appetite, the acutely warnings of the approaching sensation of exhaustion, are allowed unobstructed progress, when Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" would surely dispel the fearful danger. Take it in time.

CONNECTIONAL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.

ATLANTA, GA., April 4, 1885
Ministers and Friends:

The General Conference of 1880, as you are aware, established a Connectional Literary, Historic and Educational Association, and the General Conference of 1884 affirmed the association. But from 1880 to 1884 we could never get the constitution and by-laws properly before the connection, as they were rather too voluminous to get into the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. The constitution and by-laws, however, were amended from time to time by the Bishops' Council, but never perfected and properly presented to the people till at their last regular session, at which time they were rigidly overhauled and put in a practical form and cast in the Annual Budget, edited by Rev. Dr. Arnett. Since their publication I think I have waited long enough, as some of the Bishops have been calling for funds months ago to give out the subjects, but I have held back from long for the reasons above of the want of sufficient sum to pay the $63 of the Budget for 1884, and they have not as yet received information and will understand their duties, &c. The subject for the present year, upon which every member of the annual conferences will write so every—I mean to write a paper on the day select, will be as follows:

What ought to be the home of the Christian pastor? By Bishop Payne.

What constitutes the accomplished Christian pastor? By Bishop Payne.

3. The nobility of biographical similes. By Bishop Tanner.

4. What are the evidences that the world is improving morally? By Bishop Brown.

5 Is there any conflict between saints and sinners? If so, what is the cause, in what?

6. Who is entitled to the fatherhood of the Apostles, John Wickliff or Martin Luther?

The ministers will see by the connectional constitution, as published in Budget, that they have the right to select any one of these subjects that they will them, and prepare an essay upon the same for the annual conference associations. They will also see the prize essay arrangements, etc. Presiding elders see their duties also. I have been thus plain in this communication that the most illiterate can understand it. Let us now begin to work in earnest, as we will hear from me often upon this subject.

H. M. TURNER,
Presiding Elder, Atlanta District.

NOTICE.

Subscriptions for the Sunday school lessons and Children's Recorder for the second quarter ending with June have now expired. Orders without the money will not be entered on the books.

FORNEY, Washington, D. C.

AGENTS WANTED.

Will our pastors who are not supplying the RECORDER to their people, please call on us by sending for a package to be sent weekly? "I WILL REPAY."

The Lord reward thee! For thy good
What good can I do, to make return?
Save the bright flame of gratitude,
That ever in my soul shall burn.

I cannot give as He will give
In bounteous stores of love and care
A sweet thought is all I have to give,
The daily bread to daily prayer.

The Lord reward thee! All thy ill
He shall remove, as it is meet
To bend and change things evil will Thy work His purpose divine.

If whatever great thought or deed
Has darkened all my daily life;
Thy kind action met in my need,
Forbidding dream or waking strife;

Whatever bonds of kindred love
Thy hands have shored or irled to break,
I know the Lord above
His judgments are not mine to make.

But, sure as daylight floods the land,
Or night comes with its starry train,
The words he spoke shall ever stand,
"I will repay," saith the Lord.

BY H. M. T.

MR. EDITOR:—There are a vast amount of interviews I see going on through the country between newspaporters and correspondents about the future of the negro. Every little while one in the land has to be interviewed to tell them that the negro is inferior to the white man. It is all the go South now and I see the same infamous lightning has struck the Northern. The negro must be a mighty man when it takes the whole people nearly to keep him down. Yet to find out his intellectual and moral status and reach the point of his inferiority. Well, the Buckeye or the negro is inferior to some white man, is he? Does any one find fault? Who has made the first discovery? What is the name of this great, learned, renowned, celebrated and marvelous white man? Who will give us the name and trace the line of his ancestry? Is he a descendant of Ham? Boil let us lay aside ridicule and come down to sober talk. It does not deceive us all squalling at the same time. I do not say I do not like interviewers, they invariably tell the spirit, form and shape of the people they are talking about. I never see or hear two, three or a half dozen preachers believing at the same moment but what I think I see the point must regard them crazy. Yet, I can't see. One man is enough to talk to and preach to at a time, or at least a meeting, or give direction, or a lecture, or a sermon, or prayer, or for as I am concerned, at all events.

I also am interviewed by every little boy, where a president, governor or some other big man is to be seen. Does not the spirit of the times demand it? Why? The interviewer is a man of more perfect translation. My New Testament and Greek Lexicons are nowhere so clearly taught in the word of inspiration.

TO THE MINISTERS OF THE A. M. E. CHURCHES OF PHILADELPHIA; NEW JERSEY, NEW YORK AND NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCES.

DEAR BRETHREN:—With the assistance of Rev. A. J. Chambers, of Asbury Park station, we have secured the substitution of the Camp-meeting Association of Ocean Grove, N. J., for a grand A. M. E. Church day-a-la-mode on July 16th next, when we shall have an opportunity to reach a class of persons that it would be impossible to meet on account of circumstances. We propose, by the help of God to raise about $500 or more for the cause of Christian missions on that day, and we can do it if we have the co-operation of the pastors and people of the First Episcopal District. We have pledged ourselves to make a decent and honorable display of our church forces, as we are the first colored denomination on the globe to whom has been accorded the privilege of camp meeting on the ground of Methodist Episcopal Church. In view of the above we ask that all churches of the above named conferences that can or may see fit to come with their Sabbath schools and banners and let us make the occasion one of great interest and long to be remembered.

The literary programme will be prepared by the Missionary Board and there will be a chorus choir of from three to five hundred children. Rev. J. W. Beckett, chorister.

Ascension of the Bishops and other distinguished guests will be provided by Rev. A. J. Chambers, of Asbury Park. N. J., and every thing, it is hoped will be accordingly pleasant. Pastors in Philadelphia and the vicinity can secure a liberal discount for their churches by applying to Mr. J. C. Bloomster, Coates' Passenger Agent 9th P. R. R., which will make them realize about 25 or 30 per cent for the benefit of their churches. Churches in the vicinity of New York can join a special excursion that will be run on that day and will also receive the benefit of the reduction for their respective churches.

The deliberations of the occasion will be presided over by Bishop H. M. Turner, D.D., from whose a word will be said in the RECORDER in reference to the matter. Our distinguished Secretary, Jas. A. Tolbert, D.D., will be present and accompanied by Dr. B. W. Arnett, to on this great occasion.

Brethren, let us all unite and by the help of the Great Head of the Church, by our songs and prayers and Christian-like bearing, leave the impress of African Methodism upon the pages of the history of this great African Episcopal stronghold.

ISRAEL DERRICKS.

The Natures of Fire

and the human body are such that the latter cannot escape from the former. Hence the instant warning of intense pain when fire approaches too near for safety. Hence, if a person would deliberately neglect the warning. And yet the consequences of slight pains in the right side, shoulders, back and chest, the light dry cough, the listless weakness, which are not the less surely warnings of the approaching agonies of established consumption, are allowed unobstructed progress. When Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" would surely dispel the fearful danger. Take it in time.

The meed of merit for promoting personal comfort is due to H. C. Ayer & Co., whose incomparable Hair Vigor is a universal beautifier of the hair. CONNECTIONAL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.

ATLANTA, GA., April 4, 1885.
Mishlam A. M. E. Church:

The General Conference of 1880, as you are aware, established a Connectional Literary, Historic and Educational Association, and the General Conference of 1884 affirmed the same. But from 1880 to 1884, we could never get the constitution and by-laws properly before the connection, as they were rather too voluminous to get into the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. The constitution and by-laws, however, were amended from time to time by the Bishops' Council, but never perfected and properly presented to the people till at their last regular session, at which time they were rigidly overhauled and put in a practical form and put in the Annual Budget, edited by Rev. Dr. Arnett. Since their publication I have patiently waited for the Budget to get around to all the annual conference and connectional institutions, the annual conference session and the church constitution—the three with the same. I think I have waited long enough, as some of the Bishops have written me from one to six months ago to give out the subjects, but I have held back until I could get the matter organized. Let the ministers turn to page 265 of the Budget for 1884, and they will find all necessary information and will understand their duties, &c. The subjects for the present year, upon which every member of the annual conferences we write an essay—I mean a member may select, will be as follows:

1. What ought to be the aims of the Christian pastor? By Bishop Payne.
2. What constitutes the accomplished Christian pastor? By Bishop Payne.
3. The utility of biographical sindies. By Bishop Brown.
4. What are the evidences that the world is improving morally? By Bishop Brown.
5. Is there any conflict between nature and revelation, if so, in what?
6. Who is entitled to the fatherhood of the resurrection, John Wesley or Martin Luther?

The ministers will see by the connectional constitution, as published in Budget, that they have the right to select from any one of the subjects that may suit them, and prepare an essay upon the same for their annual conference associations. They will also see the prize essay arrangements, etc. Presiding elders will have their duties also. I have been these plain in this communication so that the most illiterate can understand it. Let us now begin to work in earnest, as you will hear from me often on this subject.

H. M. TURNER,
President.

NOTICE.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Just what has been the result of this long expected day has not yet been communicated to the Recorder, at least, doubtless good. Dr. Smith will doubtless give a full report through the Recorder.

Surely our offer to receive subscriptions to the Recorder in instalments ought to increase our list by at least two or three thousand. Do you read it? If it is in another column. It allows subscribers six months to pay $1.75. We also offer the new Disciples in orders of one dozen or more at 20 cents per copy at the store. This offer holds good for SIXTY DAYS. Try it.

WILBERFORCE COMMENCEMENT.

The Trustee Board was unusually well attended. "Dividends reported was encouraging," as were those of the Treasurer and Secretary. The Board has ordered the President to canvass the care cannot obtain to not mix biographies; not have too many Johns nor ascribe to one John the acts of another John. There are many small, cheap books that will cost altogether cost one the thousandsth of what the ministry expends for tobacco that will give all necessary information. The Bible itself, well studied, will serve as from those miscreh s disasters that place us at the mercy of our youth. Let us say what we will about enthusiasm in preaching, enthusiasm without truth and directness is not lasting, enlightening nor successful. We must not misunderstand the condition of the apostles when they were supposed drunk It is not at all reasonable to infer that they were preaching from mere enthusiasm, but in sound doctrine and pointed truthfulness they penetrated the hearts of their hearers. It is sad to misname zeal for knowledge and fanaticism for religion. Nothing is more fascinating to the age This state of affairs is not confined to any particular race or nationality, but is found in all lands and among all I hear in the near and immediate future, as it were, the mighty roar of intellectual waters dashing with unabated force over the Christian citadel of sin, and rushing with a wild impetuosity, through the deep mountain gorges of ignorance in search of the level of the great Pacific Ocean of intelligence, education, culture and refinement. The educators of this age belong to an immortal epoch of the cycle of improvement. Their work is no period of time in which the professional aspirations, especially of some men, are to be ignored and should be equally in demand among us than now. Remember, young gentlemen of the graduating class, that you are about to leave your Alma Mater in a very favorable way and enter the world of which mankind in the finite sovereign, and, compass not strictly speaking, you will be strangers therein and thereof. It is not expected that all first year men will appear as experienced individuals on its long used platform, and yet you cannot look with contented indifference upon all that seasons in it nor the great professional work which lies before you. Men who have chosen the profession that you have most powerse a thorough knowledge of the legal profession—they must have profound logicians and polished and eloquent orators, if they ever expect to make their mark in this world. Remember, our model orator, should not be your example in heartfelt sympathy for such and every one of your clients; that is moral courage, fortitude and pathos, themotherese should be your guide. Socrates should be your pattern in self-sacrificing spirit. Cicero ought to be your light in the management of great cases of all kinds and degrees. Be no orator or less, nor more, than yourselves.

If this be your motto, then your individuality as lawyers will gradually become more and more crystallized in the eyes of men every day, and around your professional character will loom, when you shall have set sract in court among your papers that are now little light houses in a sea of stationery. Preparatory to the discussion of our text, permit me to say it is an indubitable fact that none but those who understand or possess the rightly professional attainments are masters of the legal profession in the widest sense. It is only the legal professional educator who is thoroughly versed as such, can properly appreciate in the highest the influences which preceded his own, that are working in connect with his own and that will follow after them, which is in a position to judge of the most advisable way to proceed. And according to most the composition of the board of Faculty of the department. I am satisfied that you have made good use of the curriculum of that department—turned to profit the accredited legal talents therein and millised, most satisfactorily, the brief years thereof, hence your recommendation for graduation. We begin enfolding the text by saying:

I. An advocate is one in general who pleads for another; but in a special way he is one who pleads for another in any court. (a) The Greek word for advocate is Paraclete Its etymology is found that the same term is applied to the Holy Ghost, the other comforter. This fact clearly reveals the nulty that exists between the second and third persons in the adorable Trinity. Dr. Doddridge thinks the import of this appellation may be illustrated by the custom of tributary states who were wont to have certain eminent persons residing in the courts of the princes to whom they were tributaries, who negotiated their affairs, vindicated their rights and promoted their interests with the reigning powers. If you, young gentlemen, would be lawyers of the first magnitude, you, like Socrates, must be sympathetic, culturete acute, keen and quick perception, because the nature of the courts in which you will practice demands it. If you would succeed in winning, over or you a vast number of clients of respectable standing in the community, you possess yourself with a shrewd, piercing, discerning judgment, a bright, sharp, subtle intellect and an intuitive, penetrating, clear-sighted observation, such as the community will recognize in you as an element of great strength. It will be remembered that the great advocates who possess not these qualifications are regarded as "dull, plodding, legal waiting sticks," and you here do not desire to be numbered among the too many primitives, succeeded too well and are slowly graduated into a respectable distinction to be thus considered in considering our second proposition we affirm that

II. The Lord Jesus Christ advocates in a special manner for us on earth as well as in Heaven. (a) Christ Jesus was (a) Christ Jesus was long foretold as an advocate, (Isaiah 53:12) and (b) he proved himself as such because he was absolutely free from sin. The term righteous, as used in the introduction of this passage for a particular purpose, (Acts 3:14) is the term that best presents the dignity of our Advocate and the infinite merit of his intercession in the behalf of mankind founded on the merit of his death.[1] It is highly important for us to know that the Lord Jesus is the only advocate who is able to appease the voice of justice, to carry on the office of an and his author, and to give life principle to our immortal souls. As young, professional advocates, allow me to say to you, a thorough knowledge of your profession is the only thing that gives the statutory laws of the United States, and even your state-making laws, and the mode of practice at the bar of which you will soon be a member, is necessary to success. Such a study will not accomplish much, or even show a deep comprehension of the true philosophy of the law, if you delay its progress to any way. The style of the great advocate, James Christ, would not be to make a long test of a case whose judge was gold and silver. He looked into the merits of it and wind it up with the words of—John vii, 7–11; Mark x, 2–12; vii, 1–23.

Men, you know, are advised to keep out of chancery because, when in there they are "ground to bite is a slow mill," they are "roasted at a slow fire," they are "being stung" to a financial "death by single bees," they are "being drowned by drops" and "going mad by grains." You may offer an apology for your position as a student, based on the fact that as long as there are bad people in the world there will be a necessity for good lawyers, but you can offer no reasonable and acceptable excuse for unnecessary delays in any case, which would be construed in the highest sense of the term against your client with your professional appetite as good as the best of lingering meat to be gotten rid of in the shortest time. There are lawyers who are very much like physicians, who make a living by dying or dead bodies of rich families, for the benefit of their local burial. That class of lawyers are not to be emulated, but despised and rejected and even convicted. That is the class whom Benjamin Franklin fitly characterized when he said, "A country man between to lawyers is like a fish between to cats." Lawyers who cause their cases to linger in court have made the world of mankind speak contemptuously of the majesty of the law; for Macklin says, "The law is a sea in which every client is obliged to take in your face while it picks open your pocket, and the glorious uncertainty of the law is the constant theme of the lawyer and the justice of it." Therefore let me admonish and beseech you, brethren, as the sharp Chrysostic nor the jagged Scotia upon which your beautiful professional vessel will go to pieces and your intelligent legal cargo be destroyed in the waters of oblivion and a grave of unpresent you our last proposition in the following language:

III. We advocate the Son of God is in full sympathy with his clients and would be lawyers of the first magnitude, if wholly, culturete acute, keen and quick perception, because the nature of the courts in which you will practice demands it. If you would succeed in winning over or you a vast number of clients of respectable standing in the community, why, possess yourself with a shrewd, piercing, discerning judgment, a bright, sharp, subtle intellect and an intuitive, penetrating, clear-sighted observation, such as the community will recognize in you as an element of great strength. BOOK NOTICES.

"Robert Clarton's Story," by Parthens B. Chamberlain, is a highly attractive book of 247 pages in ornate cloth, good paper, clear type. The story is beautifully woven as to interest and moral. T. Y. Crowell & Co., No. 13 Astor Place, New York.

"Ellen Power of Eden in Zion," is the title of a most beautiful little book by John M. Bamford. There are some points in the story really touching. The whole is full of thoughts of common life, and touches many real cases in common life. Cincinnati: Curtis, Jennings & Stowe, Cincinnati, and Phillips & Hunt, New York.

The same house publish the biography of Bishop Edward Thompson, D.D. by his son, Rev. Edward Thompson, M. A. This work is one of the most interesting biographies of modern Methodism. The author has written in a manner that shows the diligence with which he undertakes the work; yet in a vigorous, happy style. Our young ministers can read the life of Bishop Thompson with great profit. In his new book Bishop Turner declares that our failure to read the biographies of great preachers it one cause for the decline of vital preaching among us. The book for $1.25. Bishop Thompson is sold for $1.25.

JESUS CHRIST OUR GREAT ADVOCATE.

ANNUAL SERMON BEFORE THE LAW GRADUATES, ALLEN UNIVERSITY.

BY REV. J. R HAWKE.

"If any man sin we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous."—1 John ii, 1.

The professional educator is abroad! We can hear him, armed with the "up" curriculum of some leading profession than we can to some great university, marching, with polished and attending the libertine of his country. There is no period in the history of the world when the civilized nations of earth furnished more men of educution, culture, refinement and a greater thirst for professional knowledge of every kind than at this time is now present to this state of affairs is not confined to any particular race or nationality, but is found in all lands and among all I hear in the near and immediate future, as it were, the mighty roar of intellectual waters dashing with unabated force over the Christian citadel of sin, and rushing with a wild impetuosity, through the deep mountain gorges of ignorance in search of the level of the great Pacific Ocean of intelligence, education, culture and refinement. BISHOP TURNER'S NEW BOOK.

Ministers, Officers and Members of the A. M. E. Church:—For years I have seen the necessity of a small book that would define the duties and rights of every official in the Church, as well as the lay members. Such a book I have written, and have labored with as much condescension as possible, to make it plain and intelligible to all. It consist of about seventy-five pages, but it reached near two hundred of printed matter. It is called

I have tried to define the duties, rights and privileges of Bishops, presiding elders, district chairmen, secretaries, stewards, class leaders, exhorters, evangelists, preachers, missionaries, presiding elders, trustees, stewards, secretaries, treasurers, Sunday school superintendents, officers of Sunday schools, and of the Church generally, and equitably confer. ence, and of the Church generally, and equitably confer. ence, and of the Church generally, and equitably confer. ence

TO THE MINISTERS OF THE A. M. E. CHURCHES OF PHILADELPHIA, NEW JERSEY, NEW YORK AND NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCES.

DEAR BRETHREN:—With the assistance of Rev. A. J. Chambers, of Asbury Park station, we have secured the auditorium of the Camp-meeting Association of Ocean Grove, N. J., for a great A. M. E. Church day at said place on July 16th next, when we shall have an opportunity to reach a class of people that it would be impossible to meet on account of remoteness. We propose, by the help of God to raise about $500 or more for the cause of Christian missions on that day, and we can do it if we have the co-operation of the pastors and people of the First Episcopal District. We have pledged ourselves to make a decent and honorable display of our church forces, as we are the first colored denomination on the globe to whom has been accorded the privilege of using that great sanctum of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In view of the above we ask that all churches of the above named conferences that can or may see fit to come with their delegation of choirs and banners and let us make the occasion one of great interest and long to be remembered.

The literary programme will be prepared by the Missionary Board. There will be a chorus choir of from three to five hundred children. Rev. J. W. Beck est, chorister. Accommodations for choirs and other distinguished guests will be provided by Rev. A. J. Chambers, of Asbury Park, so that all need say thing, it is hoped, will be exceedingly pleasant. Pastors in Philadelphia and vicinity can secure a liberal discount for their churches by applying to Mr. J. K. Shoemaker, General Passenger Agent P. R. R., which will make them to realize about 25 or 30 per cent to the benefit of their churches. Churches in the vicinity of Newark can also arrange excursion that will be run on that day and will also receive the benefit of a reduction for their respective churches. The deliberations of the occasion will be presided over by Bishop D. A. Payne, D.D. from whom a word will be said in the RECORDER in reference to the matter. Our Quarterly Meeting Rev. M. Townsend, D.D., will be on hand, accompanied by Dr. B. F. Lee, Sr., on the great occasion.

Brethren, let us all arise and by the help of the Great Head of the church, by our song and speeches and Christian-like behavior show to the world that African Methodism upon the pores of the history of the great Methodist Episcopal stronghold.

NOTICE.

All questions and business pertaining to advertisem nts sent in the RECORDER, and requesting correspondence in the RECORDER, should be addressed to Rev. J. C. Embry, Business Manager; not to the editor. This is necessary for the business of this establishment requiring money to be sent to the editor's non-communication for the RECORDER, to the Manager. All orders for changing address of the paper, Sunday School or Church supplies, must be sent to the Manager must be the thought towards, and strong the faith in God; calm the consideration of, and wise the policy for our contentation and government; wide the conception and clear the analysis of our relationship and duties to under our affective in Africa. So narrow and circumspect is our pathway, so weak and smell our life that we cannot be too wise in calculating how we shall ever discharge all the obligations already assumed; we may easily be too wreckless in enlarging those obligations.

Deep in the soul of our organic existence there is a vast work that must be done before the A. M. E. Church can do anything well in Africa. It must first acquire enough solid unity of purpose, righteous of aim, harmony of feeling, spirit of inter-forbearance, comprehensiveness of its domestic policy, order of Christian love and faith in Jesus Christ to prove faithful in that which is least before it can be expected to take possession of the vast and very remote and very heathen lands in Africa.

Aroused as and in our pathway are the many undertakings of our Church incomplete, languishing or poorly living. We have organized the connection to the very highest degree. To hold all reins, to execute the laws, to guide the exercises of the Church, to maintain the unity, to secure harmony of action, to develop the true spirit of Christianity, to provide for the ever running machinery, to support the organic life, to avoid an enlargement of secular character at the expense of Christian character in all our manifold duties,—this will engage the A. M. E. Church to its utmost capacity for many years yet. Go to Africa it probably will, but go very slowly. If it proves able to meet the internal demands of its existence and properly deport and develop itself during the next two generations, it may reach Africa to stay, but say going to Africa now must necessarily ter...inate in shame and disgrace.

Hayti is more than we were well prepared for. Though our Church has done there quite as brave a work as could be expected, it is difficult to see of his acts that appear to genuine view. If he speaks or writes, preaches or prays, he is earnest, vigorous, nervous, sometimes eloquent and attractive. His book shows much investigation of all Methodism, as well as new; possibly he has given undue prominence to the old in some cases. He has included in the little work late motion that cannot fail to be very useful to our ever widening ministry. All the others are classified and gives due consideration. Some of the questions are given entirely too much space to the exclusion of others then those who have never read or known anything of Methodism; but the most experienced, the preaching proclaimed from all gospel pulpits; for, with shame it must be confessed that too much of our preaching, like the play of Hamlet with the part of Hamlet left out, has been the setting forth of t e gospel of the kingdom of God with the blessed hope in the coming of the Kingdom of heaven omitted. This should not be so; the gospel is glorious, for the Afrcan can race be too much at stake in the glorious proclamation of that kingdom. * * * for the preachers of that race to thus betray their trust and become like Esau selling their birth right. He (Christ) will raise up in the sunny plains and on the mountain tops of Africa, in the sandy deserts and amidst its smiling habitations, a host of sturdy defenders of the liberty, independence and sovereignty of the laws of Ham, a host of which the Cetewayo the Arabis and the Mahdis are but the first fruits."

Bishop Cain's article in the RECORDER intimates that the A. M. E. Church is looking towards Africa sharply, strongly and promisingly. For many years our Church has been irresistably drawn to the work. It is the providence out its history. It will doubtless go there; but its movement must necessarily be exceedingly slow. It is still in the wilderness, where haste must be made slowly. We often grow restless-tic respecting our powers and African claims, but calm and philosophic considerations bring our heads down. The colored American Christians have the kindest and widest call ever made to them to "ponder well the path of their feet." The far off points of observation may be well remembered, but the path of their feet is of the very highest consideration. The Manager must be the

CORRECTION.

The report of the Missouri District Conference, appearing in the issue of June 18th, should have been headed, "Report of the Second P. E. District of the Missouri Conference."

A COLORED PHYSICIAN WANTED

An appeal, somerously and respectfully signed, comes from Hensly, Arkansas, for a colored physician. Now is the time for the young gentlemen of Mohara Institute, Howard Medical School, and others to apply. Some one will secure the practice, for patriarm you are invited to address George T. Rutherford, Hensly, Arkansas.

REAL MAGNANIMITY.

"Transfers" usually capsot a little offshoots are shirking a core conference, and too often realize what they expect. But the last session of the New England Conference was sufficiently magnanimous or Christianly kind to elect Revs. R. J. M. Long and J. C. Brock, both transfers, to secretaryships, and Rev. A. W. Wheley, transfer, reporter. It is true the two brethren made secretaries had spent one year in the conference, two ever then it were more than usual courtesy, but no more than Christian courtesy.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

We give large spaces to papers bearing upon the topic, doubtless only to have it said, "I don't see why my piece was not in also." We cannot make room for all. It is unjust and useless for our readers to say discriminations based upon locality, or to expect special favors because they have subscribed to the paper many years; and much more so to inform the editor how many times they voted for his election. We cannot edit the paper with one eye on a favored locality, and on those who have taken it many years and a third on those who voted for the editor. These things, threats and thumps make no impression on a man whose every day work is earnestly devoted to the discharge of current duties in the presence of a cloud of witnesses and the all-seeing God. We think they are all unworthy of the noble men who occasionally use them.

THAT'S THE WAY TO REFORM.

Last year the Ohio Conference expelled one minister on account of irregular divorce proceedings, followed by marriage, and suspended another for using intoxicating drinks. The Philadelphia Conference, at its recent session, did something with one of its ministers for a crime,—dropped him from the roll, perhaps. Just what that includes Bishop Turner may know. Now, it appears by the press that the New York Conference has expelled three for drunkenness, bigamy and gross immorality. Admitting that there may have been injustice done by irregularities, and that some who there were may have been very weak atmed, yet there can be no question that when ministers are found guilty of shameful and wicked acts they should be expelled from the ministry. This rule should be enforced carefully with reference to the entire grade of the ministry, from foot to head.

Methodist Polity" is a useful book. If every leader, steward, trustee, exhorter, local preacher, traveling licentiate, deacon, elder and Bishop in the connection will observe the main theoghis set forth in this book, so far as it refers to Methodist polity particularly, we need have little fear of many irregularities in our ecclesiastic. Seventy cents spent by each class throughout the connection for Bishop Tourney's book is circulate among its members will yield abundant and early fruit. Every African Methodist heme should have the work.

BISHOP DUDLEY'S article in the June Century Magazine carefully read seems to emanate from the right philosophy, but in some places characterized by a fear of the multitude led in others by misconception of the status and animus conquest come from all the European powers.

He from all the great powers of civilization go missionaries to the "dark continent." They intersect one another in their lines of march and unite in their operations. Denominations have already begun to show there how poor is our comprehension of Christianity while showing the strength of Christiestly itself. The Methodist Episcopal Church has a Bishop there, the United Brethren Church has a Bishop there, and last week the Rev. Dr. Samuel Fergusco, of the Episcopal Church, was ordained as Missionary Bishop of Cape Palmas and adjacent ports. He is a colored man, born in Charleston, S. C., taken to Africa at the age of six years.

Bishop Cain's article in the RECORDER intimates that the A. M. E. Church is looking towards Africa sharply, strongly and promisingly. For many years our Church has been irresistably drawn to the work. It is the providence out its history. It will doubtless go there; but its movement must necessarily be exceedingly slow. It is still in the wilderness, where haste must be made slowly. We often grow restless-tic respecting our powers and African claims, but calm and philosophic considerations bring our heads down. The colored American Christians have the kindest and widest call ever made to them to "ponder well the path of their feet." The far off points of observation may be well remembered, but the path of their feet is of the very highest consideration. The Manager must be the thought towards, and strong the faith in God; calm the consideration of, and wise the policy for our contentation and government; wide the conception and clear the analysis of our relationship and duties to under our affective in Africa. So narrow and circumspect is our pathway, so weak and smell our life that we cannot be too wise in calculating how we shall ever discharge all the obligations already assumed; we may easily be too wreckless in enlarging those obligations.

Deep in the soul of our organic existence there is a vast work that must be done before the A. M. E. Church can do anything well in Africa. It must first acquire enough solid unity of purpose, righteous of aim, harmony of feeling, spirit of inter-forbearance, comprehensiveness of its domestic policy, order of Christian love and faith in Jesus Christ to prove faithful in that which is least before it can be expected to take possession of the vast and very remote and very heathen lands in Africa.

Aroused as and in our pathway are the many undertakings of our Church incomplete, languishing or poorly living. We have organized the connection to the very highest degree. To hold all reins, to execute the laws, to guide the exercises of the Church, to maintain the unity, to secure harmony of action, to develop the true spirit of Christianity, to provide for the ever running machinery, to support the organic life, to avoid an enlargement of secular character at the expense of Christian character in all our manifold duties,—this will engage the A. M. E. Church to its utmost capacity for many years yet. Go to Africa it probably will, but go very slowly. If it proves able to meet the internal demands of its existence and properly deport and develop itself during the next two generations, it may reach Africa to stay, but say going to Africa now must necessarily ter...inate in shame and disgrace.

Hayti is more than we were well prepared for. Though our Church has done there quite as brave a work as could be expected, it is difficult to see of his acts that appear to genuine view. If he speaks or writes, preaches or prays, he is earnest, vigorous, nervous, sometimes eloquent and attractive. His book shows much investigation of all Methodism, as well as new; possibly he has given undue prominence to the old in some cases. He has included in the little work late motion that cannot fail to be very useful to our ever widening ministry. All the others are classified and gives due consideration. Some of the questions are given entirely too much space to the exclusion of others then those who have never read or known anything of Methodism; but the most experienced, the preaching proclaimed from all gospel pulpits; for, with shame it must be confessed that too much of our preaching, like the play of Hamlet with the part of Hamlet left out, has been the setting forth of t e gospel of the kingdom of God with the blessed hope in the coming of the Kingdom of heaven omitted. This should not be so; the gospel is glorious, for the Afrcan can race be too much at stake in the glorious proclamation of that kingdom. * * * for the preachers of that race to thus betray their trust and become like Esau selling their birth right. He (Christ) will raise up in the sunny plains and on the mountain tops of Africa, in the sandy deserts and amidst its smiling habitations, a host of sturdy defenders of the liberty, independence and sovereignty of the laws of Ham, a host of which the Cetewayo the Arabis and the Mahdis are but the first fruits."

"Standard Bearer in Progress" is the title under which Mr. F. E. Watkins has issued a lofty, strong article in behalf of theocracy in connection and in certain results. In the term education he includes trained faculties and trained moral nature. The whole excellently written article is designed to show the colored people of America that by property submitting themselves to a rigid course of culture and activity they will succeed. The article closes with these large expressions: "When the last ley of the millennial shall dos upon his ashy lips and the sweetest n tes of the poet shall cease to charm the death-chilled ear, when we are ready to lay aside much that we learned, as a garment we have outworn and only ens, then we hope that the science of well spent hours will go with us through the valley and shadow of death, only to grow brighter and brighter through the eternities."

The ragged pen of Dr. J. A. Handy entitled "The Mystery of Man." He says, "Man is more than a material production. The elements of earth are not sufficient for his completion." Again, Man is not a ripening corn, having a peculiar being having, relation both to past and future, and as interest in both prophecy and history. * * * There can be no bounds to man's capacity." The paper deals with man especially psychologically.

Intemperance from the Bible Standpoint" is largely and well treated by Bishop J. W. Hood, of the A. M. E. Z. Church. He quotes Scripture extensively and set forth his spirit on the subject, and reasons with an illustrious philosophy from Scriptural grounds against the argument too often made by intemperate men in favor of their vice, that Christ turned water to wine and the use of wine in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. He also cites Scripture setting forth the drunkards of Sort into men, as well as their religious theory.

Judge Benjamin L. Baffin, Beach of Massachusetts, contributes a masterly article on the negro's case in "Look Forward." There is no better if even paper in the magazine than this. The reasoning is of logical, illustrated by the case authorities chain; so weak links from beginning to end. If the premises are cor ect there can be no doubt as to his conclusion that the race question will be settled in favor of the negro. While we do not accept the premises, we admire the logical conclusion.

"Charles Dickens," by Josephine Tozer, is a fair sketch of the life and writings of one of the greatest characters of our century. This is immediately followed by two papers on Africa, the first by Dr. T. G. Steward on "The Evangelization of Africa," and the Emplyment of Language," and second on "The French Language as the Tongue of the Twentieth Century," by Mrs. Sarah C. Scarborough. Both afford strong material for the thoughtful reader. Each paper has some points that remind the reader of the pungent remarks of Dr. Miller in his treatise on "Language a Physical Science." The philosophy of sentiment and the facts presented render this short article very valuable. The linguist will find a number of unattractive points beginning to and of the paper on "The French Language." We are ashamed of them in their nakedness and ugliness, but who will teach them how to be Christians and be clothed in the spirit of Christ? This opens a new and grand field of missionary enterprise under the auspices of the French Evangelical Church. Missionary enterprises under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church, North, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Africa will be equal to the call of the Church and the cause of civilization. Dr. Steward's article contains additional information of the progress of the work of the Methodist Episcopal Church, North. Bruther Lindsey, who has joined our connection, with Brother Steward, has made a quite pleasant, the great excitement has spread among the natives and the work is on a basis of duration for a number of ministers and helpers. The article relates to put the system in operation now in order as it ought to be sustained; be favoring measures that will be permanent in manner just so as to be under cover of the law. Dr. Steward's article is full of facts and information and will be read with profit by the Church and actual work intended to be performed by that system and office. A great number of our ministers say that times are hard and that the people will not pay their preachers, and that is the only reason why they do not pay. This only is true in proportion to the spiritual condition of the minister or the church and local and indeed these are the main causes of the financial failure of many of these conclusions. These conclusions are based upon the assumption that the people will not accept the gospel unless it is paid for. This is a very low and false idea of the ministry. The ministry is a divine institution, and the people will support it when they are spiritually fed and led. Paul was a tent maker, and Christ was supported by the gifts of pious women. Paul labored with his hands, and Christ was the guest of the poor

TO THE MINISTERS OF THE A. M. E. CHURCHES OF PHILADELPHIA, NEW JERSEY, NEW YORK AND NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCES.

DEAR BRETHREN:—With the assistance of Rev. A. J. Chambers, of Asbury Park station, we have secured the auditoriem of the Camp-meeting association of Ocean Grove, N. J., for a grand A. M. E. Church day at said place on July 16th next, when we should have an opportunity to reach a class of persons that it would be impossible to meet on account of circumstances. We propose by the help of God to raise about $500 or more for the cause of Christ's missions on that day, and we can do it if we have the co-operation of the pastors and people of the First Episcopal District. We have pledged ourselves to make a decent and honorable display of our church forces, as we are the first colored denomination of any note to whom has been accorded the privilege of using that grand auditorium of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In view of the above we ask that all churches of the above named conferences do what or may see fit to come with their pastors, sabbath school and bands and let us make the occasion one of great interest and long to be remembered.

The following programme will be prepared by the Missionary Board. There will be a choice selection of from three to five hundred children. Rev. J. W. Beckett, chairman of committee on arrangements. Bishops and other distinguished guests will be provided by Rev. A. J. Chambers, of Asbury Park station. Everything, it is hoped, will be exceedingly pleasant. Let the Philadelphia and vicinity can secure a liberal discount for their churches by applying to Mr. J. H. Shoemaker, agent of the Pennsylvania R. R., which will make them to realize about 33 or 50 per cent for the benefit of their churches. Churches in the vicinity of Philadelphia can join excursion that will be run on that day, and will also receive the benefit of a reduced rate. More complete arrangements. The deliberations of the occasion will be presided over by Bishop D. A. Payne, D.D., from whom a word will be said in the RECORDER in reference to the matter. Our efficient Secretary, Rev. M. M. Townsend, D.D., will be on hand, accompanied by Dr. B. F. Lee, editor on the great occasion.

Brethren, let all arise and by the help of the Great Head of the Church, by our songs and speeches and Christian like behavior, leave his name in the African Methodism upon the pages of history as the most powerful Episcopal stronghold.

NOTE TO AGENTS SELLING THE RECORDER.

Shubael Baker, of Providence, R. I., who, when 17 years old, in 1866, was tried and sentenced to imprisonment for life for the murder of a policeman, is the only one of the 3 in the State Almshouse. He was pardoned out in 1877 for assistance in preventing the escape of two fellow prisoners.

Death in a singular way recently overtook a little girl in Raymond, N. H. She was playing under the house sink; some, into which water from the kitchen was poured, poured boiling water, which running down the chimney, the neck scalded it so severely as to cause death a few hours later.

A man while at work in the woods in Genesee county, N. Y., last week, became insane and suddenly started running, attacking every person and horse in his way. He finally encountered a foreman, who in defending himself with an axe, struck the demented man on the head and injured him badly.

The steamer Queen on the Sacramento river continues to make a poor showing. The ran of fish has not increased, and up to a week ago not more than 2000 cans had been packed against some 30,000 cases to the same date last year. Fishermen are not making their board and the canning that have opened are said to be losing money.

A New York publisher has brought out an autograph album, and sold a few thousand dollars in cash to the person guessing its authorship. If it makes enough fuss with people this time, Henry Ward Beecher, Philadelphia's favorite Whitman.—Philadelphia Call.

WHAT A CHANGE!

A few short weeks ago that young girl was the personification of health, vigor and beauty. The bloom upon her cheeks rivaled that of the rose, her eye was bright and buoyant, her every movement was a revelation of grace and health. Yet now she is pallid and haggard, and her surpassing beauty has given place to a strange dullness and lassitude. What has caused this change? Functional irregularities, which can be cured by Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," a remedy to which thousands of women to-day owe their lives. All druggists.

In no other medicinal preparations have the results of the most intelligent study and scientific inquiry been so steadily and progressively utilized as in Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It leads the list as a truly scientific preparation for all blood diseases.

It is announced that the Emperor William, of Germany, is again indisposed.

The claims as to the curative powers of Hood's Sarsaparilla are based entirely on what the people say it has done for them. Send to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass., for a book containing statements of many remarkable cures by Hood Sarsaparilla.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from practice, having had placed in his hands by an East Indian missionary the formula of a simple vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung Affections, also a positive and radical cure for Nervous Debility and all Nervous Complaints, after having tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, has felt it his duty to make it known to his suffering fellows. CONNECTIONAL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.

ATLANTA, GA., April 4, 1885.
Ministers A. M. E. Church:
The General Conference of 1860, as you are aware, established a Connectional Literary, Historic and Educational Association, and the General Conference of 1884 affirmed the same. Between these two days, we could never get the constitution and by-laws properly before you. Now, however, we are rather too voluminous to get into the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. The constitution and by-laws, however, are so coded from time to time by the Bishops' Council, but never perfected and properly presented to the people till at their next regular session, at which time they were rigidly over hauled and put in a practical form and set in the Annual Budget, edited by Rev. Dr. Arnett. Since their publication I have persistently waited for the Budget to get around to all the annual conferences, as the ministers, at least, all have one at home, and then have both the connectional constitution, the annual conference constitution and the church constitution—the three with the by-laws. I think I have waited long enough. Now, I will say that I have been calling upon me monthly to get them from the Lord. I have kept them long for the reasons above stated, but now I will send them to you per 263 of the Budget for 1885, and they will find all necessary information and the blanks necessary to carry out the subjects for the present year, upon which every one is to read the annual addresses will write an essay—I mean any one a member may select, will be as follows:

1. What ought to be the home of the Christian minister? By Bishop Payne.
2. What constitutes the accomplished Christian minister? By Bishop Payne.
3. The ability of biographical studies. By Bishop Payne.

Now, as to the evidence that the world is improving morality? By Bishop Payne.

5. Is there any conflict between science and revelation? If so, in what? If not, why not? By Rev. Dr. Reynolds, of the reformation, John Wicklife's or Martin Luther's.

The ministers will see by the constitution that as soon as published in Boston, that they have a right to select any one of these subjects that they may choose, and the same will stand upon the same for their annual conference essay, examination, etc., and the Presiding Elders will see their duties in the premises. Also, that we have the prize essay arrangements, etc. Presiding Elders will see their duties in the premises. Also, that we have the prize essay arrangements, etc. Presiding

Discontinue at the end of the year for which you have paid. Otherwise we will continue to send it.

VIRTUES OF COMPACT.

A most important lesson to all parties in a mercantile or organization is, that the individual is always regarded as of less value than the corporation. Another is, that the association ought to grow; that its growth depends upon the combined activities of its many factors; that if these factors were all of one mind, temper, temperament and tendency there would be little need of organizing; therefore differences are as essential as agreement. If the organization is worth anything in regulations, intended for itself as a unit, must always be respected for their own worth, and the individual unable to agree with them, unable to bear them and unable to correct them, ought to abandon the association.

Of infinitely more value than all the pledges and symbols of fraternity are the spirit of fraternity, the philosophy of association and the element symbolized in the New Testament, charity. There may be in any association of men, indeed is certain to be, some unruly material that will barely stand the measure. There may also be material of a far higher standard of purity than the average. Thus there are always the three classes, commonly called "odd," and "indifferent." Each is responsible for the association; indeed, it may be said that each is responsible for all the others, in a higher sense; they have to bear one another's burdens, help one another, watch over one another, "restore such an one," love one another. Of course this is considering the higher forms of association.

These three classes are to make of their body-compact all that is in their power, in accordance with obligation and interest. There is not likely to be much good done by assailing it; that looks too much like a child assailing its mother. As little consistent is it for one of its members to publish its members,—that looks like saying one's mother is ridiculous and warning others to not enter that life. It is like a man telling the world he has several imbecile brothers and sisters, and therefore warning all persons against marrying in his family. If the bed member is thoroughly determined to not be submissive to the less that be has one pledged to support, if he is satisfied that he cannot longer be blest nor bless in the society, then he should withdraw; but if he can do it even crookedness, but is inclined to honor his obligations in the corporation, he should strive to master the tendency to perverseness and renew his determination to loyalty, keep wise counsel and make careful steps. Should the better class be inclined to a sort of liberalism between the two ultras it would be well for it to be exceedingly careful in its movements. It is important as either of the others; it is the middle link. Associations of men are always supposed to have improvement, in some shied, as an objective point. The weakest are to be made stronger. The liberal offer to the weaker class some attraction; they may, however, offer to the highest class a temptation to degeneration. Here is the great question: Shall there necessarily be an antagonism of all parties in the character of the lower class, the middle class, or the highest class? Of course there can scarcely be but one reasonable answer to this question. The best to-day may be improved in the future. Close adherence to duty to-day is likely to increase the duties to-morrow; but it is also likely to increase the powers of the actor.

The A. M. E. Church is such an organization. Its future depends as much upon our comprehension of duty and our vigorous performance of the same as does our present. We are not necessarily nearly through with our work; indeed, we have just commenced. Considerateness, patience and holiness will render us, after awhile, fit ...eet for the Master in Africa and elsewhere, as well as here.

THE CHARLESTON News and Courier of recent date contains a spirited paper from Prof. D. A. Straker concerning some of the actions of the Board of Trustees of Allen University at its late session. It may well be regretted that the Board found it wise to not re elect Dean Straker; yet we know that Trustee Boards of our schools can well absorb a vast amount of charity. The subjects appeal to us in a more tender place than the management of higher educational affairs. It is not one thing concerning which we cannot be expected to do here a wide experience; yet it is a fact demanding the very highest degree of wisdom.

Prof. Straker, it appears, will open a private law school in Columbia. This is to be regretted also. The Allen Law School has needed, for a brief, but good, record its graduates have been admitted to the bar of several States and of the nation. One of its graduates has been made successor to Prof. Straker as Dean. Much of this character, however, is the result of Allen University, the result of Allen Normal Theological and Classical School. It is scarcely to be believed that either of them will have the influence imparted that they would have associated, nor that the sum of their force will now be equal to what it has been, at least for some years.

The university can hardly regain its footing immediately after passing through such fire of charge and counter-charge, as have been made by two of its faculty-members recently, and the loss at the same time of the experience and centers of President Waters and Dean Straker. And, after awhile, if the people and God are for Allen, it will recover itself and more on gloriously.

THE COMMENCEMENT at the Institute for Colored Youth, Philadelphia, Tuesday, June 30th, was an exceedingly encouraging affair. With what pride we could look upon the results of a hard year's work, aye, of hard years' work by pupils, trustees and teachers; how we could look upon the same as much grander than to us. The class of men and women who have a grander reward than the student, namely in this instance. The Board of the Institute have accomplished a great work and the circumstances of the present augur greater works than these. Already they have graduated two hundred and forty persons, the most of whom, according to the statement of Mr. Jones, have made a successful and honorable employments: as teachers, editors, preachers, doctors, clerks, statesmen, diplomats, &c. Mrs. Fanny Jackson Coppin has been at the head of the Faculty for many years, and year by year has grown in popularity, scholarship and it is difficult to trace her back to the time when she was not to be merely popular, as student, orator and instructor. Philanthropist and Christian of devotion action and the spirit symbolized in the New Testament, charity. The following is the programme, all parts of which were grandly performed:

"The Nation's Annual Drink and Tobacco Bill;" Jessie A. Warfield; "Intellectual Effort," Rhodiant M. Mossey; "Epidemics, Their Cause and Prevention," Rebecca J. Cole, M. D. (Class of '63; and "St. Isaac Newton," Charles Lalah Wilson; "The Mission of Peace," Esther A. Reese; "True Reconstruction," Felicia R. Stephens; "The Colored Woman of To-day," Sarah J. Woodwell & Company, Limited, $3.50 a year.

A large girl playing lawn-tennis is the subject of an illustration in the July number of Cassell's Family Magazine. The serial story, "A Diamond in the Rough," by Walter Besant and introduces us to several exciting situations. A new serial, "My Married Daughter," is begun in this number and gives every promise of sustaining the reputation of this magazine for a month of stories. There are besides several shorter stories that are bright and pure and the subject, to help the struggling institution but it is now stated by the Xenia papers that he has carried off one of the Wilberforce colored boys, Mr. Dugard, of Michigan, class of '80. It has been blisted more than once that, notwithstanding the severe rules at the university, too many of the students from Wilberforce graduate in marriage, and it has been intimated that teachers marry pupils occasionally. Now is your prayerful thoughtful trustees have had this grave subject in their minds, but are they pass a resolution their voice is paralyzed by the fear, "Is there no Gilead, is there no balm in Gilead, is there no physician, that should withdraw; but if he could not even crookedness, but is inclined to honor his obligations in the corporation, he should strive to master the tendency to perverseness and renew his determination to loyalty, keep wise counsel and make careful steps. —Mr. Straker returned from his West Durham trip July 2d, via the New York conference at Buffalo, pleased with much that he had seen and heard, thoroughly acthusiastic concerning Wilberforce University. Like all others who have visited the institution since the late conference Mr. Straker was especially pleased to see the Manager return after a month's absence. He is one thing concerning which we cannot be expected to do here a wide experience; yet it is a fact demanding the very highest degree of wisdom.

—Manager of Miss Rebecca J. Cole, M. D., died at the commencement of the Institute, was a scholarly production, delivered in a scholarly style. It has called entirely too much light to be put under a bushel. Can it not be given to the world? It should be circulated by the million. Not a word of it is wanting in force, lore or principle is plain. Few superior compositions on similar subjects have been given to the world by the medical fraternity. It is the gospel needed next to the Gospel.

Literature.

The Wilberforce Almanac pamphlet of 32 pages, giving the history of the rise and progress of Wilberforce University, compiled by Rev. B. W. Arnett, D.D., and President S. T. Mitchell, M.D. There are many facts in this little volume that will interest to philanthropists and a growing race.

In stating on a friend in the city we stumbled upon a copy of the Wilberforce Graduate, an annual, edited and published by the students of the Wilberforce Institute. The Graduate was established in the year of 1880. It contains the annual address and sermon before the school, the orations and essays delivered by the graduates, the baccalaureate sermon, editorial notes, and a catalogue of the names and contribution from a member of the Faculty. The Graduate of '83 contains good composition, but is not as informative as it not correctly paged. Its editor, Mr. J. E. Bagley, assumed responsibility for incorrectness and irregularities. The Graduate of '84 had to compete with a more fair compositions, some of them fine. There is a very large vein of the humorous in the editorial department, and ...mirable superabundance. The sermon by Rev. Bishop Shorter on board at the University, the address of Dr. Johnson, and the baccalaureate sermon of President Mitchell, are equal to the demands of their respective places, and are instructively edifying. Mr. Cooper's article on "Doubt and Dogma" is altogether a highly creditable paper.

The Magazine of Art for July has for its piece de resistance a well considered paper on Hamlet, and also admirable portraits of the famous composer appropos of the forthcoming second centennial of his birth. The Churchill portrait showing Handel at the spinet is also a fine production. The poem and water picture which follow are the former by Mrs. Hemans, the latter by W. J. Hennessy. "The Buried Mother" is the subject of the poem. Then follows the Rev. Hugh Macmillan's papers on the Romances of Art. J. J. Blaikie contributes the illustrations to the article. The Dart, while Miss Helen Zimmerman contributes a picturesque sketch of Dartmoor, Ladies' Land. Miss Eunice Gary of Rockford "Readger," which sadness would be more ...masses of the aged and young.

Among the first virtues that will be noticed in Dr. Gray were its direction and simplicity, telling you exactly what you want to know and leading you to it by the easiest of methods. For all questions arising in the government of the A. M. E. Church the book is the best issued and will at once recommend itself to the Bishops, ministers and officers as well as intelligent members and friends of the Church.

The volume is stoutly bound, set up in large, open-faced type, and is sixty pay in keeping with the rest in size, breadth, height and depth and energetic character of the author, who is widely known for the force he has wielded toward forming the spirit of the age.

—Mr. Jesse Lawson, son of Rev. Isaac S. Lawson, of Wilberforce University, has passed into history as the most brilliant graduate of the Gaorgia rosd as route to the commencement at Wilberforce University. At 1 P. M. we halted in Columbia, and had the honor of Miss Methodism leading the van in the wonderful progress of the place. It could scarcely be otherwise with such men as Rev. W. J. Gaines, D.D., Rev. Dr. Fisher, Rev. Richard Graham, D. T. Green and G S Green holding prominent stations on different sides of the city.

The Morris Brown College stands upon one of the highest hills, and can be seen from every point, holds its own among the colored institutions of the land by the monotony of the view. This institution, valued at about $50,000, represents the combined energy of the whole connexion people in Georgia, as showing their appreciation of educational advantages for the rising generations.

Dr. Gaines has received the usual hearty welcome and entertains his many friends and his palatial residence opposite the college.

THROUGH THE MOUNTAINS.

The next day at 1.50 P. M., taking the Kenesaw, we passed through Atlanta, at Marietta Rev. Isaac S. Hamilton, our energetic pastor, was at the train, and during the few moments spent there as a Godspeed to Wilberforce.

DEATH OF MRS EMMA L. JOHNSON.

At Cartersville we met Rev A. S. Jackson, another strong and true man of the North Georgia Conference. Here we were feeling very sad over the recent death of our dear companion, who departed this life May 25, at 2 P. M. Sarah J. Johnson, wife of Rev. Jacob Johnson, joined the A. M. E. Church at Forsyth in 1870, and has had to discharge the wife and powerful helper of Elder Jackson. She was a great singer and prayed mighty in faith and prayer. Her death was triumphant, her last words being: "Jesus, I am coming home." Her body, at her only child, little Carrie, of perhaps two years, is commended to the prayers of the Church.

AT DALTON.

Here we met the successful worker, Rev. O W. Nutter, pastor of the mammoth M. E. Church erected by Rev. G. H. Holmes, and left for Rome and Cochise to the rafined taste and exceptive ability of Rev. Warren.

AT CALHOUN,

Rev. A. W. Wasse, LL.D., pastor of the Church, was in the act of the Churchill Conference. He is delighted with his work and waits a word of greeting to Wilber force.

The ministers in Georgia are becoming heroic in their preparations for the next Ecdumenical Day, September 20th to 30th. Let the enthusiasm grow, and like the live, lifted thunder from peal to peal let the transcontinental mountains of the republic. Let it roar, repeat, and vibrate from the lakes of Canada to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the Atlantic to the golden gates of the West, causing only when it shall be swallowed up in the splendors of victory.

AT WILBERFORCE.

The twenty-second annual commencement of Wilberforce University has passed into history as the most brilliant and successful in the history of the career. The interesting exercises of the week culminated in a crowded house on Thursday, June 18th, when the graduating class, with its seating capacity of 8,000 persons, marched to the platform in the ...emiles of the distinguished visitors and friends. The graduating class numbered that there were 6,000 persons present, yet for hours so perfect was the order preserved that the stillness was unbroken, only as it was broken by the rich strains of the gifted orators upon the platform. The graduates were Mr. N. F. Mossell, of Bmi Liberty, Ohio; Miss Ella Clark, of Wilberforce; Mr. C. N. Wilkins, of Pine Bluff, Ark.; Mr. A. B. Winter, of Nashville, Tenn.; Miss Belle Love, Galveston, Texas; also the Dr. L. Scovell, of New Orleans, La.; Mr. D. M. Roberts, of Hazel Dell, and Mr. B F. Dodge, of Albany, New York. Nearly one hundred trustees were present, including Rev. J. Karl Bluford, paper on "Dr. Schliemann's Discoveries at Troy," and Miss Belle Love, with exceptionally fine engravings from Schliemann's work. Then we have a most attractive article, "A Fair Canonist," describing the first trip made by a lady, accompanied by her father, to the Pacific coast. The picture showing this point is quite excellent. The story entitled "A thoughtful trustees have had this grave subject in their minds, but are they pass a resolution their voice is paralyzed by the fear, "Is there no Gilead, is there no balm in Gilead, is there no physician, that should withdraw; but if he could not even crookedness, but is inclined to honor his obligations in the corporation, he should strive to master the tendency to perverseness and renew his determination to loyalty, keep wise counsel and make careful steps. LETTER FROM AFRICA.

LIBERIA, WEST COAST OF AFRICA, May 15, 1885.

MR. EDITOR:—Let me say a few words to you in behalf of Africa for the first time. I left Rockingham, Va., the 16th day of February of this year, for Africa, and on the 26th day of the same month I embarked at New York for Africa. I reached Africa on the 16th day of March, and found it very favorable. I preached three sermons the first Sunday, and in this connection I would say that I found the Africans Methodist; but I went to work and organized a society of sixty-five members which now astonishing to the general community. The number of which were native Africans in their wild state. I also went out in the country among the native kings and established two Churches among them. I was received very courteously, and I am able to say in sounds that the entire scope I there my name among them, and I remained twenty seven to thirty members; I have found a great deal of good, and more success. But thus far I have been successful in the name of our God T. Green and G S Green holding prominent stations on different sides of the city.

COME, COME AND HELP!

To the Bishops, Ministers, Members and Friends of the A. M. E. Church:—The pastor and trustees of the Union Wesleyan Methodist Church, Washington, D. C., have resumed work on their building, and by the last of August they expect the basement will be ready for dedication. I want to raise five hundred dollars by that time for them and I have adopted the simple mode to raise it. I will give one dollar, and I call upon every other one to do the same. Let every single dollar, one-hundred dollars, and every one-hundred dollars one thousand

TO THE MINISTERS OF THE A. M. E. CHURCHES OF PHILADELPHIA, NEW JERSEY, NEW YORK AND NEW ENGLAND CONFERENCES.

DEAR BRETHREN:—With the assistance of Rev. A. J. Chambers, of Asbury Park station, we have secured the auditorium of the Camp-meeting Association of Ocean Grove, N. J., for a grand A. M. E. Church day at said place on July 16th next, when we shall have an opportunity to reach a class of persons that it would be impossible to meet on account of circumstances. We propose, by the help of God to raise about $500 or more for the assessed Church missions on that day, and we can do it if we have the co-operation of the pastors and people of the First Episcopal District. We have pledged ourselves to make a decent and honorable showing of our church forces, as we are the first colored denomination on the globe to whom has been accorded the privilege of using that great sanctuary of the Methodist Episcopal Church. In view of the above we ask that all churches of the named conferences that can come or may see fit to come with their pastors, schools and banners, and help to make the occasion one of great interest and long to be remembered.

The local programme will be prepared by the Missionary Board. There will be a platform erected in front of the five hundred children. Rev. J. W. Beckett, Church Secretary, will arrange that Bishops and other distinguished guests will be provided by Rev. A. J. Chambers, of Asbury Park. Above all and everything, it is hoped, will be exceedingly pleasant. Pastors in Philadelphia and vicinity can secure a limited number of their churches by applying to Mr. J. H. Morgan, General Passenger Agent, P. R. R., which will make them to realize a benefit of 25 per cent for the benefit of their churches. Churches in the vicinity of Newark can secure a like excursion that will be run on that day and will also receive the benefit of a reduction of the regular excursion rate. The deliberations of the occasion will be presided over by Rt. Rev. J. P. Campbell, D.D., from whom a word will be said in the Church Extra, to which we refer later. Our distinguished Secretary, Rev. M. Townsend, D.D., will be on hand, accompanied by Dr. B. T. Tanner, also on the great occasion.

Brethren, let us arise and by the help of the Great Head of the Church, by our songs and speeches and Christ-like life and labor, make the A. M. E. African Methodism upon the pages of the history of this great Republic, the Methodist stronghold.

Almost every person has some form of scrofulous poison latent in the veins. When this develops in scrofulous sores, ulcers, or scrofulous, or takes the form of rheumatism, or erysipelas, the cases, the suffering that ensues is terrible beyond description. Hence the gratitude of those who discover, as thousands yearly do, that Ayer's Sarsaparilla will thoroughly eradicate this evil from the system.

Please remember, nothing but articles for publication or letters pertaining thereto, should be addressed to the editor, and they to him exclusively.

BOOK CONCERN DAY.

What, another day? you ask. Yes, its on us. We must bear it the best we can. We have brought it upon ourselves by our enterprise, our ambition, as the Methodist Review would say, our acquisition, our understanding, our organizing. Our Publication Department is a necessary and a part of our department. It has never quite supported itself. The accumulations of its deficits year by year have amounted to thousands. We believe that if relieved of its present indebtedness it will support itself. Everyone knows how hard it is to get relieved of indebtedness. The business is bound to support not only its current life, but drag along the bones of its former life. Believe it of this extra burden and it will live.

Read the Manager's advertisement with reference to Bazaar Day. Just when it will be is not yet settled, but we may think on the subject.

MORE WORK.

Missionary Day did very well. Children's Day was successful, now comes Endowment Day, the third Sunday in September, only about two months all the year. Meanwhile the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, the organ of the Church, will obtain in with the spasmodic movements of all departments, recognizing them as far better than no movements, and do all it can to make the fine solidity into substantial support of the departments.

Secretary Johnson has sounded the bugle blast for Educational Day, September 20th. The RECORDER demanded $250,000 for that day last year; it came within about $15,000 of getting it. It still holds to that demand. Give the $15,000, brethren.

THEY WILL MIX ULTIMATELY.

And so they should do,—the schools. Meanwhile, the argument of the colored people to force this mixture must be well chosen. A few days ago a colored gentleman, making argument before a committee of the Pennsylvania, offered the following among other points: the teaching was better in the white schools; proof, he had studied under colored teachers and had taught; 1. 2. 3. 4. 5. 6. 7. 8. 9. 10. 11. It is not the color of the person, my friend, but his quality, that makes the efficient teacher. In keeping with this argument one of our exchanges asks, "Are not nearly all the grammars of the negro race educated kids by side with the whites? Out of the mixed schools of the country have come the strongest intellect of the colored race; and so much for borrowed light as of the ennoblement to the colored race by the chance mingling of the two races." It must remain a question for twenty years at least whether this is correct reasoning. That class of colored men graduating in schools attended and taught by whites, has a full score of years advance of the class graduating in schools attended and taught by colored persons particularly. There are few colored-school graduates to enter the ranks with Langston, Turner, Bassett, Greener and Revels. Those men graduated long enough ago to be settled in life before the first graduate from a colored college appeared.

It cannot be dismissed that the first productions of a school shall equal those of scholastic maturity. These remarks are made only that we may not be too hasty in losing to the colored race the color of teaching, or shedding it to the white race, from which we have acquired almost all of our mental crookedness, the healing virtue. The one thing needed by colored men is excellence. Be that man that is needed by the white men. There can be no better way of settling this question as to whether the colored man grows to political, social or individual excellence the more rapidly under exclusively negrodan tutorage and association with white children in schools, or under tutorage and association with white children in schools, or under tutorage that does not exclude men on the account of color than by the emancipation of the slave alike as nearly as possible with the single differential point that one has white teachers almost exclusively and the other makes little discrimination on account of color, which produces the more enlightened, refined and best colored citizens? Take, for instance, Cincinnati, with colored teachers even in colored schools, Ohio, and Cleveland, with the colored children also graduating schools taught by white persons almost exclusively; Dayton and Toledo, Springfield and Columbus may be considered in the same way. These cities are in Ohio, a central State. It will be comparatively easy to gather statistics. In the same way we may compare Wilberforce University and Berea; not because Berea is a mixture of the ages. Ten years hence it will be proper to compare one or two more of our colored schools with those almost exclusively white. It is too early yet. Wilberforce University gave the nation one of its first colored chaplains, its first colored congressman, two of its first State legislators, two city mayors, to a University President, S. T. Mitchell and Mr. E. A. Hackley, with a State certificate as teacher, ily and by-and-by the graduates of ten years ago shall have grown old, if they do not show an equal amount of manhood and force, then we may begin to say, with the gentleman pleading for his children, "Let us come under the white teaching, our folks can't teach;" and with our worthy contemporary, "Let us commingle."

At present it seems wise to contend for our own ability to help teach, and our possibility of becoming scholarly by the side of other colored students, emulating the good as it appears in common life and example without race discrimination. Discarding the chrobic evils of other races meanwhile.

AN APPEAL.

To the Ministers, Members and Friends of the Second District of Education of the A. M. E. Church, including the following Conferences, viz: Columbia, South Carolina, Georgia, North Georgia, Macon, North Carolina and Virginia Conferences.

Dear Brethren:—The third Sunday in September next is our Endowment Day, the best day's work of the last General Conference. I take opportunity, by the foreiock. If I have had any success in working for the Church, that has been my plan all through my ministerial career (I mean start in time). Never let time pass without using it to the best advantage. Again, let us have an object in view, say 4 about seven thousand dollars for the Second District for educational work. We can raise the money if ministers, members and friends do their duty. Dr. W. D. Johnson is working for the whole church; let our district show him we are in sympathy with him in the good work of love for education. I ask for a large number of dollars. God will help us if we only do our parts.

I am your obedient servant,

J. H. MORGAN, Secretary.

AN APPEAL.

FOR THE METROPOLITAN CHURCH, WASHINGTON.

It is absolutely indispensable that we raise and pay the sum of one thousand dollars by August 10th, 1885, and the twenty-five hundred and forty-eight dollars and fifty cents by October after the first Sabbath that we worship in the basement, or about the tenth of September next, or we will lose the borders upon more for incidental purposes. This, you are aware, will require a most vigorous effort and we shall require all the assistance that may be in the power of others to render. Therefore, I make so appeal to the pastors of all of our churches throughout the country for a special collection to be lifted before the time herein specified. I also earnestly appeal to the members of the church generally, to contribute on the said occasion the sum of ten cents, more or less, the amount thus collected to be forwarded immediately to the Rev. John A. Simms, the secretary of the church, at 1308 5th Street, N. W., or to the pastor. Geo. A. Gleim, 1716 5th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

CONNECTIONAL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.

ATLANTA, GA., April 4, 1885.

Ministers A. M. E. Church:

The General Conferences of 1880, as you are aware, established a Connectional Literary, Historic and Educational Association, and the General Conference of 1884 affirmed the same. But from 1880 to 1884, we could never get the constitution and by-laws properly before the connection, as they were rather too voluminous to get into the Christian Recorder. The constitution and by-laws, however, were amended from time to time by the Bishops' Council, but never perfected and properly presented to the people till at their last regular session, at which time they were rigidly overhauled and put in a practical form and put in the Annual Budget, edited by Rev. Dr. Arnett. Since their publication I have patiently waited for the Budget to get around to all the annual conferences, so the ministers, at least, could procure them, and thus have both the connectional constitution, the annual conference constitution and the church constitution—the three with the by-laws. But I have waited long enough, as some of the Bishops have been sailing for Africa, so as soon as to give out the subjects, but I have held back long for the reasons above stated. Now I will make a turn to page 263 of the Budget for 1884, and they will find all necessary information and will understand their duties, &c. The subject for the present year, upon which every member of the annual conferences will write an essay—I mean each member who is asked, will be as follows:

No. 1. What ought to be the home of the Christian pastor? By Bishop Payne.

No. 2. What constitutes a well-equipped Christian pastor? By Bishop Payne.

No. 3. The utility of biographical studies. By Bishop Hayes.

4. What are the evidences that the world is improving morally? By Bishop Brown.

5. Is there any conduct between man and woman that is not right? If so, what is it? By Bishop Campbell.

6. Who is entitled to the fatherhood of God? Answered by Rev. Wm. Wickliffe or Martin Luther?

The Literary Committee will see by the connectional constitution, as published in Budget, that they have the right to excuse or dispense with any subject that they see fit, and prepare an essay upon the same for their annual connection associations. They will also see the prize essay arrangements, etc. Presiding elders will see their duties also. I have been thus plain in this communication, so as to get the most literate can understand it. Let us work. Let us have a live association. Hear from me often upon this subject.

H. M. TURNER,

Literary President.

OLD AGE.

How Man's Lease of Life may be Lengthened.

The possibility of prolonging life has commanded the serious attention of eminent scientists, and the discovery of some compound or elixir capable of preventing or suspending physical decay, has been, more than once, confidently predicted. The practical thing to consider is, however, the prolongation of life by proper care of the health, one of the best means of maintaining which is the occasional use of Ayer's Pills. S. G. Bonham, Worthington, Mass., says: "Ayer's Pills are remedy for sick headache, arising from an impure state of the stomach, and are the mildest and best purgative in the world. They are first recommended to me, by my mother, thirty years ago." Mrs. J. G. Smith, Campbellsburg, Ky., says: "I have been cured of rheumatism, and am now enjoying good health, through the use of Ayer's Pills. I am nearly seventy years of age." Mark Johnson, Monterey, Mexico, says: "I have used Ayer's Pills for the past thirty years, and am satisfied that I should not now be alive and in the enjoyment of health, had not them I have been enabled to avoid the bilious diseases peculiar to this climate." J. V. Thompson, Mount Clinton, Va., says: "Ayer's Pills gave me quick and from bilious attacks and headaches. I have now used them for two years, with increasing satisfaction." Mr. M. Watson, 159 State st., Chicago, Ill., says: "Some year ago I was induced to try Ayer's Pills as a remedy for dyspepsia and constipation, and Headache, from which I had been a great sufferer. I found the action of these Pills easy, and obtained prompt relief. In continuing the use, a single pill, taken after dinner, kept me all the medicine I have required. Ayer's Pills have benefited me more than all the medicines ever taking." D. T. Somerville, P. M., Wayside, Kans., says: "My wife suffered, for several years, with Convulsions and Nervous Debility. She was completely cured by using Ayer's Pills."

THE COMING MAN.

Among the many attainments which we may reasonably expect the coming man to possess, will be a perfect knowledge of the human system. He will also have a thorough appreciation of the importance of Ayer's Pills, as a means of keeping the system in a healthy condition, and of their power to cure Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint, and Sick Headache. Wm. Tarrant, Alexandria, Va., writes: "Being a victim of that horrible disease, Dyspepsia, I decided to try Ayer's Pills. In a few days my appetite returned, and, by exercising a little care in the matter of my food I could eat a hearty meal and feel

DISTRESSED.

I now rejoice in a renovated system, and my health is restored." John Stackbarth Eglon, W. Va., writes: "I think very highly of Ayer's Pills, and use no others. They cured me of Rheumatism." W. E. Quiney, Jackson, Mich., writes: "Ayer's Pills are the best I ever found for Sick Headache." M. J. Mead, St. Canton, Md., writes: "Ayer's Pills have afforded me great relief from a severe Complaint, of fifteen years' standing, and from Constipation. I was with Dizziness, Indigestion, oppression after eating, Sick Headache, and Constipation. I now feel like a new man, all owing to a few boxes of Ayer's Pills."

What we must say

now, is that we are opening a regular campaign for the CHRISTIAN RECORDER.

We want two thousand new subscribers, and all the old ones to renew. Now, appreciating the dullness of the times, we have resolved to put the paper within the reach of all, adopting the installment plan.

Installment

costs a little more, but is easier because it gives more time. Hence, we make the following offer to all who desire to have the RECORDER:

Send us 25 Cents and we will enroll your name in a special book kept for that purpose and will send you the paper for sixty days; then send us 50 cents, and two months after 50 cents, and two months later 50 cents more. Total, $1.75.

All our Pastors

are Agents for the RECORDER, and are hereby authorized to present this proposition to their people and receive their enrollment fee (25 cents), and give their receipt for the same. [Note.—We will send a few blank slips of receipts to all who will act for us in this matter.]

On this Plan

we give full six months for paying the subscription.

"Pastor's Memorandum Book," by Rev. C. T. Shaffer. Price, 45 cents, no discount. An excellent book.

"The Negro in Art: How to Use Him," in which we need to read, and the trees, under which we need to study. Arriving at Wilberforce, I found the Board of Trustees in annual session with Bishop J. P. Campbell in the chair. The President's report was under consideration, containing many wise recommendations. One of the marked features of the Trustees' meeting was the unanimity of feeling and interest in the Church that were present. There was no friction. The following is the list: Bishops J. P. CONVENTION.

The Preachers' Meeting of the African M. E. Church of Philadelphia has resolved to call a convention of the ministers and members of the denomination in the city and vicinity some time in September next to consider the interests of the denomination in this locality. Local missionary work will receive special attention. The call will appear hereafter.

THE REV. J. H. ACCOCE is having a slight controversy in Mt. Holly, N. J., on the subject of education. He does not believe that the colored school is well managed. He has had the hardihood to say so. For this a newspaper editor of the place, happening to be a caucasian, makes a vile, unmanly onslaught on Brother Accoce. If white men do not want colored children in their schools in any given town, in reason's name let them not abuse colored men for demanding reformation. This same impertinence of culture and goodness refers, doubtless, to the case of the Rev. B. H. Pierce in Burlington, warning Accoce to attend to "his own business." That is cool; very cool; not impudence. Mr. Accoce should inform him that he has much more business with the schools attended by his own children than the Mt. Holly editor. These money colored men are always out of place, but their conber is steadily increasing.

AS to Pierce's case, he will win in the name of reason and restitude. He will not starve. He will leave Burlington with the respect of every man of sense and virtue. We do not pretend to enter into consideration of the merits of Brother Accoce's case. We know nothing of the teacher or of the school, but we do know that if things are as Mr. Accoce says they are and as the newspaper has not proven them not to be, then there is cause for action. At any rate the father of children attending the school, though a minister and a "dignified citizen," is within his rights when he says, his business looking after it. Stick to it, Accoce.

WE GIVE for the third time this year large space to Children's Day matter. This is the last issue of the RECORDER in which the subject will find place. As to essays read on that day, some of them may be published; they may not be published. Some are accompanied by requests to return. This we cannot agree to do. If your articles sent here must be published elsewhere when published in the RECORDER, they are surely of sufficient interest to duplicate before sending. We wish this remark to apply to all matter on all subjects.

The spring demands upon the columns of the RECORDER render it necessary to increase the waste-basket page weekly. This is no pleasure to the editor, but an absolute necessity, notwithstanding.

The columns of our paper are full every week; if the omitted communications were published, some of the published would be omitted. Brethren do themselves injustice by appending silly insinuations and crouching pleas to their communications. There are a few contributors with whom we have arranged to furnish letters more or less regularly; letters their names appear often in our columns.

THE EDITOR of the Wilberforce Gradeate treats us in the following on logic:

WILBERFORCE, O., 7, 18, '85.

MR. EDITOR: RE-TYPEWRITE in Logic.—Please tell me wherein lies the fallacy in this statement: "I stumbled upon a copy of Wilberforce Gradeate, in which I noticed, page 6, therefore the Graduate of '85 is by some misfortune incorrectly paged." Graduate established by class of '81; '82 of the whole lot of Graduates are incorrectly paged. YOURS, EDITOR."

In reply to the question ye have to say that the fallacy lies in the sentence and the want of considerateness. With reference to the fact of misgoing we have to reply that besides the copy upon which we "stumbled" we have received two other incorrectly paged copies "with compliments." Any copy of a given issue of a periodical is universally taken to represent the issue. We congratulate the good editor more upon having but 73 copies incorrectly paged than upon the logic and taste displayed in his card. The RECORDER gave the late number of the Graduate a fair notice. We stand corrected respecting the year of its origin. Any good service the RECORDER can do for Wilberforce or her children is freely tendered.

WE HAVE received several papers and pamphlets from gentlemen connected with Allen University last year showing that there has been considerable trouble there. This is very much regretted, for our Church cannot afford to make its schools centres of contention. We have declined, however, and must continue to decline to publish these papers, though we respect the brethren who send them. The Chairman of RECORDER cannot be the seat of war in such cases. We received a pamphlet showing that there had been a settlement of difficulties between the former President and Treasurer, in which retractions were made. Upon this we published our pleasure at the vindication of the ex-President, understanding from the pamphlet mentioned above that he had been vindicated.

The readers of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER have been deeply interested in studied the series of "Chats" by that scholarly writer, Rev. A. A. Williams, Jr., which was from the pen of the former of these articles, it was my pleasure to serve as a humble co-worker and to cast into the common of this gentleman's short time ago. Among the first things I was pleased to ask of him was "Mr. Williams, will you agree to review and extend your 'Chats,' put them in book form, and to place them within the hands of the readers of the A. M. E. Church, to dedicate the book to the Church?" No definite answer was received.

We have "Kidder's Pastorate," which is very good; but in my humble judgment it is hardly the book for our pastors generally. Kidder's work is arranged to suit the more advanced pastors of the church membership; it presumes that all with whom he deals have had a polished training derived from refined social and educational advantages. This is the case with the occupants of our polished pews, but in many instances, but the "Chats," as they appear, are given to us, take into consideration our condition. It is in so many words they "temper the winds to the shorn lamb." Could the writer be persuaded to prepare these series of articles to be placed within the reach of all connected with the A. M. E. Church, a long-felt want in our Church would be met, and a better system of Christian pastoral work will prevail among us.

If Brother Williams will consent to make a revision and publication of his "Chats," we have no doubt that all of our conferences, including the General Conference, will readily adopt it as a text-book for theological students, and for candidates who present themselves to the annual conferences.

I trust that the professors in our several colleges, our leaders in the annual conferences, and all who are interested in church work, will give this matter some consideration, and secure, if possible, a text-book which will meet our varied circumstances.

OBSERVATIONS.

WILBERFORCE UNIVERSITY AND ITS ENTHUSIASTS—DISCIPLINING THE LAUNCH OF BLOQUEMOR—DERRICK MADE A DD—THE GRADUATES DO WELL—COLOR NOT RESPECTED—SHOOING WILDS—FOGORAN—AFRICA NOT FORGOTTEN—CASEY MARRIES UNEXPECTEDLY TO A PARLOR GUEST.

BY H. M. T.

MR. EDITOR:—There are times when tongue and pen both falter before the majesty of what we feel to be the overflature of. The grandeur, the transcendent beauties that environ, form a trellis as it were, but the eye can but partially penetrate; that the ken of intellectuality glimmeringly takes hold of; but the power to discribe seems dwarfed and our slight adequate terms of clothe the emotions of a soul athrill with delight.

I have been visiting the annual commencements of Wilberforce University for years, and while I have always been pleased, edified, enlightened and made more hopeful of my race, yet the closing of the commencement of 1885 which has just closed, has been the most delightful of all that I have ever witnessed.

Reaching there on the afternoon of the 15th inst, I was directed to the mansion of Rev. B. W. Arnett, D.D., where such associates in the moral world as Drs. Jeuller, Townsend, Reid, Scarborough and J. A. H. Johnson, Revs. Caldwell, Thompson, Derrick, Asbury, Roberson and myself were entertained after the manner of the Presidest, understanding from the pamphlet mentioned above that he had been vindicated.

REV. N. M. MOORE hardly has the advantage of Rev. A. J. Kershaw in the matter of eloquence, but he is a good preachers. It is altogether probable that too many have had money for their object. It is a calamity to our Church that our ministers have taken so general a part in politics. Salvation is the first and yet. Elder Kershaw has not absorbed the argument against the practice. It may have been a necessity, however. But no one can believe two masters when politics and the Church come down. To-day we have abundance of work for every minister and cannot spare a single one to politics. We are sad losers by every one that enters this field.

THE OCEAN GROVE missionary meeting is said to have been an interesting affair, about two thousand persons being present. Addresses were made by many and all of our conferences, including the General Conference, will readily adopt it as a text-book for theological students, and for candidates who present themselves to the annual conferences.

I trust that the professors in our several colleges, our leaders in the annual conferences, and all who are interested in church work, will give this matter some consideration, and secure, if possible, a text-book which will meet our varied circumstances.

REV. A. A. WILLIAMS' CHATS.

AN EXCELLENT PASTORAL THEOLOGY —WILL MEET THE WANTS OF OUR CHURCH PASTORATE—OUGHT TO BE ADOPTED—A TEXT BOOK IN NON THEOLOGICAL SCHOOLS.

CHILDREN'S DAY.

Children's Day at Germantown, Pa.—Among the many good and important features of the A. M. E. Church is that of Children's Day. It is doing a great work. The day is ever a strictly observed throughout the connection and is a day of rejoicing and continuality. Elder Derrick has been assisted upon his new charge very vigorously, and the Church and Sunday-school are band in heart with him. May God bless his labors of love. Germantown will always keep step with the best in the help of the Lord and the work of the people. She observed Children's Day according to general arrangements. The church was crowded to a most beautiful manner; especially was the tastefully arranged floward made the house a paradise. At 10.30 o'clock A. M. a large number of parents and children beat the church, and rendered "The Duty of Parents to Children." Rev. R. Pascal delivered the sermon in a very pleasing and instructive manner. We may safely say we had Philadelphia in Sower, at 2.30 o'clock, in the sweet fragrance of the flowers, we mingled our voices in singing the Lord's praises. Prayer was offered by the pastor, and the repetition of the Lord's Prayer was led by the pastor, and the repetition of the Lord's Prayer was led by the superintendent. At 2.45 P. M. Mitchell, made a short address, expressing his appreciation of the efforts of the Christian people of Germantown, and also manifested the deepest interest in the Sunday-school. Rev. J. N. Armstrong is pastor of the Bethel Church. A year ago I found him a Sunday school of short forty; at this time there is an attendance of three hundred. What is needed most is the teacher who has the interests of the children at heart, and understands how to do it. We think we should be proud of your consecration, however, for I do not see it. A thousand times rather you have the same thus hanging inferiority in their midst.

The finest singing I have ever heard was in Germantown. Bro. Armstrong and I do not mean the most artistically executed music is performed there, but the heart is in it. The music is the most attractive spot in summer I ever saw. The grounds are just undulating enough to charm the eye, and the trees are not sufficiently protected by the adjacent houses to keep off the cool breeze of winter gales. The ravines deepen on both sides and extend to the valley of the creek. These ravines are studded, on either side, with beautiful shrubbery, which presents entangled symmetry and pure shady order. The air is always fresh, mingled with ravishing splendors, especially when the flowers are abloom. But I must not attempt to picture out the locality and topography of Wilberforce and Germantown; they are too well known for that and have been too often dethroned. Let it suffice to say that one can find Methodist literary treats ever enjoyed, possibly, swalled by the Germantown Church in their Sunday-school, rehearsing and singing. Rev. Armstrong is a model pastor on occasion, as I never noticed before. There was such a confluence plus ultra in the impressive editorial satisfactory.

WE GIVE up our editorial space this week to the brethren who "must be heard," largely; but, after all, we shall not be able to give nearly all a hearing.

OUR CONFERENCES.

GENERAL CONFERENCE—ANNUAL CONFERENCE—QUARTERLY CONFERENCE—DISTRICT CONFERENCE—OFFICIAL BOARD.

BY REV. B. H. DIXON.

MR. EDITOR:—Will you allow me space to spread a few thoughts on the above? I do not stick to the text of his theme with unfaltering nicety, yet they admire his sparkling gems even to admiration. Dr. Johnson was not born to be a mathematical booger of any thing save souls. He is a rhetorical semi-mathematical inclined hence the force of his enchanting powers. I had only one disapproval to score; I thought the sermon was too long and modest for a while, but the real Johnson jumped out in the closing part and after that.

Several young aspiring scions, among the undergraduates, delivered congratulative addresses for the first honor to orators. The addresses would have done credit to those of our D D's and men of rare scholarship. The palm of triumph was awarded Brother to Mr. Wm. H. Johnson, Rev. Caldwell, Thompson, Derrick, Asbury, Roberson and myself, and seniors elder self-appreciation, that which underlies all good qualities, and which is so modest. There was one other trustee in the University, all of whom were also men of character and great force in the social world.

Wilberforce University is situated near Xenia, Ohio, about sixty miles northeast of Cincinnati, and is possibly the most fit place for a centre of learning for the whole globe. Its campus-grounds are large, covering several hundred acres, beautifully trees and expanding branches, which shade the fine rivers and streams. It is the most attractive spot in summer I ever saw. The grounds are just undulating enough to charm the eye, and the trees are not sufficiently protected by the adjacent houses to keep off the cool breeze of winter gales. The ravines deepen on both sides and extend to the valley of the creek. These ravines are studded, on either side, with beautiful shrubbery, which presents entangled symmetry and pure shady order. Among the first things I was pleased to ask of him was "Mr. Williams, will you agree to review and extend your 'Chats,' put them in book form, and to place them within the hands of the readers of the A. M. E. Church, to dedicate the book to the Church?" No definite answer was received.

We have "Kidder's Pastorate," which is very good; but in my humble judgment it is hardly the book for our pastors generally. Kidder's work is arranged to suit the more advanced pastors of the church membership; it presumes that all with whom he deals have had a polished training derived from refined social and educational advantages. This is the case with the occupants of our polished pews, but in many instances, but the "Chats," as they appear, are given to us, take into consideration our condition. It is in so many words they "temper the winds to the shorn lamb." Could the writer be persuaded to prepare these series of articles to be placed within the reach of all connected with the A. M. E. Church, a long-felt want in our Church would be met, and a better system of Christian pastoral work will prevail among us.

If Brother Williams will consent to make a revision and publication of his "Chats," we have no doubt that all of our conferences, including the General Conference, will readily adopt it as a text-book for theological students, and for candidates who present themselves to the annual conferences.

I trust that the professors in our several colleges, our leaders in the annual conferences, and all who are interested in church work, will give this matter some consideration, and secure, if possible, a text-book which will meet our varied circumstances.

BY H. M. T.

MR. EDITOR:—There are times when tongue and pen both falter before the majesty of what we feel to be the overflature of. The grandeur, the transcendent beauties that environ, form a trellis as it were, but the eye can but partially penetrate; that the ken of intellectuality glimmeringly takes hold of; but the power to discribe seems dwarfed and our slight adequate terms of clothe the emotions of a soul athrill with delight.

I have been visiting the annual commencements of Wilberforce University for years, and while I have always been pleased, edified, enlightened and made more hopeful of my race, yet the closing of the commencement of 1885 which has just closed, has been the most delightful of all that I have ever witnessed.

Reaching there on the afternoon of the 15th inst, I was directed to the mansion of Rev. B. W. Arnett, D.D., where such associates in the moral world as Drs. Jeuller, Townsend, Reid, Scarborough and J. A. H. Johnson, Revs. Caldwell, Thompson, Derrick, Asbury, Roberson and myself were entertained after the manner of the Presidest, understanding from the pamphlet mentioned above that he had been vindicated.

Several young aspiring scions, among the undergraduates, delivered congratulative addresses for the first honor to orators. The addresses would have done credit to those of our D D's and men of rare scholarship. The palm of triumph was awarded Brother to Mr. Wm. H. Johnson, Rev. Caldwell, Thompson, Derrick, Asbury, Roberson and myself, and seniors elder self-appreciation, that which underlies all good qualities, and which is so modest. There was one other trustee in the University, all of whom were also men of character and great force in the social world.

Wilberforce University is situated near Xenia, Ohio, about sixty miles northeast of Cincinnati, and is possibly the most fit place for a centre of learning for the whole globe. Its campus-grounds are large, covering several hundred acres, beautifully trees and expanding branches, which shade the fine rivers and streams. It is the most attractive spot in summer I ever saw. The grounds are just undulating enough to charm the eye, and the trees are not sufficiently protected by the adjacent houses to keep off the cool breeze of winter gales. The ravines deepen on both sides and extend to the valley of the creek. These ravines are studded, on either side, with beautiful shrubbery, which presents entangled symmetry and pure shady order. The air is always fresh, mingled with ravishing splendors, especially when the flowers are abloom. But I must not attempt to picture out the locality and topography of Wilberforce and Germantown; they are too well known for that and have been too often dethroned. Let it suffice to say that one can find Methodist literary treats ever enjoyed, possibly, swalled by the Germantown Church in their Sunday-school, rehearsing and singing. Rev. Armstrong is a model pastor on occasion, as I never noticed before. There was such a confluence plus ultra in the impressive editorial satisfactory.

A HOPEFUL OUTLOOK.

There has been a gradual increase in the attendance in all our churches for the year. Avery Chapel, one of the largest Church buildings in the South, is now placed in her great audience room new furniture, carpets, &c. We have one of the largest congregations in the city, possibly, and bevs so far made a fine start towards liquidating her very heavy debt. Peace and apparent prosperity seem to be in the air. Rev. Jacob Shrouder is looking, working and praying for Israel's success. Our Sabbath school work is very poorly attended, and is rapidly grow smaller, but still we are working for the best. May God bless us.

St. Andrew's charge, Rev. H. O. Ashley, pastor, is holding his own and a marked increase in attendance and peace abound in his work.

Providence charge, Rev. S. R. Reed, pastor, has done a grand and glorious work His church has been blest with a gracious revival, and quite a number have joined faith in Christ and united with the church. His congregation has increased so much that he will be compelled to enlarge his church building to accommodate his ever growing audience. Bro. Reed is a fine scholar, every able and powerful preacher, and a pleasant social man with a bright future here before him, and is very much beloved by the people

Bro. James Chapel, Rev. Daniel Cook, pastor, has made great headway, and is going on and God of Bethel is blessing his work.

The attendance at the Sabbath-school conference was enormous. Dr. Johnson was the principal worker in the conference. He is a powerful preacher, and very wisely appointed services for the afternoon, so that all might be present. Rev. W. H. Burgess to be the preacher. This never was done before. Rev. Burgess was a grand success, and was greatly benefitted in getting it into the hands of the brethren and had them a sermon on the subject. Rev. Burgess is a master-workman among the brethren in reference to the presiding elder being present, as he had been very much neglected for two or three days; and as the train rolled by stations he was left behind. Consequently at the first inquiry was, is the elder aboard? And the affirmative answer brought a smile of satisfaction to the face of the pressed forward to give the shake of the hand. Rev. Burgess is a son of Rev. Isaac Young, although weak from his recent illness, was one of our members.

On Thursday A.M. conference convened. Rev. Young, presiding elder, in the chair, who conducted the business in a very able manner. Rev. James T. Baker and Francis Brown, Esq., were elected secretaries. Winutes were elected secretaries and your humble servant reporter for the RECORDER. Rev. Young, presiding elder, delivered a very able and interesting sermon on Thursday night. We were all glad to see Bro. Mills.

Sunday, at 4 P. M., Rev. S. J. Morgue preached a most excellent sermon on the subject of "Unity." Rev. H. E. Wilson, Rev. Mr. Wilson, a young gentleman being an exhorter and having a very pleasing manner and is gifted by his scholarly attainments. gentlemanly bearing and Christian fidelity during the years' work. Rev. Wilson was filled to hear his sermon, but he was a stranger to most. He did well and delivered in a most excellent manner. Rev. Wilson requests the committees were worthy of the highest standard the pastors were requested, by the presiding elder, to be present at the meeting and then being an appointment of Rev. Wilson to preach at the next session. Rev. Wilson was called upon and responded in a most excellent manner. Rev. Wilson is a young man of the progressive school and will be a success in any way assigned to him. Success in every way seemed to be the watch-word of the conference. Rev. Young, presiding elder, was called upon to give a statement of the financial condition of the district. He responded in a most excellent manner

Dear Brethren:—The third Sunday in September next is our Endowment Day, the best day's work of the last General Conference. I take opportunity by the forelock. If I have so far any success in working for the Church, that has been my plan all through my ministerial career (I mean start in time); Never let time pass without using it to the best advantage. Again, let us have an object in view, say about seven thousand dollars for the Second District for educational work. We can raise the money if ministers, members and friends do their duty. Dr. W. D. Johnson is working for the whole church; let our district show him we are in sympathy with him in his great labor of love for education. I ask for a large number of dollars. God will help us if we only do our parts.

Mrs. Abell was busy at the time and locked it in the pocket of her apron, where it was soon forgotten. Two spitzes went into the washing Monday without any thought of its valuable contents, and went through the process of washing, boiling and soaking. It was then passed through the drying process, and finally reached the ironing table. Here the lady who was doing the ironing noticed that the iron did not run smoothly over the apron, felt in the pocket, and took out what she supposed to be a scrap of paper and threw it on the floor. It was picked up by one of the children, who enfolded it and carried it to its mother, told her that he had found some money. Shakespeare's Spoon.—Turning from the wet, the fairground whisky keeper drew from a show case a relic which carried one back nearly three centuries to the time when the immortal Shakespeare flourished as an actor in London, and gave to the world the great works which have made him the most famous writer of the English tongue on record. It was a curious-made spoon of the ivory type but more valuable than its weight in diamonds. It is about three and one-half inches in length, made of solid silver, plated heavily with gold, and weighs about 12 pennyweights. The bowl is beautifully and delicately carved, and the handle is surmounted by a miniature bust of the Bard of Avon, the fairness being preserved most wonderfully. It is one of a set used by Shakespeare when he was in the zenith of his glory, and it fell into the hands of its present owner over 45 years ago, he finding it in Joseph's coffee house, London, on the day Victoria was crowned Queen of England.—Louisville Courier Journal.

The last General Conference increased the obligations of the office and reduced the income. Consequently we are in urgent need of money to carry on the work of the Church. I appeal to the ministers to send me the money now in their hands, and if they have none on hand, raise a collection of Dollar Money and send me a card specifying that I may meet the demands of our printing bills and supply the wants of those who are dependent on it for their bread and meat. FOR THE METROPOLITAN CHURCH, WASHINGTON.

It is absolutely indispensable that we raise and pay the sum of one thousand dollars by August 10th, 1885. Also twenty-five hundred and fifty dollars on the first Monday after the first Sunday in October, to meet the interest, or about the tenth of September we must raise five hundred dollars or more for incidental purposes. This, you are aware, will require a most vigorous effort, and we shall regret all the assistance that may be in the power of our people to render. Therefore, I make an appeal to the pastors of all of our churches and societies to take a collection for a special collection to be lifted before the 1st Sunday in August, and send the money immediately after to Mr. John A. Simms, the secretary of the church, or to me, Rev. Wm. H. Brooks, the pastor, George T. Watkins, 1716 5th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

THE AGE AND ITS SINS.

The ability of men to subdue themselves and become submissive to the laws of reason and righteousness may well be questioned and the philosophy of what is considered the liberal side of religion argued in favor of the side of the criminals of our times. Did heathen ever act more unnaturally? Did misguided freedom ever disport itself more freely on the ruin of moral characters, or morality ever make a wreck as in these times? The great cities of our own country and others are scarcely under a respectable moral control, which is equivalent to saying that the average individual stability is very low. Many have to be shade of honest, bestiality, homicide or diabolism ever practiced that has not its counterpart right in the very heart of our modern civilization. In fact, our civilization is made to bow down its own borrers and compromise its moral demands to its moral state, lower its religion to its condition and measure duty by passion. It is this tendency that forces us to the conclusion that liberal movements. It is what makes them sneer at holiness and ridicule the idea of a personal Divinity. "Thou thoughtest that I was altogether such a one as thyself," was charged against the Divine Majesty; and it may well be applied still.

The horrors of the city of London, exposed by the Pall Mall Gazette, have been spread to all the world. They are covered, long ago, in our form or another. We lift our hands in holy horror, not because the sins exist, but because the Pall Mall has aggregated them and lifted the matter up before the world in mass form. The unnatural, unchristian and shameful license given to shame by nonciplinaites to our own country and elsewhere is the seed for such a harvest. When license shall have made a full garnering of her crop it is a serious question whether universal degeneracy will mark what ought to be the greatest nation in the world and failure, the greatest effort of the race at self-government.

If England is morally honey-combed by vice from head to foot, as would seem from the Pall Mall's disclosures, and America is as unbelievably worse than the two great English speaking nations must reform very rapidly or perish. We say rapidly, because so deep seated and so generally diffused vices baffled by generations and by centuries into the very texture of universal life and action cannot be eradicated by any gentle and slow processes. The acute and quick methods of the gospel must be applied. "Now is the axe laid to the root of the trees" must be the battle cry. Even then it is a serious question whether our higher forms of civilization will be able to resist the encroachments and undermining of those various powers, whether the nerve and moral sensitivity, the amount of testimony and inclination will be found requisite to such an accomplishment.

Avarice, as well as passion, must be made chargeable with much of this vice. The contracting forces of capital, the awful powers of wealth, are responsible for a very large part of our moral decay. Our modern corporate powers, which aggregate our wealth in the coffers of the few, are against the moral development of the masses. It is not so much the love of money as the necessity of existence that drives the poor of low-to-demand of a hundred other cities to carry on their nefarious traffic in human souls, a slavery as much more cruel than that of physical slavery as the soul is superior to the body.

Will our pastors who are not supplying the RECORDER to their people please do so by sending for a package to be sent weekly? If it is too much trouble for you, encourage the intelligent man or boy, or, what is quite as good, a lady whom you could recommend. Many of those who are now taking as agents for the RECORDER, but one lake hold of this. Let us hear from our workers. Send on your orders. Sell the paper for the cash and send at three cents. To the Ministers and Members of the A. M. E. Church:

The last General Conference increased the obligations of our office and reduced the income. Consequently we are in quite a fix as to ways to carry on the work of the Church. I appeal to the ministers to send me the money they have in hand, or as much as is honous on hand, raise a collection of Dollar Money and send me immediately that I may meet the demands of our growing Church, and supply the wants of the work. Now also a despondent on it for their bread and meat. "Do the best you can."

I am yours for God and the race,

H. M. TURNER,
Financial Secretary.

AN APPEAL.

FOR THE METROPOLITAN CHURCH, WASHINGTON.

It is absolutely indispensable that we raise and pay the sum of one thousand dollars by August 10th, 1885. Also the sum of one hundred and fifty dollars on the first Monday after the first Sabbath in July next for worship in the basement, or about the tenth of September next, which five hundred dollars are more for incidental purposes. Thus you are aware, will require a most determined effort and we appeal to you the assistance that may be in the power of the pastor and people. Therefore, I make an appeal to the pastors of all of our churches throughout the land to make special collection to be lifted before the time herein specified. I also earnestly appeal to the members of our churches generally, to contribute on the said occasion, even if it be ten cents, more or less, the amount thus collected to be forwarded immediately after to Rev. A. H. Newton, 221 Cherry Street, Camden, N. J.

Yours in Christ,

WM D JOHNSON,
Secretary of Education.

AGENTS WANTED.

CONNECTIONAL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.

ATLANTA, GA., April 4, 1885.

Ministers A. M. E. Church:

The General Conference of 1880, as you are aware, established a Connectional Literary, Historic and Educational Association, and the General Conference of 1884 affirmed the same. But from 1880 to 1884, we could never get the constitution and by-laws properly before the connection, as they were ratified too intermittingly to get into the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. The constitution and by-laws, however, were amended from time to time by the Bishops' Council, but never perfected and properly presented to the people till at their last regular session, at which time they were rigidly overhauled and put in a practical form and laid in the Annual Budget, edited by Rev. Dr. Arnett. Since their publication I have patiently waited for the Budget to get around to all the annual conferences, so the ministers, at least, could procure them, and thus have both the connectional constitution, the annual conference constitution and the church constitution—the three with the by-laws. I think I have waited long enough, as some of the Bishops have been calling upon me months ago to send them the articles, but I have held back thus long for the reasons above stated. Let the ministers turn to page 263 of the Budget for 1884, and they will find all necessary information and will understand their duties, &c. The subjects for the present year, upon which every minister in the annual conferences will write an essay—I mean any one a member may select, will be as follows:

1. What ought to be the home of the christian minister? By Bishop Payne.
2. What constitutes the accomplished christian minister? By Bishop Payne.
3. The utility of biographical studies. By Bishop Payne.
4. What are the evidences that the world is improving morally? By Bishop Payne.
5. Is there any conflict between natural revelation? If so, in what?
6. Who is entitled to the fatherhood of the reformation, John Wickliffe or Martin Luther?

The ministers will see by the connectional constitution, as published in Budget, that they have the right to select any one of these subjects that they will think they are more at ease so upon the same for their annual conference association. They will also see the prize essay arrangements, etc. Presiding elders will see their duties also. I have been thus plain in this communication so that the most illiterate can understand it. Let us now begin to work in earnest, as you will hear from me often upon this subject.

H. M. TURNER,
President.

But I say that it is impossible that all this vaunted progress may usher in a period of unbelief and wickedness of devilish malignity."

BALDNESS.

If you are troubled with a diseased scalp, if your hair is falling out, if it is weak and thin, or if you have become bald, your hair may be restored to its original healthful condition and color by the use of Hall's Hair Renewer. This efficient remedy combines the most desirable qualities of the best preparations for the hair, without the use of any objectionable ingredient. Mrs. Humberty, 314 Franklin ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., after a severe attack of erysipelas in the head, lost her hair so rapidly that she soon became quite bald. One bottle of Hall's Hair Renewer produced a new growth, as soft, brown, and thick, as in youth.

GRAY HAIRS

are honorable, when they are associated with advanced age, but to be prematurely gray is unpleasant, to say the least. If you cannot restore your youth, you may, at least, stain the appearance of it by the use of Hall's Hair Renewer. Randolph W. Farley, Nashua, N. H., quite a young man, whose hair had become gray, like that of a very aged person, applied Hall's Hair Renewer, and now his locks are a beautiful brown, as in youth. He says: "The effects, in my case, from the use of Hall's Hair Renewer are truly marvelous." Mrs. E. Elliott, Glenville, W. Va., says: "One bottle of Hall's Hair Renewer restored my hair to its youthful color."

HALL'S VEGETABLE SICILIAN Hair Renewer

is not a dye, nor does it contain any coloring matter whatever. It restores the hair to its original color by making the scalp to which it is applied healthy and vigorous, an efficient remedy in cases of scalp disease. Walter Burnham, M.D., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Having, by accident, seen Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Renewer used for restoring the hair, where the original roots were entirely destroyed, I found that not only was the hair restored to its natural beauty, but also the disease was completely cured. I have since recommended the Renewer, frequently, in similar cases, and always with the same success."

The beauty and vigor of the hair is easily maintained by the use of Hall's Hair Renewer. Mrs. Jane H. Scott, Bethlehem, N. H., writes: "The Renewer will certainly restore gray hair to its original color. I have used it two years, and it has given perfect satisfaction. It keeps my hair in splendid condition." Mrs. E. M. Hutchinson, Humboldt, Kansas, writes: "I have used Hall's Hair Renewer for years. It keeps the hair soft, wavy, healthy, the hair dark and glossy, and produces a new and vigorous growth."

ECZEMA!

My wife has been effectually afflicted with Eczema or Salt Rheum from infancy. We tried every known remedy and physician in vain, and despaired of ever finding a perfect or even harmless remedy, sometimes followed by an intermittent fever, that we did not consider a burden to her. Finally I determined to try S. S. S. and commenced its use about the first of last March. Before she had taken one bottle the disease commenced to subside and scale off, leaving a smooth, healthy skin, and she has not had the least return of the disease since. She is now taking the second bottle, and is entirely well. She is now a healthy woman from the weight of 90 to 120 pounds. No wonder she deems every bottle of S. S. S. worth a thousand times its weight in gold.

CAMP-MEETING PRELIMINARIES.

A beautiful grove, a sale of indulgences to visitors for Sabbath, selling peanuts and tobacco, flashing band-bills, the names of several preachers who are winning cards, singers who can please and an urgent demand that everyone abandon the church-concerns to the sacred worship and rest to the woods to help the church make money for itself. O, sometimes there is added, in solemn expressions, "and we hope to do some good, too."

THE INNOCENTS.

No close observer wonders that death marks so large a part of the human family in babyhood. Ignorance of the laws of physiology and mind has close connection with all the ills to which mankind are liable, but especially so with those of infancy. If nature had given the child its specific food without the intense cravings that it possesses for everything; if its reason were commensurate with its will it would be le less security. So if parents had so much nerve and muscular power as they sometimes have, there would be not nearly so many infant deaths. Too great a number of little children fall by reason of their mothers' weariness. But a far greater number than all that die from the same cause suffer, die from the mothers' persistent, unreasonable inclination to adorn the bodies of their innocents with attractions. Little care is had to health, but much to fashion. The short dress, the low neck, the thick dress or the thin dress must go no where mother wants it on, whether or not it is best for the child's condition.

To be sure, poverty is the occasion of no little of this cradle sufferings. The cold seasons are the time that get in the best work on this score, when proper clothing cannot be had. Added to these is the carelessness of those who take small children out in carriages on the streets, where, lying on their backs, their little faces often lie exposed to the sun or the damp air for hours. Such the foundation of disease is laid. Much of the out-door advantages with the infants are supposed to have are really out-door disadvantages.

THE UNION.

Last week we published Bishop Hoss's union remarks to the California Conference. Our readers must pass upon them as they will be prompted by reason and charity. We have never felt that there was need for the slightest quarrel on the topics referred to by the Bishop. It amounts to very little for two boys to stand on a common level before one, each declaring himself the taller. Can't the observers see? No, we have no quarrel on this topic. At least, we should not have; if we would have the respect of the world we must not have. Should anyone succeed in showing that the A. M. E. Church is the lesser, what effect would that have upon Christian union? Should he prove that the A. M. E. Church is the lesser, would that prevent union? It is very evident, however, that the best union for the two bodies must grow out of a mutual desire for the union, and mutual determination to effect the union.

As we remarked some months ago, if these mutual feelings do not extend to every nearly every member in the two communities, the mutual union will of prove a practical illusion, for any considerable segment of non-conformists on both sides will rally around the two old names, traditions and history and we shall have of the two churches three instead of one. We are not prepared for union. We need a real good, hearty, mellowing reveral of true holiness and practical piety throughout our life first. It is Christian union that we should have, if are, not physical union merely.

To unite on such terms as the People's Advocate says were adopted by the committee, would be unphilosophic, destructive of our very geniuses and a foundation for the most complicated and shallow claims to the Episcopal character. For while Episcopal Methodists, as a rule, claim that their orders in the ministry, they in all cases, except, perhaps, the A. M. E. Zion Church, practice three ordinations. This may be considered somewhat inconsistent, but it is a common element of Episcopal Methodism. The Methodist that does not obtain its Bishops would hardly claim to be Episcopal; hot especially would this unordained Bishop be incompetent to ordain other Bishops, if not even elders.

If the union is to be formed on a platform including such a plank the joint General Conference should at once agree to drop the Episcopacy and assume the superintendency. Perhaps this is intended, though, according to the Advocate, the Episcopal character is to be claimed; of course, not maintained. But this does not appear in the proposed title, "The First United Methodist Church of America," for herein nothing designates the Episcopal character. We sincerely trust the Advocate's correspondence is mistaken, or has failed to secure the final action of the committee before going to press.

It will be absolutely useless to waste words, time or money on a union formed on such plans. It would be wrong to do so. All there would be at least two hundred thousand members in the two churches who would not accept, hence it would be dimsion. The number refusing to adopt the proposed name would be very great. The name would be neither true nor convenient, philosophic nor attractive. The fact is it can never be adopted. Whatever concessions are made on these names, the 1), the Episcopal in name and fact; 2), the exercise of the ordained Episcopal office in the setting apart of elders and deacons, and, 3, a hearty co-operation with the whole episcopacy in the consecration of bishops, together with the titles Bethel and Zion ought not to be a serious stumbling stone. Distinctiveness, expressiveness, brevity and, perhaps, euphony, should be considered in choosing denominational titles. If we fail to agree upon a name that does not eliminate "Episcopal" we are not likely to agree at all. We can afford to waive every other appellative hereof which the name we must continue the office.

THE IOWA CONFERENCE sat in Chicago yesterday, Bishop Brown presiding. We have the conferences mixed this month. This conference is a part of the old Illonis Coeference and is composed of some of the very best of the old conferences: C. S. Smith, G. W. Shaffer, Elder Davis, J. W. Malone, I. W. Lawe, C. S. Jacobs and others. In the absence of Rev. Mr. Hoge one of the most promising, vigorous and effective members. Dr. Smith goes to the conference not only burdened with the duties of his important office, but by the severest form of hearing, the loss of his beloved wife. Only a few years ago the Iowa, the Illinois and Indiana Coeferences were one, the Indiana; now, each is a respectable conference, and still the Methodists are not satisfied. Soon a respectable conference, and still the Methodists are not satisfied. Soon a Malone the Iowa will soon have to set up a child. God bless the Bishop and conference.

THE NEW METHODS adopted by the Business Manager should give success to our Publishing House. Those who have not heartily associated with him are thoroughly impressed with his devotion to his business and comprehension of its wants and its possibilities. If he can succeed in impressing others with an account of the people and Protest ant Missions among them as Missionary Catechists, General Articles; Letters from Missionaries, etc. A very large Sunday-school in the Gospel in All Lands is one dollar a year to Methodist preachers. Any one who will organize a Sunday schools that the Little Missionary and the Missionary World. Specimen copies will be sent free. Address the Gospel in All Lands, 805 Broadway, New York.

"How We are Governed." By Anna Laurens Dawes. Boston: D. Lothrop & Co. 12mo. pp. 250. This book does not deal oracularly with governmental matters, but endeavors to speak from the standpoint of a statesman. It simply endeavors to explain, in the briefest and most comprehensive manner, the form of United States, and the methods of government by which it is governed and in accordance with it. The work is prefaced by "The Citizen's Creed," and a Glossary of Political Terms discussed in a suggestive and critical way. In Brief Space are some humorous verses by Mrs. Grace Hazard Conkling, Mrs. Vance Cheney, and others, and some choice selections among the Brutes, by C. B. Smith.

WASHINGTON CORRESPONDENCE.

BY EVERETT.

"God's ways seem dark, but soon or late
They touch the shining hills of day,
The evil cannot brook delay,
The good can well afford to wait."

Wait—the most difficult of Christian duties—the duty we are least with it so many moments of anxiety. To the waiting soul how joyous the hour when all waiting is over. We have waited, often, our patience has been tried and tested but with the sound of the hammer and trowel, the carrying of the bod, our hope is revived and more zealously than ever we return to our work. Soon we will be in the basement of the Metropolitan Church. Joy unspeakable! Even the little ones of the primary department join in the glad song and add their mite to the completion of the edifice. If we were Shakespeare or Bunyan we would have a feast in honor of Pandora for closing the jar before Hope escaped. As it is we deal with the reality and leave it all with God, offering him ourselves.

The excursion to Cape May and Atlantic City was well attended. Hundreds were turned away, as the number was limited. The trip was so fatiguing that we have scarcely been able to learn of the real enjoyment.

Democratic negroes are "bobbing up serenely" all about us. They are keeping abreast with the popular (?) idea—fishing for place. The administration is teaching lessons on waiting. Those who were on the fence have left it, and resting place only on the shining side. Others are playing the Independent racket. Men are as a general thing many sacrifice their principles of right, their manhood, for a salary.

The building Association is a new movement by the prominent colored men of the District. We think it the best benevolent men who wish to help their race would make their efforts more successful if they would be willing to insist. It is like drawing water from the sea, a very unprofitable service. In any laudable enterprise. If these men would be willing to invest their money in a stock of dry goods, in a prominent business part of the city—either F Street, Pennsylvania avenue or Seventh street—then let them employ colored men, benefitting their people tenfold more than they ever can through the medium of a building association. Memories of the Freedmen's Saving Bank have not left us yet; we would prefer putting our money in a store for ten yards of calico to "shares" in a building association.

The Mexican journalists who visited us last week have returned to their home more than pleased with the city and the people.

Ignition on every hand. The weather has been so excessively warm that folks able to evacuate have done so, and those are spending their leisure hours on the picnic grounds. The annual excursion of the Sentinel Democrats in the Steketee, Wm. Curley, with an immense crowd. A New England Colony in New York," A. A. Hayes, with seven illustrations. "The Wild Rose," a poem; Eliza Scudder; "A Love Song," a poem; Celia Thaxter; "Life in the Seven Days' Battles," and another chapter from the "Diary of a Refugee," both being illustrated. In "Topics of the Time" are editorials on "The Merit System," "Civil Service Version," and "The Christian Statesman." In Open Letters, "What Ought to Be Done with Our Ex-Presidents?" AN APPEAL.

To the Ministers, Members and Friends of the Second District of Education of the A. M. E. Church, including the following Conferences, viz: Columbia, South Carolina, Georgia, North Georgia, Macon, North Carolina and Virginia Conferences.

Dear Brethren:—The third Sunday in September next is our Redowment Day, the best day's work of the last General Conference. I take opportunity by the forelock. If I have had any success in working for the Church, that has been my plan all through my ministerial career (I mean start in time). Never let time pass without using it to the best advantage. Again, let us have an object in view, say a dozen cents a member and dollars for the Second District for educational work. We can raise the money. If ministers, members and friends do their duty. Dr. W. D. Johnson is working for the whole church; let our district show him we are in sympathy with him in his great labor of love for education. I ask for a large number of dollars. God will help us if we only do our parts.

I am your obedient servant,
W. J. GAINES, Secretary,
314 Houstos St., Atlanta, Ga.

COME, COME AND HELP!

To the Bishops, Ministers, Members and Friends of the A. M. E. Church:—The pastor and trustees of the Metropolitan Church, Washington, D. C., have recently sold their building, and by the last of August they expect the basement will be ready for dedication. I want to raise five hundred dollars that time to help them, and have adopted this simple mode to raise it. I ask every Bishop, member and friend throughout the land to send the wealth of our connection to send me the sum of ten cents by the last of August, and the name of the person.

Yours, &c.,
J. C. ERNST, 431 Pine street.

TO the Ministers and Members of the A. M. E. Church:

The last General Conference increased the obligations of our office and consequently our responsibilities. Consequently we are in quick need of money to carry on the work of the Church. We appeal to you, and send you the money they have in hand, and if they have collections to make, they can send it to me. Money and need me immediately! that I may meet the demands of our growing Church, and supply the wants of those who are dependent on us for their bread and meat. "Do the best you can."

I am yours for God and the race,
BENJAMIN W. ARNETT,
Financial Secretary.

AN APPEAL.

FOR THE METROPOLITAN CHURCH, WASHINGTON.

It is absolutely indispensable that we raise at once and pay the sum of one thousand dollars by August 10th, 1885. Also twenty-five hundred and forty-eight dollars on the first Monday after the first Sabbath that we worship in the basement above the tenth of September next, with five hundred dollars or more for incidental. The pastor, Bishop Siddons and the father of William Colyens were buried there.

A sensation in Argyle, Ill., is the elopement of a fourteen-year-old miss of that place and a man sixty years old, who was formerly employed by the girl's father as superintendent of his farm.

The drownings in the different sections of the country, especially in New England, within the past few days have been remarkably numerous, evidently due to the sapiring youth for a swim.

THE WILBERFORCE APPEAL.

The authorities at Wilberforce University are making a desperate struggle to rid themselves of an indebtedness of $3,000. Subscription books are in the hands of almost, trustees and friends. The object is noble, deserving of sympathize. The basis of the obligation is grand, the education of a race. The end is glorious, the correction of the ills in humanity, leading them to God. With such a noble purpose receiving one of these books with the solemn, manly and exceedingly vigorous appeal of the President don't you? It is an emergency. Bury your prejudices, awake from your ease. Search your own wrongs, correct the slights, silence your grumblings and in the name of all that underlies the marvelous success of Wilberforce University thus far, in the hope of all that may be result from Wilberforce in the future, rush to the rescue of your own cause and the succor of your own enterprise. We join in this appeal instinctively, entirely unsolicited or advised. We know what the appeal means and feel that we will be able to say a word to aid of the noble men and women who made Wilberforce University attractive and successful. For twenty years we have been very intimately associated with that institution, hence know its internal life; yet having traveled extensively, we know the prejudice against it. We pray everybody to think out of the good his dollars may do, and cheerfully send promptly. We will save the ship, President Mitchell and his brave crew. Launch out ere they drown. Should the old ship go down, as lightly as the cuckoo-bird, it would be, in view of one of the greatest loss the Church could suffer. Stick to the ship! Save the ship!

THE B. M. E. AND A. M. E. UNION.

The New York Freeman of August 1, published a letter addressed to Bishop Payne by Noah Loggy, Alfred Allen, Walter Perry, J. J. Thompson, P. G. Jones, John Hall, Charles Griffin, Samuel Chase, Littleton Johnson, John Venerable, citizens and members of the B. M. E. Church, at Chatham, intimating that Bishop Disney has attempted to sell them. The article contains serious reflections upon "some Bishops and ministers of the A. M. E. Church." One of the chief charges, at least, cannot be supported by evidence, but, on the contrary, has all the logic of reason and the record of the persons charged, against it, besides much direct evidence in abundance to the precontra. The Chatham letter by no means proves that the late B. M. E. Church is opposed to the "alleged organic union," though such may be the fact in the case. The Chatham officials may be spokesmen for the Ontario conference, but it is hardly fair to infer that they are spokesmen for the entire communion in the "so-called Tenth Episcopal District." What say the New South, Alabama and Demarara conferences? If they agree with the Chatham brethren, we, as well as the B. M. E.'s, are sold. There are methods by which we may learn whether, as a whole or a majority, the former B. M. E. Church is opposed to organic union; whether it was led as a lamb to the slaughter, blindfolded, whether the question of union was submitted to its conferences and societies at all; whether these officers, who are pleased to publish such sweeping, indirect charges against new whose integrity has been tried often as by fire, know what they are saying. There can nearly be a serious question respecting the injudiciousness manifested on the part of the A. M. E. Church in urging suit against those unwilling to enter the union for the control of them and their property, if it have so acted.

It is also pertinent to inquire whether all but two of the Ontario churches have from the first and all the while repudiated the union. Did Bishop Disney and Bishop Derbyshire unwittingly associate with the white, which shows the color prejudice of many who teach colored men.

MONDAY, August 3rd, a terrible cyclone swept over a narrow tract of country in the States of Delaware, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, doing great damage to both property and life. The loss in property will probably reach nearly a million dollars, and the loss of life about twenty persons, besides several wounded. The greatest damage on water was done to the Major Reybold, a steamboat that has plied between Salem, N. J., and Philadelphia, for more than twenty-five years. Her damage will probably reach $15,000. On land, Camden and the north-eastern section of Philadelphia received the stroke. At both of these places great trees were torn up by the roots, and fell in all directions, prominently across the streets and against buildings. Many houses were entirely unroofed; some had their fronts entirely blown out.

The movement of the cyclone seems to have been peculiar; in one instance it passed over an old flag at half-mast from a pole on the top of a building without any effect, the next instant it flashed madly down upon an adjoining house, stripping its tin roof off, carrying it away. So again it passed over many small boats and a boat-house, but capsized two other boats just beyond. The track of its mad race through the cities mentioned is one of wild confusion; tin roofs hang in the brushes or trees, wrapped around telegraph poles, or scattered along the streets. Churches and large factories are entirely unroofed; yet, here as elsewhere, there seemed to be partiality; one church with a towering steeple remained almost untouched, while just beyond, another without the pretentious steeple was demolished. Life is of value and fearfully greatly damaged.

THE DISCUSSION of the A. M. E. and B. M. E. unions will sharpen one minds relative to the proposed A. M. E. and A. M. E. Z. union. The day these two bodies unite on the sequiescence of but two-thirds of their respective memberships, they themselves have become the two bodies, for the one-third making at least two hundred thousand, divided under the respective old seat names, will hold one or more Bishops on either side and go forward under their present titles. So we shall have of the two, three instead of one. Ninety-five per cent. is the very lowest that one is trusted. That would leave thirty thousand to disturb the peace. In most en masse, and their jubilee was heard through Egerton, and the valleys of the sea. The West Indies felt the thrill of that new energy which the union had produced, and in several places its people rallied around the standard of "One Church, One Union." Throughout the Church at large it proved a day of peace, of stronger faith and brighter hope.

NECESSARY TO REAL SUCCESS AS GOSPEL MINISTERS.

BY REV. P. M. LEWIS.

The demands for a proficient ministry in the A. M. E. Church of to-day are very different in their nature and character and further reaching in their purpose and real design than they were fifty years ago. Then, it could not be said with full force of importance that our ministre and Church were such as to require such care for our work of improvement, thus the mere exhibition of true piety and the religion of our Lord Jesus, with a few texts thrown on their requirement made of us than the mere disposition to look forward and be ready and willing to assume other and more numerous responsibilities than our position as citizens of the United States would require and justify us in doing or not doing. Even when were given in January 1, 1863, when Mr. Lincoln issued the Emancipation Proclamation. Thus it became doubly necessary for us as ministers to be truly and fully equipped for the great work that we might be good and forcible examples of the good effects of the religion of our blessed Redeemer.

Without these qualifications it is impossible for any Christian ministry and its churches to make true progress; and where such qualifications cannot be found in the front ranks alongside the intelligent Christian church organizations of the world it will soon be found that depraved humanity and Christianizing influences will be the sure consummation of these glorious results.

JUSTIFICATION.

The district conference of the second presiding elder district of the Cincinnati Annual Conference convened in Bethel A. M. E. Church, Cincinnati, on Monday A.M. Business of the day began in due form. All the members seemed to be present with a desire to do the best work in the future than in the past. At night the public services opened with Rev. Bedford Green, Presiding Elder of the Xenia district, in the chair. Elder T. Gilmore, of the Fayetteville station, announced for his text Romans, 5, 1. The sermon was based upon justification. The text was handled in a masterly manner. It said that justification is one of the cardinal points of Christianity and one of the revealed doctrines. Reason could not establish such an important discovery. Reason could not establish it in the same manner in which the sinner is to be received to his divine favor. Justification removes a judicial declation or acquittal, which is taken from a Greek term and means "to set right." Justification is to declare a person righteous according to the standard of God's law. Justification does not make men holy, but declares them holy. It is according to the 39th Article of Religion in the Book of Discipline that a man is accounted righteous before God only for the merit of Christ Jesus our Lord, by faith and not for his own works—Homily. Justification is not an act of human invention but of God's own free will and grace.—Eph. 2; 8, 9.

The term, "merit of Christ," means the valuation of all Christ's offerings and sufferings in behalf of the world, and is the only true condition of justification."—Acts 16, 31. A man cannot have actual sins imputed to him without having sinned; neither can he have righteousness imputed to him without having believed. No man can be justified without faith. When faith in Christ is considered, then God, for Christ's sake, takes away sin. Justification also is a change of relation to the government of God, and regeneration is a change of character. In the first case sin is pardoned, and in the second, the moral nature is worked by the renewing of the Holy Ghost. It is a work done for the sinner and the work done in him.

ADDRESS OF THE BOARD OF BISHOPS IN BEHALF OF THE PUBLICATION DEPARTMENT.

To the Ministers and Members of the A. M. E. Church. Greeting:

DEAR BRETHREN—During our Annual Conference visits in California, Ohio, all the heads of the departments in our Church work were present. A plan was submitted for the effectual relief and better support of our Book Concern, which we earnestly endorse and recommend you for your co-operation to the end that it may be successfully carried out.

First, that it is proposed to hold a grand Bazaar in one of our central Southern cities and in Philadelphia, the first to be in February, '86, and that of Philadelphia in May. This gives us ample time to secure the co-operation of the ministers and Christian laymen, securing this special effort in each district, and each of the conferences of our whole connection will soon be published in circular form by Bishop Turner and the Business Manager, who have been appointed managers of the two purposes.

Secondly, We call on all of you who are in debt to the Concern for books or papers to settle at once, to the end that the Concern may live. Our Manager is getting forth efforts not only to keep the Concern alive, but to pay its burdensome debts. He will not be an unfeeling collector of the part of ministers to pay all dues to the Concern.

Thirdly, we endorse the Manager's plan for having a book committee appointed in each conference, who shall be jointly responsible to the Manager and Agents for all books, and to have charge of all matters pertaining to the Concern. Following this plan we shall have the sales of said committee will be commonicated to the conference by the Manager, by paper which will be read by the secretary, and reports.

Finally, we call on all to rally to the support of the Christian Recorder, our sole Church organ. We should have by all means at least ten thousand subscribers, and we can easily secure them.

The Manager has adopted a plan of paying by installment, which puts the paper within the reach of all the poorest of our people. Renew your subscriptions, pay up your dues for sales and successes, and do it for the same. In so doing God will bless you, dear brethren, and our publishing interests will be made glorious.

All of which is subscribed by your Chief Fasters,

D. A. PAYNE,
A. W. WAYMAN,
JAMES F. CAMPBELL,
M. M. D. WARD,
JOHN M. BROWN,
H. M. TURNER,
H. H. CAIN,
R. R. DISNEY.

A GRAND MOVEMENT FOR LIQUIDATION OF THE DEBTS OF THE BOOK CONCERN!

A GRAND BAZAAR TO BE HELD IN TWO OR MORE SECTIONS OF THE CHURCH IN 1886.

MANAGER'S CIRCULAR.

"God our Father; Christ our Redeemer; Man our Brother."

To the Ministers, Friends and Supporters of the A. M. E. Church:

At the Annual Council of our Bishops, held in Atlanta, Ga., June 24th last, it was agreed to hold a Bazaar, or series of Bazaars, in as many different districts of the Church as might be desirable, in the springtime of next year, for the special benefit and relief of the Book Concern.

Our object is to pay off, if possible, its embarrassing debts and put it in condition to do a real work for the Church and for the race. You all know that its indebtedness has paralyzed its work for years.

The following organization was adopted and we were instructed to publish the same, and call upon the conference, to furnish them to all parties connected, and to push the enterprise to a successful issue.

DANIEL A. PAYNE,
JAMES A. SHORTER.

To the Presiding Elders and Pastors of the First Episcopal Diocese.

Dear Brethren and Friends:—The change made in the annual conferences of the Bishops, and the action of the number of brethren to preside over others, in conformity to the laws of the A. M. E. Church, has made it necessary, as well as the exigencies of numbers, to cancel former appointments of presiding elders and people, to make it as light as possible, and to make it easy for presiding elders pastors. So there will be only the necessary changes. We will edeutals in holding quarterly meetings, and aiding in the good of the church. It is expected that the pastors will be at the presiding elders' and no charge. The presiding elder will be expected to be present to preside at the quarterly meetings of the pastors, and to see that the pastors are present at the Dollar Money, money for missions, education, and Sunday school collections. Dr. Bishop Turner's book will be sold at the conferences. Brethren, let us all work together and work to-day so that for several years my back will be turned to this part of the field, I fell to the ground and broke my arm; I was taken up by friends and carried across the river, we met a fine scene. We left one and the other six with a light just above my head, from the midst of which came these words: "If your die as you are you will be lost! lost! lost! Those words the second, lost! seemed to ring in my soul in this field, in the woods, in the stars, everywhere. I was determined to be no more or as the noose coming therefrom seemed to say, "lost! lost!" I remember one night beholding myself in a vision in hell. I was standing on a little platform about a foot square and the platform was supported by a trigger work; there was a large hook and many and others' passes for copies to write by. The hook charcoal and sticks were my copy-books, pens and ink. When the white folks eventually found out this through the treachery of one whom I had called a companion, I was whipped nearly to death again and again. They cut my right hand nearly off, and threatened to cut it off if I ever wrote or spoke again. I kept trying to write. God preserved me. After two years of hard study I could read my Testament and write my name, etc. Brother Bryant, during all these eight years God has been with me as an instrument in saving. Brother Bryant, he was a great drunkard, and he failed in failing. I want to see the gates of it's golden city open and angels—yes, my children too—are calling me. Freed from all love pure, unspoiled from the world; God has a great work for you to do. Tell all my brethren I shall look for them on every side between here and the heavenly port. I am tired now, but Jesus will give me rest, yes, strengthen me.

I read a passage to this saint, and easy and tried to pray, and while I write two weeks I heard that father Jackson had fallen asleep in Jesus. Blessed sleep! If father Jackson could cling on to Jesus in the hour of death, how shall I not fight in the valley of death? and condition? If father Jackson could pray, I can read and write under such trying circumstances and with such means as he had, that he might be better able to preach the unsearchable riches of the gospel of Christ, will I not endeavor the Lord's blessed? Yes, I will. A grand opportunities which are always in the front ranks alongside the intelligent Christian church organizations of the world is also found in the midst of depraved humanity and Christianizing influences will be the sure consummation of these glorious results.

The district conference of the second presiding elder district of the Cincinnati Annual Conference convened in Bethel A. M. E. Church, Cincinnati, on Monday A.M. Business of the day began in due form. All the members seemed to be present with a desire to do the best work in the future than in the past. At night the public services opened with Rev. Bedford Green, Presiding Elder of the Xenia district, in the chair. Elder T. Gilmore, of the Fayetteville station, announced for his text Romans, 5, 1. The sermon was based upon justification. The text was handled in a masterly manner. It said that justification is one of the cardinal points of Christianity and one of the revealed doctrines. Reason could not establish such an important discovery. Reason could not establish it in the same manner in which the sinner is to be received to his divine favor. Justification removes a judicial declation or acquittal, which is taken from a Greek term and means "to set right." Justification is to declare a person righteous according to the standard of God's law. Justification does not make men holy, but declares them holy. It is according to the 39th Article of Religion in the Book of Discipline that a man is accounted righteous before God only for the merit of Christ Jesus our Lord, by faith and not for his own works—Homily. Justification is not an act of human invention but of God's own free will and grace.—Eph. 2; 8, 9.

The term, "merit of Christ," means the valuation of all Christ's offerings and sufferings in behalf of the world, and is the only true condition of justification."—Acts 16, 31. A man cannot have actual sins imputed to him without having sinned; neither can he have righteousness imputed to him without having believed. No man can be justified without faith. When faith in Christ is considered, then God, for Christ's sake, takes away sin. Justification also is a

DEATH-BED OF EMANUEL JACKSON.

BY REV. M. HOWARD BRYANT.

While holding our quarterly conference at Greensboro, Ala., the roll was called and all answered to their names except Emanuel Jackson, a local preacher, whose name was also called. On inquiry, I was informed that he was very poor health. I determined to go to see him, though he lived three miles in the country. On the following Monday I started out to Father Jackson's; I found his body propped so in a chair, his head supported by irons behind his back, the head of which he had been pilgrimaging over hills and mountains, and through Bare valleys and wilderness of temptation for sixty years; yea, his mind seemed to have gone over to the goodly land to gather and bring back a few of the grapes of Eschol as an earnest, to the true Israelites, of the prodestines of our promised Canaan.

Sister Jackson, his aged wife, seemed him after several efforts, by telling him that Elder Bryant had called to-day, had come to see him. When his faculties had resumed their activity in the body, he adjusted his spectacles and then reached forth his hand and bade him welcome. After gentle inquiries and answers as to his physical condition, we began to converse upon his spiritual status. As we began to discourse on the precious promises of the Bible, and the love of God, the fullness and satisfactions of religion, his eyes began to sparkle, and as he spoke of the consummation of these glorious results.

A NEW DEPARTURE IN THE RECORDER SALES BUSINESS.

On and after September 1st, all agencies for RECORDER sales will be made sewer and on a different plan, hereinated below. Present agents must settle in full up to the last issue in August, which will be the first issue in September. Rev. J. C. Embry's rules will be as follows: 1st. On applointing an agent he or she must sign a written contract with him to sell and return one-half of the sales money to us monthly and to make a full settlement of all claims at the end of every three months. 2nd. All papers unsold to be carefully preserved and reported when our settlement and held subject to our orders. They must be counted, bound and returned to us when required. 3rd. Or, they can take subscriptions on our installment plan, which will allow a commission of every two months, and sending us 20 cents.

These rules will be strictly applied to all agents, without any partiality. We are compelled to do this for the protection of the Department against sewers loss. Less than about two hundred and sixty thousand copies annually. Two-fifths, or one hundred and four thousand copies are sold by agents. On this number we lose from $1,200 to $1,500 year. Believing that all our brethren will favor any plan which promises avoidance of this great loss, we have resolved on the above rules. Please read them, note well and prepare to settle at once.

NOTE.—These new agreements will be furnished to agents as soon as they become ar continue agents after September 1st.

A CALL.

To the Bishops of the A. M. E. Church:

—Rev. and Dear Colleagues: The Committee of Arrangements for the General Conference at its last session, held in Baltimore, Md., May 1884, to meet a committee appointed by the General Conference of the A. M. E. Church in Canada, to consider the subject of "Organic Union of the two Connections," met in Toronto, Canada, on the 15th of July, 1885, and agreed upon a platform, which is to be submitted for a joint meeting of the Bishops of both connections and then to the annual conferences, and finally to the General Conference in September next, 1888."

It is compliance with which resolution, we, after due consideration, appoint Wednesday, the 4th of November, 1885, as the time and Asbury Park, Monmouth, N. G., as the place of holding the joint session of the Bishops of the two Connections, at 10 A.m. sharp. We beg that the Bishops present at the conference will give this notice as immediate and wide circulation; also, we beg that all the Bishops present will be requested to seek the Great and Adorable Head of the Church, the Lord Jesus, the Church Triumphant, to be present at the meeting, to bless us by His Spirit, and to be led by His unerring counsel in that, wise, and practicable conclusions concerning the subject of Organic Union to be considered by us.

Your brethren and Brethren, your fellow servants in the Church of the living God,

DANIEL A. PAYNE,
JAMES A. SHORTER.

To the Presiding Elders and Pastors of the First Episcopal Diocese.

Dear Brethren and Friends:—The change made in the annual conferences of the Bishops, and the action of the number of brethren to preside over others, in conformity to the laws of the A. M. E. Church, has made it necessary, as well as the exigencies of numbers, to cancel former appointments of presiding elders and people, to make it as light as possible, and to make it easy for presiding elders pastors. So there will only be necessary changes. We will edeutals in holding quarterly meetings, and aiding in the good of the church. It is expected that the pastors will be at the presiding elders' and no charge. The presiding elder will be expected to be present to preside at the quarterly meetings of the pastors, and to see that the pastors are present at the Dollar Money, money for missions, education, and Sunday school collections. Dr. Bishop Turner's book will be sold at the conferences. Brethren, let us all work together and work to-day so that for several years my back will be turned to this part of the field, I fell to the ground and broke my arm; I was taken up by friends and carried across the river, we met a fine scene. We left one and the other six with a light just above my head, from the midst of which came these words: "If your die as you are you will be lost! lost! lost! Those words the second, lost! seemed to ring in my soul in this field, in the woods, in the stars, everywhere. I was determined to be no more or as the noose coming therefrom seemed to say, "lost! lost!" I remember one night beholding myself in a vision in hell. I was standing on a little platform about a foot square and the platform was supported by a trigger work; there was a large hook and many and others' passes for copies to write by. The hook charcoal and sticks were my copy-books, pens and ink. When the white folks eventually found out this through the treachery of one whom I had called a companion, I was whipped nearly to death again and again. They cut my right hand nearly off, and threatened to cut it off if I ever wrote or spoke again. I kept trying to write. God preserved me. After two years of hard study I could read my Testament and write my name, etc. Brother Bryant, during all these eight years God has been with me as an instrument in saving. Brother Bryant, he was a great drunkard, and he failed in failing. I want to see the gates of it's golden city open and angels—yes, my children too—are calling me. Freed from all love pure, unspoiled from the world; God has a great work for you to do. Tell all my brethren I shall look for them on every side between here and the heavenly port. I am tired now, but Jesus will give me rest, yes, strengthen me.

I read a passage to this saint, and easy and tried to pray, and while I write two weeks I heard that father Jackson had fallen asleep in Jesus. Blessed sleep! If father Jackson could cling on to Jesus in the hour of death, how shall I not fight in the valley of death? and condition? If father Jackson could pray, I can read and write under such trying circumstances and with such means as he had, that he might be better able to preach the unsearchable riches of the gospel of Christ, will I not endeavor the Lord's blessed? Yes, I will. A grand opportunities which are always in the front ranks alongside the intelligent Christian church organizations of the world is also found in the midst of depraved humanity and Christianizing influences will be the sure consummation of these glorious results.

To the Presiding Elders, Pastors, Officers and Members of the A. M. E. Church and the Friends of Zion, Greetings:

DEAR BROTHERS AND SISTERS—The next Endowment Day will occur September 25th, 1885, being the third Sunday in the month. This day was set apart by the last General Conference to be observed in every church and Sabbath school throughout the connection.

AN APPEAL.

To the Ministers, Members and Friends of the Second District of Education of the A. M. E. Church, including the following Conferences, viz: Columbia, South Carolina, Georgia, North Georgia, Macon, North Carolina and Virginia Conferences.

Dear Brethren:—The third Sunday in September next is our Endowment Day, the best day's work of the last General Conference. I take a personal delight in the selection. If I have had any success in working for the Church, that has been my plan all through my ministerial career (I mean start in mine). Never let time pass without using it to the best advantage. Again, let us have an object in view, say about seven hundred dollars for the Second District for educational work. We can raise the money. If ministers, members and friends do their duty. Dr. W. D. Johnson is working for the whole church; let our district show him we are in sympathy with him in his great labor of love for education. I take a large number of dollars. God will help us if we only do our part.

I am your obedient servant,

J. C. GAINES, Secretary,

COME, COME AND HELP!

To the Bishops, Ministers, Members and Friends of the A. M. E. Church:—The pastor and trustees of the Metropolitan Church, Washington, D. I want to raise five hundred dollars by that time for them and have adopted the simple mode to enable me to ask every Bishop, member and friend throughout the length and breadth of our connection to send us the sum of ten cents by the last of August with the name of the person.

AN APPEAL.

FOR THE METROPOLITAN CHURCH, WASHINGTON.

It is absolutely indispensable that we raise and pay the sum of one thousand dollars on or before August 10th, 1885, the twenty-five hundred and forty-eight dollars on the first Monday after the first Sabbath that we worship in the basement, or about the tenth of September next. We are handed debts and more for incidental purposes. This, we are aware, will require a most vigorous effort and we shall require all the assistance that we can get. Every dollar we can raise or render. Therefore, I make an appeal in the pastors of all of our congregations in the country for a special collection to be lifted before the people on the second Sabbath. I also earnestly appeal to the members of our churches generally, to contribute on that occasion, whether it be ten cents, more or less, the amount thus collected to be forwarded immediately to the Rev. John A. Simms, the secretary of the Board, at 1016 10th Street, N. W., or to the pastor, George T. Watkins, 1716 5th Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.

AGENTS WANTED.

Will our pastors who are not supplying the RECORDER to their people, please do so by sending for a package to be sent weekly? If it is too much trouble to you, encourage some young man or boy, or girl, to make quick sales, and by whom you could recommend. Many of those who are now selling as agents would do not forget, we urge you, to observe Redowment Day on the 20th of September, and make it a success worthy of our great connection.

We are not forgetful of the claims of our educational work elsewhere. No department of Christ's house great or small encouragement. Yet wish'en indications that we should have to resort to permanent excises of this our oldest institution, by concentrating upon it during the next week and as will not jeopardize the interests of the work in other parts. Remember that the people are upon Wilberforce as never before. A wise policy on the part of the Church in this matter now or in her history will realize more than our highest expectations, and greatly promote the general cause. To this end we respectfully call your attention to the following: Daniel Alexander Payne, Alexander W. Wayman, J. P. Campbell, J. M. Brown, D. D. Ward, John M. Brown, B. H. Cain, H. M. Turner, R. H. CONNECTIONAL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.

Minutes of the Second Session.

The General Conference of 1880, as soon as a week, established a Connectional Literary, Historic and Educational Association, and the General Conference of 1884 affirmed the same. But from 1880 to 1884, we could never get a quorum together to do the work properly before the connection, as they had no power to compel members to get into the Literary Association and bylaws proper. The constitution and bylaws, however, were adopted from time to time by the Bishops' Council, but never perfected and published to the people, and not until at their last regular session, at Columbia, S. C., were they rightly organized and put in the Annual Budget, edited by Rev. Jacob Arnett. Since their publication I have patiently waited for the Secretary of the Board to call the annual conference, so the ministers, at least, of the connection could see with their bylaws. I think I have waited long enough, and now, as the Board has been calling upon me months ago to call the meeting, but I have held back thus long for the reasons above stated. Let the ministers turn to page 263 of the Budget for 1884, and they will find all necessary information and the constitution and their duties, &c. The subjects for the present year, upon which the members of the annual conferences will write an essay—I mean any one a member may select, will be as follows:

1. What ought to be the home of the Christian pastor? By Bishop Payne.

2. What constitutes the accomplished Christian pastor? By Bishop Payne.

3. The utility of biographical sindies. By Bishop Payne.

4. What are the evidences that the world is improving morally? By Bishop Quinn.

5. Is there any conflict between natural science and revelation? If so, in what?

6. Who is entitled to the fatherhood of the reformation, John Wicklife or Martin Luther?

The ministers will see by the connectional report which is published in Budget, that they have the right to select any one of the above subjects that may suit them, and prepare an essay upon the same for their annual conference sessions. They will also see the prize essay arrangements, etc. The reading circles will see their duties also. I have been thus plain in this communication so as to be the most intelligent with which subject a reader would be interested in the selection of the essay.

When it becomes disordered, stagnant blood accumulates in its venous system, causing it to discharge more or less bile. CHAPTER III.

AT MADAME DE VERNE'S.

In the suburbs of Capitolia quite a number of the representatives of the old regime had established themselves, and this quarter had gradually become the most aristocratic of the capital city. One of the handsomest of the residences was one that had been built by General ——, during the days of the unspeakable mortification of the rest on his agent and the neighborhood, who did not suspect the truth until it was too late, had fallen into the hands of the colored postmaster of the town, Rene DeVerne. It was a splendid mansion, and must have been built by money though those supposed to be acquainted with the facts declared that Verne had bought it for a mere song. The grounds were extensive, considering the location, and were tastefully laid out in most care. Flowers of almost every species, native and exotic, adorned the terrain; fountains in which sported gold fish threw up their sparkling jets in the air; the fragrant magnolia, the stately cedar, the modest arbor-vitæ, the delicate mimosa and acacia, all reached for the sky; the banana shrub and the tree-woven grape-vine, with its clusters of delicious purples, and roses of that exquisite quality for which Capitolia was famous, all combined to make a picture of loveliness and beauty, which, as the eye feasted on it, could not but suggest the idea of a paradise.

Within the lofty and elegant mansion, which was a perfect model of comfort and convenience, the same taste was displayed in the arrangement of the furniture, which was of the most costly and luxurious description. Rich carpets, soft as the velvet moss that grows in the forest, covered the floors; the windows were draped with heavy satin damask curtains, trimmed with rich lace, and looped back with massive cords and tassels of gold; the chairs, sofas and ottomans were upholstered in the same material as the curtains, and were of the most elegant and luxurious description; the pictures on the walls were the productions of the best artists, and the mirrors were of the largest size and purest quality. Everything, in fact, that taste, refinement and wealth, nor was

Will, who had by this time devoured all the items of interest the paper contained, laid it aside and prepared for the battle he knew was at hand. Though quite fond of each other, apparently, he and his aunt almost invariably looked at things from a different standpoint, and, as neither was disposed to yield, their conversations were nearly "contests of words." Madame was as obstinate as she could well be, and Will would not have been a Beall if he was one whit behind her in this respect.

A smile crossed his handsome face as he noted the remark.

"That simply proves that you are fallible from your sex, dear Madeline. I mistake not, I have been trying to convince you of that fact ever since I had the honor of forming your acquaintance."

"Oh, I know that infallibility is characteristic of your sex, only. To be a woman is to be full of whims and errors and temper."

"Bravo! You rise twenty per cent. in my estimation. I did not know that you could be so candid."

"Oh, candor, not infallibility, is an exclusive possession of your sex, of course. You should have known that you know that I do not like your societies, Will? When I hear those girls talking of the Ku Klux and the outrages there, I feel a cold chill stealing over me. I don't see how a man of true refinement can enjoy herself in such a presence or can bear to see a woman engage to get together. It is like colored folks, though, to mingle with Tom, Dick and Harry."

"What a poor opinion you have of your fellows, Madeline," said Will, while Madeline! One would never think, from your words that you form part and parcel of that much abused race."

"Thank heaven, very few drops of that blood flow through my veins, and Madame graced with much complacency on her dainty white hands and finely modeled arms.

"And you, dear Madeline," he said earnestly, "as long as those few drops flow through your veins you will be ever ready to ridicule a fact that too many of our people—I am sorry to acknowledge it—are ashamed of. Just one scintilla of negro blood, be the possessor thereof as white as the driven snow, is sufficient to debar the possessor, as far as public opinion is concerned, from any of the privileges that could be made to see this, instead of holding their heads down in shame, they sought to be acquitted with the Caucasian race, and by their very actions proclaim that they were ashamed of their birthright. There is no middle ground."

"Well, Will, you may be content to die in such association, but I am not. I prefer to live in the society of those with the race—I cannot call it my race. Why, Will, the Africans I met in Indianapolis! I never them too well for that they can not hear to see one another's faces, much less to associate with them. They will throw their caps in the air for the lowest wretch with a white face, and I have seen them so wrought up by a real gentleman or real lady of their own race that they did not know what to do with themselves. Why, Will, you are simply ridiculous! I know them too well for that they can not hear to see one another's faces, much less to associate with them. They will put a stumbling block in your way, and you will always find your progress impeded by

WILLIAM PAUL QUINN COLLEGE.

This institution has made some very earnest endeavors to the past three or four years. It has begun a work similar to that of other institutions of the land, teaching students to be not only self-supporting, but to feel the need of acting in harmony with educators generally, to elevate the mind, correct the morals, and to render more noble Christ. The work of this institution has been conducted for the past two years by President I. N. Burgan, Miss E. A. Gamon, graduates of Wilberforce University, and Miss J. E. Alsop, a graduate of a Pennsylvania normal school. These persons are all good instructors, and have prepared their pupils with great care to continue their course.

The school is under the supervision of the four Texas Conferences, and has for trustees some of the very strongest men in the A. M. E. Church. These four conferences are doubtless able to support their college handsomely. This, however, requires consolidation and effort. Few enterprises are more difficult to set on foot and perpetuate among people lacking education generally than that of ministerial education. President Burgan has spent several days in Philadelphia taking notes, trying to collect books for the college library, and money for the treasury. His preaching in the Philadelphia churches has also been well received. It is understood that Miss Jennie Adams will not be able to return to Waco, owing to personal business matters that require her to remain east. It has been said that Mrs. Anna H. Coleman, who graduated at Wilberforce in 1881, will fill the place vacated by Miss Adams. The latter was very and justly popular at the college. Mrs. Coleman will prove a beautiful adjunct to the teaching force of the institution.

THE "F. U. M. E."

The article herewith published, from the logical pen of Prof. J. T. Green, sets the RECORDER right as to the proposed name of the new church unit about to be formed, but not in respect to claiming and maintaining the Episcopacy. The doctrine of the Methodist Episcopacy, in fact, of Episcopacy as applied to any Methodist church, need not enter into the consideration. The claim to an Episcopacy descended immediately from the apostles, as to the body known, cannot be made by any such church, if by any other, justly. But everyone must know just as well that no church can maintain a consistent Methodist Episcopacy if all its episcopates are not subject to the office. Should all the Bishops in such an Episcopal church, who have been consecrated to their office, die, leaving those only who had been set apart to their offices by election, this latter class would be the representative Episcopacy of the church. Would that be maintaining the Episcopacy? But they must consecrate their successors in order to maintain Episcopacy, history says, for twenty years. It may be said that Bishops Coke and Allen were consecrated to the Episcopal office by the non-consecrated, not even set apart, indeed by non-elected Episcopates. But these were instances in which emergencies had to be met. The cases differ greatly from ours. In each of these instances the proper directing and developing of what promised to be a large body of Christians seemed to depend upon this action. The people were inclined to the Episcopal polity, but no bishop would consecrate a man to exercise the Episcopal functions among them. This in itself rendered it necessary for these to act as they did. There is no reason for the assumption of a dual Episcopacy for the sake of union between these two religious bodies. The Bishops of the A. M. E. Z. Church could be consecrated or the A. M. E. Church could agree that to continue the Episcopacy, special consecration was not necessary, but only conventional, and that in the F. U. M. E. Church the Episcopacy should be perpetuated by election. Of course this, to the yielding side, would be an enormous concession. But no one anticipated the union of the two bodies, differing as the two border considerably in polity and history, without great sacrifice. Is not the union worth, then, more than a name?

A dual Episcopacy would, besides being a plank in the platform of a conflict within the Church, until the time came when the union would be broken in lines corresponding very closely with the lines now existing. How could it prove otherwise? The union should be formed as soon as it can be, but two are not one. Duality in unity would be a very troublesome fact to explain in church polity. Though we have mentioned two things that might be done to obviate this one necessary and undesirable part, our views were expressed in an article written by a well-wisher and published in the RECORDER some weeks ago. Should the elected Bishops agree with those both elected and consecrated, to continue the Episcopacy in an F. U. M. E. Church by consecration, they would place themselves in the only position to consummate this agreement by being themselves consecrated; for if they believe in continuing the office by consecration, they cannot themselves object to receiving consecration. This, of course, could not be approached, much less done, at present; this can or will be a matter for the future to act upon by us! This is about as unapproachable as the other. This goes as evidence of our being unprepared for union.

EDUCATION Day should be thought of by all of us. We know the necessity is great. We cannot fail to see the advantages already gained from the little education acquired by our people. We must learn from the experience of the experience attending the acquisition of education. We cannot fail to see the benefit to the Church from the work done to educate its own teachers and ministers. Wilberforce, Payne, Allen, Paul, Brown, the Jacksonville Normal, the Johnson School, the St. James' Academy and the several others established by our Church are the representation of our earnest endeavors to educate the destitute. The lack of information met on every hand in our Church suggests the necessity of early, prompt and vigorous action. The indebtedness of our schools, aggregating nearly thousand dollars, should receive warning against delay. It suggests that this amount be appropriated this year very closely. These alimony, dragging debts must be diminished. Not our Church wishes to raise twenty thousand dollars it can do so very easily. If every member will pay five or six cents, he shall have a good deal more than twenty thousand dollars.

The whole education our people acquire, the better, regardless of the source whence the school support comes; but the more our Church receives its ministry from schools not controlled by the A. M. E. Church, the worse it is because in characteristic and distinctive qualities. Especially does this apply to cases in which the education comes from schools not Methodist. Calvinism, Arianism and other non-Methodistic modifications in our teachings and worship are the result.

WE HAVE RECEIVED several sermons preached on the life and character of General Grant. At present we cannot publish them. At some future time some of them may appear. We wish our paper were large enough to give every contributor a hearing promptly, but we have more than two hundred unpublished articles on our table. Do you ask, why don't you publish them in order? Some have asked this question, and the RECORDER may have promised to do this a year ago, but experience shows it to be unreasonable and impossible. To go back to those two hundred articles, taking them in order, would be to throw another two hundred articles just as far back and the paper would always be made up of matter from two weeks to two months old. The result is the greater part of those articles can never be published.

THE FOLLOWING TELEGRAM was received from Bishop Shorter Monday morning:

XENIA, O., August 17th, 1885.

Rev. R. H. Lee:—Sherlock's baby died Saturday and Roberta this morning. Funeral Saturday.

JAS. A. SHORTER.

Roberta is the last of the children of the Bishop and his present wife. She was the faithful wife of the Rev. Moses B. Wilson, pastor of the A. M. E. Church at Sabina, Ohio. They have been married for years. The sympathy of many hearts is extended to you in your sorrow, brother. The Bishop's home has been a house of mourning for five years. In the loss of their two daughters how many hopes were blighted and how many bright and early anticipations were buried! Aged friends, it is not long till the burden will be lifted; the cloud will pass and the sunshine of everlasting day will rise to your sorrow.

CORRESPONDENTS will please observe that the matter composing the CHRISTIAN RECORDER goes to press Tuesday afternoon, as a rule. Often a good number of copies are printed Tuesday afternoon each week. Wednesday night the first page of the RECORDER of Thursday a week is set up, and is printed three days later, Saturday day. The second page is set up by Saturday night for the following Thursday. Monday night the entire paper for the week is supposed to be composed.

Brethren will not expect articles to come out any Thursday unless they are in hand by the preceding Monday, and not on the first page unless in our hands by Tuesday, nine days before publishing.

IN OUR NEXT we shall give a good review of Bishop Payne's book on Domestic Training, by Prof. Scarborough. Following this will be a review of Bishop Turner's book by the same worthy pen.

We are very glad to give our readers a word from Prof. Scarborough, who has won many commendations as a linguist. It may not be amiss to say here, that he will follow the paper closely. Rev. Stansberry has entered the second year of successful pastoral service in the First Church, Providence. Both he and his wife se m to renew their youth like the eagle Brother Stansberry's sermons in Bethel and Union Churches, Sunday, 16th inst. were very appreciatively received.

—Bishop Wayman spent last Sunday in QUEEN CITY, New Jersey, at the camp-meeting conducted by prominent members of the M. E. Church. As we have not yet learned the results we forbear speculating at all concerned. Both on his going and returning he preached at Camden. Wise headed and cheerful, vigorous and active, the Bishop is peculiarly adapted to the Methodist itinerancy. Who will know the number of miles he will have traveled at the end of his life?

Literature.

The "War Papers" to the August Century include a beautiful article by Mrs. Burton Harrison, entitled "A Virginia Girl in the Civil War." It describes Richmond society, and the lights and shadows of war times as observed by Southern women.

General Grant's article on "The Siege of Vicksburg," in the September Century, will be accompanied by a fine sketch of the other side as contained in the diary of a lady who was in the city during the siege. Besides the reproduction of General Grant's original "unconditional surrender" dispatch in this number, there will also be printed a facsimile of the dispatch General Pemberton, to General Grant's hand writing, accompanied by a reproduction of General Lee's arms at Appomattox. The original is owned by General Badeau.

One of the most notable insurances regarding General Grant is likely to be that promised in the September Harper's, from the pen of Gen. Horace Porter. Gen. Porter was on Gen. Grant's staff during most of the war, and was one of his private secretaries when he became President. He knew the inside of affairs, under all varieties of circumstance; and his paper, which is understood, will present a great number of personal reminiscences both of the military and political life. It will be awaited with much interest. A fine portrait, engraved by Kruell, will accompany the article.

THE BATTLE OF THE SCHOOLS.

THE LAST APPEAL—WHERE WILL YOU STAND?

General Grant said: "The next war that will have to be fought will be between ignorance and intelligence; and the army of intelligence will be the victory."

The next Endowment Day, September 20th, is near at hand. Bishops, pastors, Sabbath-school superintendents, members and friends, will you not "come to the help of the Lord against the mighty?" We want you in the day, your prayers and your money for the salvation of our schools.

NOW, GO HEVAR.

Some of these great schools, upon which we have spent thousands of dollars, are languishing for support. The sufferings of our faithful teachers, must go down before the ears of the liberal and ignorance, unless the true men and women and children among our ministers, members and friends rise to the occasion on next Endowment Day.

Read this, please, in the family, the church and the Sabbath school. In the name of human progress let us arise. In the name of God do your best to help us. Send moneys without delay! 25 per cent in every dollar is lightly and 75 per cent to your district secretary. Special attention may be given to this by individuals. Particular care will be taken to see that no one has proper excuse for noble assistance on Endowment Day.

All members of local boards of education, chosen by the annual conferences in the bounds of the Church, all Sabbath boards, page 340, of the new Discipline, and govern themselves accordingly. Each member will please make his self active in working up Endowment Day with the bounds of his annual conference.

Finally, each member of a local board will please send his name and address to this office with the name of his conference, also the year and month of his election.

All our editors, presiding elders and pastors will please give notice of Endowment Day as per Discipline, bottom of page 341, and page 342.

EDUCATION.

ITS RELATION TO STATE AND CHURCH.

BY REV. C. T. SHAFFER.

Not only is the utility, but also the absolute necessity of education no longer a question for discussion; the entire civilized world recognizes its importance sufficiently and gives its verdict in favor of universal education. There is, however, a very great diversity of opinion among our educated men as to the schools to be employed and the extent to which education should be carried among the masses. And as the universal agreement in sentiment as to the necessity of education pervading all classes makes it the imperative duty of every organization, appealing to the people for support or patronage, to employ some method or other for the enlightenment and education of its people, especially its children.

Laying the above down as a basis, we reach the following as a logical conclusion, viz., that since the State and National government lay a tax upon the whole people for their support and maintenance, it is their duty, through their respective legislatures, to enact such laws as are needful and devise proper ways and means for the liberal education of the children and youth within their jurisdiction. The executive of State and nation who fail or refuse in unless such laws are recreant to the highest trust reposed in them. But since the State and the nation are not religious compacts, they are not supposed to supply the channel of religious sects through which to operate. And yet, they cannot be indifferent to religious education. A Christian nation should inculcate in its subjects the principles on which it is founded and by which it exists, as the only means in order to perpetuate its existence and its Christian institutions inviolate, handing them down to succeeding generations pure as when they came from the hands of our fathers.

What is true of the State is equally true of church organizations unless originate in the religious convictions of the people, from whom they draw their existence and in whom they have their very existences. Their strength and power will always be in proportions ferior of profits. Therefore it becomes the duty of the managers and controllers of the affairs of the church to devise ways and means for the most profitable return for their outlay in supporting the various institutions; and as the question of education and Christian culture are the greatest blessings that can be conferred upon the people, those institutions most to their noble object is the largest return for their outlay in the direct line of their support and support of any church organization.

The representatives of the A. M. E. Church, recognizing these truths, have labored to devise ways and means for the better Christian training and education of the children and youth of the people who constitute its membership and following. Whether they have succeeded or not, we will not determine. That they have formulated extensive plans looking to the moral and prosperity of the people, as well as their spiritual advancement, they could not withhold their means from the institutions of learning, but would invest many of their means where it will return them an hundred fold in the general advancement of the race. And nowhere least is this when we turn attention to our great centers like Philadelphia, Baltimore and many cities of the north and especially the latter, where the schools are all in the hands of male and female white teachers. In the latter city alone there are 103 teachers employed in the colored schools whose salaries aggregate the handsome sum of $57,000 per annum.

We believe that the people but need to be informed upon the subject to be interested, and that our several boards of learning shall continue their noble career of work with increased and constantly increasing ability to bless mankind and glorify God.

Now the seed in the morning's dawn,
At noonday hour hold not my hand;
And when Endowment Day be flown,
Honor will crown the faithful band.

Sow the seed from North to South, sow the seed from East to West; sow the seed in valley low, sow the seed on mountain high, and great indeed will be the harvest be.

TRENTON MONDAY LETTER.

BY REV. WM. H. TROCUM.

There are in the city of Trenton two colored churches, Rev. Peal's A. M. E. Zion Church, Rev. E. M. Stanton, pastor, who is a regular subscriber to the RECORDER, and Rev. Mr. Tolbert's Methodist Episcopal Church, of which I have the pleasure to be pastor in charge. The Methodist Episcopal Church, of which I am pastor, is the oldest colored church in the city, and was founded by Rev. Mr. Tolbert, who was a slave, and purchased his freedom for $1,000. He was a local preacher, and was instrumental in building the church. He was a man of great piety, and was highly esteemed by all who knew him. He died in the year 1850, and was buried in the old cemetery on Greenwood avenue, in the rear of the church. His remains were afterwards removed to the new cemetery on Hamilton avenue, and reinterred in the lot of the church. His son, Rev. Mr. Tolbert, was pastor of the church for many years, and died in Philadelphia, and was buried from

AN APPEAL.

To the Ministers, Members and Friends of the Second District of Education of the A. M. E. Church, including the following Conferences, viz: Georgia, South Carolina, Georgia, North Georgia, Macon, North Carolina and Virginia Conferences.

Dear Brethren:—The third Sunday in September next is our Endowment Day, the best day's work of the last General Conference. I take opportunity to say to the flock. If I have had any success in working for the Church, that has been my plan all through my ministerial career (I mean last in time). Never let time pass without using to the best advantage. Again, let us brave an object in view, say about to raise three said dollars for the Second District for educational work. We can raise the money if ministers, members and friends do their duty. Dr. W. D. Johnson is working for the whole church; let our district show him we are in sympathy with him in his great labor of love for education. I call for a large number of dollars. God will help us if we only do our parts.

I am your obedient servant,

A set of solid silver forks and knives, several articles of jewelry and $156 15 in cash were found by a resident in South Orange, N. J., hidden in a hay or a false bottom in an old bureau, which he bought at an auction sale for $3 50. Discontents. The old piece of furniture was among a lot which had been stored away in a bare of South Orange for several years, and which the owner was tired of keeping. Some of the articles of the bureau was sold, a person jokingly suggested that some valuables might be left in the drawers, and an examination he made, which was done, but nothing was found.

KEEPING THE HEAD PERFECTLY clean, says a writer in the Salem (Mass.) Gazette, is a great aid to health. A distinguished physician, who has spent much time in the East Indies, once said that a person whose head was thoroughly washed every day would never took contagious diseases, but when the hair was allowed to become dirty and matted it was hardly possible to escape infection. Many persons find speedy relief for nervous headache by washing the head thoroughly in week soda water. We have known cases of this to wholly cured in ten minutes by this simple remedy. A friend finds it the greatest relief in cases of "cross colds" the cold symptome entirely leaving the eyes after one thorough washing of the hair. The head should be thoroughly dried afterward, and avoid draughts of air for a little while.

ASTERIA, OR STAR SAPPHIRES, are very rare and extremely beautiful. They are of a pale blue, and set in their six-sided prisms are shot with three bright shafts, or veins, which cause the light in the form of a star of six rays. It is supposed that these threads are produced by vacuities between the molecules of the mineral at the moment of the crystallization. The white Burdette-Curtis jewels are two magnificent star sapphires, estimated at $150,000. Some of the finest white asteriae hardness of the sapphire, the ancients, who valued all success in proportion to its difficult attainment, and who liked to name with their own the stones of the rarest specimens of nature, have left as souvenirs of their skill some wonderfully beautiful star-veined sapphires. AN APPEAL.

FOR THE METROPOLITAN CHURCH, WASHINGTON.

It is absolutely indispensable that we raise and pay the sum of one thousand dollars by August 10th, 1885. Also twenty-five hundred dollars by October 1st. On the first Monday after the first Sabbath that we worship in the beautiful edifice, a little fair will be opened in the finest apartments of the basement. Tables will be spread with the choicest specimens of nature, have left as souvenirs of their skill some wonderfully beautiful star-veined sapphires. Goe represents a woman's figure enveloped in drapery. The stones of two irises, and the artist has skillfully used the dark tint for the woman and the light tint for the drapery. This gem is among the crown jewels of Russia. The Sirczzi cabinet at Rome contains an intaglio representing the profile of a young Hercules by Greco, and in the cabinet of France is an intaglio profile of the Emperor Perthax.

To the Ministers of the Fourth Colored District of the A. M. E. Church.—Dear Brethren: The time is fast approaching for us to make another grand rally for the cause of education. Our district, comprising the Arkansas, Missouri, Texas, Louisiana, North Louisiana, Texas, West Texas, Northeast Texas, Central Texas and Indian Conferences, are comparatively poor, but with our host of earnest and zealous workers we expect great results from the Endowment effort. Let us meet in our respective halls, and remember that all moneys collected on the third Sunday in September must be carefully counted for education. The Southwest this year must rise and shine, but it can do so only through us as leaders. Great things are expected of you, brethren, and in God's name let us make them materialize for the education of our race and the advancement of the Redeemer's kingdom.

I. M. BUGGAN,
Secty of Fourth Educational District.
Waco, TEXAS.

I ask every Bishop, member and friend throughout the length and breadth of our connection to send me the sum of ten cents by the last of August with the name of the person.

All our Pastors

are Agents for the RECORDER, and are hereby authorized to present this proposition to their people and receive their enrollment fee (25 cents), and give their receipt for the same. [Note.—We will send a few blank slips of receipts to all who will set for us in this matter.]

ALLEN UNIVERSITY.

Allen University, at Columbia, S. C., has had a hard siege for so young an institution. A year ago this date the control could not see eye to eye. Youth educated by men at war are very poorly educated at best. Allen University has exceeding great demand upon the Faculty for good government and instruction; upon the trustee board for good control and development, and upon the entire Church for good support and patronage. We can see no reason why there should not be a well-educated constituency in attendance regularly. The law department has already become somewhat prominent through the promising young gentlemen whom it has graduated. Dr. W. J. Gaines, Secretary of the Board of Educational District, will leave no legitimate scheme untried by means of which success may be won. We can but add to the many appeals made by Dr. Johnson and his able corps of instructors, the suggestion that the Second District make its collection on Endowment Day at least $8,000 for its two colleges.

CAMP-MEETINGS are one thing; camp-meetings are quite another. There have been efforts made both in annual and Ecumenical Conference to put down the shameful hypocrisy. As soon as the subject is presented we are warned against interfering with "camp-meetings which have proven so very instrumental in the upbuilding of Methodism." It is not the camp-meeting that we wish to stop, but this wretched blight upon our profession, which, if pet stepped soon, will sap the foundation of our religious life. What do you think of ministers helping the cause of Christ by building churches at the expense of aiding tobacco smokers and tobacco sellers by selling cigars; encouraging Sabbath breaking by breaking a lively interest in the Sabbath schools we have sent out Endowment Day Punch cards. The cards are 3 cents each. A dot in the first line represents 10 cents, in the second line 20 cents, in the third 30, fourth and fifth, 2 cents; in the sixth, 1 cent. This represents $1.25. Now a beautiful or ugly bearing on one side the likeness of Bishop Payne and on the other that of Bishop Asbury. Now let the pastor speak to the Sunday school superintendent, the superintendent speak to the teachers, and Endowment Day cards in their hands will accomplish a grand work.

For $1.25 raised by the Endowment Day card in any of the Sabbath schools or by any of the members of the Second Episcopal Educational District, the medal designated will be sent. Let it be distinctly kept in mind that only the money raised on Endowment Day card, or that paid for on Endowment Day 25 per cent. in addition, is sent to Rev. B. T. Johnson, D.D., Secretary of Education, Atlanta, Ga., and that which is sent to J. G. Mitchell, Secretary of the Fire Educational District, 61 S. Western Avenue, Chicago, Ill. Only the full amount of money transmitted to W. H. Johnson, D.D., and to J. G. Mitchell, state how much has been raised by the Endowment Day card, or shall such be paid for on Endowment Day 25 per cent. in addition to the $1.25 by that method can get the medal. Pro-rating sidered, the Secretary of Education of the A. M. E. Church and friends of education, read the Bishop's address on Endowment Day and make a grand rally.

ENDOWMENT DAY.

BY REV. W. EDWARD BRYANT, P. E

Educators differ as to the part to be played by the Church and Sabbath relation to education; but all Christian denominations claim that education is properly a function of the Church. Education, from the relation of those receiving it to those providing it, is academically a scheme of obedience. The Church is the witness of the life, the consecrated spirit of her Divine Head, is essentially a benevolent institution; and it is one of her dominant principles. She is not necessarily compelled to take part in every cause which promises amelioration and improvement to men. Her grasping, therefore, the educational function, is but the result to which her genius and spirit legitimately tend. Education is an element of force, contributing more than all other agencies to the improvement of the human race and consequent elevation of it to that condition in which Christianity, as may most effectually use it for the glory of God and the triumphant establishment of the Redeemer's kingdom... The Church therefore, whose appointed business it is to leave no means unemployed that will in any way contribute to the progress and success of Christianity, can never be accused of an important unappropriated, but must use it as a function legitimately her own. Every powerful and successful church has seen this and acted accordingly; in fact, its seeing and doing this made it great.

1. Childhood is the age when persons can be most impressed; habits are formed for life. If the child is properly educated it will intelligently give its great intellectual, moral and religion neglected. I am proud of the work of the American Missionary Society, Freedman's Aid Society of the M. E. Church, Presbyterianism, but let me say to the A. M. E. Church that whatever will help the child, in the case out of ten it will control the mind of that child; and that child may, in many cases, remain in our Church and Sunday school, but, having been trained in the doctrines and Discipline, will make this child, as he or she grows up, will cast a vote in favor of the Church and contribute and roles and to introduce those he has power to influence to believe as she does. This introduces antagonism, which Jesus refers to when he says: "A house divided against itself cannot stand." This is the condition in the South to-day. Notwithstanding Manager Embry, Dr. Derrick, Missionary Moss sell are opposed to the colored institutions, Bishop Turner, Brown and Editor Tanner for lifting up their voices for us and encouraging us in the South. God forbid that I should say a word against Wilberforce University, but we must pay more attention to education in the South, where the masses of our people live, for on it depends the stream of our Church. The foundations of our Church are there and the superstructure, gradually being undermined, and it will not be many years unless we stop this undermining. It can only be stopped by rebuilding and strengthening the schools convenient to our people. Every Southern Conference ought to have a good Biblical and normal school. You cannot get our young people to go to Wilberforce. Texas is as far as good schools (in some respects at least) right from Georgia. Hence, if

AN APPEAL.

To the Ministers, Members and Friends of the A. M. E. Church, including the following Conferences, viz: Columbia, South Carolina, Georgia, North Georgia, Macon, North Carolina and Virginia Conferences.

Dear Brethren:—The third Sunday in September next is our Endowment Day, the best day's work of the last General Conference. I take opportunity by the forelock. If I have had any success in working for the Church, that has been my plan all through my ministerial career (I mean start in time). Never let time pass without using it to the best advantage. Again, let us have an object in view, say about seven thousand dollars for the Second District for educational work. We can raise the money if ministers, members and friends do their duty. Dr. W. D. Johnson is working for the whole object, let our district show him we are in sympathy with him in his great labor of love for education. I ask for a large number of dollars. God will help us if we only do our parts.

I am your obedient servant,

Belgium is the banner country, the London Times affords incontestably the worst statistics in regard to the consumption of alcoholic liquors. In the last half of this century the use of spirituous liquors has more than trebled itself in that country, while the population has only advanced from 4,000,000 to 5,500,000. The use of spirits increased 66 per cent. between 1851 and 1881, and of wine it increased 44 per cent. the period 15.75 per cent. A REMARKABLE PLANT.—A recent German publication contains an illustration of a new electric plant that has been christened Phytoelectra electrica, which possesses strongly marked electro-magnetic properties. In breaking a twig the hand receives a shock, and it seems blue the sensation produced by an induction coil. A more powerful shock of this plant showed that a small compass was affected by it in a distance of twenty-seven feet. On near approach the needle vibrated and finally began to revolve quite rapidly. The phenomenon was repeated in reverse order on recedding from the plant, the energy of the influence varied with the time of day, being the strongest at noon and weakest at 6 P. M., becoming almost nothing during the night. It was also greatly increased in power when the plant was left to raise the plant seems to wither. It is said that the plant is found only in one spot seen on or about this globe. The soil in which it grew contained no organic metal like iron, cobalt or nickel, and it is evident the plant itself possessed all this electrical property.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 4, 1885
Ministers A. M. E. Church:

Baltimore, July 18, 1885.

To the Venerable the Bishops of the African M. E Zion and of the African Methodist Episcopal Churches:

DEAR BISHOPS AND DEAR BRETHREN:—On the 23rd inst., I received the following commendation from Bishop Wayman:

"The committee of ten appointed by our last General Conference, held in Baltimore, Md., May, 1884, to meet a similar committee of the same number of the General Conference of the A. M. E. Zion Church, to consider the subject of their many years of connectional union of hostages, was persuaded to try Ayer's Sarsaparilla. It was used in connection with medicine not only relieved me, but I believe it has worked a perfect cure, although my complaint was pronounced chronic." Thos. Dully, Watertown, Mass., is now in been a sufferer from headache and chronic malaise. No great has been his improvement since using George Muller is one of the most remarkable men of the present time in which he has accomplished is without the parallel in all past history. Commencing in 1835 with no means whatever, he has established and supported the enormous charge of the Bristol Orphan Houses, containing at present over 2,000 children, and has distributed more than a million dollars in answer to prayer. Mr. Muller has in many seasons received in answer to prayer, and has distributed over $7,000,000 in this way. His life is certainly the most wonderful record of modern times, and as well as the most momentous in its influence. It is a book that will inspire faith in every reader, and will be a source of great comfort to many. It is a book to be cheap enough for scholars as well as to be suitable for a present. It should be in every Sunday-school library, and in every family. It is a book to be read through at one sitting. THE SCHOOLS.

Much of the complaint against colored schools results from the evident incapability of teachers in those schools, which in turn results from the encouraging manner in which too many school directors deal with colored schools, and this follows as a natural sequence of the inability of the masses of colored people to measure the ability of teachers.

The people should demand competent teachers. They should rise above the prejudices of religious sects, and everything besides real efficiency. This they should not yield to anything. They should see that the proper authorities exercise an efficient and a judicious supervision of the schools. Not infrequently examiners have said, "Let us not come up to the legal requirements, but she will do for the colored school;" or, "the colored folks like her." The colored people have often asked for the continuance of teachers who were in almost every respect incompetent. Let us look well to our schools. We may well remember that there are thousands of incompetent teachers in other schools also, teachers who know very little of the studies they expected to teach, and still less of the general wants, feelings and necessities of a proper life.

OUR CHIEF PASTORS are responsible for their own acts, but it may be regretted that our good Bishop Campbell feels it necessary to reply to the points we pointed out in the address of Bishop Hood to his conference. As we have stated previously, the better another denomination the greater the independents to go to unite with it. At the same time, if our own is in the ascendant, the more charity is there in assisting it. But here there can be little question of of priority in age, previous treatment of overtures to union, nor present comparative standing. If we do not favor union, let us see how far we can drive each other away. This revival of whatever unpleasantness there has been between us or between a few on either side may tend to prevent even a friendly endeavor that should exist among all Christians.

A TERRIBLE CYCLONE struck Charleston, S. C., on the morning of August 25th, doing damage to the amount of over one million dollars in forty minutes, destroying shipping, railway tracks, buildings and other possessions. Among other things, the weather vane of the spire of the celebrated St. Michael's fell under the terrible storm bombardment. For a hundred years it had weathered the storms, and more than once has been struck by lightning, but below, threatening its demolition with shot and shell; once saved by the heroism of a noble mind enslaved, but now it yields to the mighty wind. One colored church was completely unroofed. It is also stated that Mount Zion Church was damaged badly; whether this is the A. M. E. Mt. Zion we have not learned.

THE A. M. E. CHURCH at Darby, Pa., had an organ opening last Thursday evening. They had recently placed a beautiful chandelier in their building. The occasion was to have been graced by an address from Mrs. Coppin, but unfortunately for the pastrons, the name that drew most strongly had so living representative there, Mrs. Coppin having been called to Baltimore on business. Members of the Mt. Pisgah Church choir Philadelphia, assisted the Sunday school of the town. Rev. W. H. Bryant filled the place of Mrs. Coppin, giving encouragement to the school and Sunday school. Mr. Stewart, leader of the Mt. Pisgah choir, had been seated on to drilling the Sooday school for the occasion.

PRESIDENT BURGAN was very kindly received at Bethel Church, Philadelphia. The great congregation gave him their sympathy and support. It is true there was no general collection given him, for his visit to the church was unexpected, but after having attended to the finances according to previous arrangements, they made up a purse of between thirty and forty dollars for the President of Wilberforce, Prof. Dolphin.

President Burgan has spent a pleasant time in Philadelphia, New York and Boston. We trust it has been as profitable as pleasant.

THE MISSIONARY spirit is not born is a people in a day. There are some leaders in our Church thoroughly alive to the question, but they are very few and not wealthy as a rule. The masses think on this subject very little. These remarks do not apply so much to home mission work as to foreign. We need to cultivate the spirit of missions. The letter of Brother Burgan holds us of this fact. We should be heartily ashamed about the salvation of Africa.

Dr. Townsend's appeal should reach every heart and purse possible.

WE HAVE so article on hand from President Mitchell stating among other things that Bishop Shorter has arranged to give in Wilberforce University the nice little sum of one thousand dollars. This is like Bishop Shorter. It is not the first thousand, if it is the second, that he has given that institution when his left hand knew not what his right hand did. It is safe to say that there is no man among us who has more thoroughly proven himself the friend and patron of education than that sturdy Christian leader.

THE BEETHREN of the Tenth Episcopal District are increasing their demand for the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. sed our book of Discipline. Especially is this true of those in the Conference of the South Carolina Conference. That is right, brethren, send your orders. We shall take pleasure in honoring them. Rev. I. B. Roberts, Oakville, Ontario, besides sending a subscription, says he will secure several subscribers for the RECORDER.

STRONG DRINK sellers should be prohibited by law from selling anything else. No tonics, milk, lunch, groceries, tobacco is say form; in fant, nothing but intoxicating drink should be sold at such places. Let the stores, of course, excepted, but no liquor retailer should be allowed to sell liquors for medical purposes. This should be left with druggists, as is the sale of other poisons.

DR. JOHN G. MITCHELL, D.D., is Educational Secretary of the First District. It is as such secretary that he is to receive the 75 per centum of Endowment Day money; not as agent for Wilberforce University. The money is to be applied to the schools of the Church within this First District.

OF OUR hundred and thirty-two conelies in Georgia, one hundred and seven have voted to prohibit the manufacture and sale of intoxicating drinks. This would be the case with many other States were the local option law once established.

THE OHIO STATE TRIBUNE can hardily expect the CHRISTIAN RECORDER to come when "boys" are called. There must come a time sometime in our history when the colored press will be required to assume the seriousness of manhood.

THE SUDDEN CHANGE in the temperature last week sent the mind back to the old stores, flannels and blankets. A few more such blasts will effect our corn and summer vegetables in the colder States.

DR. MITCHELL'S card sad model should not be forgotten in the first district. The card is ingeniously arranged. By using it the children of the district alone could turn in $3,000.

RAMANENN, the District Secretaries receive so percentage of the Endowment Day money. It all goes to the schools.

AT LEXINGTON, Mo., the Missouri Conference met, 2nd inst., Bishop Brown presiding.

Literature.

Following the group of Garrison papers in the August Century, the September number will contain an account of the persecution of Prudence Crandall in 1833 for endeavoring to establish a school for "young ladies and misses of color." The article is called "Connecticut in the Middle Ages."

J. S. Billings, M.D., contributes an article to the September number of Harper's Magazine of timely and vital interest on "Sewage Disposal in Cities." He shows with scientific accuracy and, at the same time, in a popular style, the relation of filth to disease, and his suggestions as to sanitary relief are well considered and practical.

Harper's Magazine for September is full of the elegant and most attractive numbers ever issued. First of all, General Horace Porter's "Reminiscences of General Grant" will command the reader's attention. The article, which is of considerable length, is full of personal and characteristic anecdotes hitherto unpublished, and is accompanied by an entirely new and exceptionally good portrait, engraved by Kruell from a photograph presented by General Grant to Mrs. Thomas Nast several years ago. As illustrated in the Harper's English publishing house of Murray is of especial interest to literary people, and probable as much as that about Byron and Scott, and other treasures of the Murray drawing room over sixty years ago, when the Napoleonic wars were raging. The art people of this number is an exceedingly interesting sketch of Antoine Louis Barye, the animal painted of animal sculptors, by Theodore Child, with sixteen superb illustrations, engraved from the original masterpieces now belonging to the Walters collection in Baltimore. Of the illustrations, "The Tiger Hunt" serves as a frontispiece to the number. R. F. Zogbaum, the artist, contributes an animated and faithful sketch of march "Across Country with a Cavalry Column," with five striking illustrations. The editorial department is well sustained.

Mr. L. Alma Tadema contributes the frontispiece to the September number of the Century. The picture is taken from the original in the Grosvenor Gallery, and is called "Who is he?" Another page picture is "Ouvained Liberty," from the original by Alexander Harrison. It is a young girl at the window of his cell to let a bird fly from the hand of one of the prisoners cautiving with the old friar to liberty without him. "The Secret," from Mr. E. J. Blair Leighton's Royal young picture is given another page. There is another full page picture by Mr. Abbey, a rose among picturesqueness we are enjoying through the graphic pencil of Mr. Arthur Burnard. Following this comes Mr. Alfred Parsons' paper on the Polish sicher-painter, David Chodowiecki, illustrated by reproductions from his copper-plates. This in turn is followed by Mr. Andrew Lang in a spicy essay, "By the Fireside." Mr. Howells' Lucas has given a page illustrating "The Lesson of Proportion" "The Romance of Art," we are introduced to a convent room at Parma, decorated by Correggio at the instigation of an extravagant Abbess, with luxurious tastes, Donna Giovanna, daughter of an illustrious noble of Parma. From this we have "The Book of Rembrandt," a clever review of "l'Œvre de Rembrandt" by that famous collector, Emile Dutuit. Then comes a most charming article on "Old London Door Ways," by Percy Fitzgerald, illustrated with some of the best examples of these lovingly wrought. Harry T. Peck continues the controversy on "Drawing in Elementary Schools," the editor contributes a lively paper on current art, with illustrations from the exhibitions of the Royal Academy and Grosvenor Gallery.—Casseli & Co., Limited, New York, $3.50 a year.

"HISTORY OF AFRICAN METHODISM IN TEXAS".

BY REV. J. E. EDWARDS.

The above is the title of a 238 page volume from the pen of Prof. H. T. Koalieg. As I am prepared to say that it contains a store of information, embracing the rise and progress of the Church in the State, which will prove a valuable addition to the library of every African Methodist in the world. The author does not narrate what he has heard in regard to the early conflicts of the founders of the Church in this State, he has a role given what his own eye has felt thanks to any one who will give to us the facts, with the source from whence they have collected them, remembering that empty assertions prove nothing outside of a man's own knowledge.

In the communication to which we have referred Rev. Hood says, "As to my position there can be no doubt Zion placed herself on record twenty-one years ago in favor of union." In reply to that statement at present we will only say that if Zion placed herself on record at that time she never placed herself in on practice according to that record. She was to have submitted the "record given" to all of her annual and quarterly conferences, and then to all of her members or churches or societies before the meeting of the General Conference at Washington in 1856. But this she did not do only by assertions without proof until this day.

Again he says, "The Bethel delegates went forth from that convention pledged to submit the articles of union to the people." They failed to take the first step. We admit the truthfulness of that statement, in part at least, if not in whole. And they did not do so because the Zion delegates went forth pledged to submit the articles of consolidation to their people, and they failed to take the first step. If they did so to let them now show the record, the time and place, where and when it was done, and we will receive the assertion as truthful, but not until that is done without cavil on our part. By the same token we deny the assertion that neglect of their duties to the people was due to a want of confidence in their sincerity and veracity and Christian integrity.

Again he says, "Having counted them and got kicked, it would not be strange if Zion should get now and then to trying to put statement future developments will show who did the kicking and who got kicked. Zion kicked at all after being kicked, she must and she did have a good moral reason for so doing. It is a very good thing that we should go very slow in this matter of consolidation, because it is certainly not the work of God, but it is the undoubted work of good intentioned men, both with God and without Christ in the world. There are two distinct kinds of union; namely, numerical and fraternal. We need and ought to have the latter, but we do not have that. If it can be obtained; but numerical without fraternal union is a curse instead of a blessing, never be a blessing nor profitable nor useful without fraternity. It is a union of different minds into Christian love and respect.

In our next we will consider other points contained in the address of Rev. Mr. Hood to the conference over which he presided at the time when he delivered that address. We know that there is very much of the history of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER are now very sex ous to know what we have to say about certain other statements in the communication attributed to Rev. J. W. Hood before his conference. The Lord willing we will attend to that matter in a few weeks, therefore you will see us in the next number after this appears.

REPLY TO REV. C. C. FELTS.

BY REV. S. T. MITCHELL, D. D.

I am frequently astonished at many things said and done in the world by men in important relations, but seldom more than when I see a man of the standing that I was when Bishop was in the Iowa Conference at Chicago, with reference to a letter from Rev. C. Felts, that appeared in the RECORDER some weeks ago. I was claimed that Rev. Felts had made a computation and publicly called attention to the fact that the Endowment money raised in September was all required to pay the Secretary of Education, the assistant or district secretaries and the running expenses of the educational department. Rev. Shaffer, with the members of the Iowa Conference, considered that the return of Rev. Felts desire of Endowment Day, there was little cause or encouragement for rejoicing in the early conflicts of the founders of the Church in this State, he has a role given what his own eye has seen. The conventions were with the ordaining and instructive, while at the same time they call forth our holy love and veneration for the men who have come to injure the cause of truth. Secure and real has been the joy we receive a new nearly to work in the cause of right.

CHURCH DESTROYERS.

BY BISHOP J. P. CAMPBELL, D.D., LL.D.

MR. EDITOR:—In the history of nations and churches, there come a time beyond which forbearance ceases to be a virtue. That time comes, duty requires that an honest and an upright, faithful and true man should arise to action, and with the fear of God before his eyes, and with as firm a single to his object, that man should perform that which he knows to be right, just and true in the sight of God, regardless of consequences from man, although it be death itself. To this unwelcome ordeal the writer has arrived, which may not be brought upon us for speaking the truth in the name of the Lord, for the glory of God and the good of humanity, we come to the discharge of that duty, prepared to die and to suffer the consequences to us, whatever they may be, for speaking and telling the truth at this time, of all others, the most important in the history of the African Methodist Episcopal Church, when eternal death and destruction is now determined against that Church at all hazard.

The Church has two classes of foes who seek her destruction, and who appear to be determined never to cease their schemes of destruction, but until they have accomplished their long-intended and premeditated purpose. The one class plainly and satisfactorily to every honest and intelligent person who reads all of the facts which we intend by the grace of God to present in a series of articles, which we propose to write upon this subject. We intend to show from the history of the Church that Church has foes without and foes within, who are seeking her destruction as she was given to the world. Now, while it is true that the Church has always had foes without, and is the heritage of the time of her organic existence, it is also true that she has always had foes within, and that with her increasing growth in numbers, influence and wealth, the number of her foes within her own organization has grown more numerous and formidable than what those are who are without her borders, as the history of facts will prove to the candid historical devaluement.

In this article we simply call attention to a communication published in a recent number of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, and which is said to be the utterances of Rev. J. W. Hood in an address delivered in his conference over which he presided. We purposely and intentionally will not enter into the true details of our subject, because honest and true thinking men have not been made acquainted with a sufficient number of the facts in the case to enable them to form a correct judgment of what is true in the premises. Therefore we shall advance step by step, we shall endeavor at the same time to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth in the name of truth. We have no other object in view than the advancement of the cause of truth, justice, love and mercy. We have love for all, and hatred for none. If we should make a misstatement, we will most heartily acknowledge the error, and return our most sincere and heartfelt thanks to any one who will give us the facts, with the source from whence they have collected them, remembering that empty assertions prove nothing outside of a man's own knowledge.

CHURCH DESTROYERS.

BY BISHOP J. P. CAMPBELL, D.D., LL.D.

In this article we simply call attention to a communication published in a recent number of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, and which is said to be the utterances of Rev. J. W. Hood in an address delivered in his conference over which he presided. We purposely and intentionally will not enter into the true details of our subject, because honest and true thinking men have not been made acquainted with a sufficient number of the facts in the case to enable them to form a correct judgment of what is true in the premises. Therefore we shall advance step by step, we shall endeavor at the same time to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth in the name of truth. We have no other object in view than the advancement of the cause of truth, justice, love and mercy. We have love for all, and hatred for none. If we should make a misstatement, we will most heartily acknowledge the error, and return our most sincere and heartfelt have given to our own civilization its distinguishing features and excellencies; and whose commands to us are, "Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine. Watch thou in all things, endure afflictions, do the work of an evangelist, make full proof of thy ministry." It is hoped that it is needless to say that it is hoped that all such will be removed from the Church.

The other class of foes are those who have attached their energy and influence to the Church while in the ministry as efficient instruments in the hands of the devil to destroy it, who not regard the gospel minister as an opponent of the gospel of Christ, and the Church as a useless and indispensable to the successful propagation and development of the kingdom of Christ in the world. The kingdom of Christ is of great importance, and so long as the world will be saved, and the redemption of the world are united to God through the gospel of Christ, so long will the gospel minister must sustain a two-fold relation to the world; namely:

1. A human and a divine relation. 2. A moral relation to the world and to the Church, which is not such a being of too much importance to be left to the caprice of unconverted, heartless and also destitute of the comforts of life; but it is one of the most effective scholarship. Hence, with those two great critical lights at the head of our convention, who spared no pains in correcting the speakers and essayists upon any incorrect theory or practice the convention was a success. Bishop Turner may be denominated a "Flying Churchman." He remained with us for four days—from Thursday until Sunday night.

Sunday at 11 A. M. we heard an able sermon from him at Ebenezer, by the M. E. Church at 3 P. M. but we remained at Bethel Church Chapel again, and heard another able sermon from Rev. W. H. H. Butler, D.D. The Holy Sacrament was administered by him, assisted by other ministers; it was a time of rejoicing. At 8.30 P. M. your correspondent tried to preach. The Bishop left on the South bound train; we regretted to see him leave. Bishop Turner is a live man and he wants all of those in preachers to be live men. May God bless him.

WHY WAS HE REMOVED?

BY REV. A. J. KERSHAW.

MR. EDITOR:—Well knowing that the RECORDER is not a political sheet, and that you are not permissive to say a few words in regard to the false pretenses that are being made, I am prefriend to civil service reform. President Cleveland gave us to understand in his inaugural acceptance that if elected his administration of the government would be conducted strictly upon business principles, and office holders should only be removed for good cause, and not for political effect. Dr. J. A. Garfield spoke the truth when he said the Democrats had come into power. There are many Republicans who are in the civil service, and who are doing good work for the people and for the Parslaxe—to both of which she was bound by sacred vows when they put on the yoke of Christ, though wholly, or in part, of Adyi Christ Orange, Africa will be responsible for him

Or, if through American contempt and prejudice, either inherited or imbibed, he himself has come to think his fellows, if not himself, inferior to the race, he always had foes within, and that with her increasing growth in numbers, influence and wealth, the number of her foes within her own organization has grown more numerous and formidable than what those are who are without her borders, as the history of facts will prove to the candid historical devaluement.

In this article we simply call attention to a communication published in a recent number of the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, and which is said to be the utterances of Rev. J. W. Hood in an address delivered in his conference over which he presided. We purposely and intentionally will not enter into the true details of our subject, because honest and true thinking men have not been made acquainted with a sufficient number of the facts in the case to enable them to form a correct judgment of what is true in the premises. Therefore we shall advance step by step, we shall endeavor at the same time to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth in the name of truth. We have no other object in view than the advancement of the cause of truth, justice, love and mercy. We have love for all, and hatred for none. If we should make a misstatement, we will most heartily acknowledge the error, and return our most sincere and heartfelt

PHILADELPHIA FACTS.

AMONG THE CHURCHES.

The convention of ministers and members of the A. M. E. Church of this city and vicinity, which was called by the preachers at one of their recent meetings, will convene on next Thursday morning at 10 o'clock, in Union M. E. Church, Sixteenth street below Fairmount Avenue. It is hoped that a large delegation will be present.

Rev. O. G. Felts, pastor of Bethel A. M. E. Church, Twelfth, and on the ordinary society connected with that church, are arranging to provide poor children with clothing, according to attend Sabbath school. If carried out, this will result in much good.

Prof. Wm. I. Powell, with able home talent, will support Madame Saliza in the forthcoming concert to be given at the Academy of Music, October 7th, under the auspices of Alice Concert. This concert promises to be one of especial interest and attractiveness.

Sacrament service will occur on next Sunday at 7½ ar M. E. Church at 3 P. M. Rev. A. R. Shockley will deliver the sermon.

The Rev. Albert S. Matyr, of the First African Presbyterian Church, is actively engaged in securing a lot on which to erect a suitable house of worship. In this work he has the hearty co-operation of his congregation, which is encouraged in the work by the fact that Philadelphia Presbyterians have already given a large amount for this laudable object.

We may look for the return of many of the ministers to their charges within the next week.

The extensive improvements of the Union A. M. E. Church have been completed and regular services resumed in the church on last Sunday, which is a source of great gratification to the congregation and to the entire district seem to be alive to the interest of the work, but how it can be so, is beyond me. That is undoubtedly the meanest place on the face of the earth, and I am not given to prejudice and bitterness on every subject, but I do not hesitate to say that the police force, which is about equal to an organized mob, stands ready to do the bidding of any one who will call and take him before a police court, where he is bailed for the disorder, and we were told that they were have a lot of low, base, ignorant women to do as they please, and especially on the thousands of acres of government land that are lying idle, and can be had for a home to almost nothing, land far superior to that of Georgia, it is very strange the negro race is so prominent among the beasetest of white hypocrites as are found in this country, as we have ever heard of. I consider the white people of the South are the worst enemis of disgrace to the name of professing Christians, and one of the number whom we have met with the living form of religion, and their pastors a set of the meanest, low down, dirty, lazy set of Saul. The very thought of the base ingratitude of many of the white people of Georgia is sickening, but more sickening is the thought that there are those who call themselves children of the most high God and profess to be the light of the world to think them Christians. Just think of the thousands of dollars that whatsoever ye would that men should do to you do ye even so to them, for this is the law and the prophets. If Georgia negroes are tried and convicted before the courts they are sent to the white, jury white, lawyers white, and it is a white man against the negro, and the white man generally wins, and it does not interfere in his behalf, he is sent to the chain gang.

We are now on the train getting out of the State, thinking it every possible thing that can befall a man, and I wish it were possible we would have fire arms to defend ourselves against those hypocritical white preachers, who are the worst class of people that ever is before God, regardless of the color of men, and who are misleading their unconverted flocks, and leading them to believe that they are children of God and on the road to heaven, when they are not, and are making for the hell of woe, which is described by them especially in the support of our Baptist work during the past year.

Foreign Missionaries The Board has appointed Rev. Isaac Lansdale to Haute country, Rev. Mr. Lansdale to go to San Domingo, and a large number of missionaries to the foreign stations, the Indian Territory, and numerous Home Missions, all of which are to be forthcoming in the near future, as soon as the Lord shall see fit to open the way through indifference shall we fail? Hope constantly in God.

The following is our encouragement.

To the Ministers, Members and Friends of the Second District of Education of the A. M. E. Church, including the following Conferences, viz: Columbia, South Carolina, Georgia, North Georgia, Macon, North Carolina and Virginia Conferences.

Dear Brethren:—The third Sunday in September next is our Endowment Day, the best day's work of the last General Conference. I take opportunity by the forelock. If I have had any success in working for the Church, that has been my plea all through my ministerial career (I mean start it in time). Never let time pass without using it to the best advantage. Again, let us have an object in view, as I about seven hundred dollars for the Second District for educational work. We can raise the money it ministers, members and friends do their duty. Dr. W. D. Johnson is working for the whole church; let our district show him we are in sympathy with him in his great work—love for education. I ask for a large number of dollars. God will help us if we only do our parts.

I am your obedient servant,
J. A. GAINES, Secretary,
314 Houston St., Atlanta, Ga.

It is a curious fact that wasps' nests often take fire, as is supposed, by the chemical action of the wet on the fibrous material of which the nest is composed. Many of the fires of unknown origin in haystacks and farm buildings may thus be accounted for.—Maine Journal.

An astonishing case of New England thrift is said to be the largest one in the State. It is 92 feet in circumference at the ground and 24 feet in circumference at the height of a man's waist. It is 70 feet to the first limb and 100 feet to its height. The first Presbytery of Gorham was held under its branches nearly 100 years ago.

An aged resident of Brandtsville, N. J., is said not to have partaken of food since July 5th, when he complained of a severe pain in the stomach, and died a loss of appetite. He says he has no desire for food, and that until he has he will not eat. The faster drinks small quantities of water.

The ascent of Mont Blanc has been accomplished in twenty-five days' time from Chamouny by Mr. E. A. Evans, of Chester, England, without a guide. This is considerably the quickest ascent yet made. The party crossed the Glacier below the Grands Mulets by moonlight.

Catarrh is a very prevalent and exceedingly disagreeable disease. Unless if neglected, to develop into serious consumption. Hood's Sarsaparilla, taking through the blood, reaches every part of the system, effecting a radical and permanent cure of catarrh in all doses.

ADVICE TO CONSUMPTIVES

On the appearance of the first symptoms—as general debility, loss of appetite, pallid, chilly appearance, followed by night-sweats and cough—prompt measures for relief should be taken. Consumption is a scrofulous disease of the lungs;—therefore use the great antiscrofula, or blood purifier and strengthener, Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Superior to Cod liver oil as a nutritive, and unsurpassed as a pectoral. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, and kindred affections, it is unequal. Sold by druggists the world over. For Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Consumption, send two stamps to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

A kitten that was lately reported from Marshall, Ill., as being three weeks old, and having a pair of legs less than usual, is already whisking about, paraphrastically, as a kitten six weeks old will thine tails.

Ayer's Agne Cure, when used according to direction, is guaranteed to eradicate from the system all forms of malarial diseases, such as Fever and Ague, Chill Fever, Intermittent Fever, Remittent and Bilious Fevers, and disorder of the liver. Try it. The treatment is not a safe one, and will cost you nothing if a cure is not effected.

A curious old church is an object of special interest to visitors to Hale Hill, west of Middletown, N. J. It was built in 1782 without the expenditure of a cent of money. The members of the congregation contributed the work, logs and fruit and lumber. These articles, with the exception of the timber, were bartered for the materials wherewith to construct the church. The workmen received their wages in pork, beef and vegetables. The timber was utilized in the building. The pews were made of oak and have never been painted. They have recently been varnished from time to time. The pews are built in the old-fashioned, square English style. Each family had a pew. The pulpit stands in the built of the same material as the pews, and have, like the pews, never been painted. The pulpit is away above the congregation and is reached by a winding staircase. It is large and was constructed to represent an inverted candle-sander, one of those articles so common in the last century. Above the pulpit is a sounding board made of oak. The minister, when he stood in the pulpit, was nearly on a level with his audience in the galleries. In one corner of the gallery, elevated above the other seats, was a pew for the use of the slaves belonging to members of the congregation.

SAN DOMINGO MISSION WORK.

The work of the Rev. Hen. H. C. C. Astwood, Consul at San Domingo, has been highly commendable, and thus far Mr. Astwood seems to have so estiefactorily served the U. S. Government in its changere that-he is still retained. Besides being successful in this respect he has called together the people of San Domingo and organized an A. M. E. Church. The appeal which we publish should be promptly responded to. The building already erected is too small for their growing congregation. Brother Astwood's work should be very highly appreciated. This church at San Domingo has not only been self-supporting, but has paid from thirty to fifty dollars a year to our general funds. It has been said that they have not received due recognition respecting their payments of Dollar Money. The arrangements are made for our ministers and will doubtless bring the Sae Domingo work into closer relations with the general body of the Church. Bishop Shorter and Dr. Townsend will push the matter. Back of them is the entire Church. A generous effort on the part of the connection will secure to us a breadth of missionary operation too important to be slighted.

CONFERENCES AND THEIR QUALITIES.

The Ohio Conference meets at Zanesville this week, Wednesday, and the Kansas at Wyandotte Thursday. Bishop Campbell presides over the former and Bishop Brown over the latter. These two conferences will just about get all ministers located well by the time Endowment Day comes. In the midst of the latter is the nucleus of an educational institution, the Western University, and in the midst of the former is an old, tried institution, Wilberforce University. At the heads of these two conferences are two men who, in the past thirty-five years, have not only been proven men, but progressive, but popular citizens and progressive Christian gentlemen. He who reads the old CHRISTIAN RECORDERS and Christian Repositories will find connected with the names John P. Campbell and John M. Brown excellent papers on current topics; and he who reads the history of African Methodism will find their names connected with many of its most prominent and important movements. In those conferences are several men whose alliance with education and progress is as old as their maturity. Not a few are graduates of colleges, several are equal to graduates, though they have never received diplomas. Some of the best churches of the West owe their existence to their efforts, and many hundreds owe to them much of their better training.

The members of these conferences will doubtless leave for their session with arrangements already made for Endowment Day. Those conferences that will meet next week will also probably do the same.

MRS. JEFF DAVIS ON OUR STUDENTS.

In conversation, a few days ago, we were told by a man who is acquainted with Mrs. Jefferson Davis, that Mrs. Davis had expressed her opinion of the colored readers as follows: "The trouble with the colored people is, that just as soon as they learn to read they turn right to the lower grades of literature; the cheap novel is the first thing in hand." All who have been intimately acquainted with our students know that Mrs. J. D. is as far from correctness in this assertion as is Mr. J. D. in his notions concerning the lost cause. What can Mrs. Davis know of our colored students? What can the Southern white people in general know about them? To know of the colored man's general mental tendencies is social and domestic characteer, and probably religious, we grant they have no opportunity, but they must take back seats among the judges of his scholastic character. But the trouble is, this Northern white man, who has done much mission work among the colored people of the South, seemed to accept Mrs. Davis' assertion as truth; so do nearly all Northern white men the declaration of nearly all Southern white men.

That there is too great an inclination among us to the lower thoughts and readings can but be acknowledged, that there is any such tendency must be regretted; but it is not fair to believe that we should suffer in comparison of ratios with the whites. The fact is, the mind of the colored man is liable to follow the leadings of the white race for many years yet. Originality can not be large in a people of similar experience. Our efforts are spent largely in "catching up" with the crowd. In this following, we, of course, read light literature. It is not a question of morality, however, whether any race-variety out of an equivalent experience ever produced a historian equal to Williams, a poet equal to Whitman or Mrs. Harper, a classical scholar equal to Scarborough, an orator equal to Douglass, an edneator equal to Payne, a financier equal to Stephen Smith, an editor equal to Tanner, a statesman equal to Bruce, an executive equal to Dupre, an actuary equal to Greener, a physician equal to Purvis, a metaphysician equal to Dr. Mitchell, a diplomat equal to Langston, a tragedian equal to Aldridge, a warrior here equal to Toussaint.

EDUCATE, BUT EDUCATE CAREFULLY.

At this season of the year not a little thought is set upon our scholastic work. Some will be content to vindicate the propriety of our expending so much money as we do as a denomination in scholastic operations, since the world is already full of schools. So asserted there is no better investment made by the Church. The teachers taught under our auspices are so many aids de camp, training the children of to-day to affiliate with the A. M. E. Church. The ministers trained in our own theological schools are to be the standard of the social, moral life and traits of the A. M. E. Church in the next generation. Our schools are worth everything they cost and a thousand fold more. Indeed, if African Methodist Church will continue a respectable body of Christians and grow in respectability year by year, it is bound to man its schools and to maintain them much better than ever before. Within a few years all our schools will re-open; all will re-open burdened with indebtedness, all will open with poorly paid instructers, all will open with defective appurtenances for the comfort and safety of students and teachers. What is to be the end of such attempts! First, our mere impetuous young persons, our more highly intellectual young persons, our wealthier young persons will, despite the ties of denominational inclinations, which are being tested to their greatest ability, seek the best colleges schools and our Church for other churches, and leave us to retrograde, by intellectual decline, into a state similar to that of a small body of Methodist colored persons in our Eastern States, about as old as the A. M. E. Church, almost as illiterate as they were seventy-five years ago; whose worship is too often a shame and whose record, as to civilizing influence, is almost insignificant.

But it is often said, "O, well, let others educate them, they'll all come to the A. M. E. Church after they are educated." At one time this was a fair basis, but it is so no longer; colored men, like all other men, are going to be subject to the moral laws of gravitation. They will affiliate most largely with those who can best aid them in self-development, self-preservation and self-activity. Emphatically, brethren, we must educate.

COLOR LINES.

When Bishop Turner said the world looked upon white as God and black as the devil, many writers violated the sacredness of almost sacrilegious. It is harsh, but it seems to have a shade of truth, judging from sets. Perhaps if some other than a Bishop had said it, it would have appeared less harsh. We shall not re-affirm it; but certainly when we, colored men, enter the arena of civilization, we must be no more fearful of color lines than are other men upon whose arms civilization rests and by whose backs civilization has been built. They have made their structure white, their ornamentations white, almost every ideal of excellence they have whitened. Their heroes, their sogols, their gods are white. In the pictures of growth, of development, of life and of refinement, upon which they have directed the struggling race for centuries, all perfection is white-washed. Not so with God's art. He draws colors or lines and supports them in beautiful parallelisms or blends them in gorgeous unity according as His perfect design requires. The general clamor of men against color lines is liable to mislead. When those who make our literature exclude pictures of black men and children from books that our people are to read for fear of drawing the color line, they are but maintaining the color line. When our Sunday School Department removed the face of Richard Allen from the headleg of the Child's Recorder, we expressed our regrets; not simply because it was allen, nor because it was the face of a man who was Bishop, nor really entirely because it was black, but because it was not white; it was a line in variety. We do not say "any color, so its red," but we observe the variety in God's works everywhere. We observe that their greatness, the sexclusive greatness of the Caucasian race has been maintained largely by painting greatness and goodness white. Now, we have no bositancy, other than that growing out of the probability of being misunderstood, in expressing the wish that Secretary Smith, in his nice little primer, had shown here and there a colored face. He has a picture of the Sunday school, it is white; a picture of a lady watering plants, it is white; of a boy studying, he is white; a boy playing with a lamb, he is white. Let the sexgels all be white, otherwise the offence to fixed scenes and associations would be less great; but some of these could be colored very well.

WE HAVE received from the Sunday School Department a copy of "Primary Lessons," and also a copy of the A. M. E. Sunday School Class Book, both published by Secretary C. S. Smith, Bloomington, Ill. The Primary Lessons, as its name indicates, is designed for beginners in Sunday school. The arrangement is well adapted to the purpose, being a graded set of lessons from the alphabet to plain lessons in reading. The sentiment of the entire little work is sweet and spiritual. This little Sunday school messenger itself is capable of doing a good of far greater worth than the $5,000 contributed by our schools this year. The question is, will there be a lack of it by the next return? It will do its greatest good centered among the homes of those sitting in darkness. Its greatest commendation is its selections from the Bible. The class book is well arranged, containing the Sunday school constitution, is similar to those in popular use among the Sunday schools.

WITH THE INCREASE of civilization there is a corresponding increase of presumption, in many cases amounting to reprehensible carelessness. The reckless movements of skilled men may be noted on every hand. So much of our work as is not turned off by wheels must be accomplished by dexterity. We run the machinery of the body and mind, as we wore steel, scarcely taking time to "oil up" the joints. The result, as unpardonable gambling in life. In science, as well as elsewhere, more need to see eye to eye. The common expression, "So slow," is the advice needed in our times.

ANY STUDENT supported by the A. M. E. Church should be bound to work every day in the week, and be possessed of definite religious character, should be well acquainted with the doctrines of the A. M. E. Church, should be possessed of a great amount of common sense. We have already made mistakes enough in this respect and are making them still. A poor church cannot afford to speculate in these matters. These remarks apply to conference students and theological students, but more especially to Dollar Money students.

DR. B. T. TANNER, of the Review, will represent our establishment at the Ohio Conference. We know the brethren of that conference well. They will do by our work as well as they can. We trust that the brethren will all renew their subscriptions promptly as they have formerly done. Indeed, there is no doubt that Bishop Campbell will encourage them to do so. They will doubtless give the Department a good patronage le respect to books and porquisites.

PROF. W. S. SCARBOROUGH writes to Dr. Tanner, the editor of the Review: "I am deeply interested in the Review and in its " " editor; and I will do what I can to show this in an active way! We have italicised the words we would have the readers of the RECORDER say to heart; and not only as it relates to the Church Review, but to the Recorder, to the Publishing House in Nashville, to the Church Extension AN APPEAL.

To the Ministers, Members and Friends of the Second District of Edmonton of the A. M. E. Church, including the following Conferences, viz: Columbia, South Carolina, Georgia, North Georgia, Macon, North Carolina and Virginia Conferences.

Dear Brethren:—The third Sunday in September next is our Ecumenical Day, the best day's work of the last General Conference. I take opportunity by the forelock. If I have had any success in working for the Church, that has been my plan all through my ministerial career (I mean start in time). Never let time pass without using it to the best advantage. Again, let us have an object in view, say about seven thousand dollars for the Second District for educational work. We can raise the money if ministers, members and friends do their duty. Dr. W. D. Johnson is working for the whole church; let our district show him we are in sympathy with him in his great labor of love for education. I ask for a large number of dollars. God will help us if we only do our parts.

I am your obedient servant,
THOS. H. WILLIAMS.

CIVILIZATION.—The Portland Oregonian says: "Baltimore among the Chinese merchants of the city seems to be the ones less predisable at the present time than among any of the Caucasian tradespeople. In proportion to the business done, it has been very much larger both in number and amount. It is very evident that they have taken kindly to everything but with the Caucasian style, and when they can no longer make money by legitimate trading they close their doors, make no assignment, pay over their goods their creditors 5 or 10 cents on the dollar, reopen in a new block, with a larger stock and a more extensive stock of goods.

The will of the late Father Peter Cruddon, of Liverpool, is a curiosity. It contains amounts to $60 000, represented by bonds, shares and real estate in America and Ireland, is, save a local paper, a curious document. To James, Patrick, Philip and Sarah Cruddon, his brothers and sister, all residents of Ireland, is bequeathed $1 each; to each of the children of Patrick Cruddon, the brother living, is bequeathed $1 each; to his sister Margaret and her children, now living in the United States, is bequeathed $1 each; to his sister Margaret and her children, now living all real estate in the United States. In the fifth item is bequeathed to his brother James and sister Ann all real estate in Ireland. The sixth item provides that his sister Margaret should be sole executrix without sureties.

An oyster, 35 years old, estimating its age by the ridges or wrinkles shown on the shell, was some time ago in possession of a New York fish dealer, who thought of it: "It was caught in Delaware bay three years ago. That oyster had intelligence. I put it in a tank with salt water and it opened and shut itself up, as if asleep or being bothered. Next day I put the oyster on a plank by itself in order to study its habit with microscope. Finally there domb and dead like. I stepped aside to wait upon a customer. The lion cat walked up to the oyster and began to turn it over with its paws. Suddenly in twelve minutes the cat had the cat's tail. The cat bounded off like a rocket, bumping the oyster against the counter, and the contemporarian clung to the cat's tail. I never saw the cat so far vexter again."

A MILLION YEARS OLD, MORE OR LESS.—The Virginia (Nev.) Enterprise says: "It will be remembered that about two months ago, in boring the artesian well at White Plains, on the line of the railroad of this State, under the auspices of the Central Pacific Railroad Company, a large log, or several logs, of wood was bored through at the depth of 1615 feet below the surface. This has been the subject for discussion by scientists ever since, and after wrangling for days in San Francisco, Dr. Harkness made it the special subject of a very interesting lecture. Quite a large piece of the log of wood was brought to the surface, and it was sound wood, in no sense of the word a fact state of preservation, although its great depth and the character of the superincumbent strata showed that it was at least 1,000,000 years old. Microscopic examination showed that the ancient tree was probably similar to the present mangrove."

TRANSFERS.

The class of ministers among Methodists are liable to about as much "hot water" as any. They are confined almost exclusively to low places of labor, those whom no one wants and who, therefore, must be kept on "the trot;" those whom everybody wants and who, therefore, must be sent to as many as possible, just to keep them "on the trot;" those who go for various reasons, health, locality, social or domestic demands, etc. Brethren who are so transferred are eligible to all the advantages of brethren who have grown up in the conference into which transfers enter; yet they are often looked upon with suspicion. Especially is this true of classes first and second; the first, because they are not regarded as heads of families, the second, because they are likely to be on their way to some of the higher charges.

Intimately connected with this class is the idea of big appointments. It is sometimes a wonder how they retain their greatness so long as we always be in appointments of this class. It is well known in many cases that they are not big men, and that there are men of really greater strength never reaching the great churches. These facts in effect without an adequate cause, the cause of this fact is the more earnestly sought by those considered the more unfortunate. Sometimes it is eloquence, but sometimes it is not; sometimes business competency, but sometimes it is unmanageable; very rarely—indeed, surprisingly rarely—it is piety resulting in immense influence in the large cities; sometimes it is supposed to be simply a matter of fate or providence! There is a wonderful mystery in the fact of preference here; it is so in all the spheres in which men act. How and in what respect is this man above his fellows—leading (editorial) in literature, in war or in peace! No adequate reply can be given in all cases.

"THE SILENT SOUTH."

In the September Century Mr. G. W. Cable replies to the weak, narrow article of Mr. Grady and his class. In diction the paper is superb, in moral tone it is correct, in logic profound and in theory unanswerable. The rule of the "Silent South" will probably be gutlast enough to essay to answer.

Never was horseman more deftly unsaddled nor knight more quickly disarmed than the unlearned and unphilosophic South in this argument. It is true there is one point of Mr. Grady lightly touched: that the people do not want association. It is strongly argued from the standpoint of the negro, but not strongly from the other side. A double-view, results from Mr. Grady having treated the more enthusiastically from the other side. This, therefore, makes the refutation good.

We regret this reply of Mr. Cable as one of the strongest defences ever made by a Canonian in behalf of the negro. It should be classified with those great speeches which paved the way to freedom and it itself is the path to universal recognition of common rights and the universal opportunity for common competition for greatness, goodness and honors. Such men will remove obstacles; so also will the negro will become useful, he may. Every reader of the RECORDER will spend thirty-five cents wisely and very profitably by ordering a copy of the Century, through his book seller or news agents, or by sending immediately to the Century Company, New York.

HUMANITY VS. TASTES.

It is well to have race tastes; it is impossible for individuals to avoid having tastes. It is highly important that in the race, as well as the individual, taste be educated. What is popularly known as taste is the basis of a very large share of demonstrated life. From it proceed those influences which lay out the lines of life and arrange its parallelisms and divergencies; erect its constructions and decorate its sublime accomplishments.

A vitiated taste can evolve a Bartholomew's night, a Ku Klux terrorism, a Chinese slaughter. These tell what influences manifest in the bosom of society; how superficially the principles of the full consideration of the worth and rights of man, because he is a man, color the pictures of our common life.

In Wyoming, white men, like tigers, persons upon yellow men, Chinese, and slaughter them simply because they enter into competition with them for place and wages. In some Southern States white men threaten the rights and lives of black men, because the latter demand a place, pleasure and the common amenities of law. In Ireland, in Russia, in France and in America; in fact, throughout the ranges of our poor civilization, poor men plot and undermine the security of the wealthy because they themselves are poor and others are wealthy. On the other hand the wealthy combine against the poor because they are poor and the only way to maintain their own wealth is to keep them poor.

What is wanting? More humanity. Would you say Christianity? Still we repeat, more humanity. The Son of Man's object is to save that which was lost—the true life of humanity. The quantity of Christianity is sufficient, our comprehension of it is too meagre; its quality is sublime, yet it is often of itself. Underneath our possession of Christianity is our own personal taste, our long-trained prejudice; the white man has his religion often in a sense of mental reservation and race prerogative; the black man has his aroused too often in strolling memories and cultivated prejudices. It is probably very often the case between any two classes of men. The whole system of human equity and that of Christian ethics is liable to serious "hot" modifications. There is no question that the United States should be able to protect every class, as such, against every other class. The proverbial Chinese, with all his hereditary repulsiveness, should be able to live among us free from the seething ignominy to which he is subjected by hoodlums and gentlemen (!) who have grown up in the seaboard cities into which transfers enter; yet they are often looked upon with suspicion. Especially is this true of classes first and second; the first, because they are not regarded as heads of families, the second, because they are likely to be on their way to some of the higher charges.

Intimately connected with this class is the idea of big appointments. It is sometimes a wonder how they retain their greatness so long as we always be in appointments of this class. It is well known in many cases that they are not big men, and that there are men of really greater strength never reaching the great churches. These facts in effect without an adequate cause, the cause of this fact is the more earnestly sought by those considered the more unfortunate. Sometimes it is eloquence, but sometimes it is not; sometimes business competency, but sometimes it is unmanageable; very rarely—indeed, surprisingly rarely—it is piety resulting in immense influence in the large cities; sometimes it is supposed to be simply a matter of fate or providence! There is a wonderful mystery in the fact of preference here; it is so in all the spheres in which men act. How and in what respect is this man above his fellows—leading (editorial) in literature, in war or in peace! No adequate reply can be given in all cases.

"THE SILENT SOUTH."

In the September Century Mr. G. W. Cable replies to the weak, narrow article of Mr. Grady and his class. In diction the paper is superb, in moral tone it is correct, in logic profound and in theory unanswerable. The rule of the "Silent South" will probably be gutlast enough to essay to answer.

Never was horseman more deftly unsaddled nor knight more quickly disarmed than the unlearned and unphilosophic South in this argument. It is true there is one point of Mr. Grady lightly touched: that the people do not want association. It is strongly argued from the standpoint of the negro, but not strongly from the other side. NOTICE.

All questions and business pertaining to advertisements seen in the RECORDER, and requesting correspondence in the RECORDER, should be addressed to Rev. J. Embry, Business Manager; not to the editor. There is no part of the business of this establishment requiring more tact to be kept in the editorial or communications for the RECORDER, than in the matter of obtaining the proper acknowledgment of the receipt of money. Understanding that every subscription of Christianity is our own personal taste, our long-trained prejudice; the white man has his religion often in a sense of mental reservation and race prerogative, to which man has no right to demand too often in extolling memories and cultivated prejudices. It is probably very often the case between any two classes of men. The whole system of business and the Christian ethics is liable to serious "hat" modifications. There is no question that the United States should be able to protect every class, so such, against every other class. The preaching of good things, with all his hereditary repulsiveness, should be able to live among us free from the soothing ignominy to which he is subjected by hoodlums and gentlemen (!) If we look the taste, let us learn to practice the humanity of reason. Trust every man as well as he can be trusted.

IN THE NORTH OHIO Conference, a year ago, the editor of the RECORDER was present at the annual session of the conference. The Rev. J. G. Mitchell, D.D., chairman of the educational committee, read a report to the conference in which he startled its members and even aroused the disgust of all by stating that there were more illiterate colored persons in the conference than there were when they were at the time of emancipation. Dr. Mitchell knew what he was saying, many of us know how we should like to have it; Dr. Mitchell had in his favor statistics. In our whole intellectual progress, the cause of this fact is the more earnestly sought by those considered the more unfortunate. Sometimes it is eloquence, but sometimes it is not; sometimes it is business competency, but again this is wantingly rarely; very rarely—indeed, surprisingly rarely—it is piety resulting in immense influence in the large cities; sometimes it is none of these, and it is fate or providence? There is a wonderful mystery in the fact of preference here; it is so in all the spheres in which men act. How and in what respect is this man above his fellow—as a thinker, in literature, in war or in peace? No adequate reply can be given in all cases.

"THE SILENT SOUTH."

In the September Century Mr. G. W. Cable replies to the weak, narrow article of Mr. Grady and his class. In diction the paper is superb, in moral tone it is correct, in logic profound and in every unanswerable. The title of "Silent South" will probably be extant enough to essay to answer.

Never was bosoman more deftly unriddled nor knight more quickly disarmed than the unhumane and unphilosophic Sooth in this argument. It is true there is one point of Mr. Grady lightly touched: that the people do not want association. It is strongly argued from the standpoint of the negro, but not strongly from the other side. This, doubtless, results from Mr. Grady having treated the more contributions from the other side. This, therefore, makes the refutation good.

We regard the reply of Mr. Cable as one of the strongest defences ever made by a Caucasian in behalf of the negro. It should be classified with those great speeches which paved the way to freedom and it itself is the path to universal recognition of common rights and the universal opportunity for common competition for greatness, goodness and honors. Sooth men will remove obstacles; so that if the negro will become useful, he may. Every reader of the RECORDER will spend thirty-five cents wisely and very profitably by ordering a copy of the Century, through his book seller or news agents, or by sending immediately to the Century Company, New York.

HUMANITY VS. TASTES.

It is well to have race tastes; it is impossible for individuals to avoid having tastes. It is highly important that in the race, as well as the individual, taste be educated. What is popularly known as taste is the habit of a very large share of demonstrated life. From it proceed those influences which lay out the lines of life and arrange its parallelisms and divergences; erect its constructions and decorate its sublime accomplishments.

The class of ministers among Methodists are liable to about as much "hot water" as any. They are confined almost entirely to their own circuits, and those whom no one wants and who, therefore, must be kept on "the trot;" those whom everybody wants and who, therefore, must be sent to as many as possible; a third and last, and last, those who go for various reasons, health, locality, social or domestic demands, etc. Brethren who are so transferred are eligible to all the advantages of brethren who keep on the "trot" and advances into which transfers enter; yet they are often looked upon with suspicion. Especially is this true of classic first and second; the first, because they are not regarded as heads of classes, and the second, because they are likely to be on their way to some of the higher charges.

The crop of Concord grapes along the Hudson Valley promises to be very large and the fruit of a good quality.

The present of a cow and a calf was made the Pioneer, Fla., Eagle lately, and that journal now asks: "Who will give us the horse?"

A lady in Logan county, Ky., sleeps two or three days and nights at a stretch, and then remains awake for a like period. She is now 80 years old.

A horse hospital, with a hundred-acre field attached, and provided with all convenience necessary for the treatment of the animals, is now among the institutions of Baltimore.

As a means of preaching bis two sons an Atlantic County (N. J.) man is said to have bound their hands and thus placed the youngsters in a field for the mosquitoes to persecute.

A dance to furnish the design for the Grant monument to be erected in New York has seized upon many artists, but as yet no conclusion for the work has been given out, and probably will not until the monument fund has been completed.

A water famine prevails at Norwalk, Conn., and in consequence several factories there have shut down. The trouble is due in part to an unsuccessful effort to secure a water supply, but has been amplified to allow of its being closed.

It is noticed as a serious coincidence by the New Orleans Picayune that lately yellow fever has appeared at Key West, at Cedar Key and on the banks of the Rio Grande, and also at Memphis, while in the Mound City at about the same time the fruit was selling for 75 cents a dozen.

"Spice," a famous fox terrier and the winner of several prizes at bench shows whence he was imported, died in New York on the 4th inst. Over 1,000 people and set $1000 and took first prize at a show held in New York recently.

The Chinese are very little distrust in this country for ecclesiastical purposes is said to be the one that makes a trial trip to Europe. On the other day, there she was supplied with engines. The vessel is of unusual dimensions, and was built at Kennebunk, Me.

A camp meeting was held lately at Vineyard, Mass., and of one thousand copies of the conveyances loaned to the single individual for the use of the meeting, six hundred were missing at the time of the final collection. All too, notwithstanding the note "Do not take away," or stamped on the cover of each.

A plague of flies visited the village of Emsworth, England, lately. In speaking of it the New York Post says: At some places it was impossible to move about without closing the eyes and mouth. Around every lamp in the town the spectacle was most curious. Attracted by the light, their wings became clogged and their bone resembled that of a bive of bees. At the post office, where the upper portion of the door is open for ventilation, and where occasionally the light is kept burning till the early morning, the insects covered the sorting boards, letters and boxes, and had to be constantly swept off with brushes. At one lamp they simply hung down in clusters. In the window of the office they were to be seen in thick beeches. Hereafter were in several instances pulled to the slight, so thick was the swarm; and at the entrance of the door, as one went to town, the tray in which the money was taken was covered an inch thick.

ALL A MATTER OF CONSCIENCE.—Dickens, in upholding his theory that there is always to be found room for all thankfulness when said trials and sacrifices, related this story: "Two men were to be hung at Newgate on a day. The morning arrived; the door opened; the sheriff, with the usual officers, began to toil, the convicts were placed; the procession was formed; it reached the foot of the fatal beam; the ropes were adjusted around the poor men's necks; there was a breathless hush of the thousands of both sexes of all ages, men, women and children, who thronged the scaffold; when, just at the second of time, a bell which was being driven to Smithfield broke his rope and frightened the mob right and left, scattering the people in every direction. One brave Whitespace one of the condemned men turned to the deputy sheriff, and, in a compassion, and quietly observed," I say, Jack, it's a good thing we ain't in that crowd."

A FORTUNATE PURCHASER.—In 1746, a merchant, the Liverpool Post states, a director of the Bank of England, went home with a note for £30,000, and put it on the chimney piece in his parlor. When he returned in his room, the note had disappeared. He had only been away a few minutes, no one but esteem, at the room yet the note had disappeared. So he went back and told his friends. He had already paid in the money, and, having lost the note, he permitted him to have another note for £30,000. He went home. He promised to pay the first bill if it appeared to the light, but at length he died, and no one came to claim the lost note. Only one der thirty years after, a stranger brought a note for £30,000 payable to Fa. ed gold for it. The bank authorities hesitated, but had to pay it at last, as the note insisted, and the man went off to pay the bearer. It was then explained that the man who had presented the note had bought the old director's house, and was pulling it down when he found the note in the crevice in the chimney whither it had been carried by the draught.

Two curious cases of superstition are reported from Russia. The Odessa Liberté says that the other day a sotnik was seen floating in the Dniester. It was brought ashore and found to contain the corpse of a man whose feet had been cut off. A peasant explained the case as follows: His uncle had been one of the time previously several peasants claimed to have seen his phantom in the shape and an old woman predicted that there would be no rain while the corpse remained in the cemetery. So it was this out, the feet cut off to prevent the ghost from walking about, and the coffin sealed down. The second case is shown that the belief in witchcraft still exists. A great drought in Cherson was attributed to the evil agency of two women who were said to be witches. They were officially called upon to produce rain by June 17, and as rain unfailed they were docked in the river. The "witches" were by themselves rescued, and remarked that now they would refuse rain altogether. This raised such a disturbance among the peasants that the women had to be protected by the police.

To Secretaries of Annual Conferences.

Dear Brethren:—Please be so kind as to send me immediately, a copy of your last minutes of conference. We have important matters to send out from this office and desire to know the address of all the ministers, &c.

Yours in Christ,

WM. D. JOHNSON.

Secretary of Education.

BISHOP J. P. CAMPBELL, D.D., LL.D., President of the Board.

Send to Box 262 Atlanta, Ga.

To the Ministers of the Fourth Educational District of the A. M. E. Church—Dear Brethren: The time is fast approaching for us to make another grand rally for the cause of education. Our district, comprising the Arkansas, South Arkansas, Louisiana, North Louisiana, Texas, West Texas, Northeast Texas, Central Texas and Indian Confederacies, is comparatively poor, but with our host of earnest and sacrificing workers we expect great results from the Endowment effort. Let no man or woman falter. And remember that all moneys collected on the third Sunday in September must be scrupulously consecrated to education. The Southwest is the vast mission field of the A. M. E. Church, but it can do so only through an educated ministry. Great things are expected of you, dear brethren. God's speed to you, make one grand rally for the education of the race and the advancement of the Redeemer's kingdom.

Yours in the work,

H. M. TURNER,

Sent'y of Fourth Educational District.

Waco, Texas.

AN APPEAL.

To the Ministers, Members and Friends of the Second District of Education of the A. M. E. Church, composed of the following Conferences, viz: Columbia South Carolina, Georgia, North and West Georgia, North Alabama and Virginia Conferences.

Dear Brethren: The third Sunday in September next is our Endowment Day, the first day in the work of the General Conference. I take opportunity by the forelock. If I have had any success in the past in raising funds, which has been my plan all through my ministerial career, it has been to secure names and dollars for the Second District for the educational collection. We, too, notwithstanding the note "Do not take away," are stamped on the cover of each.

The day set apart for this work, both in the Sunday and Sabbath schools, is the 3d Sabbath in each September. Wilberforce College, in Atlanta, and Allen College, in Columbia, S. C., are under the fostering care of the General Conference. It is under our control, and will be the grandest church in the connection when completed.

Don't wait for the conference but send the money to B. W. ARNETT, Xenia, Ohio, as soon as you get it; if it is small, send it anyway. Small amounts help in work.

To the Venerable the Bishops of the African M. E. Zion and of the African Methodist Episcopal Churches:

REVEREND AND DEAR BRETHREN:—On the 23rd inst., I received the following communication from Bishop Wayman:

"The committee of ten appointed by our last General Conference, held in Baltimore, Md., May, 1884, to meet a committee of ten appointed by the General Conference of the A. M. E. Zion Church, to consider the subject of organic union of the two connections, met in Washington, D. C., on the 15th of July, which is to be submitted to a joint meeting of the Bishops of both connections, and then the annual and quarterly conferences, and then to the membership. I have therefore been requested by the unanimous vote of the joint committee to ask you (D. A. Payne and J. A. Shorter) to arrange for a joint meeting of the Bishops of both connections on or before 25th day of December next, 1885."

In compliance with which resolution, we, after due consideration, appoint Wednesday, the 4th of November, 1885, as the time, and the city of Washington, N. C., as the place of holding the joint meeting of the Bishops of both connections, at 10 A. M. sharp. We beg that the above-named body of both connections will give this notice an immediate and wide circulation; also, we beg that all the parties concerned will earnestly beseech the Great and Adorable Head of the Church, Christ Jesus, and the Church Triumphant, to be present at that meeting, to enlighten us by His Holy Spirit, and to be led by the sanctity counsel to just, wise, and practicable conclusions concerning this weighty and important question to be considered by us.

We are, Rev. and Dear Brethren, your fellow servants in the Church of the living God,

DANIEL A. PAYNE,
JAMES A. SHORTER.

CONNECTIONAL LITERARY ASSOCIATION.

ATLANTA, GA., April 4, 1885.

Minister's Meeting.

The General Conference of 1880, as you are aware, established a Connectional Literary Association, and the General Conference of 1884 adopted the same. But from 1880 to 1884, we could never get the constitution and by-laws properly before the ministry, because they were ralnes too voluminous to get into the Connectional Minutes. The commission and by-laws, however, were published in the Atlanta Journal and the Bishops' Council, but never perfected and properly presented to the people at large. Now, at the present session, at which time they were rigidly overhauled and put in a model form and put in the Annual Budget, edited by Bishop Payne and Asbury. Who will be the first to send in the money? We are need it to pay the Bishops and Secretaries and also the Church and to help the Metropolitan Church.

The pastor sending the largest amount of money by the 15th of Aug., 1885, I will give him "Bishop Turner's Book" or "Dr. Tanner's Outlines."

2d. Send in the money soon! Send it to Xenia, Ohio.

4th. Do the best you can to help me.

5th. We must have seventy-five thousand dollars by 1888. Who will be the first to start the ball—the Dollar Ball? Send on the dollars.

6th. Let every minister raise one dollar for each member this year. Try it once in a while.

7th. I will give a present to every church in the connection that will raise one dollar for each member. We will have a roll of honor and usefulness, and the pastor of each one who does do it for or from each of his members will be put down on that roll and published in the Budget of 1886.

The Bishops and General Officers must be paid.

The Metropolitan Church in Washington must be finished, by order of the General Conference. It is under way now. I will be the grandest church in the connection when completed.

Don't wait for the conference but send the money to B. W. ARNETT, Xenia, Ohio, as soon as you get it; if it is small, send it anyway. Small amounts help in work.

I am yours,

B. W. ARNETT,

Wilberforce, Ohio.

THE BEST EFFECTS.

remedy, for all diseases arising from a disordered condition of the stomach or liver, is Ayer's Pills. Mrs. Rachel D. Dexter-ton, Germantown, Pa., writes: "For three years I was afflicted with Liver Complaint. I tried the best physicians in the country, but could get no relief. I was advised to use Ayer's Pills, and, having done so, believe my life is now in a perfectly healthy condition." Thos. Gerrish, Winsler, N. H., writes: "I was compelled to quit work in consequence of a severe bilious trouble. In less than one month I was cured by the use of Ayer's Pills." Jacob Lilik, Tampico, Mexico, writes: "Ayer's Pills cured me of Stomach and Liver trouble, a disease which had for years. By living them occasionally, I enjoy the best of health."

What we must say

now, is that we are opening a regular campaign for the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. We want two thousand new subscribers, and all the old ones to renew. Now, appreciating the dullness of the times, we have resolved to put the paper within the reach of all, adopting the installment plan.

Installment

costs a little more, but is easier because it gives more time. Hence, we make the following offer to all who desire to have the RECORDER:

Send us 25 Cents and we will enroll your name in a special book kept for that purpose and will send you the paper for sixty days; then send us 50 cents, and two months after 50 cents more, and two months later 50 cents more. Total, $1.75.

All our Pastors

are Agents for the RECORDER, and are hereby authorized to present this proposition to their people and receive their enrollment fee (25 cents), and give their receipt for the same. [Note.—We will send a few blank slips of receipts to all who will act for us in this matter.]

On this Plan

we give full six months for paying the subscription.

TEMPERANCE.

Massachusetts and several other States are about to enter fully into educating children in the physiological effects of intemperance. The object of this movement is to ward off from future homes and individual lives the encroachments of the demon intemperance. This plan is to be set against too great odds to make much headway. The chief opposition is the power imparted by the common course of teaching we are met by the object lessons on all thoroughfares and in all the ways in which men move, while the tide of heredity is constantly vitiating the tastes of men and impeding the progress of temperance teachings.

The introduction of temperance textbooks is a good thing, but the object lessons found in the exaltation to the very highest place in the gift of the municipality, State or general government, men who are known to be intemperate have an effect that cannot be materially affected by the temperance text-books. This is the more seriously true considering that those men are not only exalted in life, but after death are canonized and bronzed. The literati, the warriors and statesmen known to have practiced the vice of strong drink are in many cases, to be periodic drunkards, are frequently thus honored. Stop the manufacture and sale of drinks and provide for the imbeciles, whose madness of appetite under this cause will last for two generations, and you will have solved the temperance problem. But here is just the point at which we are baffled. We cannot stop the manufacture. We cannot take care of intemperate slaves. Any attempt at this must throw civilization into a state of anarchy. On the other hand, as intimated above, all compromising, tempting will be interpreted means against so strong a foe, so effectually barricaded behind appetite and avarice, must forever prove futile. Then follow the serious questions, shall we bend the bow in the face and cause the issues of prebibition? The majority of men dare not do it.

THAT INDIGNATION.

Our readers will notice the indignation coming from the Marion, South Carolina, District against the editor of the RECORDER. Now, the most serious objection of the editor is that they did not send a check by the means of which he could manufacture paper space for their articles and others. We have at least twenty reports of Sunday school conventions and presiding elders' meetings on hand. Our indignationists help us find room for all these articles! If not, many of them will never come to the light. It is true, by publishing three or four such papers in every issue of the paper we could do it. We are liable, however, to be unable even then, for we have hundreds of such meetings annually. We have recently received a card from a brother, two days after our paper was issued, requesting that his important matter be placed in "this week's paper." The paper having been printed, mailed and three or four hundred miles on the way to its readers, it was impossible to comply with his request. The next week we did not publish it since there was much important matter on hand of longer standing than his. Then came a fiery note demanding the reason why his card was not published the week he wrote it, which week's RECORDER was being printed when he was writing the card, nor the next week. But let us see what his important article was. We had built one church last year and one church this year; only this and nothing more. Because this did not appear in the only issue of the RECORDER printed while it was in our hands, he had lost "esoeoit of the RECORDER;" "hoped the time would soon come when the General Cooferoece would elect men to its control who were interested in the people;" "did not think he "would sustain it longer," etc., etc. From another brother in the same conference the editor was sarcastically (we believe) styled, "Your Honor," etc.

Now, seriously, brethren, do you not suppose the management of the RECORDER must be left somewhat to the discretion of the editor largely? Do you not see the utter foolishness and injustice in such procedure? How do you know you are treated unjustly? What reason can you think soieatse the editor, by whom many of you were never seen, to systematically treat you with especial injustice and inequality? A very intelligent brother, whom the editor does know, doubts whether he can esteem to support the RECORDER because it does not publish what he sends to its columes. The idea seems to have gone out that the newspaper organ of the Church is somewhat like a hand organ, and need most make a noise every time any member of the Church feels like turning the handle. Perhaps they think the editor a—crank. Now, a church organ is by no means the organ of every individual member, as such, nor of every individual society, as such, nor even of every individual Bishop, as such. It is the organ of the connection; bones is bound to keep in harmony with the connection in spirit and tone, having the latitude allowed to speculation, criticism or reviews of past works or superlative movements for the sake of examination and directions. Like any individual member of the Church, it may express opinions with reference to facts pertaining to the connection separate or in association with other connections. It is not bound to publish EVERYTHING that any one in all its grades of membership might send. Its further object is to enlighten the people of the connection. If we had not this organ, we could not know the status of the Church nor the many changes ordered by Bishops and other officers. Brother Blank, who declares he will not support the paper longer because it fails to say he has built two churches in two years, does not deal is this manner with other people whom he helps to support. There is much to be said on this subject. Some of the general department managers seem to forget that the RECORDER itself represents a department, and insist that it shall be monotonous, harping on the same string or else write articles for general rally days, surfeiting the people with one thing, weakening the RECORDER, whereas a little consideration would lead them to see that line upon line through the whole year, now on statistics pertaining to one department and then oe facts relating to involved principle; again on historic facts and then oe prospective, etc., would reach far better and more enduring results. Anything that is reason for such perpose rather than tardily coming stroker, plied with manifold quickness become tardy. Another indignationist is he who having made an ordinary, but very long, speech and been requested to have it published, he being a member of the A. M. E. Church, insists upon having it published in the RECORDER. Another is he who has the notion that the RECORDER is prepared for the whole country, parts of Great Britain, India, Australia, Africa, Denmark, the West Indies, Canada, can print any set of resolutions, a speech, or other paper because it is written and sent to the office of our Church organ cannot do so." A sufficient per cent. on which to risk the union, is worthy of careful and serious consideration. The one-third remaining would amount to at least two hundred thousand persons. Better unjoice than a union that is in truth a double disintegration. We scort the union strongly, fell union. If fifty thousand members on the two sides discuss they will prove as many as we can stand. Brother Blackshoe's views are good. We have noticed Bishop Jones has spoken through the New York Freeman also. It was probably he who declared in the A. M. E. Z. General Conference of '84 his willingness to be "reduced to the rank" of the ordinary ministry, if necessary to effect the scioe. This was heroic laeguage. The point of business being members of the quarterly conference is not small. There are many in our Church favorable to their being members. We do not doubt the EX-A. M. E. Z. people would demand it in the end. Brother Blackshoe's ideas in association with other counsellors. It is not bound to publish EVERYTHING that any one in all its grades of membership might send. Its further object is to enlighten the people of the connection. If we had not this organ, we could not know the status of the Church nor the many changes ordered by Bishops and other officers. Brother Blank, who declares he will not support the paper longer because it fails to say he has built two churches in two years, does not deal is this manner with other people whom he helps to support. THE ALUMNI MAGAZINE has completed its first year. This magazine commenced modestly, but thoughtfully, and has increased in strength steadily, and the August number being decidedly the best in the series. With its monthly the Alumni Magazine is courageous. The numereus and able alumni of Lincoln University laboring in all parts of the United States and Africa, together with thousands of readers who should be interested, should give this magazine a good support. The following is the table of contents:

Editorials—Annual Meeting of the Alumni Association—How Shall We Help the Negro?; Driftwood; Do Alumnis; Our Exchenges; Communications; Haytien Proverbs, Poem by Mrs. Charlotte E. Grimke; A Tribute to the Memory of the late Prof. Wiley Lane, by Rev. Dr. F. J. Grimke; Prince and Priest; The Negro Education, by Mrs. F. E. Harris; Industrial Education—Rev. Thos. H. Thomas; Barriere to Wealth, by Rev. Gerald Sumner; Antigone and Edipus, Poem by H. Cordelia Ray; Dr. Douglass on Economy and Wealth; Jesus of the Colored People; Silk Culture, by Prof. E. Wesver; Commeetz-Wittisiame.

THE STATE

Sunday School Convention of Pennsylvania is to meet at Sunbury, commencing Tuesday evening, October 20th, and continuing through Wednesday and Thursday. An extensive programme is being arranged. The next Sunday school workers will take part in the proceedings, and a feast of good things may be expected. Each county is entitled to ten delegates, and each county of thickly populated districts three additional delegates. Arrangements have been made for a reduction of fare over all railroads centering in Sunbury, to all persons attending the convention. For particulars regarding railroads, address Mr. Jacob Shipman, Seebery. Pennsylvania now ranks a Banner State, all the counties being organized auxiliary to the State and interestional work. A large delegation may be expected, and the approaching convention will doubtless be of rare interest. Delegates are requested to address Mr. G. W. Deppen, Sunbury, in regard to entertainment, prior to October 10th.

THE NORTH OHIO

Conference which meets at Newark, Ohio, and the Kentucky Conference, which meets at Versailles, Ky., this week are both children of the Ohio Conference, which letter is the mother of many conferences. The Kentucky brethren have excellent fields of labor, so far as work is concerned, but they have not the most encouraging field in other respects. Bishop Turner has made strong efforts to man that field with competent men and, from accounts, has succeeded very well.

IF THE PLAINDEALER is sufficiently strong to attack great wrongs bravely the RECORDER is glad. If the Plaindealer knows the RECORDER'S conception sufficiently well to warrant its intermingling that the RECORDER fears the publication, it is to be congratulated on its wisdom.

WHAT THE CHRISTIAN RECORD ER CAN DO FOR US.

BY REV. JOHN HENDERSON.

The Missouri Cooference, after a very pleasant session, has adjourned. We like time in connection with the one transetred upon the work of another year after so pleasant a session of the Conference with each other. I trust we are all entering upon the Lord's work with renewed zeal. The influence of our scholarly and refined Bishop is to us a model. We like to see him and hear his sirmoions be a guide. Brethren, you all remember with what enthusiasm he urged upon us the good we could accomplish by increasing the circulation of the RECORDER among our people. During the coming year let us devote time to the work, and let all of the pastors instructions on this point as well as on all others. The RECORDER may soon be a fast becoming weak and powerless; our people are rapidly rising above the domination of prejudice and are being guided by intelligent convictions. If we would make a good loyal and useful African Methodists of our flocks remember it cannot be accomplished by closing up and cultivating their prejudices in our favor; but we must furnish them enlarged ideas and thorough information, and then we can safely rely upon their intelligent convictions to make them what we are, African Methodist Episcopals in heart and heart. Shepherds of the flock, more than a mere local or sectional interest in their church; inform them of and interest them in the great movements in all its various workings and esteer. Especially should we labor to impress the conception of the spirit and mission of our Church upon the young; they must be imbued with that soul which will result in a wonderful increase in our ability to carry on the great work of our various departments. Let them become acquainted with the tasks and responsibilities of our Bishops and General Officers. Teach them to revere the office-bearers and appreciate the talent and ability that these good men are so freely devoting to the interests of our race. Let them feel that the achievements of the Church are directly for them and their people and you will find a marvelous increase of sympathy for all the Church enterprises and a wonderful manifestation of willingness to help. Let ourselves avoid narrowness, and become broad in our own conceptions and sympathies, we can, in turn, broaden and make our people so.

The Missouri coast is in being the idolized hero or popular favorite of a religious sect or community. Men thus misguided and weak seek such idols and always unknown and unadmired by the world. They are petty lights shining within the narrow realms of a pastorate, but as bubbles on the surface of the boiling water of a kettle compared with an ocean storm when we view our lives in comparison with the magnificent world. Let us not become absorbed in our own little or community. Men that keep alive that broad and magnanimous feeling which makes the heart beat in sympathy with the great heart of our struggling race. Then, we should not regard our pecuniary offerings as anything in their import, for their's is an eternal investment, but let us remember our interest till it takes in all. An earnest, prayerful and active spirit make fatty scenes of life's trials and cevears of God.

Brethren, I know of no better nor effective way to bring the whole membership to a comprehension of the interests and duties of the Church than by means of the RECORDER. It can do no harm; it is good. Let us see to it that every subscriber of ours renew for our next annual conference, should we be so unfortunate as to number one as not a subscriber, but, God being willing, I mean to be present. Let our pastors and Church into every household that there among its members a person able to read. For my young men, don't be special work, a pressing duty. Do not be satisfied, brethren, until every family has at least one copy of the RECORDER. Let us compromising zeal which characterizes the labor of the older ones. Let us endeavor to handle the financial affairs of our charges in a thorough, business-like way. Let us put our shoulder to work hard for spiritual success; let us study the souls the gods' counsel and advice of our seniors. Let all of our work be characterized by earnestness of purpose and thorough business principles, conflicting ties to please. Let us live so we shall live heaven at last. Doing fully our duty in the present, let us leave our case in the hands of Him who doth all things well.

I LOVE TO READ THE CHRISTIAN RECORDER.

BY REV. ISAAC S. GRANT.

MR. EDITOR:—The subject of this article will doubtless give rise to a question: Why do I love to read the CHRISTIAN RECORDER? I will, sir, if you allow me a space in your columns for the publicity of my reasons, tell my many readers will know, and perhaps some will agree with me and some will not. Nevertheless, I will give my reasons why I love to read the CHRISTIAN RECORDER.

Because our Church owns it; because it is so pleasant and sweet to our ears to know that be paid for it. I was talking with a brother a few weeks ago relative to a splendid horse and buggy he was in possession of. He replied, "Yes sir, it is so pleasant to have anything that is yours and paid for. I pay every year for the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, and it does me good to read it myself and to others, especially the copies of July 23rd and August 27th.

Second, because in it or them there are so many spicy and stalwart articles. I shall give a few extracts from some and comment thereon. The first article I peused by Bishop H. M. Turner, theme, "Observations," July 23rd. I love the man, O Lord, how knowest I do, and I see conscientiously affirm that there are many I have a knowledge of with the prospects of the school work at Paul Quino College.

—Rev. H. Wilhite has purchased property (a house and lot) and some more to the "Athens of Texas."

—Mrs. J. H. Brown, of Toledo, O., is reported by the Cleveland Globe as in poor health. Mrs. Brown has been a faithful laborer in our Church for many years. We sincerely pray for her recovery.

Brethren, I know of no better nor effective way to bring the whole membership to a comprehension of the interests and duties of the Church than by means of the RECORDER. It can do no harm; it is good. Let us see to it that every subscriber of ours renew for our next annual conference, should we be so unfortunate as to number one as not a subscriber, but, God being willing, I mean to be present. Let our pastors and Church into every household that there among its members a person able to read. For my young men, don't be special work, a pressing duty. Do not be satisfied, brethren, until every family has at least one copy of the RECORDER. Let us compromising zeal which characterizes the labor of the older ones. Let us endeavor to handle the financial affairs of our charges in a thorough, business-like way. Let us put our shoulder to work hard for spiritual success; let us study the souls the gods' counsel and advice of our seniors. Let all of our work be characterized by earnestness of purpose and thorough business principles, conflicting ties to please. Let us live so we shall live heaven at last. Doing fully our duty in the present, let us leave our case in the hands of Him who doth all things well.

I LOVE TO READ THE CHRISTIAN RECORDER.

BY REV. ISAAC S. GRANT.

MR. EDITOR:—The subject of this article will doubtless give rise to a question: Why do I love to read the CHRISTIAN RECORDER? I will, sir, if you allow me a space in your columns for the publicity of my reasons, tell my many readers will know, and perhaps some will agree with me and some will not. Nevertheless, I will give my reasons why I love to read the CHRISTIAN RECORDER.

Because our Church owns it; because it is so pleasant and sweet to our ears to know that be paid for it. I was talking with a brother a few weeks ago relative to a splendid horse and buggy he was in possession of. He replied, "Yes sir, it is so pleasant to have anything that is yours and paid for. I pay every year for the CHRISTIAN RECORDER, and it does me good to read it myself and to others, especially the copies of July 23rd and August 27th.

Second, because in it or them there are so many spicy and stalwart articles. I shall give a few extracts from some and comment thereon. The first article I peused by Bishop H. M. Turner, theme, "Observations," July 23rd. I love the man, O Lord, how knowest I do, and I see conscientiously affirm that there are many I have a knowledge of with the prospects of the school work at Paul Quino College.

—Rev. H. Wilhite has purchased property (a house and lot) and some more to the "Athens of Texas."

—Mrs. J. H. Brown, of Toledo, O., is reported by the Cleveland Globe as in poor health. Mrs. Brown has been a faithful laborer in our Church for many years. We sincerely pray for her recovery.

—President Horgan on his return to Texas found that N. A. Beeks, who joins the Faculty of Paul Quino College this year, was at the camp grounds and giving private lesiruciion to some students.

—Rev. W. H. Arnold, pastor of the A. M. E. Church, Catonsville, Md. celebrated his silver wedding Monday evening, the 22nd inst. Many valuable presents were received. We congratulate Brother and Sister Arnold on successfully tramping the path of wedded life twenty-five years. May they see yet another twenty-five to the journey.

—Miss A. H. Hinton, principal of the Christiana Colored School, Del., is under the auspices of the Delaware Educational Association, has returned from an extended visit to friends in Ohio. Miss Hinton spent some time at Wilberforce, and was the guest of our esteemed old friend, Shelton Morris. Miss Hinton has successfully taught at Christiana ten years.

UNION.

BY REV. W. H. HEARD.

MR. EDITOR:—There is no union in the pale of the Church. The committee of the A. M. E. Church and the A. M. E. Z. Church. There is no harmony in the Church. Each one is doing his own, so to bring the two together under one head. Each one is doing their own part and will not unite and form a chemical compound. There is no union, no idea of union, but the idea and name is in the air. But there is no union. All we bet is the bringing together of two distinct bodies under the same name, to remain distinct each in he head, the fountain of life and wisdom. I am not in favor of separation, but in favor of union instead of dissolute, for bringing together embarrassment and confusion to them We have another Bishop by the last session, and Bishop Dottes has not enough coming into our treasury from the source to pay him a salary of two thousand dollars. Bishops are ordained to missions and four Sabbath schools in Philadelphia, and contributing to the Christian spirit overlook this, but some of the Bishops do not. No one has been fleted. Ingratitude! Who can tell? I do not care where you clase me; I am not a drone ever a drone, for I am awake to every interest of the Church, and the churches are awake to what I have appointed have responded liberally.

But the interest of the race—of the Church—demands the Bishops to be bold our peace and all in silence when we can speak through our great Church organs to thousands who are interested in the work and need to know the whole.

Everything is contained in the idea about ordination or non-ordination. Who of us would ever have a Bishop in our Church only elected as Bishop, but never set apart to that high and holy office—the oversear of overseers, the head of the heads, the superior of superiors, the Bishop of bishops, the father of fathers? Our Church and its polity is a good one and has been tried and has been trained in it from the infant class in the Sabbath school to presiding elder in the annual conference. Education is everything, and thousands in the Zion Church has been brained in that church from infant baptism at the altar to consecration and manhood. There may be those who are seniors for the cause of Christ, and are willing to make concession. There may be others who are ambitious and are anxious for nambers, but so as humble servant and as an African can be. I, either, I say let well enough alone. Go on in your work for God, and in the vineyard he has assigned you.

[From the Star of Zion.]

ORGANIC UNION FROM THE ZION SIDE.

MR. EDITOR:—As the very momentous question of organic union between the A. M. E. Z. and the A. M. E. Church is now agitating the minds of some of the deepest thinkers in and out of both these great and kindred organizations, and decided sentiment has been taken by the administrative and legislative powers of each, looking towards the effecting the consolidation of the aforesaid august Christian bodies, I deem it advisable to express some thoughts on the very important matter. I myself have been greatly in favor of the consolidation of these two, in fact of all other Methodists bodies, true spective of race or color, if it could be done amicably and in such a way as would redound to the glory of God and the furtherance of his glorious cause. If the A. M. E. Zion and the A. M. E. can be united on a good and solid basis without any compromise on either side, it would be one of the grandest events that has ever happened to our race in this country by any people.

Before it is accomplished, much needs to be done to prepare the minds and hearts of the way. For if the intended union is consummated without these sacrifices on both sides, the members of each body will want some assurance that they have not been sold out to the consolidation either spiritually or financially. I will say a letter is all-important there in this connection, in these times of so much financial embarrassment. The union of the two bodies, financially, will hardly be willing at this time to take on the debts of each other, but each one pay their own debts.

Now, our sister church is willing to go to effect an organic union will be better know what it comes to the A. M. E. Zion connection with the A. M. E. Church, world, of course, always was one difference between ours and the A. M. E. Church, that is, we have no pecuniary obligations to each other, or at least, one of the Bishops, as Bishop Dottes, is sustained by ordained elders to the position of Bishop, and he then confers with his colleagues, as our first ordained Bishop did, to do his associates, as Christ was would stand on equal footing, for is not two heads better than one? Then for two persons to wed when one thinks himself superior to the other. In that case they seldom ever agree. Two persons I hope that will be the final consolidation such steps will be taken to prevent that be that will ramedy the evil.

Yours in the bonds of the gospel,

L. D. BLAKSON.

DR. TALMAGE AT CITY-ROAD.

This popular American preacher occupied the pulpit last Sunday evening at City-road, preached on "John Wesley's Old Church in City-road." Dr. Talmage had been asked where he was going to preach in London, declared his preference for the Cathedral of Methodism; and at the opening of his discourse thanked God for the opportunity of preaching there.

Long before half-past six o'clock the chapel was, in every part, packed with people. Not only were the aisles and entrances filled, but eager listeners climbed on to the window-sills and took up other exceptional coigns of vantage which they considered held throughout the service. The approaches to the chapel were crowded. The moving mass passed into the Morning Chapel to the hope of hearing the famous preacher through the side windows. Those who could not get any further were content to wait patiently in the front quadra. Nor were they disappointed, for after the service within Dr. Talmage came out, and, addressing the outside without, and delivered an address from the steps of the principal entrance. Notwithstanding the crush a few faint comers soutsally found their way into the building, and were helped by the kindness of those who have wrought hard for God, but who now, from old age, collapse of locomotion, cannot go to the front. What encouragement to the faithful ministers of religion, who get a little fretful when the congregation have been a little slow to start to carry at the Brook Benor; but feel somehow they ought to be at the front. Dr. Talmage preached from Walt, my father, wait; yourreward will be as it has been in the past. He was in the church, a lady come to you, at the close of the service, and say, "Mr. Talmage, I am a stranger to me." "No," says the aged minister, "you are not a stranger to me, for I recall you by name." Said the lady, "I have not been to the church many and buried my father, and buried my mother, and buried my sister." Ah, yes," said the minister, "I remember it," "my sight is not what it used to be; but I remember you by name and by face. The subscription book business is a branch in which I have been engaged. It is the most profitable part of the business of publishing a book, and I have been about this year, that have the spirit of the Lord Jesus to more fully engage in the work, and have been more before. Nearly 2,000 have been added to the church already and still they come. Before I commenced I blessed me. Guided by the invincible hand of the Master, I went to work. I knows no failure but still leads ahead and has enabled me to build me a home the great A. M. E. host, and our motto is "On to the Front!" God bless the future. We have a good field and all who know him know him to be a man of God and a friend to his people. His speeches and sermons have been like fire in the marrow bones of his people. He made progress as he went along, ride on Sabbath, we will be the model preacher of the Georgia Conference." Rev. R. R. Salter; Rev. A. Dunbar, Rev. Jas. Lynch, secretary of the pulpit orator of the district; schoolmaster, Rev. Jas. Lynch, Rev. Thomas Hamburg, Wells, Jones and Jefferson; Rev. Jas. Lynch, Rev. Thomas Campbell, all young men not long since were his babes in the gospel, but now are his helpers in the work of the ministry.

NOTICE.

A NEW DEPARTURE IN THE SECOND-HAND SALES BUSINESS.

On and after September 1st, all agencies for Raccoon sales will be made anew and on a different plan, indicated below. Present agents must settle in full up to the last issue in August, which will be on the 27th. Our new rules will be as follows: 1st. On applicating an agent he or she must first write a written contract binding each to sell and return one-half of the sales money as monthly and to make a full statement of all claims at the end of every three months. 2nd. All papers cannot to be carefully preserved and inspected with each settlement and held subject to the orders. They must be counted, bound and returned to us when required. 3rd. Such agents will be allowed one-third of each annual subscription they obtain for the paper at $1.50 per year, they retaining fifty cents and sending us 50 cents on dollar. Or, they can take subscriptions on our installment plan, collecting 30 cents in advance every two months, and sending us 20 cents.

These rules will be strictly applied to all except regular itinerant ministers. We are compelled to this for the protection of the Department against so many who are persisted in using the type-writer to correspond. The lady sends us the card and has read the circular, and did not propose to file away any more as machine-made love letters.

A couple of East Bridgeport (Conn.) boys the other day stood by the side of a car excursion train bound for another place, and by the aid of a pole with a hook on the end succeeded in fastening in a number of handkerchiefs, with which many passengers were bidding adieu to parting friends.

W. K. Pinkney, editor of the Dawson (Ga.) Appeal, had retrized to him by a Federal soldier at Gettysburg a Bible which he carried in the war and lost in a battle; and more it is said that he observed that the Chicago man probably returned it because it was so article for which he had no use.

The warm weather often has a depressing and debilitating effect. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a medicine which overcomes lassitude.

Connecticut is now the only State in the Union, it is said, whose Legislature retains judicial functions. The Connecticut Legislature is still a Supreme Court in equity.

When symptoms of materia appear to say form take Ayer's Sarsaparilla at once. to prevent the development of the disease, and internally continue the use to restored, as it surely will be by the use of this remedy. A cure is warranted in every instance.

REMARKABLE CASE OF SYMPATHY.—At a meeting of the French Academy of Medicine lately, Dr. Brown-Sequard related a very remarkable instance of the power of sympathy which came within his recent observation. A little girl was looking out of a window in a house in the Batignolles a few days ago. The lower sash was raised, and the child had placed her arms on the sill. Suddenly the support on which the sash rested gave way, and the window fell with considerable force on the little girl's arms, inflicting a severe bruise. The mother, who was in the room at the time, happened to look toward the window and witnessed the accident. She fell in a fright and remained insensible for a minutes or two. When she recovered she was conscious of a severe pain in both arms, and on examining the seat of it she was amazed to find on each arm a bruise corresponding in position to that left by the accident on the child's, though more extensive. Coming from a less agitated source, such a story would only provoke a smile of incredulity; but Dr. Brown-Sequard's position in the world of science does not permit of this summary mode of disposing of a statement for which he vouches. — *N. BISHOP J. P. CAMPBELL, D.D., LL.D., President of the Board.

Send to Box 263 Athens, Ga.

To the Venerable the Bishops of the African M. E. Zion and of the African Methodist Episcopal Churches:

REVEREND AND DEAR BRETHREN: On the 23rd inst., I received the following communication from Bishop Wayman:

"The committee of ten appointed by our last General Conference, held in Baltimore, Md., May, 1884, to meet a committee of ten appointed by the General Conference of the A. M. E. Zion Church, to consider the subject of organic union of the two connections, met in Washington, D. C., on the 15th of July, which is to be submitted to a joint meeting of the Bishops of both connections, and then to the annual and quarterly conferences, and then to the membership. I have therefore been requested by the unanimous vote of the joint committee to ask (if A. Payne and J. A. Shorter) to arrange for a joint meeting of the Bishops of both connections on or before the 25th day of December next, 1885."

In compliance with which resolution, we, after due consideration, appoint Wednesday, the 4th of November, 1885, as the time, and the city of Washington, N. C., as the place of holding the joint meeting of the Bishops of both connections, at 10 A. M. sharp. We beg that each Bishop of both connections will give this notice an immediate and wide circulation; also, we beg that all the battles connected will earnestly research the Great and Adorable Head of the Church Militant and the Church Triumphant, to be present at that meeting, as knights-as by His Spirit, and to be led by Him during the whole time, and practicable conclusions concluded upon for the good of important questions to be considered by us.

We are, Rev. and dear brethren, your fellow servants in the Church of the living God,

DANIEL A. PAYNE,
JAMES A. SHORTER.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 4, 1885.

Ministers A. M. E. Church:

The General Conference of 1880, as you are aware, established a Connectional Literary Association and Book Association, and the General Conference of 1884 affirmed the same. But from 1880 to 1884, we could never get the constitution and by-laws properly before the Connection, as they were rather too voluminous to get into the Christian Recorder. Hence the constitution and by-laws, however, were amended from time to time by the committee in Wylie Avenue Church, October 6th, 1885, at ten o'clock A. M. The committee are as follows: Rev. Solomon Lott, first year's stedge G. C. Sampson, A. E. Palmer and R. H. Morris Second year, standing, J. M. Morris, H. S. Lowry and T. H. Cyrus. Third year's standing, John M. Palmer, J. J. Jones and W. H. Gifr. Fourth year's standing, C. Asbury, W. B. Brown, Richard Turner, S. T. Jones and Reuben Wheeler. Each pastor is requested to make his report the very best he can, by order of J. F. Campbell, presiding bishop of the third Episcopal District of the A. M. E. Church.

CORNELIUS ABBURY,
Secretary of the Pittsburg Conference.

NOTICE.

What we must say

Installment

sosts a little more, but is easier because it gives more time. Hence, we make the following offer to all who desire to have the RECORDER:

All our Pastors

On this Plan

we give full six months for paying the subscription.

BALDNESS.

If you are troubled with a diseased scalp, if your hair is falling out, if it is weak and thin, or if you have become bald, your hair may be restored to its original healthful condition and color by the use of Hall's Hair Renewer. This effective remedy combines the most desirable qualities of the best preparations for the hair, without the use of any objectionable ingredient. Mrs. Rutherford, 364 Franklin ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., after a severe attack of erysipelas in the head, lost her hair so rapidly that she soon became quite bald. One bottle of Hall's Hair Renewer produced a new growth, as soft, brown, and thick, as in youth.

GRAY HAIRS

are honorable, when they are associated with advanced age, but to be prematurely gray is unpleasant, to say the least. If you cannot renew your youth, you may, at least, obtain the appearance of it, by the use of Hall's Hair Renewer. Randolph W. Farley, Nashua, N. H., quite a young man, whose hair had become gray, the first of a very aged person, applied Hall's Hair Renewer, and now his locks are of a beautiful brown. Try it, my sirs!

"The effects, in my case, from the use of Hall's Hair Renewer are truly marvelous."—Mrs. E. Elliott, Glenville, W. Va., says: "One bottle of Hall's Hair Renewer restored my hair to its youthful color."

HALL'S VEGETABLE

is not a dye, nor does it contain any coloring matter whatever. It restores the hair to its original color by exciting the scalp to a natural, healthful action, and is, also, an efficient remedy in cases of scalp disease. Walter Barnham, M.D., Lowell, Mass., writes: "Having, by accident, discovered Hall's Hair Renewer to be a valuable remedy for restoring the hair, where investrate eruptions had resisted various kinds of treatment, I found that not only was the hair restored to its natural beauty, but also the disease of the scalp was completely cured. I have since recommended the Renewer, frequently, in similar cases, and always with the same success."

The beauty and vigor of the hair is really maintained by the use of Hall's Hair Renewer. Mrs. Susan H. Scott, Stoddard, N. H., writes: "The Renewer will certainly restore gray hair to its original color. I have used it ten years, and it has given perfect satisfaction. It keeps my hair in splendid condition." Mrs. M. Mayhitchcock, Humboldt, Kansas, writes: "I have used Hall's Hair Renewer for years. It keeps the scalp clean and healthy, the hair dark and glossy, and produces a new and vigorous growth."

ECZEMA!

My wife has been sorely afflicted with Eczema or Salt Rheum from infancy. We tried every known remedy, and spent hundreds of dollars in vain. Her case was pronounced incurable. Her limbs from the knees to the feet were one solid sore. After the third bottle of S. S. S. the discharges ceased, and she rested day and turned white and ready and healthy skin. She has not had a sore since. She is now in perfect health. Every appearance of the disease has disappeared and she enjoys perfect health. I have given this statement to the public hoping it may relieve some poor sufferer as mine was relieved. I will cheerfully answer any letter of inquiry. J. C. BARCLAY, Dentist, Mich., May 16, 1882.

THE ROBE.

Personally we care nothing about the robe subject, but in respect to some of Brother Alridge's remarks would say that if certain members of the A. M. E. Church would rather dress like ancient Hebrews or modern Turks than like modern Hebrews and ordinary citizens, no one can prevent this. But we could hardly accept the idea that there is any Bishop in the A. M. E. Church so weak as the writer mentioned intimates or believes, nor many ministers and laymen weak enough to follow so weak a Bishop if he did exist. Our Bishops are supposed to be men of sense, and above leading any one out of the connection on the account of a gown.

THE NEW MARRIAGE LAW.

Pennsylvania, which has been one of the most indifferent of States concerning marriage rites, has awakened to the idea of obviating the marriage of minors without the consent of parents, of wives and husbands without knowledge or to lessen the number of imprisonments and divorcements growing out of hasty and unadvised marriages. In new law requires parents or guardians to file a declaration of their knowledge of and consent to the marriage of their daughters. Ministers will not be allowed to perform the marriage ceremony unless the license from the County Clerk is first presented. This will protect the ministry as well as the other parties. This law becomes active this day, Thursday, October 1st.

SENTIMENT-BUILDING.

Creating instinct is rather hard business. Mr. Oraty, replying to Mr. Oleberb's article on the "Negro Question in Equity," said, in effect, if the race instinct in the South were not strong enough to prevent social race-mixing in the South, i. e., the white South, would create such instinct. In that what they mean in some parts of South Carolina where white men who have married colored women are flogged, threatened with worse treatment and driven from their homes? John Chinaman has declared, in Philadelphia, that a John who married a colored woman is "no mol good;" "he ought to be kille;" "he gits de small pox or fevlel, Chinaman no lookee at he;" "he die Chinaman no belly be." Wonder he does not also take these sentiment mills to produce the proper sentiment in their respective races to render them self-protective against the fascination of the inferior race. To see a race flogging itself to avoid its being degraded, reminds one of the flagitantes, a little, and also of a man's elevating himself by pulling at his boot straps.

FOR HYMN BOOKS in your churches. While hymn books sell at 75 cents, a piece almost every one can have a hymn book. How can our good people walk to their beautiful churches, clothed in their beautiful raiment, stand up in the congregation to listen at the choir, when they could swell the music to proportions far beyond those of the organ? Any church ordering one dozen or more books at once gets a discount of 20 per cent., which brings the dozen of plain cloth books down to $7.20, or 60 cents a piece in addition to the expressage. The 85 cent book with the discount off costs $8.16 per dozen, or 68 cents a piece. Buy books. Don't stand up mute while tired choirs sing. Praise God with singing.

Rev. G. T. Watens and the people of Mt. Pisgah Church, Cape May, have put improvements on their church to the amount of sixteen hundred dollars. They have purchased an acre of land on which they have a tasty parsonage. This cost them twenty-five hundred dollars. Also, Elder Watens has purchased a new church property on Cape May Point. This property consists of a large lot and good building. At this point they have seventeen members. The new church was dedicated with suitable solemnity by Bishop Cain the last Sunday in August.

At Cape May the church has seventy-one members. Brother Waters sells thirty copies of the RECORDER weekly. There is no wonder his work flourishes.

ON ENDOWMENT DAY there were some ministers who would not put themselves to the pains to fall in line and not in unison with the law and the majority, largely because they did not "have in," "O, what is law to us?" they seemed to say. Some held their quarterly meetings, some had their rallies, some did nothing and some, rather than move their opposition made two months prior to the day, moved Endowment Day, that was fixed by the Church nearly two years ago, took their little selfishness very smoothly and unanthasiastically a week or two before they appointed. It is about as easy, brethren, to pull together.

THE PENNSYLVANIA Horticultural Society will open its annual session at Horticultural Hall, Philadelphia, Tuesday, October 6th, at 8 P. M., and close Friday, October 9th. Daily sessions will commence at 10 A. M. and close at 10 P. M.

This is the fifty-sixth annual session. The management has arranged an attractive list of premiums. All contributions are to be entered on or before Tuesday, September 29th. Admission 25 cents.

THE REPUTATION which Madame Selika has born in Europe as an artiste is in itself sufficient to insure a rousing recognition in the Academy of Music, October 7th, while we have reason sufficient to base the expectation that the Madame Selika of to-day is not as far superior to the Madame Selika who went to Europe three years ago, as the latter was to our ordinary singers.

THE Rev. Wm. J. Law has prepared a lecture on the "Life and Works of Bishop Dickerson." It is well endorsed as a very able lecture. Brother Law was intimately and thoroughly acquainted with the subject, and ought to be able to give some very interesting reminiscences of his life. Those desiring the lecture will address Rev. W. J. Laws, Galesburg, Ill.

Ms. LANGSTON'S praise for Elder Mossell and Mrs. Mossell, also Madame Wood, of Hayti, is almost unbounded. Mrs. Langston says Rev. G. O. Mossell will succeed nicely as successor to Rev. Mossell; yet he thinks it will be a difficult matter for the Church to appoint another man who can surpass Elder Mossell.

THE A. M. E. Church at Horstown, Delaware Co., Pa., having undergone a renovation and repairing during the summer costing $150, September 13th was their day for special effort; they raised over one hundred and fifty dollars. That was a fine result for thirty-five members.

EVERY ENDOWMENT dollar is likely to live a thousand years in the use of the A. M. E. Church for conection. Only the interest is to be used. The good that may result from one single dollar given to this end is incalculable.

REV. W. H. BAYART has arranged for a concert by Madame Selika in Norfolk, Va. It is hoped that the prospects for the Selika concert under the auspices of Allen Chapel are very encouraging.

WE WONDERED in an African M. E. Church in the United States the other day in which there were not more than ten hymn books, though there were about a hundred persons present.

THE CHURCH OF THE HOLY TRINITY, that gave one hundred and seventy-five dollars for Endowment funds, has not more than sixty-five members.

ON ENDOWMENT DAY the Church of the Holy Trinity, Wilberforce University, raised over one hundred and twenty-three dollars. How much did you raise?

NOW IS THE time to subscribe for the CHRISTIAN RECORDER. For the fall and winter you will need just such reading matter as our paper affords.

THE INFANT DEPARTMENT of Bethel Church, Philadelphia, raised $23.37 and the adult department, $20.32. Infants to the front.

BISHOP TURNER'S book is very popular. There is scarcely a day that does not bring orders for it.

Personal.

—Rev. Z. B. Roberts is pastor of the college chapel at Wilberforce University.

—The Evangelist, Mrs. Emily Stevens's address is Box 1101 Vineland, N. J.

—Dr. Tanner visited the Kentucky Conference last week, and visits the North Ohio this week.

—Bishop Dale, of the A. M. E. Zion Church, is said to have recovered his health to a considerable extent.

—Rev. B. W. Wile will see that article, concerning whose publication he writes us, in our issue of two weeks ago.

—Mr. J. J. Tebow, of Darby, Pa., conducts a paying bakery. His patronage includes some of the best citizens of the place.

—Manager Embry visits the North Ohio Conference this week en route for Philadelphia, after an absence of two months.

—Rev. J. S. Thompson collected one hundred and forty dollars Endowment money on September 20th. How much did you collect?

—Rev. S. H. Robertson, S. B. Jones and H. W. Wyth are doing quite extensive business with the Publishing House. That's right, brethren.

—Rev. George Dardis has succeeded in literally keeping Avery Chapel, at Memphis, Tenn., packed with hearers. The people love Mr. Dardis.

—Rev. C. E. Herbert, of the Chester charge, held his grand rally on Thursday evening of last week instead of on Sunday. His realisations were above the expectations, $146 75.

—Mrs. Bishop Turner is annoyed by persons writing for "Mathodist Folio" and not seeing the blate from whence they write. She has the money from some, but does not know where to send the goods.

—Hon. J. M. Langston was registered at the Continental. As usual, he gave our office his honor of a call. Mr. Langston sailed for Hayti last Wednesday on professional business. He is looking remarkably well.

—Miss E. A. Gamo, formerly of Wilberforce University, College, has accepted a position in the State Normal School at Orangeburg, Virginia. Miss Gamo is pronounced a successful instructor; she will doubtless do well in Orangeburg.

—Sam Smell, a white man, who was a drunkard and a gambler a few years ago, has been converted most powerfully and is saw preaching upon the gambling vanity, and drawing great crowds of hearers. The effect of his sermons is electrical.

—Presiding Elder H. H. Bolden, of the Wilmville district, says at the close of the Virginia Conference he had the pleasure of receiving into full connection three young men who are ahead of us in all out-of-door sports, in base ball especially. Base ball seems to be almost every town and make extend ed pilgrimages over the country. Rev. Alexander was "Young," by the title of a chapter of excerpts from the Rev. Dr. Talmage's sermons. "Mrs. John Allen, of Ridge View," is the title of a work on Methodism by Cowgill, that opens very brightly in this number. It is followed by "Some Hints on Economy," by Mrs. Lucy Stone, worth considering. "A New Order of Odd Fellows" is a sketch of Church, follows and then comes a graphic description of "A Cat Incident," the writer claiming that Dordreich is the most picturesque city in Holland. An account of "The Lights in the Ocean," or, as we should say, Quakers in Parliament, shows what an important part this sect has played in the political history of England. The "Family Doctor this month discusses the subject of dyspepsia and gives some excellent advice for its treatment. "Notes and Queries" and fruit districts of East, England, is filled with interesting information as to the Paris letter maintains its place as a standard on the important subject of dress. A number of pictures are given the number and "The Gatherer" closes a worth of miscellaneous and labor-saving invention.—Cassell & Co., New York.

The Magazine of Art for October is an especially fine number, to taxt and beautiful illustrations. There are full page illustrations, one of which, Whistler's full length portrait of Pablo Sarasate, the violinist, is not cut with the price of the number, but of a year's subscription to the magazine. The opening paper by Claude Phillips, is on that sculptress Gertrude Arnold Hecklin, of whose peculiar work a number of admirable illustrations are given. Following this is a paper on Granada, by David Hannay, showing by pencil as well as pen the moorish beauties of that old Spanish town. Then comes a poem, by J. Arthur Blaikie, "Reconciliation," with one of Walter Crane's admirable illustrations. Harry V. Barnett continues his stories of "The Romance of Art," selecting the pathetic story of Alexander Allison and Isabella Cuthbert for his subject. A valuable paper on "The Art Work of Worcester" by Mr. Justin Coswey strikes "A Note on Marquetry," by Fleetish magar, whose "Adoration of the Magi" has been attracting the admiration of English lovers of Art. "Current Art" is a cleverly dissected with reproductions of the pictures in the Royal Academy and Grosvenor Gallery, then comes "Art Notes" and "Recent Books." Cassell & Company, New York, $3.50 a year in advance.

The editor of Cassell's Family Magazine is a good caterer, for he knows how to make a tempting feast. His aim seems to be variety, and variety in a magazine is a most desirable quality. In the October number is the beginning serial of "A Diamond in the Rough" opens the number and is followed by a well written and sensible article on "Spelling by ear," men, as exercise that cannot be too high ly recommended to English women, who are ahead of us in all out-of-door sports, in base ball especially. Base ball seems to be almost every town and make extend ed pilgrimages over the country. Rev. Alexander was "Young," by the title of a chapter of excerpts from the Rev. Dr. Talmage's sermons. "Mrs. John Allen, of Ridge View," is the title of a work on Methodism by Cowgill, that opens very brightly in this number. It is followed by "Some Hints on Economy," by Mrs. Lucy Stone, worth considering. "A New Order of Odd Fellows" is a sketch of Church, follows and then comes a graphic description of "A Cat Incident," the writer claiming that Dordreich is the most picturesque city in Holland. A number of pictures are given the number and "The Gatherer" closes a worth of miscellaneous and labor-saving invention.—Cassell & Co., New York.

Harper's Magazine for October is a strong number from every point of view. The important, attractive and richly illustrated. Mr. C. H. Farnham concludes his interesting account, impressively and beautifully illustrated, of his cancer trip along the coast of Labrador. William Hamilton Gibson contributes an interesting paper, entitled "Backyard Studies," with five charming illustrations. George Parsons Lathrop describes the city of Hartford, giving special attention to the "Nook Farm" literary group, consisting of Mark Twain, Charles Dudley Warner and Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe. The article is profusely illustrated. After a long interval we have another instalment of Goldsmith's play, "She Stoops to Conquer" (nearly all of Act II.), with thirteen illustrations by E. A. Abbey, one of which is the frontispiece to the number. In fiction we have the very best in Miss Woolson's "Zeal Arogate" and Howells's "Indian Summer." There are also two good short stories, "A Friend of Nature," by Phil Robinson, and "A Puritan Indeed," by Mary Gray Morrison. The latter is illustrated by Dielman. Mr. Veeder B. Paine contributes a timely and important article especially the defects in the past conduct of our public school and city, indicating a method of reform. Mr. J. S. Van Dyke's article on "Mexican Painting" among other things owes its attention to the recent awakening of the Mexican Congress and its assumption of a positive indifference to executive control, and is illustrated with portraits of President Diaz and two eminent parliamentary leaders. It is a matter of curious interest that two of the poems in this number—"When Evening Cometh On," by Robert Burns Wilson, and "The Song of the Dead Gear," by Charles W. Coleman, Jun.—treat the same subject and are both by Southern authors, a Kentuckian and a Virginian. In D. Blackmore, the celebrated novelist, contributes a pleasing bit of verse entitled "Dissimilar Fault;" and Mary Caryl Leland is represented by another of her quaint and characteristic poems, entitled "The Message of the Dead." In the Editor's Easy Chair are two letters written by Thomas Carlyle to the Hon. Beverley Tucker in 1846 and 1850, and here published for the first time. One of these, dealing with the civil-slavery agitation, is the most important and characteristic of Carlyle's letters that has been brought to light since his death. The other editorial departments are well conducted including a first-rate Editor's Drawer.

THAT ROBE SUBJECT.

A REPLY TO EDITOR LEE.

BY REV. I. F. ALDRIDGE.

MR. EDITOR:—In the RECORDER of August 27th, 1885, your editorial remarks closed with five interrogations. I do not claim to be a Bishop, nor to have any particular person or persons to answer, therefore I hope, sir, you will allow me to answer these items in detail in our dear RECORDER.

1. "What is it? What about the robe subject?" It is a fact, I suppose, that for eighteen or twenty years some in the ministry of the A. M. E. Church have favored the wearing of robes in the pulpit and, therefore, I will not be required, must become intellectually an heathen. That, however, is a mistake, as it is not an unpardonable sin to favor the wearing of robes and garments of different shapes and colors. But if a man the right to say what kind of a coat I shall or shall not wear, but I am not. The Hebrews wore tunics and mantles. These were their official garments and constituted a change of dress. In Turkey the officials wear white robes. The Greek Church is clothed in pure and cheerful white when he was consecrated. Priests are clothed in the same like raiments. The saints are clothed in white robes. The saints are clothed in white robes or honor when he shall come to be glorified in the clouds. Well, what kind of clothes shall clothe? Shall it be "Broadcloth" or "Shoddy?" No. Wind clouds? No, no. An angelic dress? Yes, yes. Fine linen is the kind of cloud the King of glory shall be seen coming down in, upon which he comes? Christ's robe upon his followers. It may not be a very grave sin to wear robes, but I do not believe the wearing of them in the pulpit by the ministry will, in any sense, increase or decrease the spiritual interest of our public congregations. I am decidedly opposed to the wearing of robes in the pulpit, but simply says they should "be discontinued." It does not say any person or persons wearing them shall be guilty of a breach of Discipline and shall be tried, suspended or expelled. Hence it is optional, and the Bishop has a perfect right to denounce the custom as being "at variance with the simplicity of Methodist usage," and as being "unbecoming men, as exercise that cannot be too high ly recommended to English women, who are ahead of us in all out-of-door sports, in base ball especially. Base ball seems to be almost every town and make extend ed pilgrimages over the country. Rev. Alexander was "Young," by the title of a chapter of excerpts from the Rev. Dr. Talmage's sermons. "Mrs. John Allen, of Ridge View," is the title of a work on Methodism by Cowgill, that opens very brightly in this number. A number of pictures are given the number and "The Gatherer" closes a worth of miscellaneous and labor-saving invention.—Cassell & Co., New York.

2. "Is the resolution passed by the General Conference on the subject binding?" I think not. Because the resolution on page 337 of the Discipline reads as follows: "We will not allow robes, gowns or surplices by the Bishops or ministers of the African Methodist Episcopal Church to be worn with the simplicity of Methodist usages, and should therefore be discontinued." The resolution is not binding, from the fact it does not say robes should not be worn, but simply says they should "be discontinued." It does not say any person or persons wearing them shall be guilty of a breach of Discipline and shall be tried, suspended or expelled. Hence it is optional, and the Bishop has a perfect right to denounce the custom as being "at variance with the simplicity of Methodist usages," and as being "unbecoming men, as exercise that cannot be too high ly recommended to English women, who are ahead of us in all out-of-door sports, in base ball especially. Base ball seems to be almost every town and make extend ed pilgrimages over the country. Rev. Alexander was "Young," by the title of a chapter of excerpts from the Rev. Dr. Talmage's sermons. A number of pictures are given the number and "The Gatherer" closes a worth of miscellaneous and labor-saving invention.—Cassell & Co., New York.

3. "Will it be enforced? No, I think not; because it cannot be from the fact it does not say robes shall not be worn, but simply says they should "be discontinued." It does not say any person or persons wearing them shall be guilty of a breach of Discipline and shall be tried, suspended or expelled. Hence it is optional, and the Bishop has a perfect right to denounce the custom as being "at variance with the simplicity of Methodist usages," and as being "unbecoming men, as exercise that cannot be too high ly recommended to English women, who are ahead of us in all out-of-door sports, in base ball especially. 4. "When?" you ask, "will the robes be worn before he is excited?" I answer, never.

5. "Where?" you ask in reply. The place is not known and will not be the side of the General Conference, A. D. 1888, because we are not afraid of "cast down here."

Mr. Editor, therefore let us go to prayer. We find no fault in our leader or Bishop, but before him there stands a leader who is he? He is he who wears scarlet robe; that man who wears a red robe; that man is King of the Jews; yes he is King of kings and Lord of lords. Therefore, I am preparing to put on a long white robe, and wash it in the blood of the Lamb. Then let us pray that the Lord may direct us aright in our decisions.

In less than three months I expect to be at Stevensleoville, as this makes two years for me at Yanceyville, but, D.V., we shall make a better report than ever before.

YANCEYVILLE, N. C.

Street preaching is becoming very common South, but our colored ministry have not taken to it yet.

"DO GOOD IF YOU EXPECT TO RECEIVE GOOD."

There is no healthy physical life without a proper balance of the active and receptive habitudes of the body. If a man set too much and not too little, he will become gross and gouty, or dull and dyspeptic. If he eat too little and live little, he will be weak and insipid, or spasmodic and irascible. It is not enough to live to work; but eating and working should be in such a kind—the first being sufficient to supply the vital expenditure, and the vital expenditure being sufficient to supply the digestive energy called for by the food. By this balance the digestive functions are kept sharp and healthy, and the muscular organs are developed to the full measure of their powers. The man who eats much and works little is necessarily a stupid man; and the man who spends in labor what he has received in food, in a legitimate way, finds himself, under favorable conditions, the possessor of a happy and a healthy life.

There is also a better illustration than this of the a necessity to healthy mental life of the possession of a proper balance between the active and receptive attitudes of the mind. In the first place, I mind that imagines that its grand good is to be achieved while in the receptive attitude, is in the habit of receiving and acquiring—will find itself greatly imbalanced. The theory of scholastic is mainly the theory of acquiring, and contemplates almost entirely a receptive mind. Such scholastic is a simple learning are tributes to the fact, and fact of the mind, and a large proportion of the very learned men of the world are also the very least do nothing for the world or their race; who are not recognized as powers in society, and who, when meeting on the common sense, and healthily to take care of themselves, are very favorable to the elevation of certain men to the Episcopal bench and after the General Conference decided not to elect any Bishops at that session, it was thought best to call the Annual Conferences in sessions for the next four years to the duty of electing Bishops, and requiring lies on the one hand and decreased facilities on the other were resorted to.

3. "Will it be enforced? No, I think not; because it cannot be from the fact it does not say robes shall not be worn, but simply says they should "be discontinued." It does not say any person or persons wearing them shall be guilty of a breach of Discipline and shall be tried, suspended or expelled. YANCEYVILLE, N. C.

PEACE AGAIN IN MONTGOMERY.

From a private letter just received, it appears that Bishop Turner succeeded in settling the great church wrangle in St. John's A. M. E. Church at Montgomery, Ala., on last Tuesday night, which had been the source of much strife. He held the congregation, men and women, in the church till two o'clock in the morning, when presiding elder, pastor, officers and all consented to the new deed, whose things? If God is about to retire us from this field, we had better get ready to move out. But I am of the opinion that if God is about to retire us, it is not because we have done our work so well.

COME SOUTH

and see the institutions of learning under the control of the superior race, crowded and supported by our youth and our leading men, claiming that we can't keep up but one university. Then let the Church march across the country and hear them lauding these institutions to the heavens. "Consistency is a jewel." Now, where are we to-day? With about five millions of our people in the South and with about three-fourths of the membership of our Church to the South, we are entitled to but one institution in this great section, and yet we can furnish pupils and patronage for a dozen of these kind of institutions, and yet it is well known to all men of these times that we are willing that the education of the negro is the ostensible object of the power behind the throne of these institutions. Once in a while, to loosen the pursestrings, a Bishop will send a man to the South is published as sinking in the deepest slums of vice, making no progress as far as we can see; and from time you see or hear of some of our Bishops in the interest of some of these institutions, with a white man on his shoulder and saying, go in. Now, this thing must stop. Every indictment is held out to the members of our Church to-day. Our children are dropping out. Our children are decayed from our Sabbath-schools, and our people are generally crying, we are unsectarian, and all this kind of thing. This thing has been long enough, and whenever we have influence exist it is about time to set it down. Equal rights to all men, and special privileges to none. Every denomination is entitled to one institution of learning—whose life has been expended in acquisition merely—be sent to a church whose business it is to make us powerful men and women, who do not go out from books into the world and there begin to learn how to apply his knowledge to practical life, or who does not become active to organize the public mind, and to direct it to what is required, must become intellectually an heathen. That, however, is a mistake, as it is not an unpardonable sin to favor the wearing of robes and garments of different shapes and colors. But if a man the right to say what kind of a coat I shall or shall not wear, but I am not. The Hebrews wore tunics and mantles. These were their official garments and constituted a change of dress. In Turkey the officials wear white robes. The Greek Church is clothed in pure and cheerful white when he was consecrated. Priests are clothed in the same like raiments. The saints are clothed in white robes. The saints are clothed in white robes or honor when he shall come to be glorified in the clouds. Well, what kind of clothes shall clothe? Shall it be "Broadcloth" or "Shoddy?" No. Wind clouds? No, no. An angelic dress? Yes, yes. Fine linen is the kind of cloud the King of glory shall be seen coming down in, upon which he comes? Christ's robe upon his followers. It may not be a very grave sin to wear robes, but I do not believe the wearing of them in the pulpit by the ministry will, in any sense, increase or decrease the spiritual interest of our public congregations. I am decidedly opposed to the wearing of robes in the pulpit, but simply says they should "be discontinued." WHAT ABOUT IT?

BY REV. B. F. HURLEY.

When I met the General Conference of last year, I was in the hopeful spirit of the Church seeming to have no other interest than that to get their names in the journal, though I must say that I was not even there at this ridiculous rate? Is it worth while for the ministry to spend time and money to attend sessions of General Conference when the only interest the delegates have is to get their names in the journal, I thought, Great God, and am I here for this? I have been in many political conventions where faction contended with factions for their respective men for offices, but I never was in a convention where such selfishness, such unconcern, such dignity and brotherly love. I have been to the General Conferences but have not seen yet the General Conference that has done anything worthy of note for the Discipline. If a man would write out the doings of the General Conference he would write but little, he was in the same church. But this is not the whole business of the closed I see. The last General Conference, I believe, made one of the greatest mistakes that are not doing the Church any good. Why not have a general and general offices: another was to stab the Dollar law. This thing of increasing salaries is all wrong. Why not let the same breath decree the amount to be paid to the General Conference agent, I have never been able to understand. Why not have a fixed salary? Salaries were as the bottom of it and up to this good day I have not seen anything to change my opinion. I am thinking that the success of certain departments of the Church was favorable to the elevation of certain men to the Episcopal bench and after the General Conference decided not to elect any Bishops at that session, it was thought best to call the Annual Conferences in sessions for the next four years to the duty of electing Bishops, and requiring lies on the one hand and decreased facilities on the other were resorted to.

3. "Will it be enforced? No, I think not; because it cannot be from the fact it does not say robes shall not be worn, but simply says they should "be discontinued." It does not say any person or persons wearing them shall be guilty of a breach of Discipline and shall be tried, suspended or expelled. Hence it is optional, and the Bishop has a perfect right to denounce the custom as being "at variance with the simplicity of Methodist usages," and as being "unbecoming men, as exercise that cannot be too high ly recommended to English women, who are ahead of us in all out-of-door sports, in base ball especially. 4. "When," you ask, "will the robes be worn before he is excited?" I answer, never.

5. "Where?" you ask in reply. The place is not known and will not be the side of the General Conference, A. D. 1888, because we are not afraid of "cast down here."

Mr. Editor, therefore let us go to prayer. We find no fault in our leader or Bishop, but before him there stands a leader; who is he? He is he who wears scarlet robe; that man who wears a red robe; that man is King of the Jews; yes he is King of kings and Lord of lords. Therefore, I am preparing to put on a long white robe, and wash it in the blood of the Lamb. Then let us pray that the Lord may direct us aright in our decisions.

and see the institutions of learning under the control of the superior race, crowded and supported by our youth and our leading men, claiming that we can't keep up but one university. Then let the Church march across the country and hear them lauding these institutions to the heavens. "Consistency is a jewel." Now, where are we to-day? With about five millions of our people in the South and with about three-fourths of the membership of our Church to the South, we are entitled to but one institution in this great section, and yet we can furnish pupils and patronage for a dozen of these kind of institutions, and yet it is well known to all men of these times that we are willing that the education of the negro is the ostensible object of the power behind the throne of these institutions. Once in a while, to loosen the purse-strings, a Bishop will send a man to the South is published as sinking in the deepest slums of vice, making no progress as far as we can see; and from time you see or hear of some of our Bishops in the interest of some of these institutions, with a white man on his shoulder and saying, go in. Now, this thing must stop. Every indictment is held out to the members of our Church to-day. Our children are dropping out. Our children are decayed from our Sabbath-schools, and our people are generally crying, we are unsectarian, and all this kind of thing. This thing has been long enough, and whenever we have influence exist it is about time to set it down. Equal rights to all men, and special privileges to none. Convictions for smuggling have steadily increased in number in England, year by year, for the last decade, reaching in 1880 the total of 1,000 as against 114 in 1878. The increase is attributed rather to superior guardianship at the coast than to any growth in the practice of smuggling.
